Sommers said he hadn't introduced Douglas to Morrison, but learned later that Douglas was a confidence man. Morrison interrupted Sommers to tell that Sommers and Douglas "always seemed to know each other."

There are said to be 800 uses for the palmyra palm, which grows throughout tropical India.

Brigade Chaplain Davidson Preaches in St. Margaret's

The information comes from private letters that Major Davidson, chaplain of the 93rd, has since his transference to the chaplaincy of the Ontario Hospital at Orpington, been promoted to be brigadier chaplain, the only rank that qualifies for preaching in St. Margaret's, Westminster, the House of Commons church. Major Davidson was chosen to preach in St. Margaret's on Sunday, Aug. 20th, an honour which his many friends in Peterborough welcome with congratulatory appreciation.

Farewell Party For Miss Mildred Lennox

Last night a party of young people spent a very enjoyable evening at the home of Mrs. P. Birdgenaw, 228 Perry street, it being the occasion of the departure of her sister, Miss Mildred E. Lennox, who leaves on Monday next for Watertown, N.Y.

Her friends presented her with a beautiful white prayer book and a handsome box of embossed stationery for which she made a very suitable reply.

Music and games were indulged in till a late hour, when dainty refreshments were partaken of. The party broke up when the happy young couples joined hands and sang, "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot."

Has Left Family of Duchess of Brunswick

After two years with the Kaiser's only daughter, the Duchess of Brunswick, Miss Pearse, sister of Miss A. Pearse, formerly of Hazelbrae, Dr. Barnardo's Home, Peterborough, is now held as a prisoner of war in England. She became a member of the Duchess of Brunswick's household in April, 1914, and in February, 1916, was sent to Austria on account of it having been too difficult for her to live in Germany any longer. She has been with the Duchess of Cumberland, the mother of the Duchess of Brunswick, and reports that the whole royal family was very good to her. Recently she was able to leave Austria and after a ten days' journey reached London, Eng., where she is being technically held as a prisoner and will have to appear before a committee at Carlonton House terrace before she will be allowed to return to her friends in England.

Left Asylum To Enlist To Do His Share

Between the covers of the countless dusty tomes at Ottawa are some strange and weird laws, one of which was used at the Hamilton Armouries in connection with the escape from a hospital for insane of a "trusty," who joined an overseas unit before the truth of the affair was discovered.

The patient in question ran away from the institution about two months ago. He signed up with the 215th overseas battalion. Being quite rational, no suspicion fastened on him until recently, when he showed disquieting symptoms. Then it was learned that he was a former patient of the institution, and, of course, was at once discharged from the battalion.

It is at this point of the affair that the remarkable status governing such cases came into light. Every patient who escapes from a provincial hospital and succeeds in evading capture for a term exceeding thirty days, renders himself immune from apprehension, as the hospital authorities cannot seize an escaped patient after the thirtieth day, nor can they readmit him to the institution without a lot of red tape.

Officials of the institution, acting upon this statute, refused to take the patient back. They gave as their reason to do so would be a direct contravention of instructions as laid down by the government heads. They admitted it might be a 'fool-law,' but were constrained to observe it to the letter, nevertheless.

To formality of readmission was proceeded with and the patient was taken back under escort.

Small Successes For Fierce German Attacks

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, Sept. 2.—(French Official).—The Germans re-occupied a few elements of trenches captured by the French south of Estrees on Aug. 31 in a very violent counter-attack south of the Somme last night.

The attack on the French lines was followed in a few hours by a similar counter-attack on the British positions north of the Somme, which resulted in a slight German gain. The purpose of these assaults, it is believed here, was to relieve some of the depression caused in Germany by the turn of events in the Balkans. The Germans shelled the French positions around Maurepas heavily and then attacked south of the Somme. Their losses were very heavy.

In the Champagne region the Russian contingent, landed a few months ago, again defeated the Germans, dispersing a German reconnaissance south of Tahuré.

The Verdun sector was the scene of heavy fighting last night. Thiaumont and the region surrounding it came under heavy artillery fire, and the Germans attacked the village of Fleury, but were repulsed. West of Pont-a-Mousson, south-east of Verdun, the Germans unsuccessfully attempted an attack near Fay-En-Haye, but were checked before they left their trenches.

Situation In Greece Becomes More Grave

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—Former Premier Venizzelos of Greece, leader of the party which favours participation in the war with the Entente Allies, is quoted in a despatch from Athens as having said to friends that the situation was becoming more and more grave for Greece.

Venizelos blamed those who had advance knowledge of Roumania's intentions for not bringing about the intervention of Greece at least simultaneously with Roumania.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—The Committee of National Defence in Macedonia is apparently a Greek revolutionary committee, organized ostensibly to get volunteers to fight the Bulgars. The appeal issued by this committee to the people and the army urges them to "drive the oppressor from Greek soil." The recruiting of volunteers was urged, and a large meeting is being organized.

Allied Ships Sieze Four German Liners

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

ATHENS, Sept. 2.—Allied warships have seized the German Levant liners Tinos, Anatolia, Seripsos and Boigalos in the Greecian harbour of Pireaus.

Russians Capture Series of Heights

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, Sept. 2.—Russian troops have captured a series of heights in the direction of the Hungarian town of Koromezo, in a resumption of heavy fighting in the Carpathians, it was officially announced to-day.

HIS LURE

(Sam Hunter in the Millbrook Reporter)

He was a sallow, rather pompous little man with tortoise shell glasses, a "bug" on fishing tackle. One of a group which every evening is accustomed to foregather at the dock at McCracken's he was last night exhibiting his latest troll by walking the length of the wharf and spinning it for the edification of the hotel bunch. It was a "home-made," he proudly claimed—and it looked it. It was a sort of double barreled, triple action affair that made rather more fuss than was necessary for anything under a steamer's propeller, and it seemed very large. "But it's the lure," he would say, taking another turn with it down the dock, "its' the lure, gentlemen." "Ain't caught anything with it yet, have you?" asked the fat man from Columbus who arrived yesterday. "No, sir, I haven't, but who has caught anything for a week? They're not biting, we all know that. But, gentlemen, biting, or not biting, fish simply can't resist following that troll. I pulled over shallow-shoal water yesterday and I could actually see large fish following it up, actually see 'em. It'll make a killing when the weather changes."

"Xcuse me boss, but did-hic-did you say loor?" He was a prodigal son looking gentleman with a damaged "bowler" and a "hang over" who had come off the up boat under the delusion that he was at "Julia's Landin,'" and that "the folks" would presently call for him and his straw suit case. "Beaus, loor's right, 'f yeh ask me. I-hic-been seetin' here eyin' her," he continued, drawing his suit case a little nearer to the group, and sitting down again, "an' I repeat, loor's right; I'll bet ye," he continued, directing his discourse now to "Jo" of the hotel, who had just come up and was solemnly trying to stare him out of countenance, "I bet ye it loors 'em. But, say, if y' think it's becus they-hick-think it's something t' eat for-hic-forget it, say, forget it. I'll bet ye th' fish that's seen that hic-dingus has spread th' noos all over th' lake, an' fishin' won't be worth a hoot in-hic-Hades for a month. They'll all be crowdin' over here to little ole doc's 'lectric fan for bet fishes. Say, 'lectric fan's right, 'f ye ask me, an' them here fishes thehic-doo here seen was jest natur'ly crowin' in t' get cool, that's right. Say, that blame funny doodad of th' doc's is"—But the man with the lure had moved away. He was afterwards heard to indignantly express himself to Postmaster Choate on the subject of "roughnecks" and the necessity of keeping certain kinds of cattle off a public dock. Whether he referred to the gentleman with the "hang-over" or to Dad's calves, we did not learn.

Long Ride On Bicycle

Peterboro Boy Reaches Kingston After Fifteen Hours Journey

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 1.—Harold Copp, a youth from Peterborough, arrived in the city early last night, having ridden from his home on a wheel, a distance of 132 miles, in the surprisingly fast time of 15 hours. The young man had a splendid trip and met with one accident.

He went from Peterborough to Port Hope and from there came down the main road to this city. While in the vicinity of Port Hope he was hit by an auto and although knocked from his machine he was not hurt nor was the wheel seriously damaged.

Young Copp had a brother, Leo, with the 74th Battery and it was to visit him that prompted him to take the long wheel ride. He also has another brother, Pte. Howard Copp, at the front with the 38rd Battery.

Emergency Orders Cancelled Show Strike Averted

The cancellation of anticipatory emergency orders to G.T.R. station agents this morning was regarded as a certain indication that the strike-cloud threatening United States railways had lifted.

On August 29th, when the negotiations between the railway heads and their employees were abruptly broken off and a strike announced to take effect on Monday next, on that day G.T.R. headquarters sent out an order. The Canadian road was apparent home as quickly as possible. On the same day came a notice that a receipt be taken for all freight, and the owner had to accept the risk of delay. These orders reflected the tense situation which had arisen in the railway difficulty across the border. The anadian road was apparently taking steps to safeghard its interests. This morning's cancellation of these orders were interpreted by Mr. J. A. McNab as an evidence that the seriousness had been relieved. It is, therefore, expected that the strike has been averted.

ORSOVA IS CAPTURED BY THE ROUMANIAN FORCES

Roumanians Capture Head Of Railway Communication With Central Hungary

Roumanian Forces Are Now in a Position to Sweep Forward Into Hungary Along the Natural Routes Taken by the Hungarian Railway Builders--Prussian and Bulgarian Attacks on Basardjik in the Dobrudja Were Repulsed

ROUMANIA'S PART IN THE WAR

London, Sept. 6—Orsova Has Been Captured by Roumanians.

BUCHAREST, September 6.—The Roumanian War Office announced that Roumanian troops have occupied Borszek and Sekeli, in Transylvania. The Teutonic-Bulgarian allies have been repulsed at Basardjik, in the Dobrudja, but elsewhere continue their attack along the whole frontier between the Dobrudja and Bulgaria.

A raid by three hostile hydro-aeroplanes upon the city of Constantza, on the Roumanian coast of the Black Sea, with the wounding of several civilians and children, is announced.

The importance of the Roumanian capture of the town of Borszék, in Haromszek, lies in the fact that Boraszek is at the head of railway communication with the vast network of railroads radiating from Central Hungary into the East Carpathian and Transylvania mountains. It means that the Roumanian forces have not only crossed the Transylvanian mountain range but that they are now in position to sweep forward into Hungary along the natural routes taken by the Hungarian railroad builders.

From Borszek to Kronstadt by railroad is a distance of 36 miles and from Borszek to Moros Casarhaly, over Sepsi-St.-Gyorgy is a distance by railway of 186 miles.

Coincident with the capture of Borszek the Roumanians have occupied Sekeli (Sz Lelek). This latter place lies about seven miles west of Borszek and about three miles south of the Pusnad Pass. The capture of Sekeli assures protection to the Roumanians against any flank attack from the northward. From Borszek to Kronstadt the railway runs through a fertile valley, guarded on either side by high mountain ranges. Borszek lies at the head of this valley and Sekeli is on the right of the valley as one goes westward and just within the mountain foothills.

To effect the capture of Borszek and Sekeli the Roumanian forces were able to approach by rail to the region of Foksani, in Roumania. At a point ten miles north of that city the railroad crosses the Susita River, and a study of the terrain discloses that this stream can be followed up to its source, which leads to the summit of the divide between Roumania and Hungary. From this summit, where it is reached by following up the Susita, is a distance of eight miles to Borszek.

MADE ATTACK IN FORCE.

In attacking Basardjik in that region of Roumania lying between the Danube and the Black Sea the combined Bulgarian and Prussian forces followed up the railroad line which serves as a spur from the main Varna-Sumen railroad. The fact that the Teutons made an attack in force at this point is reported as further evidence that for more than a year the Prussians and Bulgarians have been in strong force at Varna in anticipation of a Russian descent there. The importance of holding the frontier line in this vicinity of Basardjik is to block the inevitable Russian advance on Belgrade, which may be expected to sweep southward from Galatz and Braila and strike across for the Deli-Orman frontier over the Basardjik and Silistra routes.

The fighting since the advent of Roumania into the war extends from the southwestern part of Roumania to the extensive western frontier point of that country at Orsova, a distance of 265 miles, and then sweeps around to the northeast to the Borszek, which latter place is 185 miles distant from Orsova. So far that part of Roumania known as Moldaw is free from attack, on the Roumanian side, but beyond Moldaw, that is to say just over the Carpathian range in Bukowina, the fighting has been of sanguary character now for several months.

In military circles the real effect of Roumania's entry into the war will be felt, it is declared, when powerful armies from Russia are found driving across the now open roadways of Roumania into Bulgaria. The Roumanian country is familiar to the Russians from years of previous campaigning, and in 1878, during the Russo-Turkish war, the armies of Russia used the Selatz and Braila routes when marching on Plevna and Shipka Pass.

The part which Roumania may be expected to play at present, it is thought, is to hold back any Prussian or Bulgarian attacks until such time as Russia is prepared to launch her powerful drive into Bulgaria.

The Greek Premier Has Assumed Dictatorial Powers

Profound Change in the Status of Affairs Was Effected Quietly—Zaimis is Now in a Position to Sweep the Whole Country—Baron Von Shenk is Made Prisoner—Prussian Propogandist Taken Aboard Allied Cruiser—Other Agents Being Driven Out.

DEMANDS FULLY SATISFIED

ATHENS, September 6.—Seizing the opportunity offered by the presence at Piraeus, within gunshot of Athens, of a large fleet of Entente nations, the Premier, Mr. Alexander Zaimis, has assumed unobstrusively what amounts virtually to dictatorial powers. All now is in readiness for the final act to end the neutrality of Greece.

While the people of Athens were being mildly amused at the spectacle of allied sailors and secret police pursuing agents about the streets of the city, a profound change in the status of affairs was effected quietly. Mr. Zaimis now is in a position to swing the whole country as he will, unembarassed by any dissenting popular opinion or hostile parliamentary control.

NOW HAS FULL POWERS.

The first step which placed full powers in the hands of the Premier was taken when he forbade public gatherings last Wednesday. The arrangement of Friday, whereby the issuance of the decree dissolving the now adjourned Parliament and calling new elections was postponed indefinitely, disposed effectually of any Parliamentary interference with the policy of the government. Finally, the Premier requested and received the unqualified support of the leaders of the Venizelos party and of the party opposed to Venizelos, thus giving the present temporay Cabinet a politically representative character and completing the necessary preparations which may be decided on by the Ministry behind closed doors. Greece may now find herself at war overnight at the bidding of a single individual, who is neither King Constantine nor the one-time Premier, Mr. Venizelos.

The solution of the political muddle which has kept Greece in a condition of wavering neutrality for two years was effected quietly, and the public was not aware of the extent to which the constitution of Greece was virtually set aside or of the manner in which power was concentrated in the hands of the Premier.

TO HAVE NEW CABINET.

The formation by Mr. Zaimis of a new Ministry, in which all parties will be represented, is a question of only a few days.

Meanwhile the Allies are rapidly ridding Athens and Piraeus of Austrian and Prussian agents.

Baron von Schenck, chief director of the Prussian propaganda in Greece, has been arrested and taken on board a cruiser of the Entente Allies. Sixteen additional warships of the Entente Powers have arrived at Piraeus.

Diplomatists of the Entente Allies had demanded that Baron von Schenck and sixty co-workers in behalf of the Central Empires be expelled from Greece. It was reported that the Baron had barricaded himself in his house in Athens and surrounded it with a score of armed guards.

ENTENTE DEMANDS FULLY SATISFIED.

LONDON, September 6.—The Greek government at Athens has accepted the demands of the Entente Powers in the entirety, and agents of the French and British governments are taking over the control of postal and telegraphic communication.

British and French Ministers at Athens presented on Saturday a note to the Greek government demanding control of the postal, telegraph and wireless system on the ground that they were being used by enemies of the Entente; demanded that agents of the Teutonic allies employed in corruption and espionage must immediately leave Greece, and that measures be taken against Greek subjects guilty of complicity therein.

SMALL RUN OF CATTLE AT THE STOCKYARDS

Receipts at the Toronto Union Stock Yards yesterday were 50 cars with 858 cattle, 114 calves, 692 hogs and 406 sheep.

The run of cattle at the Union Stock Yards was small, but prices were fairly steady, common cattle making some recovery from Monday's decline. Butcher cattle were steady, the better grades holding firm.

Hogs were in fair demand, with prices unchanged.

Sheep steadied, the better grades selling up to 10 1-2c, or up half a cent over yesterday's decline. Light sheep were fairly easy.

The market was slow, the small offerings not going very fast.

FATHER MEAGHER'S FIRST PICNIC PROVED A SPLENDID SUCCESS

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 5.—All roads led to the Lakefield Exhibition Grounds, on Labour Day, and a large holiday crowd from Lakefield, Ennismore and the City wended their way up Main street to attend Father Meagher's first big annual picnic which both in point of numbers and in enjoyment, proved to be easily the banner event of the picnic season.

The weatherman was in a friendly mood and was, apparently, entirely oblivious of the fact that Septembes breezes are upon us. Old Sol. smiled his best throughout the day and was in a real "dog-day" frame of mind, which greatly increased the merriment of the day and made the holidayers forget the terrors of approaching zero weather.

The grounds had been fittingly fixed up for the occasion, and all the details necessary for the handling and the comforts of a large crowd were ably attended to by Father Meagher and his energetic committee of workers.

Dinner and supper were served upon the Grounds and one glance along the neat and well-filled tables of eatables was sufficient to annihilate any past symptoms of dyspepsia. The ladies of Lakefield and Young's Point each looked after a table and catered wonderfully well to the wants of a ravenous throng. The Lakefield table was handled by Mrs. J. Johnson, Mrs. D. Moloney, Mrs. Dr. Gibson, and Mrs D. Garvey. Mrs. P. P. Young, Mrs. Wm. Brooks, Mrs. Jas. Carroll and Mrs. Walter Young looked after the wants of the Young's Point folk.

The feature of the day was the fancy bazaar booth, which was handled by Mr. Gene Hurtubise, who was in better form than ever and entertained the crowd by the droll way in which he raffled off the various wares. "Gene" was ably assisted in his task by Mr. Kearns of Toronto.

Local duck hunters got a good chance to show their skill at the shooting gallery, which was in charge of Messrs. Maurice and Michael Hinds. Fred Garvey's "Kaiser" proved a good target for the small boy all day.

During the afternoon a goodly programme of sports was run off and the array of prizes proved a strong inducement for the fleeter members of the crowd to try their skill and prowess.

"Seven Per Cent. and Service" Is Slogan of Unique Corporation

The Unusual Undertaking Proposed by the Mandingo Development Corporation, Incorporated at Albany—Mr. Hilford Who Is a Son-in-law of Mr. A. J. Johnston of Peterboro Has Been Appointed General Manager.

The appended article will interest the many friends in Peterborough of Mr. and Mrs. Hilford, as it outlines their plan for future work. Mrs. Hilford is the oldest daughter of Mr. A. J. Johnston, 19 Dennistoun Avenue. The article reads as follows:

Among American business men, during the past year or more, there has been a great deal of talk and activity in connection with the development of foreign trade and investment in foreign securities. Our strongest banking houses have opened branches in foreign countries, and leading business men of the United States have formed great corporations for international operations. The banks are issuing booklets on investment opportunities in Russia, China, South America, etc.

Now comes the formation of a corporation for the purpose of carrying on general development operations in the rich tropical regions of West Africa. This alone would cause little comment, for recent despatches tell of large amounts of New York capital being used in developing the Gold Fields in South Africa; and it was the genius of an American business man which first demonstrated the feasibility of producing cotton on a commercial scale in Upper Egypt. From Boston, recently, came the news that American business men had paid the unprecedented charter rate of $61.50 per ton on a cargo of rum for West Africa.

The Mandingo Development Corporation announces that its slogan is "Seven per cent and Service." Its aim is to conduct commercial operations in such a manner as to insure a reasonable return on the investment and, at the same time, to be of definite and lasting service to the people and country along the broad humanitarian lines that are more and more becoming a feature of leading commercial organizations in this country. The mere mention of West Africa calls to mind the revolting slave traffic, both of the early days and of the more recent conditions found on the great cocoa plantations; the atrocities of the rubber trade; the demoralizing rum traffic, which has proved to be a blighting curse to the primitive peoples there. But that this new type of development operation has been demonstrated to be a practical and promising proposition is indicated by the fact that level headed New York business men of high character and large calibre have assumed the responsibility of directing the operations of the corporation.

THE DIRECTORS.

The directors of the enterprises are:
James H. Post, Pres. National Sugar Refining Co.
William Fellowes Morgan, Pres. The Merchants' Association of New York.
William Jay Schieffelin, Pres. of Schieffelin & Co.
E. C. Delafield, Vice President of Franklin Trust Co.
Percy H. Jennings, Vice-President American Trading Company.
William M. Baldwin, Pres. New York and Paraguay Co.
William M. Simpson, Secretary and Treasurer, The American-Philippine Company.
Frank A. Horne, Pres. Merchants' Refrigerating Co.
R. Bayard Cutting, Director of Franklin Trust Co.
Charles Gibson, Wholesale Druggist, Albany.
Barland B Miller, Agricultural and Live Stock Expert of Texas.
D. J. Evans, a business man with 17 years of general business experience in West Africa.
W. W. Hoover, a business man with three years' experience in West Africa.
M. R. Hilford, who has spent many years in studying and investigating conditions in Africa and two years in becoming acquainted at first hand with the Mandingo country and people.

The Great Child Race.

Mr. Hilford has organized this corporation and is the General Manager.

In speaking of the new development project Mr. Hilford said:

The rich, natural resources of the tropical regions are well known; but the people of tropical Africa is the great child race of the world, and it seems that all initiative must come from outside sources. Strong governments of the white race have reached out and assumed control of the land and activity of these weaker organizations of society in the tropics. Conscienceless corporations and traders have, to a large extent, given free reign to their inclinations to oppression and exploitation. Through their exploitation of the fruits of labour and the rich natural resources they have, for generations and centuries, despoiled the tropics, until the conscience of the civilized world has become awakened and, through governmental action, has put a stop to the more outstanding abuses. Thus, Africa in particular, has received from the white man's civilization its worst and not its best.

There is a deep and growing conviction among the men who are launching this new enterprise that the time has come when a new spirit ought to be injected into the commercial activities of the white man in the tropical regions; when exploitations should give way to legitimate development operations; when the objective of profit-making should be accompanied with the idea of service along broad humanitarian lines; when contact with the white man, and his influence, should result in, not demoralization, but civilization, in its fullest meaning.

The Mandingo Development Corporation is capitalized at $101,000.00, and is to carry on a general development operation in the interior of Sierra Leone, West Africa. It will specialize in beef cattle production, for which that part of the country is very well adapted, and there is an extensive ready market. Agriculture will be carried on; but special attention will be given to plantation development, as the opportunities for the production of palm oil, palm kernels, rubber and cocoa are unusually attractive; and general trading operations will also be carried on.

The element of speculation in the enterprise is eliminated by an unusual arrangement which provides that all the common stock in the corporation is to be held by The Mandingo Association, Inc., and only the 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock of the Development Corporation is available for public subscription. A surprising number of well-known business men have already signed applications for the stock of this unique corporation, whose office is at Number 30 Pine Street, New York.

A Wide Scope.

The Mandingo Association, Inc., mentioned above, has been formed by men well known in philanthropic, educational, and missionary circles, for the specific purpose of carrying on social, medical, educational and religious operations in closest conjunction and cooperation with the activities of the Mandingo Development Corporation. Its Board of Directors includes the following:

Dr. Hollis B. Frissell, Principal of Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute.
Dr. Talcot Williams, Director of the School of Journalism, Columbia University.
Dr. William J. Schieffelin, of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A.
Dr. James H. Dillard, President of the Jeanes Fund and Director of the Southern Educational Board.
Mr. Mornay Williams, Member of the Baptist Board of Foreign Missions.
Rev. Franklin J. Clark, Recording Secretary of the Protestant Episcopal Board of Missions.
Mr. Delevan L. Pierson, Editor of the Missionary Review of the World.
Mr. Emmet J. Scott, Secretary of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.
Mr. W. Millar, General Secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement.

The majority of the Directors of this Association must always have the approval of the presidents of four of the leading Mission Boards, (Episcopal, Methodist, Baptist, Congregational), and the Chairmen of the trustees of Hampton and Tuskegee Institutes.

To Discard Freckles, Tan, Pimples, Wrinkles

The use of creams containing animal substance sometimes causes hair to grow. You run no risk of acquiring superfluous hair when you use ordinary mercolised wax. There is nothing better for a discolored skin, as the wax actually absorbs the offensive cuticle. The latter is naturally replaced by a clear, smooth, healthy complexion, full of life and expression. It's the sensible way to discard a freckled, tanned, over-red, blotchy or pimpled skin. Get an ounce of mercolised wax at any druggist's and apply nightly like cold cream, erasing in the morning with soap and water. It takes a week or so to complete the transformation.

The ideal wrinkle remover is made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. Bathing the face in the solution brings almost instantaneous results.

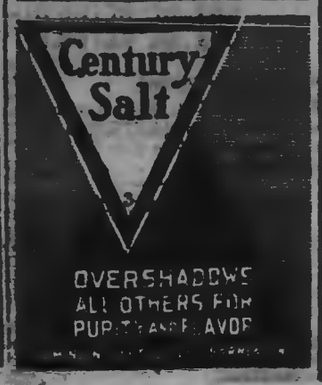
FINDS HER BROTHER AFTER 30 YEARS

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Thirty years ago, Mrs. Agnes Lowery, of No. 227 Baltic street, Elizabeth, N.J., bade farewell to her brother James Dugan, at Castlemore, County Mayo, Ireland, and came to live in America. The two kept up a correspondence for a few years and finally one mislaid the address of the other and letters ceased. Monday they saw each other for the first time since the party thirty years ago.

Mr. Dugan, formerly a horse trainer in Dublin, came to the United States six years ago and sought unsuccessfully for his sister, Mrs. Lowery always remembered her brother, however, and inserted an advertisement in a Manhattan newspaper asking information concerning his whereabouts.

Miss Helen Stokes, a friend of a daughter of Mr. Dugan, who lives at No. 37 Kingston avenue, Brooklyn, saw the advertisement. The two girls went to see Mrs. Lowery, and before any explanations had been made the long lost sister claimed Miss Dugan as a niece. Arrangements then were made for an old fashioned reunion at the home of Mr. Dugan yesterday, and the families of the brother and sister so long separated gathered about them to give them greeting.

They were born in Seamont, Sligo. Mr. Dugan has four daughters and two sons and several grandchildren. Mrs. Lowery is the wife of Thomas Lowery, superintendent of a chemical works in Elizabeth, and has two sons.



How Kaiser Exhorted His Shifted Troops

The British Intelligence Office recently came into possession of what purports to be the stenographic report of a speech made by the Kaiser to the Third Guard Infantry Division in the first weeks of the great Anglo-French offensive in France, the occasion being the arrival of the division on the west front after many months of hard service in the eastern zone.

At this time the Kaiser considered the foe on the western front more dangerous than the enemy in the east. The great Russian offensive under Brusiloff was then just getting under way, and the Guard was hurriedly transferred to the west to aid in the effort to stop the Anglo-French advance. The Kaiser's speech is said not to have appeared, up to this time, in the newspapers. This is the version of it obtained by the British:

I greet the several units composing the Third Guard Infantry Division in the western theatre of war.

In the course of this campaign the Third Guard Infantry Division has, to my great satisfaction, hitherto performed splendid deeds, such as are in conformity with its composition and its origin. The heavy battles in the Carpathian Mountains, the advance until the approach of winter, the combats in the positions held during the winter—all these are inscribed on the long scroll in the glorious history of the several regiments.

The Fusiliers, with the exception of a deputation near Brzezany, I have not seen since the spring of 1914, not since the days when you were at Doberitz. You have now displayed before the enemy, under all conditions what you have learned, to my intense satisfaction and joy, during the many years of peace. For this, as your one-time Brigade Commander, I express to you my high appreciation.

In accordance with my orders, you have come from the east to the west, you, the cockchafers of the army, to herald to the enemy the approach of a martial spring season.

The Lohr Infantry Regiment I greet to-day for the first time in its present composition, it has been evolved from the battalion which is, so to speak, the prototype of my entire army, which from olden times has held the honour of guarding the King, his house and his family, and is in daily contact with his person, which is the connecting link between the Guard and the Prussian Army as a whole. In conformity with this its lofty military origin, the bearing of this regiment in battle has been blameless. My congratulations!

And you, Kolbergers! We have already met once in the east. Now I have brought you over here. The heroism which you have displayed shall never be forgotten. You have dictated law, writ in iron, unto the enemy, who will not soon forget the butt-end of your Pomeranian rifles. Slemikowce remains a glorious and honoured page in the annals of your regiment, as also the battles in the Carpathians and on the Zwinin. They will always be linked with the history of my cockchafer regiment.

The other units which belong to this division, the cavalry and the artillery, but especially the artillery, have, in these strenuous fights given to the infantry that assistance which in this war I must expect for my infantry without fail.

The entire division has thus been summoned by my orders to this front, in splendid condition and with an excellent record of active service. It is now in the west to do its share in the great task, in the overwhelming of our enemies. The foe fights differently over here he is tougher, more resisting, more adroit, more versatile. He is defending his native soil foot by foot, which we must put to his credit. This is the resistance of despair. But it must be broken. He has prepared his own soup and now he must sup it, and I look to you to see to it. May the appearance of the Third Guard Infantry Division convey to the enemy what sort of soldiers are facing him, and may the good God who has stood by every one of you in many an hour of trial lead you to victory. May He lead you to the peace we all desire. I count on your help.

A note added to the report by the British General Staff points out that the German nickname for the Guard Fusilier Regiment is the "Cockshafers."

Mace of Commons Was Lost in Fire

OTTAWA, Sept. 5.—The new mace for the House of Commons will not, as was at first intended, contain a fragment of the old mace, which was destroyed in the fire. When the loss of the mace was made known an offer of a new bauble was received from the Lord Mayor of London, and accepted by the Government. When the ruins of the old Commons Chamber were searched fragments supposed to from the mace were found and wer sent to England to be incorporated in the new mace. These fragments duly arrived in London, but when a test examination of them was made it was found that they had not come from the mace at all, and, of course, they will not be used. The new mace will, it is expected, be a very fine one, but it will not have the historic interest which would have been lent to it by the incorporation of parts of the lost mace.

THREE DAYS MEATLESS.

PATRIOTISM

Patriotism, like Charity, should begin at home. The man who is willing at any time to protect his country against foreign foes should be willing AT ALL TIMES to protect his Family against such common foes as Poverty, Privation and Suffering.

A Life Insurance Company cannot take the place of a Husband,

BUT---

It can preserve the family from want.
It can lighten their load of care.
It can build a barrier against adversity.
It can strengthen the foundation of the home.
It can place his widow beyond the need of carrying for support.
It can add to a man's years by freeing him from anxiety.
It can enhance the respect and esteem of the public and of his wife and children for him.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

How the Castle Was Saved

By F. A. MITCHEL

One traveling in Germany is impressed with the number of ruined castles he sees everywhere. These castles belonged to a period when the German emperor was much more of a figurehead than he is now, and the nobles were each and all independent owners of one of these castles and a small quantity of land surrounding it. The reason why the castles were all built on high ground was that they could be more easily defended.

The baron lived by levying tribute on merchants who passed here and there beneath him. Leaving his stronghold, he would swoop down on some luckless trader and either carry off his merchandise or levy tribute in cash. The only real fighting the barons did was with each other.

One of these nobles, Baron Rudolph Gothall, was growing old when he married, and a daughter, Bertha, was born to him. When her father was too old to fight any more Bertha, who inherited masculine bravery with feminine traits, seemed to consider it her part, since she had no brother, to take his place. She began by putting herself at the head of a force who sallied forth to exact tribute from a party of merchants. She had been told that since her father owned a narrow strip of land over which the traders must pass she had the right to make them pay for the privilege. She acquitted herself so well on this expedition that she thereafter was acknowledged as commander of her father's vassals.

From a little girl born in times when arms for those of rank was the only profession Bertha had learned the art of defense. Something in the construction of her eye, in the nerves, or perhaps both, rendered her remarkable in fencing not only for a woman, but for a man. There was no strength in her success. It was all art. Often of an afternoon in the castle court she would challenge some one of the men to a friendly contest with foils and would usually come out victorious.

The age and decrepitude of the baron led his younger neighbors to believe that he would be an easy prey and that his domain might be appropriated. They knew that he had no son to take his place and that there was no one to defend his castle except a girl, and, although they had heard something of Bertha's exploits, they did not deem her a competent adversary. There was one young man who though the death of his father came to his inheritance very young. His domain adjoined that of Baron Rudolph, and as soon as his father died he proposed that the two estates should be made one by his marriage with Bertha.

The truth is he had seen Bertha and had conceived a passion for her. It was as much his desire to possess her as to unite the two estates. One morning he rode up to Baron Rudolph's castle and sent in word that Count Stinzel desired an interview. He was admitted, and Bertha, who was at a window when he rode into the court, saw him. Baron Rudolph promised to submit the proposition to his daughter.

The answer Bertha gave was that she would accept Count Stinzel for her husband on condition that the ownership of the two estates should be decided by a friendly contest between them with foils. If the count proved victorious they should both belong to him; if Bertha won, they should both belong to her.

The young count could not very well decline such a proposition if he had wished to do so. He would become the laughingstock of all the country round about. But he had no desire to decline it. He was as well skilled in the use of arms as the average man, and if he could not win from a woman he considered that he should deserve to come under the feminine yoke. He sent word that he accepted the challenge on the terms offered.

Bertha being a woman, the count agreed to fight in the court of her father's castle. He came on the day appointed for the contest with a number of his principal retainers. Bertha came into the court in a fencing costume that was very becoming. She and the count met at a table on which two copies of the contract were placed and signed them in presence of witnesses. Then they proceeded to the center of the court, and the contest began.

From the first the count's movements in contrast with Bertha's agility seemed a trifle heavy, though it was evident that the strength was all on his side. As to that something we call skill, which is really in the physical makeup of the fencer, it was all on the side of Bertha. It had been embodied in the rules governing the contest that victory should consist in the first one to touch a red heart fixed to the left breast. Suddenly the count's foil flew up in the air and left him defenseless. All Bertha had to do to win was to press forward and touch the heart on her adversary's breast with the button of her foil. Instead, she dropped the point of her weapon to the ground and her eyes at the same time. It was apparent to all that though she had won the victory she would not take it.

The count stood looking at her for a time; then, walking forward, took her in his arms and kissed her, a shout arising from those who witnessed the scene.

The two estates were united under one head and thus saved from those who would have conquered Baron Rudolph Gothall.

PRINCE OF COREA TO WED JAPANESE

TOKIO, Sept. 1—Great interest has been caused in the Orient by the announcement that a marriage has been arranged between Prince Yi Yong, heir to the former Emperor of Corea, and the Japanese Princess Masako, eldest daughter of Prince Nashimoto. The bethroal already has been informally approved by Emperor Yoshihito, but will not be officially announced until necessary changes have been made in the regulations of the Japanese imperial household, which do not provide for marriages with foreigners or with the former imperial house of Corea.

The betrothal has been arranged through the influence of Marshal Prince Terauchi, the Governor-General of Corea and fulfils a long-cherished desire of the late Prince Ito, who believed that the wedding of the Corean Prince with a Princess of the imperial Japanese family would do much to strengthen and consolidate the relations between the Japanese and Corean people.

Prince Yi Yong was born in 1898 and is now receiving his education in Tokio. Princess Masako is only fifteen years of age. She is a student at the famous Peers' School of Tokio. The wedding will not take place until the education of the youthful couple has been completed.

Major General Prince Nashimoto occupies a high place in Japanese military circles, as well as at the Court. The bettrothal is received with pleasure by the Japanese people generally.

Safe Milk Foods for Baby's Summer Dietary

The cow's milk sold in towns and cities is so likely to contain harmful bacteria, particularly in hot weather, that it is recognized as unsafe for Baby unless it has been pasteurized. Yet ordinary pasteurizing makes the curd-forming portions of the milk tough and indigestible for his little stomach.

The Allenburys Foods

are prepared from fresh, clean milk, modified scientifically to the composition of mother's milk, and evaporated to dryness at a heat sufficient to destroy bacteria, but not high enough to lessen its digestibility.

MAIL FROM GERMANY BY SECRET CHANNEL

Customs Inspectors Allege Discovery of Fraud in United States

New York, Sept. 5.— H. Snowden Marshall, Federal district attorney here, is in possession of affidavits, he declared, which disclose an alleged conspiracy to defraud the United States mails by a secret mail system between this country and Germany, conducted through export commission agents with offices in New York and Frankfort, Germany.

Exposure of the scheme which has been in operation for four months without knowledge of United States Secret Service men, it is alleged, is the outgrowth of the seizure by Customs inspectors of diamonds and jewelry valued at $25,000 on August 19, found in a suit case carried by a man who arrived here as a steerage passenger from Europe on July 11.

The affidavits assert that packages of letters destined for some of the largest banking and brokerage houses in this city were brought from Germany by special messenger to the clearing house in New York, where they were opened and sorted, then distributed to the various addresses.

The affidavits also allege that mail for Germany was sent through the same channels and that outgoing packages were brought to the offices of the commission agents always before the departure of steamships found for Scandinavian ports, and that there was distribution of mail by agents here on the arrival of these vessels.

FEEL IN A FAINT.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall on the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

GENEROSITY OF BRITAIN.

New York, Sept. 1.— A Times despatch from London says: In the first two years of the war the people of England have voluntarily contributed more than $250,000,000 to the work of the various British organizations which are concerned with measures of relief. This is a conservative estimate and does not take into account the tremendous volume of gifts and services which can never appear in any account of what has been accomplished to meet the conditions arising out of the war.

The first national fund opened in England on the outbreak of the war was called the Prince of Wales' Relief Fund. Its object was to relieve distress consequent on the war, and the receipts now total $30,000,000. In addition to this national fund, local funds for a similar purpose have been raised in all parts of the country and these represent a further $15,000,000. The call on these funds has not been restricted by two conditions not anticipated in the autumn of 1914; the tremendous demands for labour to meet the requirements of Great Britain and her allies consequent on the war; the wonderful generosity of people remaining in civilian enjoyment in the interest of those who joined the colours.

In every department of life, in banks, offices, factories, collieries, and so on, systematic arrangements were made by which shareholders, employers and wage earners made regular contributions to help the families and dependents of their own men who had taken up arms. It is reckoned that the total of such voluntary contributions represents at least $50,000,000.

PRESERVING FRUIT WITHOUT SUGAR

THE RECIPE

The fruit is prepared in the ordinary way, the jars are cleaned and scalded while the rubbers and tops are boiling. The fruit is then placed in the jars, in which COLD water is placed. When the jars have been sealed air-tight they are placed in a boiler filled with cold water and brought to the boiling point. Berries will do if removed when the boiling point is reached, while large fruits, such as peaches, cherries, plums and apricots, should get 20 to 30 minutes boiling. Keep cover of wash boiler on tight.

THE PEAR

The Bartlett Pear is the most popular variety both for dessert and for canning. The Beurre D'Anjou, B. C's principal winter pear, is also a very popular variety.

PEAR SALAD.

Core and pare any pear not too ripe and soft. Serve on lettuce leaves with French dressing. If desired, dates and chopped nuts may be added.

PEAR FRITTERS

Mix and sift 1 1-3 cupfuls of flour, 2 teaspoonfuls of baking powder and 1-4 teaspoonful of salt. Add gradually 2-3 cupfuls of milk and then add 1 egg, slightly beaten. Pare 2 large pears, cut in quarters, dip in batter and fry in deep fat. Serve with a hot sauce.

COMPOTE OF PEARS.

PEARS AND ICE CREAM

Cut 2 pears in halves, remove cores, and simmer for 20 minutes in a little water with some sugar and vanilla. Place some vanilla ice cream in an ice timbale, arrange the pears in the ice, pour a spoonful of raspberry syrup over each pear and serve.

PEARS WITH RICE.

Peel and halve three or four large pears of a good cooking kind, and simmer in water till three-parts cooked. Drain off half the water; add 2 tablespoonfuls of sugar and cook for 5 minutes longer. Boil for 6 minutes half a cupful of rice, draw off water, and finish cooking with milk and sugar till firm and smooth; add a little cream, a small piece of butter, some powdered sugar and the juice of half an orange. Mix all well together and dress on a dish with the pears.

Are you Bilious?

Don't let it run too long, it will lead to chronic indigestion. In the meanwhile you suffer from miserable, sick headaches, nervousness, depression and sallow complexion. Just try CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS. They relieve fermentation, indigestion — gently but surely cleanse the system and keep the stomach and liver in perfect running order.

BAKED PEARS

Wipe, quarter and core pears. Put in baking dish, sprinkle with sugar, or add a small quantity of molasses, then add enough water that pears will not burn. Cover, and cook 2 or 3 hours in a very slow oven. Serve with cream.

SWEET PICKLED PEARS

Pears, 7 lbs.; sugar, 4 lbs.; vinegar, 1 quart; whole cloves, 1 tablespoon; whole allspice, 1 tablespoon. Peel fruit and boil with either ingredients until soft, but not broken. Strain juice and put in jars.

GINGER PEAR.

Candied ginger root, 1 1-2 lbs.; pears, 8 lbs.; granulated sugar, 8 the lemons, and boil together for an into small pieces. Slice ginger, place pear, ginger and sugar on fire, and boil slowly for 1 hour. Do not put water with it unless pears are very dry. Put lemons in cold water and boil until tender; then cut them up fine taking out the seeds. After pears have been boiled 1 hour, add them to the lemons, and boil together for another hour.

PEAR SAUTE

Pare 4 Bartlett pears, cut in fourths, lengthwise, and saute in butter until browned.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 5.—Baby Harold, the $30,000 hydroplane owned by Charles Willis of Detroit, caught fire during the second heat of the race for the Gold Cup at the American Power Boat Association regatta on the Detroit River here late yesterday afternoon and is a total loss.

Travelling her first heat at the rate of 55 2-5 miles per hour, Baby Harold had established a record for the distance, and the shores of Belle Isle were keyed up to a high pitch when the Miss Detroit, the Toronto-owned Peter Van VII., and Miss Minneapolis, with Baby Harold, scored for the second trial. As Baby Harold crossed the line Driver Jack Beebe opened her up, and it was apparent to those who watched that she was going to beat her earlier trial. With her twelve-cylinder engine working in perfect rhythm, Baby Harold gained very rapidly.

Suddenly her engine was seen to spout fire, and a column of smoke arose from her pit. She quickly swung out of the course, and, after burning fiercely for about twenty minutes, sank near shore, only her stacks protruding above water. Her driver and his mechanism leaped into the water when the fire broke out and swam about until rescued a few minutes later. Overheating is believed to have caused the fire.

SAYS WE BECOME CRANKS ON HOT WATER DRINKING

Hopes Every Man and Woman Adopts This Splendid Morning Habit

Why is man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, despondent, worried; some days headachy, dull and unstrung; some days really incapacitated by illness?

If we all would practice inside-bathing, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-sick, anaemic-looking souls with pasty, muddy complexions we should see crowds of happy, healthy, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not rid itself each day of all the waste which it accumulates under our present mode of living. For every ounce of food and drink taken into the system nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out, else it ferments and forms ptomaine-like poisons which are absorbed into the blood.

Just as necessary as it is to clean the ashes from the furnace each day, before the fire will burn bright and hot, so we must each morning clean the inside organs of the previous day's accumulation of indigestible waste and body toxins. Men and women, whether sick or well, are advised to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of washing out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the indigestible material, waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Millions of people who had their turn at constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, nervous days and sleepless nights have become real cranks about the morning inside-bath. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will not cost much at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate to anyone, its cleansing, sweetening and freshening effect upon the system.

NO MOTIVE FOR HORWOOD TO TELL AN UNTRUTH

Winnipeg, September 1. — R. A. Bonnar, K.C., began at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon his address to the jury in the ex-Cabinet Ministers' trial.

He described the case as "possibly as important as any case ever tried in Canada." He urged that Architect Horwood should be believed as there was no motive for him to tell an untruth. It was only, he maintained, because his story was correct that he was able to withstand the ten days of gruelling cross-examination unshaken.

Mr. Bonnar declared that there was abundant corroboration of Horwood's story. The conspirators, he said, intended to make two million dollars out of the Parliament Buildings, half of which he said, would have gone to Kelly and the balance would have been divided up.

CLAIMS HORWOOD WAS A TOOL

Mr. Bonnar reviewed Horwood's evidence and alleged that he was a tool of the accused and "unstained and unsullied" before he fell into their hands. He had refused bribes and had offered to go to the penitentiary. The former provincial architect might be a little "weak and easily persuaded," but it was the jury's duty to accept his evidence, especially since it was corroborated by practically every witness who had gone into the box.

CAMPAIGN FUNDS AND WORSE.

Crown counsel declared that Horwood was not let into "all the secrets of the inner chamber." He was told the excessive payments were for campaign funds, and even made the accused guilty. "I am going to submit," said Mr. Bonnar, "that while there may have been campaign funds, yet there was a great deal worse. I dare say about $200,000 was for campaign purposes, but I am going to show you that they intended to take $2,000,000 out of the building, that Kelly was to get $1,000,000, and the rest was to be divided, you can consider whether legitimately or otherwise."

WIFE TRAVELS 20,000 MILES TO REUNION

Aaron Kaufman, Refugee From Petrograd, Greets Spouse and Child Unexpectedly

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Aaron Kaufman, a piano professor in the Petrograd Conservatory, Petrograd, Russia, received a summons to join the colours on December 11, 1915. Instead he decided to come to America.

When he left Petrograd, there remained behind, his wife, Etta, and his son Joseph, three years old. He made the long trip through Siberia by way of the transcontinental railroad to Manchuria. With ten others he travelled on foot through that province, through Northern China until he reached a port, from which he embarked for Seattle. Arriving at Seattle last April, he was sent on to New York by persons who became interested in his story. He reached here in May. For some time he stopped at the home of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society and then he went to live at No. West 111th street.

Yesterday he received a message from the Immigrant and Aid Society telling him that his wife had arrived in New York in the morning. He hurried to the rooms of the society — learned that his wife and box were at the home of relatives, at No. 392 Vermont street, Brooklyn. There the family was reunited.

DIES AFTER HER RESCUE IN WATER

YONKERS, N.Y., Sept. 5. — News was received in this city of the death yesterday at Poland Spring, Me., of Miss Isabel Easton, when she was thrown into the water through the capsizing of a boat in which she was sitting with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Philips Easton of Yonkers.

Mr. Easton is a prominent New York lawyer and is president of the Yonkers Board of Education. Miss Easton lived with her mother, Mrs. F. J. Easton, at No. 526 Park avenue, New Yor city, and was prominent in society there.

According to telegrams received here Mr. Easton made a valiant fight to save the lives of his wife and sister after the boat upset. He succeeded in bringing both ashore, although they were unconscious, and he was several times so nearly exhausted that he had difficulty in keeping himself from drowning also.

He managed, however, to get both women alive to the bank of the small pond in which the accident happened and then hurried for help. A physician found Miss Easton dead, but he was able to revive Mrs. Easton. He said the death probably was from shock, although considerable water was found in Miss Easton's lungs.

TIRED OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses in eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort but by awakening the action of the liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

"OUT OF BOUNDS."

London Daily News: A correspondent assures me that as he entered a Folkestone restaurant with his nephew, a soldier in the Royal Canadian Regiment just recovering from a bad wound received at Ypres, a boy in buttons stepped up to the latter and said, abruptly: "Sorry, but this is out of bounds." The place was not an officers' mess, for it was open to civilians. It was not "out of bounds" to officers, for many of them — English and Canadian—were going in and out. It is only the private soldier apparently who is thus insolently ordered off the premises. My informant has written to Sir Sam Hughes about it, and I hope that prompt action will be taken. It is simply silly snobbery at this time of day to treat the private's uniform as if it implied a social stigma. In the case of a man like this young Canadian it is a monstrous outrage which can scarcely be too severely punished.

AUSTRALIA TO STUDY AMERICAN INDUSTRY

Commission of Employers and Labor Men Will Soon Visit the United States Fenton Intentions Feared

MELBOURNE.—The plea made a few weeks ago by Herbert Brookes, President of the Victoria Chamber of Manufactures, for an industrial reformation in Australia in which a change in the wage system should be a prominent feature, has been heeded. The Federal Government has just decided to send a mixed commission to the United States to investigate and report upon the methods of manufacture and production and upon the conditions of employment there. The commission will consist of six representatives of Australian manufacturing interests (one from each State) and six trades unionists (also one from each State); a secretary and a newspaper man.

The manufacturers will be chosen by the Government from three nominations to be made by the Chamber of Commerce in each capital of the Commonwealth, and the laborites similarly from nominations to be made by central organizations. The newspaper member will be a member of the Australian Journalists' Association which is a trades union. The following industries will be investigated: Iron and steel and mechanical engineering generally, lumber and building materials, leather, textile, and paper trades, and trades connected with the preparation of foodstuffs.

The manufacturers' representatives will be experts along these lines. Inasmuch as each section of the commission will be required to furnish separate reports by the manufacturer and the worker, it is expected that the commission will follow a procedure like that of the Mosely educational commissions from England to the United States about a decade ago. The Australians will spend about six months in the United States. The whole of the cost of the commission will be borne by the Government.

The duties of the journalist member will be to prepare reports and supply news relating to the commission and its work for publication in the Australian press. These news reports will be furnished to newspapers in the commonwealth gratis—a rather novel form of governmental publicity.

Hopes for New Trade Era.

Mr. Brookes's Presidential address to his business associates may fairly be said to have been the genesis of the commission, but in a wider and deeper sense the body will be representative of the feeling in Australia that now is the accepted time for her to enter upon a commercial era worthy of her resources and of her place in the British Empire.

To make Australia self-contained, therefore, will be the purpose of any party which seeks to retain public confidence; to which must be added the larger consideration that Imperial bonds will be stronger after the war than ever perhaps in British history.

Mr. Brookes made these suggestions, which have resulted in the formation of the commission:

"The appointment of a committee from trades unions and members of the Associated Chambers of Manufactures to investigate the actual conditions in the United States with open minds and sincere motives and to inform its mind upon the subject of individual and State enterprise; the preparation of accurate comparative statistics covering the whole range of Australian industry; the employment of one of the most capable efficiency engineers in the United States in some of the (Australian) federal departments where big works are undertaken for his report; the calling of a conference by the Prime Minister of representative employers to lay down some general principles for common action and mutual protection; the further extension of the principle of co-operation in joint stock companies by admitting the operatives into partnership."

"Along these lines," added Mr. Brookes, "lie national safety and certain expansion. Only in that way can we avert the industrial peril on our immediate horizon."

J. E. Fenton, the Victorian member of the Federal House of Representatives, who caused something of a stir some weeks ago by inveighing against what he termed heavy dumping of German goods in Australia by systematic American effort or studied connivance, said that the commission could "learn nothing from America," unless it would be how to accomplish speeding up—making men prematurely old and then scrapping them. Industrial secrets, he declared, American manufacturers would take good care to keep to themselves, their guiding principle being to turn out goods to sell in Australia; whereas the Australian policy should be to supply Australia's own needs. The money which the commission would cost could be better employed, he believed, in encouraging local production. And in Sydney when the Sydney Labour Council met to discuss the Government's request that it name three men from whom one would be picked to represent trades unionism in New South Wales upon the commission, the same resentful spirit as displayed by Mr. Fenton — who is a Labourite — cropped out. Several delegates were outspoken in their opinion of the mission. One said that the American manufacturers would furnish the Australians with no information of value, and that to think otherwise was living in a "fool's paradise."

Centralized Study Planned.

There was only one American industrial secret, and that was the speeding up system, and the United States was the country which inaugurated the phrase, "Too old at 40." Another complained that the Federal Government intended to send over to America to ascertain how to perpetute speeding up and toil. Still another declaimed, "God help the iron trade here if the American system is introduced." But a motion that the request of the Government be not entertained was defeated, 54 to 35.

A happier and more sensible phase is a proposal by the Victorian Council of Education, that representatives of technical schools in the Commonwealth be included in the commission, and American industrial education methods be studied.

Specialization by States in the work which will be done by the commission while in America is an interesting feature. In New South Wales are the largest iron and steel plants in Australia. The Broken Hill Company's mills at Port Waratah, Newcastle, are being conducted by an American expert, and some fifty of the employes are Americans. Eventually, it is hoped, these works will make Australia independent altogether of foreign-made steel. In Victoria, the representatives of which upon the commission will devote themselves to textiles, are the federal woollen mills and other like concerns; and it is noteworthy that American capital, which is gradually finding its way to Australia, shows a tendency to seek Melbourne, which is generally conceded to be the "most American" centre in the commonwealth.

In Queensland, along with Australian packing companies, are the meat works of the American "beef trust"; and as to paper-making, which not only Australia but New Zealand as well, would like much to take up extensively if material were available, it is worthy of remark that Tasmania recently had an expert from the University of Wisconsin investigate its soft wood resources with that end in view.

KAISER TOILS IN HARVEST.

He Drinks Fresh Water Out of a Common Jug.

BERLIN, Sept. 6.— The Kolnische Volkszeitung thus describes the Kaiser's appearance in the harvest field:

"Why is this sudden rush of people to newly harvested fields? To see the Kaiser? Suddenly there is a great hush. All caps fly in the air. Everybody is dumb with amazement. The Kaiser is coming. He is already there.

"He takes off his coat and in his shirt sleeves the supreme head of the German Empire begins work in the field. A cheerful smile illuminates his Majesty's face, deeply furrowed by the cares of war and of years. The hot perspiration streams from his brow at such work. With surprise onlookers perceive his Majesty is wiping with his sleeve the pearl-like sweat from his forehead.

"Lo, we see another beautiful picture. His Majesty sits down on the ground amidst his faithful Silesian people and drinks fresh water out of a common jug."

It is much better to remove the skins of all fruit to be eaten by children.

French Hold All Ground Gained

THE ROUMANIANS CHECK ATTEMPTED INVASION OF THEIR OWN TERRITORY

Bold Attempt of Enemy Aimed at Capture of Bucharest Has Been Averted While Roumanians Continue Their Successful Invasion of Transylvania---Successes For Allies On Many Fronts Are Announced.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

LONDON, September 6.—An official announcement is made by the Roumanian War Office that attempts of the Germans and Bulgarians to invade Eastern Roumania have been defeated and that the Roumanians are in possession of all frontier east of the Danube along which the attack was directed. The Roumanian invasion of Austria is being carried on with further success. After spirited fighting in the region of Borzecket, the Roumanians captured the heights west of that point.

French Hold All Their Recent Gains

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS (French Official Communique), September 6.—Repeated German attacks against the newly won French positions south of the Somme were broken up by French barrage fire last night, it was officially announced to-day. The German assaults reached their greatest violence at Deniecourt and Berny-en-Santerre. North of the Somme the Germans made no counter attacks during the night, but artillery was active at all points. The lack of spirit displayed by the Germans in counter attacks of the last two days offers evidence, according to the French military men, of the severe shock to the German morale of the Anglo-French victories in this week's fighting on the Somme. The second anniversary of the beginning of the battle of the Marne, which turned the German tide from the gates of Paris, was celebrated here today while Paris took stock of the new successes on the Somme. The principal celebrations, however, will be held next Sunday. In their advances since Sunday, both north and south of the Somme, the French have scored some of the most important gains of the whole Somme offensive. They have increased the pressure on Peronne and south of the river have drawn so close to the Chaulnes-Peronne railway that that line of communication is now under hot fire and useless to the Germans. The Germans attempted an attack on the Village of Fleury northwest of Verdun, last night. French fire held the enemy to their trenches at most places. Forty prisoners were taken. In Lorraine a surprise attack by the Germans was stopped.

Berlin Newspapers Demand Truce With England at Once

Admit Military and Moral Defeat at Verdun and Clamor for Peace

LONDON, September 6.—Under the caption: "What has happened to Germany?" the Daily Express says:

"Suddenly the veil is lifted and the true state of affairs is disclosed in the latest German newspapers. They admit defeat at Verdun and describe it not only as a military, but also as a moral, defeat, 'the percussion of which is at this moment felt so seriously in the Balkans.' They clamour for peace and renounce any ambition of annexation. A veritable disease of truth telling has broken out among them."

The Berlin Vorwaerts is quoted as saying: "A truce with England must be arranged even at the sacrifice of some of Germany's chief ambitions."

The Schwaebische Tagwacht says: "Even if the Russians and Italians and all their Continental allies were beaten England's naval supremacy would not yet be destroyed. We may go so far—unless a miracle happens victory will never be realized, not even by war that would last thirty years. The prolongation of the war will only plunge us into deeper misery and expose us to the gravest perils."

Both the Vorwaerts and the Schwaebische Tagwacht are radical Socialist organs.

Artillery Duel on The Macedonian Front

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, September 6.—Violent artillery actions are in progress in the region of Lake Doiran, the Struma River, and on the Macedonian front, in the sector held by the Serbians, the War Office announced to-day. ALDERMEN ARE SATISFIED WITH THE BOARD'S DECISION

City is in a Position to Proceed With the Construction of Sewage Disposal Plant—The New Activated Sludge System of Treating Sewage

THE LOCATION

Members of the City Council who yesterday journeyed to Toronto are satisfied at the outcome of the negotiations between the civic authorities and the Provincial Board of Health relative to a site for the sewerage disposal plant. The Rutherford and Scott properties, comprising eleven acres, in the township of North Monaghan, was approved by the Board on the understanding that the whole be treated as park property and buildings be constructed of such material and according to design in keeping with the park. The city will also be required to make provision to deal with the sewage of the Township in that immediate area. The site in question is situated on the east side of Park street, close to the river. This will eliminate many engineering difficulties that would have arisen had the original intention been carried out of locating the plant across the river. The change in location is made possible by the adoption of the activated sludge system of treating sewage. This is identically the same system that is in use in Milwaukee and several other large cities. It is the very latest in modern sewage disposal.

The Original Scheme.

"Activated sludge" is a process of reducing the solids to a colloidal condition by the introduction of air into the bottom of the tanks, thereby facilitating the mechanical process of breaking up the solids into the required form.

The original scheme would have necessitated the location of the plant across the river. The present proposed system does not require so much "head," and is much more practical in operation. It is about two years since the city first looked into the question of a system of sewage disposal. At that time the Provincial Board of Health recommended a system that was generally in use but which has since been superseded by the activated sludge system.

The plant, when completed, will cost in the neighbourhood of one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars.

MILITARY CROSS FOR A FORMER LOCAL BOY

LIEUT. N. C. SAWERS

PTE. OWEN SAWERS

Lieut. Norman Campbell Sawers, Canadian Pioneers, has been awarded the Military Cross, in the language of the Gazette "for gallantry and initiative at the front when although severely wounded he refused to leave his post and set a fine example of quiet courage and devotion." Lieut. Sawers was born in Peterborough, and is the son of Mr. C. W. Sawers, barrister of Vancouver, formerly of this city. Lieut. Sawers' brother, Owen Sawers, who went overseas with the 1st Canadian Division, was killed in the second battle of Ypres, in April, 1915.

THE FIRST MILITARY MEDAL TO BE WON BY LOCAL SOLDIER

"For Bravery in the Field" is the Inscription on Medal Awarded to Sergt. Archie McBride and Now on Exhibition at Gibson's--Capt. Cameron Wilson is Home on Furlough---Former Belmont Club Member is Killed in Action--To-day's General Military News.

"For Bravery on the Field".

So reads the inscription on the first military medal to be won by a Peterborough soldier and which has just reached Peterborough. Sergt. Archie McBride a well-known local member of the 4th Battery, Canadian Field Artillery, 1st Canadian Division was the gallant winner of the much coveted decoration, and his wife who resides at 625 Aylmer street has just received the medal, sent direct to her from the War Office. At the request of Sergt. McBride. The medal is the first to reach Peterborough and is on exhibition in one of the windows of Mr. A. Gibson's jewellery store, where it is naturally attracting a lot of attention. On one side appears the effigy of King George, while on the reverse the medal is inscribed with the brief but highly significant legend "For Bravery on the Field"". Around the edge, Sergt. McBride's name, regimental number and unit are stamped.

Sergt. McBride's many friends in Peterborough will be glad to hear that his bravery has been rewarded, and also glad of the opportunity to view the concrete recognition of his feat as exemplified by the medal now on exhibition. Sergt. McBride who enlisted here with the 24th Field Battery's quota to the first Canadian contingent and has been at the front ever since the first Canadian contingent, landed in France. The episode which won him the military medal occurred in the heavy fighting around Ypres last spring and was one of several instances of its kind in which the heroic Peterborough man has distinguished himself. A year previous Sergt. McBride was one of the 4th Battery squad which made a name for itself at Givenchy by taking two eighteen pound guns into the Canadian front line trenches at "Duck's Bell" and blowing the German parapet only seventy-five yards away to pieces. Sergt. E. G. MacDougall of Peterborough won the distinguished conduct medal for his bravery on this occasion.

Military Cross—Lieut. Arthur Ackerman.

Military Medal—Sergt. Archie McBride.

D.C.M.—Sergt. E. G. MacDougall.

OTTAWA, Sept. 5.—The Province of Alberta leads in recruiting, according to statistics as so far compiled for the month of August. Ontario is well up, while Quebec enlisted 691 men.

KINGSTON, Sept. 5.—Ernest Proulx, of the 154th Battalion appeared before Lieut.-Col. Hunter to-day to answer to a charge of desertion, and he was sentenced to ten months in the Central Prison. Proulx admitted having deserted from the 38th battalion in May, 1915, because he was the only French-Canadian in that battalion. After leaving the 154th battalion he went to Hawkesbury, where he secured employment with a farmer. Two friends of Proulx, also French-Canadians, were rounded up at Hawkesbury recently on the charge of desertion and were given a year in prison. It cost the battalion $175 to bring the trio to book.

OTTAWA, Sept 5.—It has been decided to pay volunteers for the Royal Naval Reserve which is to be raised in Canada as announced some time ago, the same rate of pay as that received by Canadian soldiers. On account of the fact that the men will be serving on British ships, however, though paid by Canada, the amount of pay they will actually receive on board ship will be the same as that paid to British sailors, the rest being credited to them. Five thousand men is the maximum number which could be taken and it is hoped, actually to rise 2,000 of these. The physical requirements, especially as regards sight, are considerably more rigid than those obtaining in the army. The naval service department is not yet ready to receive recruits, but will be prepared in a very short time. Besides establishing centres in the larger cities the military recruiting organisations will be utilised.

Word has been received to the effect that Lieut. Jas. D. Simpson, who went overseas with the 75th Battalion and afterwards transferred to another unit, has been killed in action. The young officer had a host of friends in Peterborough. For three years he was a member of the drafting department of the Canadian General Electric Company and he was also a member of the Belmont Club, leaving Peterborough three years ago. His next of kin resides in Scotland.

Sergt. Dalton McWilliams, the young son of Rev. A. McWilliams, who for some years was pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, passed away a short time ago in Calgary from spinal meningitis. The young soldier was a member of the 137th Battalion, enlisting a few days after his eighteenth birthday. He was a member of the Calgary cadets for five years, during which time he achieved great skill as a marksman, making remarkable records in target contests at Toronto, at Ottawa and in Calgary. Twice he was a member of the picked cadet rifle corps that went to England to shoot in competition with

New Officers Elected Last Night Preparatory to Continuing Efforts For New Battalion—Col. Johnston of 247th, Addressed the League.

PRESS APPRECIATED

By their reorganization last night, the Speakers' Patriotic League manifested its desire to assist further in the work of recruiting in this district. The success of their efforts in support of the 93rd Battalion has evidently not expended their enthusiasm, although at last night's meeting in the Patriotic Fund office it was fully admitted that conditions have changed considerably since a year ago. Some of the members who were avowedly opposed to the idea of conscription a year ago are now in favour of it. However, they are ready to proceed with the proposed registration scheme or with whatever methods they must of necessity employ to maintain the system of voluntary enlistment.

Practically all the members of the League were present at last night's meeting. Referring to a recent conversation with Major Campbell, chief recruiting officer for this district, Mr. J. A. Aylmer reported that he had advised that at future public meetings speakers dwell upon the present conditions of the war and the future prospects as a basis of appeal, assuming that the people are conversant with the reasons of Britain's participation in the conflict.

Col. W. D. Johnston, officer commanding the new 247th Battalion, addressed the League soliciting their assistance in future recruiting and outlining a general plan of the work to be followed in this territory.

The New Officers.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Mr. J. A. Aylmer.
1st V. President—Mr. R. R. Hall.
2nd V. President.—Mr. W. H. Dunsford.
Secretary—Mr. Joseph Wearing.
Assist. Sec.—Mr. F. D. Kerr.
Treasurer—Mr. C. H. Pennefather.
Executive Committee—The officers together with Adjt. McElheney and Mr. R. J. Soden.
Membership committee—Col. Miller, Col. Stevens, Mr. A. E. Coulthard, Mr. D. O'Connell, Mr. R. B. Rogers and Mr. W. F. Johnston.

Complete Organization.

It was intimated that the next duty would be to increase the membership. The fee remains at five dollars. It was remarked that there were other citizens who would doubtless associate themselves with the League if they were approached, especially since it provides for the individual a means of maintaining the supply of men. Hence, it is hoped that when the Membership committee approaches citizens they will meet with an assenting reception.

Services Appreciated.

The services of Mr. A. E. Coulthard and Mr. W. F. Johnston, respectively, the retiring president and secretary, were gratefully recognized, and the support of the local press was generally appreciated.

Mr. F. D. Kerr moved a resolution that the League place on record its appreciation of the splendid support rendered by the local press to all patriotic work since the inception of the war.

He incidentally referred to the flaring sport headlines in the late issues of the Toronto evening papers, and suggested that the Patriotic Leagues up and down the country should endeavour to bring about an abatement of the front page displays featuring sporting news that relegated the war to the secondary position of importance on inside pages.

In seconding the motion to the local press Mr. Johnston stated that the local papers had printed all kinds of patriotic news and announcements gratis.

NEW HIGH PRICE PAID FOR CHEESE AT TO-DAY'S SALE

W. S. Cook Bought Entire Board of 2246 Boxes at 20 1-16c—A Record For Cheese Board

MR. J. W. JOHNSTON, M.P.P. HERE

Sept. 6—2,246 boxes at 20 1-16c,
August 16—2,222 boxes, at 18 1-8c.
August 2—2,368 boxes, at 17 3-8c.
July 19—2,609 boxes, at 16 1-2c.
July 5—2,860 boxes at 15 7-8c.
June 21—2,772 boxes, at 16c.
May 30—2,088 boxes, at 16 5-16c.

A new high record price was reached on the local Cheese Board this morning, when Mr. W. S. Cook paid 20 1-16 cents a pound for 2,246 boxes, the entire offering of the Board, after a three weeks' rest. When butter hovers around forty cents and cheese is above 20 cents no further evidences are required to indicate the present value of milk.

Keene	85
Warminster	110
Shearer	140
Selwyn	110
Villiers	75
Warsaw	140
Westwood	190
Oakdale	80

Trewern	120
Mt. Pleasant	52
Norwood	180
Fleetwood	90
Killarney	130
Total	2,246

The Bidding.

Mr. Kerr opened at 18 1-8 cents, and Cook jumped to 19c. Mr. Hodgson named the 20 cent bid and Mr. Cook went one better, saying: "You cleaned up here once, only, once."

The session was prefaced by an address by Mr. John W. Johnson, M. P. P. for West Hastings, who spoke of the importance of the cheese industry and its present strong position.

SPECIAL ATTRACTION

Another attraction for the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition has been provided by the well known horseman, Charlie Fife of Otonabee, who will speed two of his string, Nellie Tariff and Ora Tariff in an effort to beat 2.30 1-4 for the mile. Charley has a wager on his hands and the conditions are that the Tariff speeders must beat the time set in not more than three attempts.

FARMER EJECTED HIS WIFE.

Chatham, Sept. 6.—Frank Countryman, a Chatham Township farmer, was released on suspended sentence in the County Police Court yesterday, after he had been convicted of assaulting and ejecting his wife from the home. The evidence given by the estranged couple was of a contradictory nature. The farmer paid costs of the court, amounting to $21.70.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 6, 1916

FOREST FIRES AND SETTLEMENT

The Government shows considerable sentimental interest in promoting the settlement of northern Ontario, but in practice it repels settlement. It is a notorious fact, which the Government itself will not deny, that its failure to provide adequate protection against forest fires has been very largely, if not wholly, responsible for the horrible swirl of destruction of June 29th, that swept 1,200 square miles of Ontario, causing the loss of 250 lives, with a recurrence last week, near Haileybury, which added twelve names to the death list, and caused a further exodus of settlers from the country. The Government, by its neglect, must consider the settler a salamander to be cheered and encouraged by forest fires. The cruelty of eviction has passed in Ireland; but it has been revived in Ontario. The Government is to-day urging the settler to return to his home in the bush—what is left of it—after two scorching evictions by fire, in 1911 and 1916. The Secretary of the Forestry Association says the chief cause of forest destruction is the clearing fire of settlers, themselves. If the Government wants to end this menace it can largely do so by prohibiting by law, as is not now done, the use of fire for clearing land in the spring and summer months of highest danger. Such a law obtains in other provinces and there has been reduced forest fires from settlers' clearing fires—the chief cause—to the vanishing point. If we want to settle the North Country we must make things attractive to the settler; not only help him with loans to clear and stock his farm, but make his life and property safe, which they are not now.

CANADIAN EXPANSION.

The possibilities of Canadian expansion cannot be readily realized by the mention of her three and three-quarter miles of area, nor the industrial and commercial development possibilities, and the accommodation of population—only by comparison. A little government chart has been issued with comparative outline map drawings. The largest is the total area, say, for purposes of illustration, the size of the human hand, representing the total area. This map, to show the area under settlement and in course of development, would be reduced to the size of two fingers. To illustrate the area that would be occupied if its density equalled that of the United Kingdom, the map would be reduced to the size of a thumb nail; and the area the present population would occupy if its density equalled that of Belgium, is representened by the size of the nail of the little finger. The mind can hardly conceive the immense expanse and possibilities of the British Empire—Canada, the size of Europe, Australia nearly as large. India, one and three-quarter millions of area, with possessions and dependencies in all parts of the world to swell the total area to the immense figures of thirteen million square miles. And these figures must be revised to include new conquests in this war, of territory wrested from Germany. Yesterday the despatches brought the news of the practical British—per favour of the Boers—occupation of German East Africa, with the result that British sovereignty will extend the whole length of Africa—from the Cape to Cairo. What a tremendous entity is the British empire, with its thirteen million square miles, and its population of 450 millions, all living contentedly under the British flag, and owning with pride the sovereignty of the United Kingdom, a little pin point on the map of the world, only a hundred thousandth part of the empire and less than a tenth part of the population. There must be something of divine backing in the influence of the United Kingdom; in the dominating material and moral force she exercises in the world, in which in all things, except her soul, she occupies so comparatively insignificant a place alongside the whole. An Empire, like the British Empire, is well worth fighting to preserve, not only in its own interests, and that of its component elements, but in the moral and material interests of the world of humanity.

THE STREET RAILWAY.

The City Council got at least two good resolutions off its conscience at its last meeting, one of which concerns the extension of the street railway to the East Ward, that is, Ashburnham. In the first place this resolution is commendable, for it involves tardy justice to city residents east of the river. One of the conditions of Ashburnham's annexation to Peterborough was the extension of the street railway across the river. This promise has not been kept. East ity is not only technically, but morally, entitled to the implementing of this condition of union. When she merged her municipal identity in that of Peterborough she was without debt; and now she is burdened with her proportion of Peterborough's rather tidy debt. She has not received compensating advantages as a result of union, and the time has come when the question of just treatment should be practically considered. East City not only deserves street railway connection, but easier access to the factory district on this side of the river, such as is in course of provision.

But the work of street railway extension is a little harder than passing a resolution. The control of the street railway is, so far, only nominally in hands of the Hydro-Electric Commission, and if the latter were ready to begin work at once the condition of the labour market renders it difficult, if not prohibitory. Then the bridge question arises. If the Hydro Commission builds a bridge south of Hunter street it will be for the purposes of the railway only; and the city, if what is needed is provided, will have to jointly, at our own expense, provide for building separately or in connection, a bridge to accommodate ordinary traffic also. The evident point to cross the river with a railway bridge is either at the foot of Sherbrooke or Dalhousie street, so that a street railway line, to serve the whole east side, would form a sort of belt-line railway to the city at Smith street.

There is a good deal to be considered in the question and no matter how desirable a consummation street railway extension is, it is probable that a good deal of "water will have run under the bridge" before a conjoined street railway and traffic bridge hangs over the water of the river. The City Council's action is a move in the right direction, and should be pressed as earnestly as possible, both as a matter of simple and delayed justice to East City and a common benefit to the eastern and western river-divided sections of the city. We should and must be one city; we must have conditions such as will make us really, as well as technically, fellow citizens. It is a dozen years since the formal union was consummated, and the transfluvians call their residence "Ashburnham" yet, largely because they resent the breach of faith implied in the failure of Peterborough to fulfil the conditions of union.

PREACHING AND PRACTICE.

Sir Thomas White, Canadian Minister of Finance, with praiseworthy insistence and evident good intentions, urges upon the people the necessity of economy and thrift. But his counsels will receive scant attention on the part of the public when he, as a member of the Government, having joint responsibility with his colleagues, practices the opposite of what he preaches. Canada is spending millions of dollars a month in war service; and it would seem there is as much need for economy and thrift in public expenditures as in private spending. After the smoke had cleared away from the ruins of the burned Parliamept Buildings, the government decided to utilize the walls left standing, computed to represent a value of from one to two million dollars. In pursuance of this understanding Parliament voted a million and a half dollars for restoring the buildings, making the net cost about three and a half million dollars. On this understanding the work was entrusted to a joint committee composed of both Liberals and Conservatives. But without the knowledge of this committee, the contractor, doubtless with the knowledge, if not at the instance of the Department of Public Works, spent thousands of dollars in tearing down walls of such solidity that in some places dynamite had to be employed. The contractor did not object, for he receives eight per cent. over the cost of all work—tearing down as well as building up. This action changed the whole face of things, and Hon. Mr. Lemieux, a Liberal member of the committee, resigned, because, under the circumstances the committee refused to ask for tenders as the basis of a new contract. He demanded the application of the Public Works Act, which requires that in all contracts over five thousand dollars public tenders must be invited. With the old walls, worth two million dollars, down; with an entirely new building, the work done without tenders, and the contractor paid on the basis of cost, plus eight per cent., under the new arrangement it is probable that, instead of the cost of the new buildings being with the use of the old walls, three and a half million, it will be five millions, and very probably a great deal more. Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, is not as strong on economy as Sir Thomas White, and if he brought with him from Manitoba the costly ideas of erecting parliament buildings, two or three millions more or less will not count, except as a considerable addition to the immense debt Canada is piling up. Sir Thomas White, when he brings his colleagues in the Government, whose responsibility he shares, to practice economy—not in dollars and cents, but in millions—he can consistently lecture the public and with some effect impress a most important duty.

A THREAT OF RETALIATION.

The British Empire and its Allies are fighting for the ideals of human freedom embodied in the American Constitution. While we do this, the people of the United States grow rich on the war-time trade furnished by the Allies. In order to win the victory, in which Americans are interested equally with us, a blockade of Germany was instituted. The Washington Government threatens retaliation against the trade of the Allies. Mr. Wilson may win hyphenate votes by this action, but cannot hope for the approval of Americans whose sympathy continues to favour the forces of civilization and constitutional liberty.—Toronto News.

A HINT FOR SOME SPORTS.

Young men who day by day scan the race bulletins might be a great deal better occupied reading the war bulletins and getting ready to do their duty overseas.—Guelph Herald.

THE SCAPE-GOAT HUNT OF THE CORNERED KAISER

The Kaiser, tired of war, is taking a few days off to go hunting for scapegoats. The path of German defeat is strewn with generals dismissed for incapacity. It is said that the three most inglorious failures of the war, the Kaiser, Francis-Joseph, and King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, are to hold a Council of War in Vienna. It is more likely to be a Council of Mutual Recrimination. Ferdinand is said to be disposed to drop out of the game and leave Crown Prince Boris to take up his hand, in which case we may look for a new deal pretty soon. Whether Ferdinand hangs on or abdicates Bulgaria is likely to flop at the first conventional opportunity. Bulgaria is in danger of having even that which she has taken away from her, if she is found in arms against the Entente Allies at the close of the war.

The Balkan States are all running for cover, a sufficient indication of what they think of the tendency of the war. The patriotism of the Greek people may save Greece from the penalty of King Constantine's treason and treachery. If His Majesty does not put in an appearance at the Council of War, it will be a sign that His Imperial brother-in-law has decided to make him a scapegoat, too.

There is not an atom of relief in sight for the Central Powers. The closing up of the Danube and the lively war being waged by Rumania cut off the only route that was left by which supplies could enter Germany, and by which Germany could send munitions to Turkey. How long will it be before the Sultan throws up his hand? At any rate he has a good excuse for not being present at the Council of War. Of course Berlin can explain away the Austrian retreat. "It is one link of a great carefully-worked-out plan about which nothing further may be said at present." We have no hesitation in accepting this explanation. It was good strategy to run away, whoever planned it, and as usual on such occasions, "there is nothing to report in Berlin."

The success of the Greek democracy will be a great encouragement to the German revolutionists. The modern Mystery, Babylon the Great, the Mother of Harlots and Abominations of the East may well be called "Mystery." It is all mystery at Berlin just now. The appointment of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg as chief of staff is regarded, we are assured, as a measure of such far-reaching military and political consequence that even at that close range it is impossible fully to discern its significance. If we may venture a guess it signifies that Von Hindenburg will be the next scape-goat to fall before the Kaiser's gun unless he has sense enough to froce the Kaiser to join the abdicating procession. The Field Marshal is the only great military commander in Germany who has any prestige or ppoularity left. He could fire the Kaiser. He is the only German who could do it, and if he does not the Kaiser will assuredly fire him. Von Hindenburg should be the first President of the Geman Republic.—Montreal Herald.

Brutality of Germany's "Military Goal"

"To interfere would stand in the way of our reaching our military goal!" That was the German officer's answer to the horrified American missionary returning from the ravaged and massacred regions of Armenia to Constantinople.

"Our military goal!" There you have it. That is Germany's reason why. To reach that goal the whole German nation, the guiltiest Prussian and the most innocent Saxon, have been compelled to wade neck-deep through foulness and slaughter unmatched in sustained brutality and blood-lust by anything pagan history has to tell.

There are no words left in any language to tell what has happened what still is happening, when back of Moslem fanaticism and the cruelty of "the unspeakable Turk" there is at work the diabolical efficiency of German kultur ruthlessly bent on "reaching our military goal." The voice of Canada joins in with the British voice that, despite the awfulness of the cost, says:

"If on no other account than her responsibility for this slaughter of a non-belligerent people, we can make no truse with Germany until the Prussian despotism, which has degraded a great nation to the lowest level in the scale of human civilization, is no more. For there is no room for the slightest doubt as to Germany's responsibility and guilt in all that has recently happened to Armenia. The dripping hands may be hands of the Sultan. The directing voice is the voice of the Kaiser."

And what is that "military goal"? So far as it involves Armenia it is the despot domination of the Near East. To gain that domination the Kaiser joined hands with the Sultan, the Crescent and cross linked up with the Crescent; and out of that blasphemy, that treason to Christianity, there comes this Judas crime—the betrayal of the Armenian people to the lust of the bestial Turk.

EARNING AND SAVING

It is useless to earn unless you save. Wise parents advised their young sons to buy lots from me a few years ago. By doing so they imposed a must upon themselves to save what would certainly have been spent. RESULT: Clear deeds of valuable business corner and 2 inside lots worth at least $1,800, and still growing in value. Lots and men can be seen any day. I have a few lots still, which I want to sell. Also 1 small and 2 large houses with stables, poultry houses and large gardens. Every man who would like to own a home near all south end factories and May's school, or young men who would like to do as above, should see me without delay. Any sober, industrious man can buy from me and own his own home. Send your wife for particulars if you cannot call.

Cowardly Attack Made on John Denneny in Montreal

Secours and Pitre, of the Nationals, to be Suspended—Cornwall Man Had Cut Opened Above His Eye Which Required Five Stitches—President St Pere Promises Results

MONTREAL, Sept. 6.—For his cowardly attack on judge of play, John Denenny, in Saturday's match at the Maisonneuve grounds, Oliver Secours, the National defence player, has been suspended for the balance of the season by President Eddie St. Pere, of the N.L.U. Didier Pitre, whom Denenny alleges punched him over the eye, is also likely to receive the same punishment, but his case will be heard by the N.L.U. head, when the official who was attacked will also be present.

The cut over Denenny's eye required five stitches to close, and it was this blow that he states was delivered by Pitre. The latter states that he only pushed the official, but did not strike him. Denenny criticizes the police for not interfering when he was attacked, there being two or three officers near by who looked without going to the official's assistance. Denenny states that he will also take court proceedings against both players, charging them with assault with intend to do bodily harm.

Denenny's Version.

"I think the police protection at the National grounds is disgraceful. The police must have plainly seen that I was assaulted, yet they did nothing to help me.

"The attack of Secours was bad enough, but nothing compared to that made upon me by Pitre. He hit me across the forehead as I handed him his time-check, and it was done so quickly but few people saw it, but it necessitated five stitches, which had to be taken, by a surgeon after the match was over, to fix up my wound.

"I reported the attacks to President St. Pere, who happened to meet me as I was going home, and asked me how I got my injury.

"He then stated that neither Secours nor Pitre would be permitted to play next Saturday."

CANADIAN LEAGUE GRADUATES STARRING IN FASTER COMPANY

The success of Canadian League graduates in faster company during the past season is opening the eyes of fans around the Canadian circuit that the ball dished up by the Athletes in President Fitzgerald's organization had more class than was believed. No less than thirteen Canadian Leaguers are making good in the National, American, and International circuits this year.

In the American League the Canuck League is represented by Urban Shocker, the crack Ottawa pitcher, who, after a grand record in Toronto, is now pitching for Bill Donovan's Yanks, and by Frankie Fuller, last year's Ottawa short stop, who has been playing good ball for the fast coming Detroit Tigers. In the National, Oskee "Greasy" Neale, the London outfielder, whose dazzling catches in the sawdust strip in left field at Riverside Park are well remembered by Peterborough fans, is starring for Christy Mathewson's Cincinnati Reds. In fact so fast is the ex-Cockney performing in the big show that the current number of the Baseball Magazine calls him one of the two most promising new-comers of the year. Another Canuck Leaguer making his debut is Smykal, the Ottawa infielder, who played his first professional ball game in Peterborough a couple of years ago, reporting to Manager Shaughnessy during an Ottawa series here. "Smike" is now with the Pittsburg Pirates.

The Canuck Leaguers are doing well in the International. With the Buffalo leaders are Ty Tyson, formerly of Hamilton, and a consistent pitcher, and Marlin Kopp, the crack St. Thomas outfielder, who has been playing great ball for the Bisons and has been sold to the Boston Red Sox. Jena Blackburne's Leafs have also a brace of Canadian Leaguers in Peterborough's old favourite, Irwin Trout, who is playing fine ball for the Torontos, and Fred Herbert, the big Ottawa pitcher, who is rounding a consistent winner after a slow start this season. The Richmond "Straight Cuts" also boast two graduates from this circuit in Ross, the Ottawa's left-hander, and Ray Keating, formerly of the Hamilton Tigers. Both twirlers are the property of the New York Americans, and have been recalled by Donovan. Newark has a cracking good pitcher in the person of Wilkinson, who used to twirl for the Brantford Red Sox, while Providence and Baltimore each have Canadian League catchers, Yelle, of Hamilton, being with the Grays, while the Birds have Jimmy McEvoy, secured by the Athletics from Jack White's Berlin team.

The graduates mentioned, if strengthened by a couple of infielders, would make a pretty sweet team. Any International League manager would be satisfied with Shocker, Tyson, Wilkinson, Herbert, Ross, and Keating as a pitching staff; McEvoy and Yelle as back-stops, an outfield composed of Kopp, Neale and Trout, and Frankie Fuller and Smykal as a nucleus for an infield. With a .300 hitting first baseman and a third baseman of the Blackburne type, the Canuck League graduates would take some beating.

Lyon Unable To Qualify

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—Most of the favourites qualified for match play for the amateur golf championship of the United States Golf Association in the 36-hole qualifying round held over the east and west courses of the Merion Cricket Club.

W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Oakmont, a former holder of the amateur title, led the field of 153 starters with the low medal score of 153, which is one stroke lower than the best at Detroit last year, when Dudley Mudge was medalist. Mudge was one of the favourites who failed to qualify as he took 172 to complete the round.

Other favourites who failed to qualify were G. S. Lyon, of Toronto, Canadian champion; Phillip Carter, of Nassau; Fred Herreshoff, of National Golf Links; Sherrill Sherman, of Utica; Albert Seckel, Riverside, and Hamilton Kerr, of Ekwanok.

LAWN BOWLING

The jumble draw for the biggest and last tournament of the season has been posted in the club-house.

This tournament is open to every bowler in the city, whether he is a member of Peterborough Club or not.

Every bowler is welcome to participate in this tournament. All bowlers whose names are not in the following list will be appointed a place in the tournament on application.

In this draw all the names were jumbled together, leads, seconds, vices and skips, and the rinks drawn therefrom, with the following result.

The rinks will arrange for themselves their leads, seconds, vices and skips:

Wightman, Waddell, McKenzie, Skinner.

Hill, McGarrell, Taylor, Vosden.

Buckham, Parkins, Moore, Grant.

W. Elliot, Metheral, Pratt, Hammond.

Mitchell, Cunningham, Oke, Budd.

Read, Benore, Breyfogle, Brightman.

Dayman, Gould, Fitzgerald, Cairns.

McCusker, R. Elliot, T. C. Elliot, J. Mayneord.

Wren, Webb, Allen, Belleghem.

The opening games will begin next week, but where it can be mutually arranged games may be played earlier.

Dan Brouthers A Mighty Batter

He stood up to the plate, knock-kneed, a giant in stature and a man who seldom uttered a word, and of course caused no trouble with the umpire.

If Ty Cobb could hit a ball as far as Big Dan he would hold the record for circuit drives and runs. Brouthers had to hit the ball a mile in order to get as far as first and with all his slugging propensities Dan's record as a batsman fails to show where he made many home runs or triples.

It was in the season of 1877 that the famous Brouthers came into prominence when he killed McGlynn, second baseman of the Fishkill Club, an amateur team of that city. In a game one day Dan hit a ball for a single.

CRASHES INTO McGLYNN.

He tried to stretch it into a double. McGlynn, who was playing second, stooped down to pick up the low throw on the return from the outfield when the giant jumped in the air, intending to slide. He came down full weight on the second baseman, fracturing his skull, which caused his death. Big Dan left that part of the country, heart broken and crushed in spirit.

Dan Brouthers played in hard luck after that. His first professional engagement was with the Troy team in 1877, and it was a fiasco. Dan that fall, was dead broke, and not wanting to go to his home, the scene of the fatality which haunted him, took a job laying sewer pipe as a laborer.

James "Orator" O'Rourke, then managing the Buffalo team of the National league, heard of Big Dan's ability to line them out and hired him as a first baseman and it was then that Brouthers became one of the famous "big four." The others were Deacon White, Jack Rowe and Hardie Richardson, and they were in their day the greatest quartette of sluggers ever bunched on one team.

BROUTHERS FINDS FRED MERKLE.

Night after night they entertained the former great batsman in their select little clubrooms, fearing that Brouthers would not agree to pay the price asked ($2500), and the more Dan saw of Merkle the more he was willing to raise the ante providing the Tecumseh directors asked for more cash.

But the deal came through with both parties satisfied and Merkle today proves the accuracy of Brouthers' judgment in picking out a real ball player. The $2500 placed the little city of Tecumseh in the clear, a burg of 3,000 population that upheld and supported a team in Class D for three seasons and paid every obligation.

ENDS CAREER WITH ORIOLES.

Dan Brouthers played his last big league game with the famous Baltimore team, when John McGraw, Hughie Jennings, Joe Kelly and Joe Corbett were radiating as brilliant stars and playing the best ball of their respective careers.

Here is Dan Brouthers' complete batting record from 1881 until 1896, the season of 1895 being omitted: — Seasons, 16; games, 1,617; at bat, 6,547; runs, 1,299; base hits, 2,288; three base hits, 107; home runs, 87; sacrifice hits, 380; stolen bases, 364; averaging .342.

MARANVILLE HAS HIS NOSE BROKEN

BOSTON, Sept. 6. — The Braves, eading the National League, yesterday began the first of two series which will go far to determine whether Philadelphia, Brooklyn or Boston will gain the ultimate honours. The present champions, fresh from a string of five victories from Brooklyn, came here for a five game series. Philadelphia is now tied with Brooklyn for second place, barely more than a point behind Boston.

The Braves were threatened to-day with the possible loss of Maranville, their crack shortstop. His nose was broken by a bounding ball yesterday. After having it treated last night he expressed his determination to resume play to-day, but the surgeon recommends caution.

KILBANE PUTS KAYO ON GEORGE CHANEY

CEDAR POINT, Ohio, Sept. 6.— In less than seven minutes of actual fighting Johnny Kilbane, of Cleveland, spoiled the chances of George Chaney, of Baltimore, for the feather-weight championship on Monday.

A terrific right smash to Chaney's jaw settled the battle near the end of the third round. The champion's longer reach and greater defensive skill offset the spirited fighting Chaney began at the sound of the first gong.

The leads of the Baltimore lad were blocked easily for the most part by Kilbane and the champion earned an even break in the first two minutes by his clever defensive tactics. It was not until the third that Kilbane cut loose and then he did so with a venegance. He rushed the challenger to the ropes with the opening of the round and drew blood with a left to Chaney's nose. Chaney strove by a rain of blows to the champion's kidneys to weaken his attack. But Kilbane, biding his time swung over to the point of the challenger's chin a wallop that spelled knockout and victory. It was announced that both men weighed in under 122 pounds.

Round 3.—Chaney carried the fight into Kilbane's corner and Referee Hinkle three times broke clinches. Kilbane scored a left jab to the jaw at the end of the third but Chaney played successfully for the champion's kidney. When the men broke for the fourth time in the round Kilbane sent across a right hook to the jaw which landed the challenger face downward on the canvas.

Referee Hinkle tolling off the seconds with his right hand strove vainly with his left to rouse the prostrate Chaney. The challenger could not respond and the champion was declared the winner.

Everything Done to Keep Up the Spirits and Health of the German Soldiers Between Battles—His Elaborate Dug-Outs

(By Philip Gibbs)

With the British Armies in the Field.—There is no doubt at all that as a fighting man the German knows his business thoroughly and performs it with great skill, courage and discipline. He had the advantage of us in the enormous reserve of highly-trained officers and although the advantage of us in the enormous reserve of highly-trained officers, and although the advantage is rapidly disappearing, he still has, I imagine, more than enough for his needs now and to the end of the war, for he is careful to keep his best brains out of danger. He can call upon a great store of professional and scientific knowledge to direct the machinery of this business of destruction, and to organize the lines of his machine-made war.

In minute detail of organization and in the driving industry behind it the German high command is masterly, and there is not a soldier in the Kaiser's armies who is not well equipped and well fed, unless our guns do not permit supplies to come up.

Carefully Edit Soldiers' News.

Enormous attention is paid to the morale of the men by organizing concerts, religious services and beer parties behind the lines, so that they shall be kept cheerful, and the news of the world is specially edited for them with that point of view in mind. The German high command is careful of the lives of its men until the day comes when they have to be flung ruthlessly forward in wave after wave against the guns of the Allies.

Again and again I have described the spaciousness and depth and comfort of the German dugouts that are part of the system of life-saving, and divisional commanders set their men to work and keep them at work in a way which our men would call slave-driving. At Ovillers some of them had six or eight rooms communicating with each other and two separate storeys. The rooms, as large as 15 feet by 30 feet, were furnished with spring beds, carpets, washing arrangements, tapestries to keep out the draughts, and other luxuries. One of the dugouts at Ovillers has nine entrances, with beds for 110 men, thirty feet below the surface, and with a cook-house containing three big boilers.

Hide From Big Guns.

But it is not only in the trenches and in places like Ovillers that the Germans dig so industriously. Far behind their lines, wherever our long-range guns can reach them, they have these elaborate subterranean shelters, deeper and stronger than most of ours and with much greater accommodation. It means incessant work, but it is work that saves life, and the Germans do not begrudge it and have no special pride in taking risks. That is good generalship and good soldiering, but it does not save them. Continuous artillery fire like ours is frightfully destructive of human life, and no amount of digging will safeguard it. During all the month that our artillery has been increasing its weight of metal the Germans have been suffering great losses, and the strain upon the nerves and morale of the men has been severe. This is certain, not only from the statements of German prisoners, but from the new instructions issued as late as July 16th, which refer to the treatment of great numbers of wounded and the terrible conditions of the present fighting.

Problem of the Dead.

The German mind is busy with the problem of its dead, also the enemy goes to great risk and trouble to remove the dead from the fields, because the living men who follow are disheartened and terrified by the sight of so many corpses on their way. Search parties are sent out under shell-fire to collect them, even though many searchers may join the dead, and the bodies put into mortuary chambers like one found by us the other day at Pozieres. It was filled with dead bodies waiting to be taken away on the light railway which runs up to the place, but the enemy's artillery fired upon the mortuary and set it on fire.

Keep Best Brains Safe.

I have said they keep their best brains out of danger. This is true, even when the brains are second best. It is very seldom any officer over the rank of Captain is found in the front line trenches, and officers of higher rank remain well in the background. Lately, during our attack, orders have been given that officers and N. C. O's of commanding companies and platoons should visit their trenches at night "so that men may see or hear their commanders." It is all very naive, and reveals that curious lack of humour which characterizes the German war lord. "The men should be instructed as to the whereabouts of their commanding officer, and know where to go if they feel they require inspiring courage, to stimulate courage and foster a feeling of confidence and a spirit of resistance. These should be the first duties of officers in the front line. At all events, in the present circumstances, courage rather than tactical theory is the essence of a true leader."

To give to their men courage in the hours when these German soldiers, who are brave men, might well give way to terror, the German chemists have manufactured tabloids which drug them with a kind of frenzy. There is no doubt of this, because many of these drugs were found by a friend of mine—a medical officer of the Kentish men, who helped to take trenches north of Pozieres a few days ago. They contain ether and opium in sufficient quantities to intoxicate the strongest man. In the German opinion it is good stuff before a counter-attack.

The German organization is remarkably good. It does not neglect the spiritual or physical side of their soldiers. It provides them with song books and prayer books as well as with food and drink. It has never revealed a shortage of shells. Its gunners are full of scorn and wonderfully quick to get on to targets when the infantry calls for help by sending signals of distress. In all machines of war and in the fine are of keeping up the pride of the men, the German War Lords and high officials show a real genius, but they cannot bring dead men to life, nor hide the agonies of all their wounded, or blink the fact that the British troops have broken their second line and hammered them with terrific blows, and reached out far with long-range guns to destroy them behind the lines. I know on the eve of our great attack, all instructions were prepared for a general retreat, with every detail ready in case our troops should break through on a wide front.

That is a confession of deep apprehension. It shows that they are invisaging defeat and preparing for it. It is a state of mind expressed in the order of the day, issued by the German Emperor a few days ago, and found on an officer captured to the north of Pozieres: "To the leaders of the troops of the First Army," says the Kaiser, "I express from the bottom of my heart my deep appreciation and my Imperial gratitude for the splendid achievement in warding off the Anglo-French mass attacks of the 30th of July. They have accomplished with German faithfulness what their country expected from them. God help them further. (Signed) Wilhelm I.R." Since then the ground to the north of Pozieres has been captured and there has been fierce fighting and further progress made by the British troops towards Guillemont.

PLANK SHUNS CURVE BALL TO SAVE ARM

Eddie Plank, the Gettysburg veteran, refused to be counted out. Eddie is now lending his able assistance to Fielder Jones in his fight to land the St. Louis Browns on the top of the American League. Plank is forty years old and expects to pitch until he is forty-five. After shutting out the Cleveland team with only two hits recently, the famous southpaw had this to say:

"I never had a sore arm and when I quit the game it will be because I am tired of it. I am forty now, but I hope to stick in the big league for five more years at least.

At forty-five, however, I think I will be prepared to stay at home and look at the other boys playing. Pitching is a job. It must be mastered by the pitcher. He must study the other fellow carefully, the batter, and then give him the kind of a ball that he is weak against.

That's the way I pitched for fifteen years. The fellow with the fast ball will last longer than one with the curves. I will pitch five fast balls to a single curve or a slow ball. However a pitcher to be successful in the big leagues must be the possessor of both combinations. Control is the biggest point.

"If you can put the ball where you want to then you will win more games than you lose. I believe control just was natural with me. If you keep the ball away from the groove of the sluggers you will win. Benny Kauff got one real hit off me last season. It was a drive over the right field fence in St. Louis. He had me three and two and my foot slipped just as I shot the ball. It went outside and he lined it over the fence.

"You can't fool Ty Cobb. He will hit anything. Against Ty I just try to get him off his stride and trust to luck. Sluggers like Crawford, Speaker and Jackson are easier to fool because they swing a heavier bat and hold it on the handle. Ty uses a light toothpick.

"I never try for a strike-out record. You won't last long if you attempt to fan every man that comes to the plate. I know I have eight other fellows on the field with me. In spring training I take my time. I never curve a ball until after the first week and then I start my speed gradually. I believe that this system has kept my arm in shape for fifteen years."

Scoffs At Muensterberg

LONDON PAPER SAYS HE IS TRYING TO BREAK GERMANY'S FALL.

The London Daily Chronicle, commenting editorially on Professor Munsterberg's recent article in the New York Times, says:

"What is the meaning of all this novel German or pro-German humility. It means in the first place that Germany is beaten in this war, and in the second that she wishes to use Great Britain just as she used this country when our spokesman was the most pacific Minister we have had since Sir Robert Walpole—we refer to Lord Salisbury, of course, the steady friend of the Triple Alliance and unfriendly critic of Russia and France—to divide her enemies in preparation for another war.

"This kind of peace talk with its pretended magnanimity on the part of a power which knows it is beaten, may mislead Americans who have not so much at stake as we have, but we know now Germany was our enemy even when she was deceiving the great Lord Salisbury and leading him to think he was promoting the cause of peace by giving her Heligoland, and we know she will be our enemy more than ever after she is obliged to sign a treaty of peace, giving her no compensation for all her pains and sacrifices. However, she might try to deceive us again, the Munsterberg proposal is a plan to break the German fall and the allies are resolved that the fall shall be all the way, and notorious to the world and to history."

Professor Munsterberg's article, "The Allies of the Future," published in the New York Times of August 30, asserted that the alliances brought into being by the war or made use of by its inception would not outlast it, and that the interests of peace called for an alliance of Germany, Great Britain and the United States — Germany with her "Kultur," Great Britain with her fleet, and the United States with her wealth and natural resources.

There would be another group led by Russia, Professor Munsterberg said, but Germany must not be attracted in that direction any more than Great Britain would continue in it. It would be an armed peace, he said, but an effectual peace, because the paramount interests of the world would be in the hands of the three paramount nations, which would have the right and the power to enforce it.

1,000 MILE RIDE ON DESERT FATAL

An Amazing Story of the Tragic Deaths of Territorials

RASH JOURNEY TO INDIA

LONDON.—An amazing story of the tragic death of British Territorial soldiers landed in India was revealed in a recent issue of Truth. It appears that the men were despatched on a journey of more than 1,000 miles through the desert without proper medical attendance and with nothing to protect them against the terrible heat.

"Indian military administration has not covered itself with glory during the war, but none of its burdens has been more inexcusable and more shocking than the recent tragic journey of a troop train from Karachi to Peshawar. Not all the facts have yet been divulged even in India—indeed, so far as I have seen, the newspapers there have only published short and colourless reports emanating from official sources.

"But the numerous letters that I have received, many of them from army officers, testify to the horror the affair has excited among all acquainted with the details, and but for the preoccupation of the press and the public with the war the story would assuredly raise a storm of indignation here at home.

Through Baking Desert.

"In the month of June the railway journey from Karachi to Peshawar, a distance of over 1,000 miles, is one of the hottest in the world. For some hundreds of miles the line goes through the baking Sind desert, where the shade temperature is anything up to 128. Mail trains perform the journey in twenty-four hours. Troop trains take from two and a half to five days for the same journey because—the health and comfort of soldiers being of the least importance—they are drawn by the slowest engines and have to give place to all other passenger traffic.

"On this journey, a severe ordeal even for acclimated white men, the military jackasses in authority at Karachi despatched about a thousand British soldiers just disembarked from the transport which had conveyed them from England. The men were sent out as drafts for various different units in India, territorial and regular. As usual the troop train was made up of old third-class carriages which, with the exception of the wooden seats, are little better than goods trucks. Into these vehicles the soldiers were packed as sardines.

"One correspondent says they were still wearing English clothing. There were no punkahs or fans. Ice was supplied at Karachi — nominally one pound per man, but half of it melted before they received it. I am assured that the only water for drinking was what was carried in the men's water bottles, and that there was neither water nor any accommodation for washing. For other purposes there was simply a filthy makeshift arrangement, which aggravated indescribably the foulness of the atmosphere in the overcrowded carriages.

Hopeless Hospital on Train.

"Three doctors travelled with the train, but, like the men, they were new to India, and so, devotedly though they worked, they were hopelessly handicapped by their lack of experience as well as by their own sufferings from the intense heat. Two second-class carriages, each with lying-down accommodation for two patients, had been set apart for use as a hospital.

"The train pulled up at Rohri, 289 miles from Karachi, 21 hours after it started. By that time a number of men were sick, dying or already dead from heat strokes. Seven corpses were removed from the train at Rohri and 32 patients in a critical condition were taken across the River Indus to the Civil Hospital at Sukkur, where in spite of everything that could be done for them five more died. During the halt at Rohri a meal was served in the station shed, where the troops were shielded from the rays of the sun only by an iron roof. When the journey was resumed more heat strokes occurred and a carriage had to be turned into a mortuary.

"As the result of urgent telegraphic messages a further but inadequate supply of ice was obtained en route, and at Lahore the train was met by a staff of medical officers, nurses and orderlies. Sixty-seven patients were transferred to the cantonment hospital at Lahore. For the rest of the journey a medical man with Indian experience accompanied the train and an extra engine was provided to expedite it.

"At Rawalpindi 37 more patients were taken from the train to the hospital. This made the total number of hospital cases 136. A semi-official statement issued from Simla gave 15 as the total number of deaths, including those at Rohri, but my correspondents assert that there were at least 25.

"The way in which troops travel by railway in India is always scandalous, but ordinarily moves are made in the cold weather and no great harm is done. The exigencies of the war have inevitably upset the usual seasonal plans both for sending men to India and distributing them about the country. That fact does not, however, in the least degree mitigate the responsibility of the staff who despatched this troop train from Karachi.

"A number of junior officers from regiments in the Punjab went down to Karachi to meet the drafts for their units and returned with the train. I am told that they unavailingly pointed out the danger that would arise from the overcrowding, the heat and the slowness of the journey and took the precaution of obtaining for themselves an extra store of ice, which they handed over for the use of the sick. The danger might have been lessened, if not removed altogether, by giving the men ample accommodation (there is no shortage of rolling stock), such means of alleviating the heat as other travellers get and a faster train or trains. But the callous stupidity of the staff was impervious to reason or warning, and these unfortunate soldiers were ordered forth on a journey whose horrors can only be feebly imagined.

"It is said that instructions have now been issued from army headquarters, Simla, forbidding any further movements of troop trains through desert country during the hot weather. Clearly, however, there will have to be a searching investigation into the conduct of the officers responsible for what has happened, and as it is not unlikely that efforts will be made to hush up the matter in India, I trust that the House of Commons will insist upon the prompt publication of the full report, for which Mr. Chamberlain has already asked the Government of India."

A Storm of Protest.

The publication of this story has brought forth a storm of protest in the British press and the following official explanation was issued by Austen Chamberlain, Secretary for Indian Affairs:

"On June 15 the Viceroy telegraphed as follows:

"'We regret to report fifty cases, with twelve deaths, from heat stroke occurred among drafts on hired transport Ballarat on the railway journey between Karachi and Lahore. Troop train left Karachi June 5 with thirteen officers and 1,013 men. On reaching Rohri thirty-two men were removed to civil hospital Sukkur suffering from heat stroke, of whom twelve died, and eighteen more cases occurred before train reached Lahore.

"'Train carried three medical officers, had two second-class carriages fitted up as hospitals with fans, and was provided with coffee shop and good supply of ice; no overcrowding, thirty men in four wheelers and sixty in bogies; normal carrying capacity for troops is thirty-six and seventy-two respectively.

"'Arrangements have been made to send to hill depots all men who have been suffering from the rail journey. Orders have been issued stopping all further movement of troops by rail from Karachi to northern India. A complete report of the occurrence will be furnished at an early date.'

"A further telegram on June 19 added that the total number of heat stroke cases was 136, with fifteen deaths. All sick reported doing well.

"On July 15, in reply to further inquiry, Mr. Chamberlain received the following telegram:

"'In reply to your enquiry dated July 11 Karachi was selected as the port of disembarkation as the majority of the drafts on board the Ballarat were for units in the Fourth, First and Second Divisions — namely, Quetta, Peshawar and Rawal Pindi. Drafts for the Lucknow and the Khow divisions disembarked at a later date.'

"'With reference to the enquiries in your telegrams dated July 14, the case is being investigated by a senior officer from army headquarters and a specially selected medical officer. They left for Karachi on the 7th August, with instructions to visit all stations along the line where fatalities occurred, collecting evidence and submitting a full report as soon as possible after their return to Simla about August 28th.'"

"TAXICAB" RIDES WILL COME HIGH

Prisoners Who Ride in Brantford Auto Police Patrol Will Pay More For Privilege

Brantford, Sept. 6.—The handsome new motor patrol which is now practically completed, but will not be put into commission for a few days, has had its trial run, and proved very satisfactory, indeed. The machine, which is adorned with the lettering "Police Department," is equipped with all the latest conveniences, including self starter, electric lights, etc., and is fitted with a powerful engine, which, it was found, would take Terrace Hill with ease.

One of the up-to-date features of the machine is a pair of stretchers, neatly packed in boxes under the seat and as contrivances have been fitted on the inside for the stretchers to be suspended from the roof the new patrol will fill a two fold purpose, that of an ambulance and of a "Black Maria." Chief of Police Slemin, who, during his holidays, took a trip to the coast and visited the police departments at Winnipeg, Regina, Moose Jaw, Edmonton, Vancouver, Victoria, and other places, states that it is one of the most up-to-date patrols he has seen, and it is certainly a credit to the city.

It is rumored that "the usual" $3 will be raised, and those who have seen the new outfit state that it would be worth a little extra to ride in such a handsome outfit. The motor is of the Cadillac type.

Much Booty Taken By The Roumanians

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BUCHAREST, September 6.—Roumanian troops have captured the Transylvanian Town of Sepri Scep Gyorgi, in the Merisor Valley, taking five hundred waggons of foodstuffs and forage, it was officially announced today. In Monday's fighting small encounters occurred all along the Upper Maros Valley in Northwestern Transylvania. The Roumanians took 627 prisoners. Ten German-Bulgarian attacks against the bridgehead of Tutrakan on the Danube were repulsed. (The Germans announced the capture of advanced positions at Tutrakan). After lively fighting the Roumanians occupied the region of Borzecket and the heights to the west, taking 154 prisoners. Fight is going on along the whole Dobroudja frontier. A German-Bulgarian attack was repulsed southwest of Bazordjik. The enemy bombarded Calafat and Islacz.

Bold German Stroke Has been Defeated

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, September 6.—A bold German stroke aimed at the early capture of Bucharest, capital of Roumania, was revealed in despatches from Berlin to-day. The Germans and Bulgarians have concentrated artillery and men against the strongly fortified Roumanian bridgehead at Tutrakan on the Danube, only 40 miles southeast of Bucharest, Tutrakan lies at the end of the railway leading along the river valley directly to Bucharest. The Germans, it is believed here, hope to cross the Danube, strike down this valley and inflict a severe blow on the morale of the Roumanian people by seizing their capital while the main Roumanian army is invading Transylvania. Bucharest despatches, however, assert that the southern frontier is well protected and that Bucharest is in no danger from that direction.

British Airmen Destory a Submarine

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

AMSTERDAM, September 6.—British airmen bombarded and destroyed a German submarine in ZeeBrugge Harbour, returning safely to their base at Dunkirk, according to reports received here to-day.

German Zeppelin Crew Are Burried

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, September 6.—Large crowds gathered near Cuffley to-day for the burial of the German crew of the Zeppelin shot down Sunday morning, the interment having been postponed from Monday because of objection to a military funeral.

Another Zep Raider Badly Damaged

Special Wire to The Examiner:

THE HAGUE, September 6.—A Zeppelin very badly damaged landed near Mons following the raid on London, and was dissembled and its parts chipped to Germany, according to advices received here to-day. Several of the crew are suffering from shrapnel wounds.

LONDON, September 6.—British troops captured the whole of Leuze Wood, a mile northwest of Combles, in heavy fighting last night, General Haig reported this afternoon. Desperate fighting is going on today between Combles and Ginchy.

Gardener Denounces Action of Senate

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, September 6. — Representative Gardener of Massachusetts denounced to-day the action of the Senate in adopting retaliatory legislation against the British black list. In a speech on the House floor he declared retaliatory measures are "a blow in support of Germany's ugly cause."

"You hypocrites," he exclaimed at the Democratic side. "You claim you are devoted to humanity and despise commercialism, then why don't you pass an amendment refusing our harbours to Germany's interned ships until she repudiates the Lusitania crime? Why do you instead pass amendments which even you, yourselves, admit serve no other purpose than the stuffing of sordid pockets with the golden harvest of our fellowmen's misery."

New Road Is Built Around Mysterious Sinking Pond

East Aurora, September 6.—The sinking Pond Bridge problem has at last been solved. The new highway built around it was thrown open yesterday for public travel on orders issued by highway supervisor Harris Hessle.

The new road cost the towns of Elma and Aurora about $1200. The project of building a new road and abandoning the old one, had been under advisement for several years. Supervisor Harris Hessle's plan was at last accepted and acted upon three months ago, with the result that the new road is built and open to the public, after thousands of dollars had been spent by the town in an effort to repair the old bridge across the quicksand ponds which lie to the north of the village.

The new road branches off the present highway one-eighth of a mile east of the junction of the Girdle road and the Marilla turnpike. It extends in a straight line to the north and rejoins the Girdle road at the Eugene Bass farm, directly in front of the new country club property. In the last 40 years 30 bridges have been built over the pond but each one sank into the quicksand. The last structure built was nearly 200 feet long and cost $1400. An effort was made to bolster up the underlying earth and water by dumping brush and gravel into the hole but the more weight put upon it the faster it sank out of sight.

With Buffalo road again open, the Pine street pavement completed and to be put in use early next week, and the sinking bridge done away with, lines into this village are again open for travel after many months of waiting and argument. A public demonstration of thanksgiving is being planned as a celebration.

FINE REMITTED BY DEPARTMENT

Dr. F. L. Robinson Receives Cheque for $100.00 From Ontario Government

Dr. F. L. Robinson, proprietor of the Empire Theatre has received a letter to-day from the Department of the Treasury, Toronto, returning him his cheque for $100, the amount of the fine imposed on him at the local police court in connection with the sale of war tax tickets at the Empire Theatre a short while ago. The letter states that the matter has been gone into by the department with the above decision. It was admitted at the time, that the Empire Theatre had been turning over to the government all the amount required for the sale of tickets, but their mode of turning in the tickets was different from that required by law. No doubt this fact was instrumental in the fine being remitted.

FUNERAL TOOK PLACE YESTERDAY

Victim of Automobile Accident Near Pontypool Was Burried in Yelverton Cemetery Was a Prominent Farmer

The funeral of the late Richard Shaw whose tragic death on Saturday evening, resulting from an automobile accident, near Pontypool, took place yesterday afternoon to Yelverton cemetery under Masonic auspices.

The late Mr. Shaw was in his forty-second year and was a well known resident of the district. He was a member of Port Perry Lodge 428 A. F.&A.M.

The accident occurred a short distance from Pontypool, one of the tires of the car came off, while bowling along the road at not an immoderate rate of speed, throwing the members of the automobile into a deep ditch on the roadside. The car turned completely over, pinning Mr. Shaw under neath the steering wheel. The rest of the party were bruised considerably by the fall, but not seriously injured.

Assistance was procured and the unfortunate man taken from beneath the machine, but his injuries proved to be of so serious a nature that he died in less than two hours afterwards.

It was found on examination by a physician that several of his ribs had been broken, one of which punctured his lung, causing an internal hemmorhage and death. It was a strange coincidence that Mr. Finney, who was with him at the time, happened with an automobile accident about the same place last year. Mr. Shaw was a prosperous farmer.

NEAR DONNYBROOK IN HOGAN'S YARD

Dennis Sullivan, Martin Sullivan and John Heerman, farmers from the townships immediately east of the city, were fined $5.75 each in police court this morning for staging, or preparing to stage, a Donnybrook in Hogan's hotel yard, East City, yesterday afternoon. P. C. Deannard testified that when he arrived at the hotel yard the two Sullivans were apparently lined up against Heffernan. All three were drunk and a considerable crowd had gathered around, among them children, who could not have been edified by the scene.

and to the extent of thousands of dollars. He doubted whether this donation of labour and space was duplicated by any other papers in Ontario.

The suggestion regarding the featuring of sporting items in other papers was not pressed.

Mr. O'Connell remarked the publishers probably had to put the news of sport on the front page for the benefit of men who at least glanced over the outside, and Mr. Soden clinched the discussion with the succinct expression that the difficulty or weakness was with the men rather than the location of the sporting news.

Col. Johnston.

In his remarks Col. Johnston stated that he intended to follow the method of local recruiting depots throughout the territory assigned to the 247th battalion. Preference would be given to local men in the appointment of officers and non-commissioned officers. The field was extensive. In North Hastings there were nineteen townships to draw from in addition to Peterborough county and the township of Cavan, in which the 235th Battalion was also permitted to seek recruits. Col. Johnston said he hoped the Patriotic League would continue its previous work of keeping alive interest and enthusiasm in the advancement of the war. The military would follow this up by the actual personal appeals. He was not certain what form the registration would take, and to what extent the Government would sanction it. Major Campbell had spoken of a card index plan by which the names of those who refused to enlist might be submitted to the Government. However, it is was expected that within a short time there would be exact information of the Government's assistance.

ABOUT THE SCHOOL GIRLS' SCHOOL SHOES

THE School Girl must wear a comfortable and substantial boot---"out in all kinds of weather," plowing through the snows of winter, and exposed to the rains of the chilly fall season, not to mention the scuffling on the play ground, these conditions 'indeed' call for special treatment.

WE have made it our special mission to assemble in school shoes for the school girl, lines that are outstanding for their comfort and service, and yet, not found wanting in style. We claim a great deal for this array of footwear, but we are justified and you will sanction these assertions if you but give them a fair trial.

REGULAR MEETING OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Board of Police Commissioners Will Be Asked to Provide a Truant Officer—Number of Youtes Are Employed in Munition Factories—List of Accounts Passed

Friday the fifteenth the Public school children of the city will be granted a half holiday in order to enable them to attend the Peterborough Industrial Fair. A resolution to this effect was adopted at last night's meeting of the Board of Education. Mr. I. Mowat, Public School Inspector, reported upon the need of a truant officer. At present the work is done by a member of the police department at the instance of Mr. George Cochrane, who for some time past has been incapacitated through illness. The secretary of the Board was instructed to write to the Board of Police Commissioners requesting that suitable provisions be made for this work. It is the duty of the truant officer to visit the homes of the absent scholars and obtain a report of the circumstances. This is submitted to the Inspector of Public schools who determines the merits of each case and deals with them accordingly. A number of youths of school age are at present employed in munition factories. These will not be disturbed unless circumstances warrant.

..... Work Was Well Done. .....

Mr. R. Denne as chairman of the Property committee, received the commendation of the Board for the satisfactory and expeditious manner in which necessary repairs and alterations had been made to the various schools during the time they were closed.

Finance Committee.

The Finance committee recommended payment of the following list of accounts, which was passed by the Board.

Monies Received.

Rent Cedar street house, $6.50; City Trust Municipal grant, $2,800.00, City Treas. Municipal grant, $2,800.00. Total, $5,606.50.

The Board discussed the advisability of disposing of the old school property at the corner of Park and Cedar streets. A small brick house west of the school ground brings in a small revenue in the form of rent. This may also be disposed of. The property might present some advantages as a site for a small industry.

PETER ISACKEN'S $40 SOON SPENT THEMSELVES OVER HOTEL BARS

Two weeks ago Peter Isacken had forty dollars. This morning his last dollar had flown away on wings as willing and as strong as the thirty-nine others, and he faced the prospect of fifteen days in jail with hard labour. It was his fourth or fifth appearance in the police court during the past two weeks. To begin with Isacken evidently needed the money. His clothes left no doubt of that. But the money that should have been spent in a men's furnishing store Isacken rolled over this bar and that, the police court took toll to the extent of ten dollars or thereabouts, and instead of respectable material results this Swede had only the former old suit and its pockets emptied. This is of course prima facia evidence. He may be a millionaire, but this chance is one in a million. When he had money he was charged with being drunk and disorderly. This morning he was a mere vag.

"The next time you come before me," said Magistrate Dumble, "it will be six months at Guelph."

DRUNKEN SWEDE ASSAULTED SOLDIER

This Morning He Paid Five Dollars in Court

Gunner Douglas Bennett, home from Barriefield for a few days, was chatting with a friend in his boarding house last night about eleven o'clock, when Eric Lundgren, a Swede, entered the room befuddled with whiskey, what some would term fighting drunk. He seized the soldier's whip and slashed him with it and then attempted to throw him down stairs, slightly tearing the uniform. Lundgren was fined five dollars in police court this morning. He had no excuse to offer for the assault except that he was drunk, and probably none too sure of what he had done.

"If I do say so myself, I was a right smart speaker when I was a kid!" modestly confessed Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, Ark. "Many's the time at school of a Friday afternoon that I have stepped forth on the rostrum and recited 'The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck,' or 'Woman, Spare that Tree!' and such as that."

"Shucks, Gap!" broke in the storekeeper, who had been listening, "that there word hain't 'woman'; it's 'woodman.'"

"Well, that's devilish funny!" returned Mr. Johnson. "I betcha I've recited that piece fifty times, in round numbers, and this is the first I've ever heard of that. You must be sort of mistaken, hain't you, Gabe?"

Free Distribution Of Seed Grains And of Potatoes

By instructions of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a distribution of superior sorts of grain and potatoes will be made during the coming winter and spring to Canadian farmers. The samples for general distribution will consist of spring wheat (about 5 lbs), white oats (about 4 lbs.), barley (about 5 lbs), and field peas (about 5 lbs.). These will be sent out from Ottawa. A distribution of potatoes in samples of about 3 lbs. will be carried on from several of the experimental farms, the Central Farm at Ottawa supplying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. All samples will be sent free by mail.

Only one sample of grain and one of potatoes can be sent to each farm. As the supply of seed is limited, farmers are advised to apply early. Requests received after the end of December will probably be too late.

ANNUAL HARVEST FESTIVAL OF SALVATION ARMY

The annual Harvest Festival celebration of the Salvation Army in Peterborough will be one of, if not the largest events in the history of the effort in this city. The celebration will last from Sept. 16 to 20 inclusive.

Every member and friend of the Army will no doubt assist in the most worthy effort as the Army and its officers are always willing and anxious to assist in every good work. The local work of the S. A. will benefit considerably by the effort by the kind arrangement of Commissioner Richards, who is in command of Canada east.

The local people with their officers are looking forward with great expectancy to a very successful effort this year. It has been a very prosperous and blessed year for our city in many respects, and all ought to show their gratitude in some way and no better way will be found than helping the work of the local Salvation Army.

WHY SHEEP HAVE WOOL.

Covering Originally Needed to Protect Them Against Cold.

If you want to ask a sheep where he got his wool and why, take a dog into a mountain pasture land, and if the sheep are afraid of the dog they will invariably run up hill rather than down, says the Chicago News. You have your answer. The ancestors of the domestic sheep, like wild sheep of the present day, live among high mountains and needed their woolly covering to protect them against the constant cold of high atmospheres.

They chose the high and inhospitable region to live in because they found the fierce flesh-eating animals of the plains were too strong for them. A proof of these facts is that the wool grows on a sheep the year round.

Live within your income, regardless of others.

It is a pleasure to work in a well-kept home.

Odd bits of toilet soap should be saved and melted into a shampoo mixture.

War's Poison Gas Made From Venezuela Lily

The asphyxiating and tear-producing gases used in the war are made from sabadilla, a product exported only from Venezuela, says an American consular report from that country.

Sabadilla, meaning barley, is the name of a plant of the lily family, botanically called Veratrum Sabadilla Retztus, being found only in Venezuela and Mexico. The highly poisonous seeds have long been used in medicine.

While nothing is known in Venezuela as to the use of the alkaloid produce of the seeds in the making of war gases, it is a fact that sabadilla dust irritates the eyes, the throat and the nose so much that labourers working with it are obliged to wear protecting masks.

The first exportation from Venezuela was made in Hamburg 25 or 30 years ago. The foreign demand has never amounted to more than 5,000 sacks annually.

Sabadilla seeds and all preparations compounded from them have been declared contraband by England.

The substances produced from the seeds are cavadiue, or crystallized veratric, an alkaloid, veratric acid and sabadilline, which is an amorphous, pleasant-smelling alkaloid that accelerates the beating of the heart.

DRIVER DROPS MATCH INTO LOAD OF HAY

Hugh Currie of Glencoe Suddenly Finds He is Sitting on Furnace.

GLENCOE, Sept. 1.—While Hugh Currie was bringing in a load of baled hay for shipment on the railway the hay caught fire from a match he used to light his pipe, and before he noticed it the fire had gained such headway that hay, waggon and rack was consumed. Mr. Currie also had his hand badly burned.

DROWNING ACCIDENT NEAR LINDSAY

Harry Cole Fell Out of a Canoe While on a Duck Hunting Expedition

LINDSAY, Sept. 6.—Labour Day was marred by a distressing drowning accident in the lower Scugog, when Mr. Hary Cole, brother of Mr. W. G. Cole, of the Cole Manufacturing Co., went to his death by falling out of his canoe near No. 10 light house.

Just how the fatality actually occurred is not known. The unfortunate man paddled down the river Monday morning in a canoe on a duck hunting expedition, and was seen by several other canoeists near the lighthouse on the look-out for game. No report of his gun was heard, although a rumour was current that the unfortunate man was seen to stand up in his canoe and discharge his rifle. This could not be verified, however. A splash in the water was what first attracted the attention of other hunters, and when they paddled to the scene, the empty canoe was discovered partly filled with water.

A search was at once instituted for the body and a short time afterwards it was located by means of a fishing line. In bringing the body to the surface, however, the line broke, and it again sank. The search was kept up all day Monday, but without success until yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Wood viewed the remains at Anderson & Nugent's morgue later on and discovered that the deceased had received several grains of shot in the back of his neck. Where they came from may be determined at the inquest.

The shots, while they might not have proven fatal, had the effect of dazing the unfortunate man possibly and causing him to fall out of the boat, and before regaining consciousness he was drowned.

An inquest will be held.

Deceased had been a resident of Lindsay about four months, coming here from Trenton, Ont., and during his residence here had won the esteem of a great many citizens.

57th Band At The Exhibition

The 57th Regimental Band about thirty-five strong, will travel to Toronto to-mororw morning on the 5:56 a.m. train, C.P.R., to play two programmes at the Canadian National Exhibition. The final rehearsal was held in the recreation room at the Armouries last night.

SEEK MISSING EXPLORERS.

Russians Who Went to Arctic in 1912 May be Living.

Apparently hope has not been abandoned entirely of rescuing the members, or some of them, of the Russian polar expeditions which sailed in 1912 in the steam schooner Saint Anna, under command of Lieut. Brusiloff, of the Russian navy, and the motor vessel Hercules, which was in charge of the zoologist, M. Bonsanoff, says the London Globe. Traces may be discovered in the Northern Arctic, in the vicinity of Greenland, and of the North American archipelago.

Through the Consul-General for Russian appeals are made to all commercial enterprises, navigators, and scientific expeditions cruising in the polar seas and engaged in research work in these regions, and also to the inhabitant along the coastline to devote effort to the discovery of traces of the missing explorers.

Characteristics Of The Turk

(From the Manchester Guardian).

The students of race characteristics would have difficulty in finding a knottier problem than the Turk. Our War Office has just commented on his chivalrous and humane treatment of the garrison at Kut. All through the Mesopotamia campaign he has behaved with exemplary courtesy. The notes that Nur-ed-Din-Pacha had occasion from time to time to address to Gen. Aylmer would not have disgraced Saladin in his passages with Coeur de Lion. Turkish officers have taken advantage of a truce now and then to apologise for the scandalous irregularities committed by their Arab allies: they have shown a quite remarkable consideration in such matters as the return of lost kits; they have given to our wounded in their hands every comfort available, and to our officer prisoners every honour to which their rank entitles them.

Gen. Townsend's arrival in Constantinople seems to have been something of a triumph; and, if reports are true, he is now lodged, with two aides-de-camp and a retinue, on a very pleasant island in the Sea of Marmora in conditions that must soften even the bitterness of the loss of Kut. Men returned from Gallipoli tell the same tale. They will remember the Turk as an enemy who would not fire on the Red Cross and who showed a regard for the decencies of war from which his allies in Europe might well learn.

Yet this people, that has so well preserved the tradition of knightly fighting, is responsible for the most dreadful massacres that modern times have known. The troops who would scorn to purloin a wounded British soldier's kit will apparently drown a shipload of Armenian women and children without a qualm. The Turk, it seems is a Jekyll to his equals and a Hyde to those he considers his inferiors. The Christian, perhaps, has not much to boast about at this time; but, that, at least, is a point of view from which his religion saves him even in time of war.

CRY FOR MORE WOMEN IS HEARD IN ENGLAND

There are 11,000 women clerks and stenographers now employed in the British government offices in Whitehall, a fact which gives some idea of the way the women have filled the gaps left by the men who have joined the army. And still the cry is heard for more women which leads to the belief that the demand has outstripped the supply.

Even the government departments are finding difficulty in securing the clerical assistance they require. At one time Whitehall officials could pick and choose their clerks and the majority of those engaged were of an adaptable age—from 20 to 30—but an intelligent girl of 17 without experience can now find a place and middle aged need no longer feel that they are not wanted.

To meet extensions of the activities of such busy places as the war office and the ministry of munitions, it is estimated that some 200 clerks can be absorbed every week into the official machinery.

The pay is not high though it is more than what was regarded as satisfactory starting salary for young girls before the war. It is of course far below the salary paid for similar work in the United States.

For ordinary routine work or typewriting the pay is one pound ($5) a week, with six pence (12 cents) an hour for over time. For ordinary clerical work the pay is 25 shillings (6.25) a week, with an over time rate of seven pence. Competent stenographers start at 26 shillings a week, which may be raised to 30 after a period of satisfactory services, and the over time rate is nine pence an hour. The normal hours of work vary from 42 to 48 a week in different departments.

The civil service commissioners are chiefly engaged in the task of supplying the staffs required for temporary employment in public departments. The ministry of munitions, and the post office departments have to a great extent made their own appointments but in the last six months the commissioners have found nearly 6,000 women for other government departments.

Historic Castle Becomes Hospital

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Mrs. Sandford Fleming has been able to get clear of quarantine. She has been enabled to transfer her hospital from Selling, near Canterbury, to Lympne Castle, Hythe. The castle is an historic place, thoroughly modernized as regards interior comfort, and is being loaned to Mrs. Fleming by the Tennant family, who are connected with Premier Asquith by marriage. It will be the most picturesque and palatial of all the Canadian convalescent hospitals in England.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

Increase of 24 Millions In Receipts

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 6.—An increase of twenty-four millions in total receipts and a decrease of five and a half millions in expenditure, apart from the war, is the Dominion's record for five months ending August 31st, as compared with the same period in 1915. Sir Thomas White says this exceeds the budget expectations of the last session. The Minister of Finance anticipates if the revenue continues on this satisfactory basis, the Government will have a surplus of forty or fifty millions to apply against principal of war cost. The balance of the war expenditure for the year must of course be met by borrowing.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—United States steel common sold at par shortly after the opening of the stock exchange to-day.

Steel sold at 101⅛ shortly after two o'clock, the new record price being 2⅛ above yesterday's closing figure. There was only a slight slackening in the activity of the market this afternoon. To-day brokers were clustered around many posts, the industrial group in general claiming constant attention. Outside on the curb market Midvale jumped to 64, and other steel and munition stocks joined in the boom.

Sales had reached a million shares early this afternoon. More than 180,000 shares of steel changed hands. At 10 o'clock common was quoted at 100 5-8. Mexican petroleum, which had jumped four points to 114, while the war brides were performing, had dropped back to 112 1-8.

Monaghan Seems Resigned Now

The prospect of the sewage disposal plant approaching materialization leaves North Monaghan Township undetermined as to whether they will further oppose the project or not. It is stated that some of the ratepayers refuse to submit to the Provincial Board of Health's decision, but it seems to be generally held that there is no redress or alternative. It is claimed that the option the city holds is decidedly flimsy and there is a probability that the city may yet be put to more expense than it now anticipates. It is also believed that the city is not fully decided upon this location that it may yet reconsider the location and suggest another situation.

Engineer Is Killed

Examiner Special:

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 6.—Engineer Charles Moore, of Transcona, was killed beneath the wreckage of his engine and two other railwaymen were injured when a Grand Trunk eastbound passenger train was wrecked near Redditt, a hundred miles east of here, last night. All the passengers escaped. Rains undermined the track.

JURY FAIL TO AGREE IN WINNIPEG TRIAL

Contractor's Appeal Pending, and He May Escape Prison.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 6. — The State trial of six weeks' duration concluded late yesterday afternoon in a disagreement. The jury stood nine to three, but it was not officially announced whether the majority favoured conviction or acquittal, and the Crown last night claimed the majority, while the defence says a poll unofficially shows that nine jurors stood for not guilty.

The city is buzzing with excitement over the climax of the grim affair. The court dismissed the jury and the ex-Ministers walked out of court without being held in new bonds for their appearance.

In reply to a motion of the Crown suggesting bonds to hold the accused to the next assizes, the court said he would take that under consideration for later action.

Premier Norris, in the absence of Attorney-General Hudson, remarked that he could not say whether another trial would be insisted upon or not. R. A. Bonnar, chief counsel for the Crown, was equally non-committal.

The jury received the case at midnight and took an informal ballot before retiring. It is said the division remained from the first to the last ballot three to nine. Court had been adjourned to eleven o'clock, and a that hour sent in word that they were not ready to report and court adjourned until 3.

All available space was occupied when the jury fyled into the seats in the afternoon.

Effect on Accused.

Sir Rodmond, Geo. Caldwell and James Howden, the three ex-Ministers, to whom the verdict meant so much, occupied the seats they have held during the six weeks; one on each side of the dock, and the other in front, close to their counsel. There was a low buz of excitement, but the three accused seemed unconcerned. Many old friends gathered sympathetically in the front benches. When the foreman said "We cannot agree," James Howden smiled, but Sir Rodmond frowned, as if disappointed and Geo. Coldwell's face did not change. He glanced down at a writing pad and made several notes. The foreman added, in reply to the court, that he thought they were hopelessly divided, "about four to eight," he observed, but did not indicate how the division stood.

The court ordered them to return to their rooms for one hour for further discussion, and their disappearance was followed by a buzz of excitement. An hour later they reported no change and were promptly discharged. As the three ex-Ministers passed from the room they were warmly congratulated by many and their hands were repeatedly shaken.

In the meantime Kelly has escaped sentence for the present. The Crown moved that he be brought into court for sentence to-day, but Mr. Justice Prendergast said he would postpone that phase for the present. Kelly's new appeal is still pending, and his friends warmly assert that yesterday's events remove the contractor from the shadow of the penitentiary. The personal bitterness and partizan rancor of the great case surpasses anything of the kind in the history of Canadian politics.

Vernon Castle's Death Not Known Officially

ALIEN ENEMY FROM KITCHENER TRIES TO FLEE FROM CANADA

Employee of Fire Department Who Has Been "Reporting" Caught at Border.

KITCHENER, Ont., Sept. 6.—Fred Busch, who has been employed in the local fire department for the past couple of years, took "French leave" last Tuesday and the first word received of him was when the chief of police got word from the authorities at Niagara that he was trying to leave the country.

As he was one of the many alien enemies reporting monthly to the police and attempted to leave without first having an exeat he will be interned.

HUNGARY RESTLESS, SCHOOLS CLOSE UP

LONDON, Sept. 6.—The sitting of the Hungarian House of Magnates (Upper House) at Budapest on Saturday when Premier Tisza explained the necessity of depleting Transylvania of troops in order to bring the Russian offensive to a stand still, telegraphs the Reuter correspondent at Berne, Switzerland, was marked by the utmost depression.

All the members were attired in deep mourning the scarlet or purple birettas of the ecclesiastical dignitaries being the only touch of color relieving the sombre appearance of the House. Owing to the difficulties of the internal situation, the correspondent adds, the Hungarian Minister of Education has ordered all schools in Hungary closed until November 1st.

BODY COLD IN DEATH LEANING AGAINST WAGON

JOHN BISSETT, OF EAST WILLIAMS, DIES SUDDENLY—BURIED AT NAIRN.

NAIRN, Sept 6.—John Bissett, who lived alone was found dead on Friday by a party of people who were passing his place on their way to attend an institute meeting. The party comprised Mr. and Mrs. Geo. McKenzie and Miss Mary Fraser. They observed Mr. Bissett leaning in a strange manner against a democrat waggon. They stopped and upon going to the spot found him quite dead.

Mr. Bissett was a cripple. He lived in the house formerly occupied by his mother and sister, and later by his brother, Ewen, all of whom predeceased him. He had intended going to London and was no doubt making preparations to drive to the city when death overtook him. He was about 65 years of age and is survived by two brothers, Jim and Dan, in the west.

He was born and grew to manhood on the old homestead near the site of the McPherson Church.

The funeral was held to Nairn cemetery and was largely attended.

DISCARDED UNIFORM THAT OF 149TH MAN?

WYOMING, Sept. 6.—What looks like a case of desertion has come to light. The village constable, on looking over a small empty house at the south end of the village, recently vacated by Indians, who had lived in it during the time the flax-pulling, discovered a soldier's uniform complete, with the exception of shoes.

It was noted that two or three of the flax-pullers had worn the King's uniform and belonged to the Lambton 149th battalion, but had been let off on furlough to help the farmers. It is presumed that it was one of these who left the uniform and his battalion.

PLAN TO RELEASE INTERNED ALIENS

Teuton Authorities Said to be Willing to Consider the Proposal.

BERLIN, Sept. 5.—The thousands of civilians interned in Germany and England may be released and the difficult problem of concentration camps solved altogether if a plan now under consideration is adopted. The idea is to exchange all civilians on parole not to serve during the war.

For some time the German and British authorities, through the intermediation of the United States Ambassador at Berlin, James W. Gerard, have been working on a proposal to exchange all interned civilians above the military age, forty-five. It was recognized that this was only a half-way measure, which would leave unsolved the larger problem of the thousands of civilians below that age whom neither Government wishes to retain and support at great expense, although neither is willing to release them as possible recruits for the other's army. While negotiations in regard to exchange of the older men were hanging fire and new difficulties and delays were arising constantly it was suddenly discovered the German authorities were willing to take into consideration a proposal for a general exchange under parole.

There still remains a long and difficult road to be travelled and Great Britain's attitude thus far has not been made known, but it is felt here that the simplicity and completeness of the solution may appeal to the British as it has to the Germans.

The Kingston Whig Says:

The advance party of seventy-five men and five officers from the Depot Artillery Brigade left at 10.45 a.m. Monday, for Petawawa to prepare the camp for the arrival of the Depot Brigade. Lieut. A. H. Miller was in charge of the party and the other officers were Lieut. Macpherson 72nd; Lieut. Thompson, 74th, Lieut. McLean, 75th and Lieut. Hanlon Ammunition Column.

The party in full marching order and with cheers from their comrades left the camp grounds shortly after 9 a.m., for the city. The party entrained in the city at 10.45. Two meals were carried in the haversack for each man.

The brigade advance party was entrained in a splendid way and the conduct of the men was of the high order expected from artillerymen of this brigade. The event marks the passing away of another body of men from Barriefield. On Friday the remainder will be going.

Considering their splendid athletic qualities and the many other things that have made Barriefield proud of its artillerymen, there will be regret when Lieut.-Col. Arnoldi takes his brigade to the northern camp this week.

French Have Reached Chaulnes in the Western Drive

The Enemy Lines of Communication Are Threatened With Early Capture

Greece Has Decided To Join The British Allies

Date Has Not Been Settled When King Constantine's Forces Will Enter the War—Several Classes of Reservists Called to the Colours—Committee of National Defence Will Establish Necessary Military Services.

GREEKS MAKE A DEMONSTRATION

ATHENS, September 7.—Greece has finally decided to join the British Allies. Date not settled when she will enter the war.

ATHENS, September 7.—It is reported that five classes of reservists have been quietly called to the colours.

The French and British representatives have reached an agreement with the Greek government which has relieved the tension consequent upon the arrest of Prussian agents by the French and British secret police. Under this arrangement the Greek authorities will complete the arrests of persons who are to be deported, without further activity on the part of the foreign police.

The Committee of National Defence, which took over the administration of the portions of Northern Greece in which the revolutionists gained control, has issued a proclamation in which it declares it does not desire to alter the constitution, but merely to cause the nation to rise against the Bulgarians who have invaded Greek Macedonia. The committee also announces its intention of establishing a sanitary service, a press bureau and courts martial.

Veritable street battles, in which thus far three persons have been wounded, are accompanying the arrest by AngloFrench secret police of alleged Prussian agents in Greece. The secret police are operating on their own account, not waiting for action by the Greek government to carry out the terms of the Anglo-French demands, which included the expulsion of Baron von Schenk and sixty co-workers in behalf of the Central Powers. The Premier, Mr. Zaimis, made a vigorous protest this morning to the Anglo-French Ministers to Greece regarding the occurrences.

Five hundred discharged Greek reservists, all of them having places of residence in the United States, were not permitted to embark for New York, owing to the possibility of their being called out in the new mobilization of the Greek army. The men made a demonstration in front of the offices of the Prime Minister and were dispersed by the police without any untoward incident. Steamships scheduled to leave Greek ports for New York have postponed their leaving.

KING CONSTANTINE'S HEALTH A PROBLEM.

LONDON, September 7.—Reuter's Athens correspondent says that, according to an official bulletin, King Constantine has completely recovered his health, but that the Premier, in informing a Venizelist deputation that the King was still unable to see them, gave as the reason the state of the ruler's health.

CATTLE MARKET.

Receipts at the Toronto Union Stock Yardds yesterday were 56 cars, with 994 cattle, 251 calves, 2,373 hogs, and 1,452 sheep.

There was a fair demand for fat cattle at the Union Stock Yards today, and the market held steady with prices firm, but little changed. Common cattle was poor in quality, and sold mostly around the lower quotations.

Lambs were stronger, selling well around Tuesday's top quotation of 10 1-2c with the average of better quality and up about half a cent.

Calves were steady.

Hogs were firm and edged up about ten cents above the quotations of last week.

Stockers and feeders were slow, and the general market slow and draggy, though the moderate run was disposed of fairly early.

ALLIES ADVANCE ON THE WESTERN FRONT DESPITE STRONG RESISTANCE

Two Main Supports of the Present German Lines on the Somme Are Threatened With Early Capture by the Steady Advance of the Allies—Another Sharp Drive Forward Will Cut the German Line of Communication Entirely—British Troops Capture Important Position in Less Than Thirty Minutes of Fighting.

THE TWO MAIN OBJECTIVES

PARIS, September 7.—Combles and Chaulnes, the two main supports of the present German lines on the Somme, are being pocketed and threatened with early capture by the steady advance of the Allies. The thrust that carried the French lines through the greater part of the Village of Berny-en-Santerre and into the outskirts of Chaulnes yesterday afternoon, was made in the face of most desperate German resistance. The Germans defended their positions with great stubbornness, and time and again counter attacked. The French advance brought General Foch's line still closer to the Chaulnes-Peronne railway. Another sharp drive forward will cut this German line of communication entirely. The British push that resulted in the capture of Leuze Wood, a mile from Combles, was a surprise attack made while the Germans were heavily engaged with the French in the outskirts of Combles. The wood was first attacked from the south. When the main body of German soldiers had been drawn to that line the British suddenly broke into the wood from the west, cutting off a body of Germans and driving straight across the German positions in less than thirty minutes of fighting.

A VERITABLE FORTRESS.

PARIS, September 7. — The fighting now going on for the town of Thiepval, in the Somme region, well deserves to be called a "great battle," says the French authorized correspondent at the front. It has been in progress over a front of twenty-four miles, extending from Barleux to the extreme left of the British forces resting on the Ancre.

The scene of the attack, continues the correspondent, may be divided into two parts, one running from Thiepval to Cleiy, half of which is held by the British and half by the French, the point of junction being Falfemont Farm.

The object of these forces, says the correspondent, is Combles, which is the key to the approach to Bapaume, now a veritable fortress, held by the Prussians.

Two days ago the British were 1,800 yards from Combles. After the advance to the village of Le Forest they are now only four hundred yards from the town.

The other part of the front is south of the Somme, with Peronne for its objective, and for an attack on which artillery preparation now is in progress.

Between Vermandovillers and Maricourt, the French carried the whole of the first German positions along a front of more than two and one-half miles, the successive line of trenches falling into the hands of the French.

At Barleux, one of the strongest positions on this front, repeated direct attacks were unsuccessful and the French finally resorted to a turning movement, attacking to the southwest.

RUNNING NOSE COLDS CURED SNEEZING STOPPED INSTANTLY

The worst of a cold is how suddenly it comes. No time to hurry to the drug store, croup develops, the lungs are affected with pneumonia or tuberculosis and it's too late. Keep Catarrhozone on hand — it kills colds instantly. Something magical about the way it cures catarrh and bronchitis. Catarrhozone is the best remedy because it cures in nature's way; it heals, soothes and restores permanently. Carry a Catarrhozone inhaler in your pocket, use it occasionally and you'll never catch cold—that's worth remembering.

Beware of dangerous substitutes, meant to deceive you for genuine Catarrhozone, which is sold everywhere, large size containing two months' treatment costs $1.00; small size, 50c.; sample size, 25c.

Crops Damaged By Bad Weather

Prairie Provinces Suffered From Rain and Frost, Reducing Yield

SECTIONS OF ALBERTA AND SASKATCHEWAN HAVE GRAIN FROZEN.

Ottawa, Sept. 6.—A special press bulletin issued by the census and statistics office reports on the conditions of field crops in Canada at the end of August as summarized from telegrams received from the Dominion Experimental Farms and stations in accordance with arrangements made between the departments of trade and commerce and agriculture:

Prairie Provinces:

Manitoba: From Manitoba it is reported that the Manitoba wheat crop is about half the normal yield and practically all low grades; oats and barley are an average crop. Cutting is practically completed and threshing has begun.

Saskatchewan: The weather during August has been unfavorable for grain and damage to wheat by rust is reported from Indian Head, Maple Creek, Gull Lake, Eston, Prelate, Osthern and Scott, reducing the yield and the grade. Frost is reported from points in the Moose Jaw, Saskatoon and Battleford districts. Threshing is beginning in the first week in September. At Scott, in the Battleford district, the harvest was delayed by the cool weather and the cutting has only just commenced. Hailstorms did much injury early in the month. Late crops of wheat in low lands were badly frozen on the 11th. Yields of wheat that have escaped frost and rust will be satisfactory.

Alberta. — Munson. Cutting not general until the first week in September. Some of the wheat crops show effects of frost on August 10.

Lethbridge: Harvest over a week later than last year. Cutting general. No damage to wheat from frost; no appreciable damage from rust.

Lacombe: Three degrees of frost on Aug. 10 damaged much grain over an area of 150 square miles. Certain localities immune. Harvesting of barley is general and wheat cutting has begun. A further ten days of good weather is required to render safe crops that are so far uninjured.

New Home Treatment For Banishing Hairs

(Beauty Topics)

With the aid of a delatone paste, it is an easy matter for any woman to remove every trace of hair or fuzz from face, neck and arms. Enough of the powdered delatone and water is mixed into a thick paste and spread on the hairy surface for about 2 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. This completely removes the hair, but to avoid disappointment, get the delatone in an original package.

BRITISH SHELLS ARE THE BEST

"Prematures" and "Blinds" Are Now a Negligible Quantity.

Mr. Lloyd George told the British House of Commons recently that at the battle of Loos, owing to the large number of "premature" shells the firing with high explosives had to be given up. Since then there had been an enormous improvement.

Now "prematures" were a negligible quantity, "blind" shells were getting fewer and fewer, and in a very short time the ammunition fired from the British guns would be the best in the whole area of the war. Mr. Lloyd George was able to show that the steel helmets supplied to our men had been the means of saving thousands of lives. He expressed a hope that a further protection would be forthcoming in the shape of body shields.

PAYING ONE MILLION DOLLARS A DAY

What British Government Is Allowing for Dependents of Soldiers.

One million dollars a day. That is what the British Government is now paying out to the wives and other dependents of soldiers serving in the army.

One million dollars a day, or $365,000,000 a year, paid out exclusively to the families at home of soldiers fighting at the front. And this amount is entirely independent of the regular pay allotted to the soldier himself, the cost of his equipment and all the other expenses incidental to his support.

Enormous as it is, this amount represents merely a fraction of what the British Government is actually doing for those who have joined the colours.

The Call To Breakfast

Has a new appeal for those who awake to a breakfast of

New Post Toasties

These new corn flakes have a unique deliciousness because of their self-developed flavour and improved form. The flavour is the true essence of choice, ripe Indian corn. Unlike ordinary "corn flakes," the New Toasties do not depend upon cream and sugar for their palatability.

Try some dry—they're good that way and the test will demonstrate their flavour. Then try some with cream or good milk. Note that New Post Toasties are not "chaffy" in the package; and that they don't mush down when cream is added.

New Post Toasties are known by the tiny "bubbles" on each flake, produced by the quick, intense heat of the new process of making. They come in a wax-sealed package that preserves their oven crispness and delightful flavour—the most perfect corn flakes ever produced.

All "Native Wines" Must Be Genuine

OBJECT IN VIEW IS TO ENCOURAGE USE OF HOME-GROWN GRAPES.

Before licenses are granted to manufacturers of native wines in the province a member of the Ontario License Board will visit every place of manufacture. The Board has received a considerable number of applications and while most of them are from companies known to be actually manufacturing wine from home-grown grapes, there are others from applicants not so well known.

The Board takes the stand that the provision made in the Ontario Temperance Act extending special privileges to the makers of native wines from Ontario grown grapes was put there to assist the grape-growing industry and that the manufacturer of native wines who sells a product that is not entirely made of home-grown grapes is not complying with the spirit of the law.

"We propose to see that native wines sold in the province are manufactured from Ontario grapes and Ontario grapes only," said Chairman Flavelle. "I have been told that there are some so-called makers who bring in cheap wine in bulk from outside the province and by mixing in a small proportion of Ontario grapes hope to come within the law. Firms of that type will not receive licenses from this board."

By requiring reports from the companies as to the amount of grapes purchased, the output of wine, etc., the board expects to be able to enforce its dictum. It is likely that about twenty licenses will be issued

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS OVERCOME BY SAFE METHOD

Worry, overwork, overstudy and indigestion cause insomnia.
First, the blood circulation must be improved.
Irritation in the brain must be relieved.
For building blood and nerve, for instilling force and life into overworked organs, for establishing strength and vitality, where can you find anything so efficient as Ferrozone?
Remember, sleep is just as important as food.
You must sleep, or break down, but if you'll use Ferrozone and thereby remove the conditions which now keep you from sleep, you'll get well quickly.
Ferrozone is not a narcotic, not a dope; it is a health-giving tonic that any child or delicate woman can use. Absolutely safe in Ferrozone.
Take it for a month, take it for a year — no harm, but immeasurable good will result.
To sleep well, look well, feel well, to be free from depression, nervousness or blues—use Ferrozone. It's a food tonic, a healer to the weak and wretched, a boon to the sleepless — sold in 50c. boxes, six for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

How I Saved My Brother

A Story of Two Confederates

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

Jim and I were twins. The only physical difference between us was that I was born with a deformed big toe on my right foot. When we were boys mother bought two circular pieces of silver about the size of a dollar and hung one around the neck of each of us. On Jim's were engraved the words: "This is James Arthur Chittenden, one of twin boys. He may very easily be distinguished from Frederick Booth Chittenden, his twin brother, by having a perfect great toe on both feet, while his brother has a deformed great toe on his right foot." The disk she hung around my neck stated that I was the brother with the deformed toe. She entered a copy of these inscriptions on our record at the church when we were baptized.

Our home was in the Shenandoah valley, Virginia. When the war between the states opened Jim and I were nineteen years old. We didn't have to go far to see fighting, for there was plenty of it right where we were. General Stonewall Jackson was cavorting up and down the valley, striking one Federal force on one side of the Shenandoah river, then crossing, burning the bridge behind him and cutting up another force on the opposite side.

The general stopped at our house one day and asked Jim to bring him a glass of water. Jim went for it, and, mother calling to him, he asked me to carry the water. I did so, and the general made a remark to me in connection with something he had said to Jim. I explained that it was not I he had asked for the water. He was very much surprised. Presently Jim came out, and the general looked from one to the other of us, evidently much interested in our similarity of appearance.

"Are you young men thinking of fighting for the south?" he asked.

We replied that in deference to our mother's wishes we had not yet done so, but expected to enlist very soon.

General Jackson was very ingenious in his methods of getting information of the enemy. He told Jim and me that if we would enter his secret service force he thought he could use us to better advantage than if we fought in the ranks. We asked him to explain, but he did not do so. However, we concluded to join him and went with him to his headquarters.

The first thing the general did was to order us before a surgeon for physical examination. We were told to strip, which we did, and it was not long before the surgeon noticed my deformed toe. He at once told us to put on our clothes, the examination being ended. Then we were ordered to report to the general. He told us that he wished to send one of us into the Union lines for information, but that the Federals were on the lookout for spies, and capture was almost certain. Of course capture meant death. Jim and I both offered to go, so the general suggested that we draw lots for the privilege. We did so, and Jim won.

As soon as Jim had gone the general told me to get into woman's dress. I did so, and, having no beard, but a pair of red cheeks, I made a first rate girl. The general told me to follow Jim and bring back any information he had to send, for he wished Jim to accomplish all he could.

I fixed up a basket of butter and eggs and went north, selling my produce to the Federal soldiers, keeping my eyes and ears open all the while. Jim had been told to leave any message for me with a certain woman who lived within the Federal lines. I went to her and made myself known, only to learn that Jim had been caught redhanded in her house with a lot of incriminating documents on him.

Now, the general had suggested that in this event I might be able to save Jim by a ruse, and this is why he had us examined to find a physical difference. I went in among the Federal troops and learned that Jim had been tried by a drumhead courtmartial and was to be hanged the next morning. I went at once to the general commanding, told him that I was Jim's sister and begged permission to bid him goodby before he was swung off. The general gave me an order to that effect, and I hurried away. The Federals were encamped on the edge of a town where there was a jail, and Jim was imprisoned there. This favored a plan I had in view. I was taken to his cell, and after much pleading with the jailer he consented to lock me in with Jim for half an hour; then he went away and left us.

As soon as he had gone I told Jim to change clothes with me and go out in my stead. He saw no reason why I would not be hanged if he did, but I convinced him that I could prove that I was a different person. When time was up Jim walked out as a girl, I remained. After waiting long enough for him to get away I sent a message to the general stating that I could prove that I was not the man who was to be hanged. The provost marshal came to me, and I showed him the inscription on the silver disk on my neck, my deformed toe and told him that he could get proof of all I said at a church within the Confederate lines. My story was investigated, and the Federals, becoming convinced of its truth, released me, for it would have been a crime for them to hang me for an act I had not committed.

Jim and I did a heap of such work for the general after that, but neither of us was ever caught again.

PRESENTATION TO MR. AND MRS. ATKINSON

Former Residents of Keene Have Removed to Peterboro Visitors to Keene

HASTINGS, Sept. 6.—The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church was held on Thursday last at the home of Mrs. A. Smith with a good attendance. After the business of the month had been discussed and disposed of the following presentation and address was made to Mrs. Wm. Atkinson, on the occasion of her intended removal to Peterborough.

Dear Mrs. Atkinson,—Sentiments of regret and pleasure are mingled to-day, when we realize that you are so soon to leave us. Regret, because of the thought of our varied activities and phases of church work. We shall miss your familiar form, and pleasure because this opportunity has been afforded us of expressing to you our appreciation of your services in the various departments of church work, when your time has been so cheerfully given; but it is particularly as members of the Ladies Aid that we wish to recognize your faithful efforts, when and wherever your services were most required.

We feel that we cannot allow you to leave, without a tangible expression of our appreciation, we therefore ask you to accept this gift, as a slight token of our esteem.

We pray that in your new sphere of labour, you may be abundant in usefulness, and while you form new acquaintances and make new friends, may we request a passing thought for the many friends you have left behind in Hastings.

Signed on behalf of the Ladies Aid of the Methodist church.

6 Months Old Baby CURED OF DIARRHOEA

During the hot weather young children are very much subject to diarrhoea, in fact, more so than adults, on account of the more delicate construction of their constitution. It behoves every mother to look after her children on the first sign of any looseness of the bowels, for if they do not some serious bowel trouble such as diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera infantum, cholera morbus, Summer complaint, etc., is liable to follow, and they will, perhaps, loose their little one by not taking the precaution to check this looseness of the bowels by using Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Mrs. Chas. Monck, Maribank, Ont., writes: "When my little girl was about six months old she took a severe attack of diarrhoea. I tried castor oil, daudanum and other treatments, but they were of no use. A neighbour told me about Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I tried it, and after giving my baby two doses I could see a great change for the better. I have always proised "Dr. Fowler's" since then."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is the original. See you get it when you ask for it.

Two Youths Accused Of Daring Hold-Up

THAMESVILLE BROKER SAYS THEY HELD A REVOLVER TO HIS HEAD.

CHATHAM, Sept. 6.—The details of a daring crime, alleged to have been committed by Orville Ellis and John Smith, the two youths now awaiting trial in the county jail on several charges of burglary, has been supplied the police by James Clark, a 72-year-old Thamesville broker.

Clark claims that the bandits entered his home and stole a gold watch and a revolver. Not satisfied with these articles they compelled Clark to open a small safe in his home. The broker at first demurred and the two bandits then placed a revolver at his head and commanded him to open the door. There was no money in the safe, a deposit having been made in the bank a few hours before. Before departing the robbers, who were both masked, told Clark that unless he left $50 at a designated spot before Thursday night last he would be shot. Ellis and Smith were arrested on Wednesday. The stolen articles have been recovered. The youths will be given a hearing Thursday.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S HOUSE DRESS

By Anabel Worthington

Little changes here and there in a design give something new, say the style creators. To show that they are just as active in the direction of the plain, practical dress as in that of a more favored garment we are offered No. 7,870.

The making of this dress is certainly not a problem of skill nor of cost. It is in one piece from the shoulder to the lower edge. The style feature is, of course, the pocket stitched to each front below a belt, which is tacked over fine pleats to confine the fulness at the waist. The use of contrasting goods adds smartness to the model, contributing the Puritan style collar, shaped cuffs on short sleeves, the "piece belt" and pockets. The closing is with buttons from neck to lower edge.

Striped lawn, linen, percale, chambray, galatea and fabrics of similar weave, combined with plain material or light and dark goods in plain ground, are best suited to developing this model.

The pattern, No. 7,870, is cut in sizes 36 to 44 bust measure. To make in size 36 will require 5⅛ yards of 36 inch material, with three-quarters yard contrasting goods in the same width.

You may obtain the pattern by sending 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Address—The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

THE RUSSIANS ARE BOMBARDING HALITZ

SUCCESSFUL FRENCH COUNTER-ATTACK AT VERDUN

HALITZ IN FLAMES FROM THE FIRE OF RUSSIAN GUNS

Keystone of Austro-German Defences of Lemberg is Being Shelled by Czar's Troops Who Are Closing in Upon the City From North and South--Germans Try in Vain to Drive British From Their Newly-Won Positions in Leuze Woods.

FRENCH CAPTURE 1500 YARDS AT VERDUN

PETROGRAD, September 7.—Russian artillery is bombarding the Galician City of Halitz, sixty miles southeast of Lemberg, and the keystone of Austro-German defenses of the Galician capital from the south. An official statement from the War Office to-day announced that Halitz is in flames. Russian armies are closing in upon the formidable fortifications of the city from both north and south of the Dniester River. In the past few days the Austro-German centre fighting desperately has been pushed back on Halitz, north of the Dniester, the Russians taking large numbers of prisoners. To-day's official statement, however, revealed for the first time that the Czar's troops were within gun range of Halitz.

Roumanian troops have evacuated the Town of Tutraken on the Danube, thirty-three miles southeast of Bucharest, under pressure by superior forces of Germans and Bulgarians. The Roumanians withdrew to the north bank of the Danube after beating back heavy German-Bulgarian attacks in a three-days' battle. German artillery battered in the advanced positions of the Tutraken bridgehead.

British Beat Back German Attacks

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, September 7.—In savage hand-to-hand fighting last night the Germans forces that attacked Leuze Wood near Combles under cover of darkness were driven back leaving prisoners in the hands of the British, General Haig reported this afternoon. Fighting continues in the outskirts of Ginchy.

Big Gain For French at Verdun

Special to The Examiner.

PARIS (French Official Communique), September 7. — In one of their most successful counter attacks since the German drive on Verdun began, the French last night captured the entire 1,500 yards of German first line positions extending from Vaux Chapitre to Chenois Wood, northeast of Verdun. The War Office announced that 250 men and ten machine guns were captured in this operation.

Mail Contracts May Be Withdrawn

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, September 7. — Little official interest is evinced here in a series of "retaliatory" measures which have been tacked on to United States revenue bills by the Senate during the past week, the general impression being that they are designed purely for election purposes. The rumour has been circulated however, to the effect that as a consequence of the amendment proposed by Senator Phelan, of California, action will be taken by the British authorities to withdraw certain mail contracts from the United States and transfer them to Canadian lines.

Allies Discussing Drastic Peace Terms

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, September 7.—The Allies are discussing among themselves more drastic peace terms than ever before hinted. Here are some of the demands likely to be made on Germany. The ceding to Britain of Heligoland. The neutralization of the Kiel Canal. The demolition of some of the strongest fortifications on the German borders. This list of demands was obtained to-day from an official in close touch with Allied sentiment both in this country and abroad.

PARIS, September 7.—Newspaper humanite advises against pressing demands for the death of the Kaiser as one of the conditions of peace.

British Steamer Torridge Sunk

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, September 7.—The British steamer Torridge has been sunk. Nineteen of her crew were saved. The Torridge displaced 5,036 tons, and was 392 feet long. She was registered at Cardiff.

6000 Prisoners Are Taken By Russians

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, September 7.—The Russian statement to-day announces that nearly six thousand men and many guns were captured by the Russians the last few days near Halitz. These include three thousand German troops and some Turks. Halitz is now on fire. The Roumanian statements this afternoon characterize the German estimates of men captured near Tutraken Bridgehead as grossly exaggerated.

Here Is A Good Story From Berlin

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, September 7.—Twenty thousand Roumanian soldiers were trapped on the south bank of the Danube and captured by the German-Bulgarian armies in the capturing of the fortified bridgehead of Tutraken, it was officially announced this afternoon. The Roumanians also lost 100 guns and suffered sanguinary losses.

GALWAY MAN IS SERIOUSLY HURT IN A SHOOTING AFFRAY

Neighbour's Wife Discharges Shot Gun into His Knee Inflicting Such Serious Injuries That Leg Is Amputated

WOMAN UNDER ARREST

As the result of a shooting affray near Kinmount last night, a man named Spencely, living in Galway, had to have his leg amputated in Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, this morning, while Mrs. George Davis, the wife of a neighbour of the injured man, is in the hands of the Lindsay police, charged with attempted murder. From the meagre particulars received it is learned that Spencely and Davis were both employed at Austin's saw mills, and yesterday, for some reason or other Mrs. Davis sent a note to Spencely at the mill warning him to keep away from the Davis house. Spencely went to the home of Mrs. Davis last night after work to demand an explanation, it is said, and a wordy battle ensued it is alleged, which was culminated according to the Examiner's information, by Mrs. Davis seizing a shot gun and firing at Spencely, the charge entering his knee and tearing it so badly that it was necessary to amputate the leg this morning. Mrs. Davis was arrested and brought to Lindsay by Constable Wilson. This morning she was remanded until Sept. 14th.

Royal Order Of Turkeys Are At Rice Lake

The Rochester Times says: The Royal Order of Turkeys will hold its national convention at Harwood, Canada, next week, the opening session being scheduled for Tuesday, when a business meeting will be held in Convention Hall. Mayor John Gilman will turn over the "key" to the delegates. There will be various delegates present from the roosts all over the country.

New York City and Buffalo will probably have the largest representation, although Victor, the home of Roost No. 1, and the pioneer roost, promises to have some of the first members of the order present. Roost No. 4, located in Rochester, and the home of many of the presiding officers, has signified its intention of sending 75 members.

Among the notables to go from this city on the Ontario II, on Labour Day morning will be Supreme Gobbler George M. Wegman, Financial Secretary Mort Breman, Recording Secretary Joseph Messmer, Guard Frank Kerz and National Organisers Martin Kotseperie, Joseph Heberger and Arthur Scheible.

A parade of all the uniformed delegates will take place on Wednesday evening. On Thureday night there will be a display of fireworks, while on Friday the closing session will be held, and will be followed by an excursion on Rice Lake and a fish dinner at Hatterick's Point.

Retake Warsaw Before The End of The Year

LONDON, September 6.—Writing from a "town in Southern Russia," George H. Mowes says in a despatch to the Daily Mirror:—

"In company with Stanley Washburn I recently motored to the headquarters of General Brussiloff, who received us. He talked to us for nearly an hour.

"The fighting at Verdun, he said, filled him with admiration for the soldiers of Franch. For his recent successes he gave all the credit to the Russian soldier. Washburn asked the General if Warsaw would be retaken this year. He replied:—

"'Yes, why not?'

"Brussiloff has implicit faith in the Russian soldier. Last year he retreated owing to the lack of munitions. He is as confident of the ultimate result as he is now of Warsaw being retaken this year."

SUGGEST THAT 93rd BAND SHOULD BE BROUGHT BACK HERE

Local People Believe Organization Would Be of Great Assistance in Recruiting New Battalion---Lieut. Frank Bradburn is Able to Return to Duty---New Artillery Units May Be Organized in This District---To-day's General Military News.

The suggestion has been made and it is expected that a movement will be inaugurated, to have the band of the 93rd Battalion return from England, if possible, to assist in the recruiting for the 247th Battalion. The proposal is made on the supposition that the 93rd Battalion wil not go to the front as a unit, and that therefore the splendid band of the battalion will be left in England, as have many bands before it, playing at hospitals, playing drafts away from camp and other duties of that kind. Many local people believe that Bandmaster Hughes' organization would be of far greater service here in assisting in the recruiting for the new battalion. The suggestion is a novel one, and so far the military authorities have not been sounded on the question.

Word has been received that Flight Lieut. Les Stevens of the Royal Naval Air Service is returning to Peterborough on sick furlough, as a result of the accident he sustained some time ago, the details of which were published in the Examiner a few days ago.

Where the troops will winter is becoming an urgent question in view of the lateness of the camping season, says the Kingston Whig. Brig.-Gen. Hemming is not afraid to remain at the camp as long as any of his men can, but with arrangements to be made the coming winter's accommodation is occupying attention to those in authority.

There is good reason to believe that the coming winter will find about the same plan carried out as in the winter past. The troops will be stationed in the districts where they are enlisted and it might be said that hope for hundreds of recruits more has not been given up.

The little places like Harrowsmith, Verona, Napanee, Sharbot Lake and other centres, where at least thirty can be secured and brought together, will again be brought into use. In the spring the men will be brought together but in the winter the headquarters will be in some of the largest places of the community.

The county company is as yet only "on paper" but there is good reason to believe that this first plan advanced by headquarters is to go into effect. It is the idea of the recruiting officers, but every effort is being made to lend them all possible assistance, and their experiment will likely be tried. The county companies will be located one to the county, but if more men enlist they will be drafted into a second or third company. The commands in this case, while important, will not be subject to such political endeavour, and it is supposed that this will eliminate a great amount of patronage that has been prevalent.

There are now five battalions recruiting in this military district. Others, such as the Irish Rangers, have authority but there are now five actual Military District No. 3.

Kingston, Sept. 6. — There is a bright prospect for four batteries to be authorized for this military district immediately, in view of the fact that those of the Depot Brigade will go directly from Petawawa to England.

The new batteries will have the same establishment as those now at Barriefield, and will be stationed in the city. The most vigorous recruiting plans will be made and the officers of the batteries, working in conjunction with those of the recruiting staff, will be expected to secure enough recruits to bring the units up to strength.

A rumour that seems to be well based is to the effect that a new divisional ammunition column will replace the brigade column now being used, and that the next column for Canada will be commanded by Lieut.-Col. Arnoldi, so well known in Kingston military circles. The three sections would be divided up at least one coming to Kingston.

The reason for the change from brigade to divisional columns is given as the inability of a brigade column to handle enough ammunition for a brigade with the present offensive now being waged. At the front the divisional columns are doing all the work, and Canada will likely follow suit with the elimination of brigade columns in favour of the larger units.

The Kingston Whig says:

In regard to national registration the preliminary work has been commenced. The plan is to index every man of military age living in this military district. His reasons for not enlisting are to be secured and if none exist the recruiting officers will be informed that he is legitimate prey.

One of the best instances of the way that registration can be carried out was given last year by the 139th Battalion, Lieut.-Col. W. H. Floyd, stationed in Durham and Northumberland countries.

The municipal councils were approached and with other bodies interested the name of every eligible man in that district was put on file. A recruiting officer was then detailed to round up those in a certain section. The method followed was that of constant dogging of the men until they either enlisted or showed a good reason for not doing so. Many of the residents received calls once or twice a day all winter.

That scheme is to be carried on this winter although it is doubtful if such a repelling method will be employed. Every man however will be given a chance and at least once will have to hear a recruiting officer's story.

In regard to recruiting, it is understood that the recruiting authorities are considering the advisability of putting returned soldiers into the game. They will be given certain districts and told to tell their story. The plan will be if this is carried out, more of an educational one, and would result in many seeing their duty.

Barriefield, Sept. 6.—The artillery is being sent to Petawawa as a result of the conclusion of Ottawa to send the batteries overseas in the near future, and in order that they may have the benefit of plenty of shooting on the big artillery range of the north. There are guns in plenty at Petawawa awaiting the brigade, and as all the horses of the 12th brigade have been left behind, riding and shooting can be indulged in by those men who have up to the pre-

Many Features For Peterboro' Industrial

Directors Have Closed With Professor Hardy, King of the High Wire, Who Will Perform at Big Exhibition Next Week.

CORP. HERBERT R. MOORE
A Peterborough boy who went overseas with the 39th Battalion and who has been in hospital as the result of illness, since July 14th, becoming sick in the trenches. His condition now is, his friends will be glad to hear, improving.

OTHER ATTRACTIONS

The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition closed with another big attraction yesterday, the biggest ever shown here, in the signing of Professor Hardy, the famous high wire artist whose astonishing feats at Hanlan's Point, Toronto, and other amusement centres have caused a sensation. Prof Hardy is the acknowledged king of the high wire, and his act here will be alone worth the price of admission

Never has the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, which opens to the public a week from to-morrow, offered such an array of interesting features as has been arranged for this year In addition to Prof. Hardy, there is a big programme of acrobatic performances, etc., in front of the grand stand. The visit of a picked squad of twenty-five men from Queen's Field Ambulance, Barriefield Camp, will be an event full of interest, They will give an exhibition of stretcher drill first aid work, etc. Fifteen well known Peterborough boys will be with this unit during its visit to the Exhibition. A string of prize winning high jumping horses from Cobourg, owned by Mrs. Livingstone and another well known owner, will compete in high jumping for a suitable purse. There will be an attractive card of horse races with the added feature of Charlie Fife's race against time. The 57th Band will provide music, and in the evening of Friday there will be a great programme of fireworks.

The exhibit of a Whitehead torpedoe loaned by the Admiralty, and in charge of a petty officer of the navy, is another war-time feature.

MISS MARY MORTON OF NORTH MONAGHAN WINS GOLD WATCH

A LARGE ATTENDANCE

Miss Mary Morton, daughter of Mr. James Morton, 603 Chamberlen street, Brownton, was presented with the gold watch donated by Capt. J. H. Burnham, M.P., to the pupil in each township who obtained the highest marks at the recent Entrance Examinations. She attended May's School, of which Miss Wilma Fair has been principal since last Easter, succeeding Miss Flossie Fife, who was later married. Last night was North Monaghan's turn to celebrate the Burnham presentation, and the largest room in May's school was crowded even beyond the doors.

Reeve McIntosh called the meeting to order, and Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M. P. P., was appointed chairman. Mr. Robert Ruddy acted as deputy for Captain Burnham. The presentation was made by Reeve McIntosh and in accepting the gold watch, Miss Morton made a capital little speech, expressing her appreciation of the gift, and her pleasure in having won it.

Addresses by Mr. Gillespie, Mr. McIntosh, Mr. Ruddy, Mr. E. A. Peck, Mr. Ed. M. Elliott, Reeve Walsh of Douro, and Trustees Harry G. Webber, Ernie Saunders and John Williams dealt with the importance of education and of other phases of this question, at the same time recognizing the incentive to more studious efforts which the Burnham watches have provided.

The children of May's School rendered several patriotic choruses and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

WORK AMONG SHANTYMEN

Rev. Thos. Joplin, Field Secretary of the Shantymen's Christian Association, has arrived in the city on his annual visit. Mr. Joplin informed the Examiner that the field of the Association has been enlarged and now extends from coast to coast. The Association, in addition to its work in the several camps, has commenced a Settlers' Department. Special men are visiting the settlers of the North, among the fire sufferers. Special work is being carried on. Those who have not helped the sufferers can do so. The Association takes no collection in camps and on account of work among the soldiers and settlers, they are badly in need of funds. Mr. Joplin will be in the city for a few days and will speak in some of the churches. Those who would like to assist can reach him at the following address Rev. Thos Joplin, Y. M. C. A., Peterborough.

STRIKE BREAKER TO HANDLE THE N. Y. STRIKE

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—James T. Waddell who holds distinction of being the boss strike breaker of the world is due to arrive in New York sometime this afternoon to take charge of the big strike on the elevated and subway lines there. He left here shortly after midnight, a lone passenger on a special train on the New York Central, costing $8,000. Waddell said he had 5,000 strike breakers already in New York.

WILL MODIFY TASTE OF BARRIEFIELD WATER

KINGSTON, Sept. 7.—Lieut.-Col. McCammon, camp sanitary officer, is arranging for the installation of a new system of injecting chlorine into the water at Barriefield Camp. At times the chlorine has become so harsh that the water is almost unfit to drink, but experiments have improved matters. The latest, and what promises to be the best innovation, is the use of chlorine gas instead of the solid. A specialist from New York is here for the work and new apparatus will be installed, which promises to completely take the taste of chlorine out of the camp drink.

SALONICA.

Through the mist of distant centuries and out of the hurly-burly heroic history Salonica, washed by dull yellow seas, again takes the centre of the stage. We meet the name in the war news despatches and we shall use it in conversation and a good many of us will mispronounce it. It matters little what the fighting soldiers call it—their work is to justify its selection as the base of a new allied offensive that is destined to have a mighty, if not dividing, influence upon the war. These soldiers will fight as bravely, though they put the accent on the second syllable—instead of, as they should do, on the third—pronounce it—Salon-ee-ca. Tommy Atkins at Ypres insisted, in place of orthoepically imitating the first peep of chicken-hood on calling it "Wipers", but though the pronunciation floored him, he fought to win and won. The correct pronunciation of Salonica may be a small matter, but it shows good manners—or morals, too—deference to old age. Salonica is an old city. It was a flourishing city when London was a swamp and Boadicea's soldiers stained their skins with woad. Thessalonica, the original of the name, was given it in honour of the sister of Alexander the Great, the name it bore when the Apostle Paul, and Silas and Timothy tramped into it, and planted the Gospel of Christianity, in the second place in Europe to receive it; a far cry from the days when from the site of Salonica, and sixty miles distant, across the gulf, the native of that time, could see the peaks of Olympus, where dwelt the gods he worshipped, and, where as he believed, spring eternal reigned and the meads of asphodel always bloomed.

Salonica's hoary historical interest fades and becomes the history-making interest of the present. Here at the gates of this city of mixed races—Greek and Jew, Turk and Italian a mighty army blended of six great powers is camped, on the edge of a battle ground, on which 1874 years ago the future of the world was decided—when the republican Brutus and Cassius went down to defeat, at the hands of Octavius and Mark Antony. To-day the bugles are sounding for a battle in which a greater thing is at stake than the sovereignty of imperial Rome; when the stake is the civilization of the matured Christianity that the tentmaker Paul, planted in the soil of Europe, twenty centuries ago—at Thessalonica.

Though the combined forces of the allies at Salonica, are slow at moving for reasons they, on the spot, best know—perhaps the definite choice and action of Greece—there is no doubt that from this centre, will be launched the thrust, that, following upon the crushing hammer-strokes on east and west, will finish the downfall of the Teuton allies. From now onward we shall see much by keeping our eyes on Salonica.

BRITAIN AND PEACE TERMS.

The London (Eng.) Nation has, in view of the initiative in the war having passed from Germany and its allies, and of events moving to their complete defeat, opened its columns to a discussion of peace terms. Such a discussion, considering the work yet to be done, may be purely academical, for, between now and the ripened time for negotiations, or imposition of peace terms, many changes in conditions may come. We may, however, safely trust the nations that will win the victory to arrange the terms of peace; they will have richly earned the right. In Great Britain, where advanced civilization and deference to the will of the people are the ruling elements, it is well that peace conditions should be talked over, so that the authorities shall know what public opinion is. There is, in some quarters, a fear that the proverbial British magnanimity to the conquered will give the conquered less than their just due, and that the author and authors of this war of destruction and decimation of the population of Europe will get something short of their full of punishment. For instance, the burying of the Zeppelin murderers with military honours goes against the grain of many British people, who regard it as maudlin magnanimity, or at least, a recognition of the murder of women and children as legitimate warfare. This leads many to fear that when it comes to the point Brisin will be too merciful, too considerate of a ruler and a nation and a system that have forfeited all claim to recognition of the right to which decent civilized criminals might plead a claim. They feel like applying to Great Britain the words of Lady Macbeth to her weak-kneed lord—"I do fear thy nature; It is too full of the milk of human kindness." The "pound-of-flesh" people can't stand the idea of weakly yielding to sentiments of mercy or even moderation. An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth—the head of the Kaiser for the life of the murdered Captain Fryatt or Nurse Cavell—is the demand. But no doubt Britain will do the just and dignified thing. While she will exact adequate compensation, she will not likely yield to measures of retribution unworthy of her standing in the civilized world; unworthy of her past. She has resisted the urging to retaliation in the matter of bombing defenceless enemy cities, and she will, in making peace, still aim at nobility of demeanour and just moderation of demand. She will not likely stain the victory she is helping win by counsels or exactions of frightfulness. Britain is fighting for right, not for revenge, excepting in so far as avenging punishment is incidental to the achievement of victory. It would be a sorry falling off if the spirit that impels to the war for humanity and human right, should, in the hour of triumph, become the spirit that is now, and has been, behind all the bestral outrage of this war.

The following words of Premier Asquith, as showing the grim determination of Britain, should be sufficiently assuring to all reasonable demands for just terms of peace:

We shall never sheathe the sword until Belgium recovers in full measure all, and more than all, that she has sacrificed, until France is adequately secured against the menace of aggression, until the rights of the smaller nationalities of Europe are placed upon an unassailable foundation, and until the military domination of Prussia is wholly and finally destroyed.

TWO VIEWS POSSIBLE.

When we read in the despatches of the crew of the Zeppelin raider, L21—more fittingly spelled thus, 'ell 21—being laid at rest on the beautiful, peaceful soil of the country they sought to stain with the blood of women and children, being laid at rest with military, with the seemly and solemn burial service of the Church of England—when we read of these things, our natural sense of decency revolts, the old Adam stirs rebellously within us. But is there not a redeeming aspect? It is true that such nobility of revenge is beyond the conception of the Huns and cannot be expected to appeal to anything generous in them; yet does it not show that the British people are a great people, a high people, above taking a petty revenge upon the senseless clay of brave, if misled men, who simply did their duty as they were bidden, and died like brave men who had put their lives at stake, equally forfeit if they had refused, as they were in the perils of aerial fighting? Do magnanimity and high action lose any of their essential merit, even bestowed upon the agents of an unworthy cause?

NEW DRIVE FOR CONSTANTINOPLE.

The most striking development resulting from Rumania's entrance into the war will be a new drive for Constantinople. This is the opinion expressed by Professor Louis G. Michael, an American, who has been in the employ of the Russian Government for the past six years as agricultural expert. His view is that the Russians will advance along the Black Sea Coast from Odessa and Kishinev down through Rumania and Bulgaria, and so into Constantinople by the back door.

The plan is quite feasible. Russia has a remarkable network of doubled track strategic railways converging on Reni—a network that would enable a great army to move swiftly through Rumania on Varna, the principal Bulgarian seaport. Simultaneous action by the Russian Black Sea fleet would doubtless soon open up the way for a drive along the coast to Constantinople, only 150 miles away. It is said that immense stores of munitions have already been assembled in Bessarabia for this drive. But it is contingent, of course, on the ability of the Rumanians to hold the Austrians in check before Kronstadt.

So far they appear to be able to do this. Once it is assured that the Rumanians can protect the flank of the Russian army from the Austrians, we may see the Russian hosts pouring down through Reni upon Bulgaria. The latter would have no coure but to capitulate before the Russian onslaught, and in a very short time the Russians should be hammering at the defences of Constantinople. In view of the possibilities, the main interest in the war is likely to be concentrated on the Balkans for some time to come.—Montreal Herald.

MAYOR DROPS DEAD ADDRESSING AUDIENCE.

Thos. Doherty of Sarnia was Extensive Manufacturer of Stoves.

SARNIA, Sept. 6.—Mayor Thomas Doherty of this city, a resident here for a quarter of a century, dropped dead to-night while addressing an audience at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, where a corner-stone was being laid. He came here from Watford, and engaged in stove manufacturing, owning a big plant in this city. He is survived by his wife, three sons, William and John of Sarnia, and James of Chicago, and five daughters: Mrs. Chester Belton, Mrs. (Dr.) Logie, Mrs. Wm. Watson and Mrs. Harry Turnbull of Sarnia, and Mrs. Gordon Rutherford of Hutchison, Kan.

SCAVENGING RULES

1. NO owner or occupant shall allow, permit or maintain upon premises owned or occupied by him within this Municipality any earth privies or earth closets or vaults below the surface of the ground except where the exigencies of the situation demand it, in which case such may be allowed by permission of the Local Board of Health or Medical Officer of Health, but such permission must be evidenced in writing, and such earth privies or earth closets and vaults when so allowed shall be constructed in a manner satisfactory to the Medical Health Officer or the Sanitary Inspector.

2. IN the construction of privies above ground or box closets which are hereinafter described as box closets there shall be in each of such privies or box closets a box made of one and a half inch matched lumber, three feet six inches in length, twelve inches in height and fourteen inches wide inside measurements, and these boxes shall be set up not less than four inches above the surface of the ground on the outside, and those box closets or privies which open at the rear thereof shall have an opening with a hinged lid; the opening shall be large enough to allow the box to be easily drawn out for the removal of the contents, but for those box closets which open at the end or side the box shall have a handle at the end nearest the opening so that it may be readily withdrawn.

3. WHEREVER such earth or box closets are by permission or compulsion established, sufficient dry earth, wood ashes or coal ashes must be thrown upon the contents to absorb the liquid part of the deposit, and all closets which are not constructed in accordance with this By-law shall be cleaned out, filled in and closed, in accordance with the provisions of this By-law, immediately after the last time being cleaned previous to, and in any event not later than September 15th, 1916, and no garbage, tins or other refuse shall be put in such privies or closets at any time.

4. THE charge for the removal of the contents of box closets or privies shall be forty cents (40) per month, and cess pools or vaults the cost of removal of the contents of the same shall be the sum of Two dollars and fifty cents ($2.50), where the quantity to be removed is less than one cubic yard, and Two dollars and fifty cents ($2.50) per cubic yard or fraction thereof, where the quantity to be removed is more than one cubic yard.

5. ALL box closets, cess polls and vaults must be cleaned at least once a month.

17. ANY person found guilty of a violation of this By-law shall on conviction thereof be liable to a fine not exceeding TWENTY DOLLARS and costs, and in default of payment thereof the said fine and costs may be levied by distress and sale of the goods of the offender, and in case of there being no distress or no sufficient distress out of which the same can be levied, the said offender may be committed to the common gaol of the County of Peterborough for any period not exceeding six months unless the fine inflicted and costs (if any), including the costs of the distress and of the committal and conveyance of the offender to the said Gaol are sooner paid. 8d-56

EOY WHO DISOBEYED FOUND DEAD IN BARN

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—A tragic end to a small act of disobedience yesterday overtook Russell Sherwood, aged twelve, who lived with his parents at No. 490 River street, Paterson.

His mother refused him permission to play in the barn, not wishing him to soil his Sunday clothes. He went nevertheless. Three hours later his father found him hanging by the neck, dead, in a harness. The indications were he had been caught in falling from a wagon seat.

EARNING AND SAVING

It is useless to earn unless you save. Wise parents advised their young sons to buy lots from me a few years ago. By doing so they imposed a must upon themselves to save what would certainly have been spent. RESULT: Clear deeds of valuable business corner and 2 inside lots worth at least $1,400, and still growing in value. Lots and men can be seen any day. I have a few lots still, which I want to sell. Also 1 small and 2 large houses with stables, poultry houses and large gardens. Every man who would like to own a home near all south end factories and May's school, or young men who would like to do as above, should see me without delay. Any sober, industrious man can buy from me and own his own home. Send your wife for particulars if you cannot call.

WHAT ADVERTISING DID FOR THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT

Raised a Mighty Army—Billboard and Newspaper Ads Brought $500,000,000 to Nation's Coffers From Working Classes.

London—When the British Government at the beginning of the war covered the billboards of the country with the now famous appeal for recruits, "Your King and Country Need You," it embarked on an advertising campaign of such a nature and extent as has never before been undertaken by any nation.

The first advertisement has grown into scores, dealing with a wide field of subjects, from pleas for army volunteers and loans of money to condemnation of extravagance in the purchase of too many boots and stockings by my lady. It is said there is scarcely a home in the British Isles that has not been reached by some of the display advertisements which have been kept running in 1500 newspapers and spread on myriads of billboards. After nearly two years of experiment officials emphatically declare that it pays for a government to advertise. It is estimated by some that billions of dollars have been raised in loans in this way and that nearly 5,000,000 recruits have been drawn to the colors by the printed appeals.

To one man is said to belong the credit of originating and carrying out this novel and elaborate campaign. He is Sir Hedley Le Bas, the head of a large publishing house in London, who received his title recently as a mark of honor for the services which he had rendered his country. During an interview with the press, Sir Hedley was asked how large a staff was required to conduct such a great business for the government. He smiled and replied:

HIS STAFF A BUSY YOUNG MAN.

"In getting subject matter for the advertisements I have called on various journalists and others for assistance. As to my regular staff, he is in the next room, and I assure you that he is a very busy young man."

It was Sir Hedley's way of confirming what had already been said by others—that the bulk of the work had fallen on his own shoulders. His personal business has to a large extent been turned over to other hands, and he has been devoting almost his whole time to putting before the public the telling advertisements which his training as a publisher has enabled him to produce.

It was some two years before the war began that Sir Hedley conceived the idea of advertising extensively for recruits. During a conversation with Colonel (now General) Seely, who was then secretary of State for War, the Colonel asked Sir Hedley, as a former soldier and business man, how he would go about to raise 35,000 recruits needed for the army. Sir Hedely instantly replied that he would advertise. The proposition was novel, but it interested the Colonel, and ultimately the recruits were advertised for with amazingly good results. The War Office was so pleased with the campaign that when the war broke out it was decided to advertise again and Sir Hedley was called upon to engineer the work.

At first the advertisements were very conservative in tone, and before Sir Hedley was able to broaden the scope of his work, and get his new business on a "paying" basis he encountered much opposition from many sources, not excluding Members of Parliament.

"It was hard to get the conservative British mind to accept such a radical departure," said Sir Hedley in discussing this point. "Many declared that it was undignified for a government to advertise, and others who were willing to see some advertising done held that the displays should be couched in the most dignified and stereotyped form. The idea of a government telling a woman that she was buying too many hats and expensive clothes—something which we have been doing recently—shocked them, but gradually more leeway was given to us, and the results have justified the course followed. My idea is to put out advertisements that have in them what you Americans call the 'punch.' Successful business men conduct their concerns that way. Why shouldn't a government do the same

"Another ground of opposition was that the expense of the work was too great. This claim was made by those who did not know the circumstances. As a matter of fact the cost has been comparatively small. Many of the newspaper proprietors have contributed the space in their papers, and the owners of billboards have given us the use of them. The printing of the bills is done by the government printers and the cost is the minimum."

ADVERTISING FOR RECRUITS

The advertising campaign for recruits for the army was the first undertaken. "Your King and Country Needs You" met with instant success, and gradually there followed a long line of more elaborate advertisements. Lists of questions were propounded to men who had not enlisted, such as:

What will you say in years to come, when people ask you, "Where did you serve in the great war." What will your answer be when your children grow up and say: "Father, why were you not a soldier, too?"

A unique advertisement was displayed in Manchester. A map showing comparative distances from London to Ostend, Belgium, and some English towns was printed, and accompanying the map was the following:

If the German army were in Manchester every fit man in the country would enlist without a moment's delay. Do you realize that the German army is now at Ostend, only 125 miles away, or forty miles nearer to London than is Manchester? How much nearer must the Germans come before you do something to stop them? The German army must be beaten in Belgium and the time to do it is now. Will you help? Yes? Then enlist to-day. God Save the King.

Still another advertisement contained the following appeal to those who employed male servants:

Have you a butler, groom, chauffeur, gardener, or gamekeeper, serving you who at this moment should be serving the King and country? Have you a man serving your table who should be serving a gun?? Have you a man digging your garden who should be digging trenches? Have you a man driving your car, who should be driving a transport wagon? Have you a man preserving your game who should be helping to preserve your country? A great responsibility rests upon you. Will you sacrifice your personal convenience for your country's need? Ask your man to enlist to-day.

What is considered by many as one of the best recruiting advertisements was addressed to the young women of Ireland, where Sir Hedley spent some time during the campaign. It follows:

Is your "Best Boy" wearing khaki? If not, don't you think he should be? If he does not think that you and your country are worth fighting for, do you think he is worthy of you? Dont' pity the girl who is alone—her young man probably is a soldier, and fighting for her and her country—and for you. If your young man neglects his duty to Ireland, the time may come when he will neglect you. Think it over, then ask your young man to join an Irish regiment to-day. Ireland will appreciate your help.

"This appeal met with great success," said Sir Hedley. "The young women flaunted these advertisements at the young men on the streets until in self defence a stream of volunteers began to pour into the recruiting offices. It was a plea which by its very simplicity and truth reached home."

WAR LOAN APPEALS.

From the campaign for raising recruits Sir Hedley turned to Treasury advertising for the war loans. He submitted to Mr. McKenna, Chancellor of the Exchequer, a plan for a campaign. It was a radical venture for the conservative Treasury Department, but Mr. McKenna believed it would pay and had the courage to approve Sir Hedley's scheme. Vast sums have been needed and the advertisements have been made strong to meet the occasion. Business men have been appealed to with such crisp hits as "Use your money to save the lives of the men who are fighting your battles," and "Turn your sovereigns into soldiers." Even the women who "have nobly helped the war in a thousand ways" have been asked to aid further by lending their money. One advertisement which has attracted great attention is in the form of the following imaginary conversation between a civilian and a soldier, under the heading, "What is the Price of one of your Arms?"

Civilian—How did you lose your arm, my lad?

Soldier—Fighting for you, sir!

Civilian—I'm grateful to you, my lad.

Soldier—How much are you grateful, sir?

Civilian—What do you mean?

Soldier—How much money have you lent your country?

Civilian—What has that to do with it?

Civilian—I'd pay anything srather than lose an arm.

Soldier—Very well. Put the price of your arm, or as much as you can afford, into exchequer bonds or war saving certificates and lend your money to your country.

The recently inaugurated plan, whereby small savings may be turned into war loans at 5 per cent. compound interest, 15 shillings 6 pence returning 20 shillings at the end of 5 years, has been advertised in many ways, the most striking displays being those pointing out that 124 cartridges can be bought for 15 shillings and 6 pence, and that six hand grenades cost only 15 shillings.

The advertising that has brought about the greatest criticism from the more conservative people is that condemning extravagance, it being maintained that it is beneath the dignity of the government to deal with such matters in this way. Many business men also are said to have attacked this campaign, for it was striking hard at their business. It was a delicate matter to handle but Sir Hedley kept putting out his advertisements, with the result, he declares, that there has been a decided turn in favour of economy throughout the country.

"To dress extravagantly in war time is worse than bad form—it is unpatriotic," is one of the sharp exhortations which have been hurled at the British public. Another poster reads: "New clothes should only be bought when absolutely necessary, and these should be durable and suitable for all occasions. Luxurious forms, for example, of hats, boots, shoes, stockings, gloves and veils should be avoided." Many other advertisements have been put out along this line, but the gist of them is given in the following:

You are helping the Germans when you use a motor car for pleasure, when you employ more servants than you need, when you waste coal, electric light or gas, when you eat and drink more than is necessary to your health and efficiency. Set the right example, free labor for more useful purposes, save money and lend it to the nation and so help your country.

Sir Hedley said that the working classes have turned over to the government use nearly £100,000,000 since the war began from their savings. Part of this has been put into the war loans directly and part has been deposited in the postal savings bank. Sir Hedley believes that the advertisements have been responsible for the deposit of a large proportion of this amount.

WHY WOMAN WAS EXECUTED

Frenhc Authorities Say Felice Pfaat Admitted Being Teuton Spy.

Paris, Sept. 7.—In view of German comment on the execution at Marseilles as a spy of Felice Pfaat, details of the case were made known authoritatively here to-day. The statement that she was a German is denied, and it was said that comparison of her case with that of Edith Cavell, the British nurse, who was put to death by the Germans at Brussels, were unwarranted.

According to this information, Felice Pfaat was a Frenchwoman, born in 1890. She went to Metz in 1914, and received permission to visit her mother in Belgium. While there it is said, a German official proposed that she gather military information in Paris. She spent three weeks in Paris and then reported the results to Germans who, she admitted, paid her 5,000 francs to undertake another mission.

Returning to Paris from Lausanne in July of last year, she was expelled by the Perfect of Police. She went to Marseilles, where she boarded at a house frequented by army officers. She was caught spying and admitted she had been commissioned to gather miliary information. On July 10 she was unanimously condemned to death by a court martial.

A Spanish adventurer, returning from highly lucrative wanderings in the early day Americas, is said to have given away $000,000 in alms on the occasion of his marriage at Barcelona. Another stood in a Madrid window and threw handfuls of silver coins into the crowd until he had emptied two barrels.

WHERE RUSSIANS AND FRENCH LIE SIDE BY SIDE — Picturesque corner of a military graveyard in Northern France, where Russians and French who have fallen on the western front, are buried. The marks on all the graves are crosses—the Russians being distinguished from the French by crosses with a double bar—the Greek Church Cross. These "monuments" are made of the pretty French birch trees.

New Legions of Britain Showing They Can Fight

By John Buchan, England's Foremost Military Critic.

In the reports of the great battle of Picardy being circulated in neutral countries to-day, the commonest misstatement is that the new British armies don't know how to fight.

It is admitted that the old expeditionary force was a fine material, but the new armies raised in the last two years are described as undisciplined and feeble in attack and irresolute in defence; formidable only because of their numbers, which are vanishing under German fire.

No item of the statement is true. The casualties have not been out of proportion to the ground gained. In the attack of July 14th which carried a large part of the German second line the British losses were extraordinarily small. The individual fighting value of the British troops has been equal to any in the campaign. For example, a wood was taken by the Germans with nine battalions; it was recaptured by the British with two. The British new army, which showed its merit at Loos last September has won great glory in every phase of a Picardy battle.

The whole British force in one sense is new. The famous old regiments of the line have been renewed completely since Mons, and their drafts are drawn from the same source as the men of the new battalions. The 9th and the 15th divisions (wholly new) brought from Loos a reputation second to none in the army.

DIDN'E EAT HIS HAT.

Take the great fight of July 14th, when from Posieres to Delville Wood, the German second line was carried, and the third line pierced. A distinguished French soldier doubted the possibility of success. An English general offered to eat his hat if it did not come off. When the French general heard of the result he said: — "C'est bien. Le General X——— ne mange pas son chapeau." Roughly translated: "You win; don't eat your hat."

In that attack a certain historic division advanced on the line between Bazentin-le-Grand and Longueval. In each of its three brigades there were two battalions of the new army and two of the old. The attack was made by two brigades and the general commanding put the four new battalions in the first line.

The experiment proved the worth of the new army. To begin with they managed to cross the intervening ground and to get up within 200 yards of the enemy's wire practically without casualties—a remarkable proof of discipline. When the intense British bombardment ceased just at dawn they attacked with superb vigor and devotion. In one place the German wire had been imperfectly cut and they had to make their way through it under a deadly fire. But by a little after midday the work was done. The German second position was in their hands, as well as 682 unwounded men, 36 officers including a battalion commander, four howitzers, four field guns, and fourteen machine guns. Such was the achievement of four battalions of the new army which had never before been in action.

The Germans were not weak in that section. The misty weather had enabled them to mass guns whose positions could not be detected. They had brought up some of their most famous troops. The truth is that it is idle to talk of old and new armies. The British army, old army, new army and territorials; home divisions and colonial divisions have proved themselves adequate for the task of war.

To-day on the plateau between the Ancre and the Somme it is no patchwork force that is engaged, but the flower of the manhood of the British Empire.

Too Handy With Gun Gets 6 Months' Term

Shot Bullets Through Neighbour's House and Nearly Shot Passer-by.

BARRIE, Sept. 6.—Six months in the Central was the light imprisonment meted out to Joseph Clayton, in the Police Court here yesterday morning for using a rifle with intent to do grievous bodily harm. Clayton and his wife were driving home on August 26th, when they found the road near Ivy blocked by a pile of fence rails. This made Clayton, who is said to have been drunk, very wrathy, and he attempted to enter Mr. Reed's house to telephone the police. The entrance was refused. Then he proceeded home to get his rifle, breathing vengeance. Returning he sent two bullets through a window in Reed's house and another whipped past Harold Arnold's head as he drove by. Clayton was arrested on Thursday at Camp Borden. A year ago he was in a somewhat similar scrape at Anten Mills, when he wounded Thos. Binnie with his shot gun on Hallowe'en. For this offence he spent a short term in jail.

TELLS OF WILD REVELS IN CHICAGO LOOP

"BOUGHT WINE LIKE RUSSIAN GRAND DUKE." AGED WEALTHY MAN'S ENTERTAINMENT PURVEYOR TESTIFIES.

Chicago.—John Sommers, self accused wine buyer and entertainment furnisher of Edward W. Morrison, told in the receivership proceedings against Mr. Morrison, before Judge Landis, that he has spent nearer to $3,00,000 than $200,000 of the wealthy man's money in wild night revels through the loop saloons and resorts in the last 20 years.

"Every saloon and resort keeper in the loop knew him," said Mr. Sommers. "He would walk into a saloon with the air of a Russian grand duke and order baskets of wine, refusing to accept any change for his bills."

Before the hearing began Mr Morrison denied the statements that Mr Sommers made Thursday and said he had never made any such trips.

CONVALESCENTS IN TRAINING AT THE GREY NUNNERY

Carpenters' Class Established in a Convent—The Varied Ways in Which Wounded and Otherwise Invalided Men Are Being Helped to Overcome Their Disabilities—Only a Small Proportion of Wounded Cannot Be Helped by Training to Make an Independent Living.

A carpenters' workshop has just been fitted up in a wing of the Grey Nunnery, which the Military Hospitals Commission has secured as its Central Convalescent Hospital for Montreal. It is not an ordinary workshop with a single bench; there are rows of benches, and sets of tools to match.

At each bench, if you happen in at the right time, you will find a man at work. If you are highly critical, and also highly skilled—which critics are not always—you may observe and censure plenty of defects in the men's handling of the tools. But these men are learners, and "he who makes no blunders, makes nothing." Presently they will make fewer blunders, and will be able to make something else.

The class has been started by the Military Hospitals Commission, and it is only one of a variety of ways in which wounded and otherwise invalided men are being helped to overcome their disabilities. These ways include classes in arithmetic, typewriting and English. All these will help and for some men they are just the thing. But carpentry is one of the most useful occupations that can be taught to fit a man for the battle of life.

THE BATTLE OF LIFE.

And the battle of life is just beginning, the second time, for many of our wounded. They have left the ranks of peaceful labor to join manfully in the struggle against the enemies of their country and of civilisation. Now they have come back, disabled in that struggle, and some find themselves in consequence disabled also for their old occupation.

Are they to remain disabled? If they did, the country would indeed be disgraced.

But theer is no reason why they should. We are in the Twentieth Century. For almost every disability, some remedy or some compensation has been found. A very small proportion of our wounded cannot be helped by training to make an independent living.

It is not intended to make professional carpenters of all the men now learning carpentry. But skill in this will help a man in many other occupations. The first object of all that is done in a convalescent hospital, of course, is to restore its patients to health; and interesting occupations greatly help recovery. But the Military Hospitals Commission goes further. It takes pains to discover what means of livelihood will be most suitable to each disabled man, and gives him every chance to fit himself for it, by special training when convalescence is complete.

SEES END OF THE WAR BY WINTER OF 1918

LONDON, Sept. 6.—The Daily Mail publishes an account of conditions in Germany ten days ago, which was obtained from a neutral who toured the country in July and August for the purpose of an independent inquiry into the existing situation. The Mail's informant said:

"My mission was to sound every phase of German opinion as to the present and the future of war. I interviewed bankers, manufacturers, high State officials, merchants, diplomats, workingmen, and common soldiers. I am a graduate of a German university and have known German ways and habits of thought for thirteen years, most of the time as a resident in the country. I flattered myself at the outset that the Germans would not be able to deceive me when I sought to find out really what was at the back of their heads.

"They succeeded in convincing me that they genuinely believe they will win the war. They do not appear to be able to produce any very tangible evidence on which to base their belief, but the belief is there. Everybody wants peace. 'If only this hideous war were over!' is heard on all sides, but nowhere did I encounter any desire to stack arms on the basis of a defeated Fatherland.

"I am quite amazed by the English people's curiosity to know if the Germans are starving. They are nowhere near starvation. The crops are good, somewhat better than the average. They are satisfactorily harvested. There will be nothing to prevent the Germans, so far as food is concerned, from fighting for another year at least. Food shortage alone will never cause Germany to sue for premature peace. It is a widely cherished misapprehension, too, that monetary conditions are hastening the collapse of Germany's ability to continue the war. I imagine Helfferich (Minister of the Interior) can have another £500,000,000 ($2,500,000,000) this Autumn or any other time he calls for it on the same terms as he secured the rest.

"Well-informed authorities assured me there were at least 1,500,000 men of fit military capacity in garrisons and depots and under training ready for the trenches when needed. Other people placed the number at 2,000,000 and all reminded me that anywhere from 400,000 to 600,000 youths come of military age annually in Germany. Little is said publicly of Germany's enormous casualties. Newspapers are not permitted to give any idea whatever of the grand total, which is approaching 4,000,000 certainly. It is their hideously heavy losses of men killed and incapacitated which are sickening the Germans of the war more than anything else, I think. It is these sacrifices which make me doubt whether the approach of the winter of 1917-18 will find Germany able to stand a fourth year of war. Of her ability to weather the third year I am left in no doubt whatever.

"England, Italy, and the United States are incessantly 'strafed,' England most of all. They blurt out everywhere that their deal with President Wilson about submarines was only a convenient make-shift for Germany, and that sink-everything-at-sight tactics will be resumed as soon as new submarines are ready. I was in Baden-Baden, where there is still tremendous anger over the destructive air raids on Karlsruhe. It caused the Germans to ponder over the wisdom of airship frightfulness against their enemies, although, I must say, I found universal enthusiasm for the merciless Zeppelin raids on England."

GREAT PROGRAMME OF FIREWORKS FOR PETERBORO' EXHIBITION

A Complete List of the Pyrotechnic Exhibition That Will Be a Big Feature of the Night Performance at the Peterborough Industrial—Patriotic Set Pieces Are Featured.

Following is the programme of the fireworks to be displayed at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, next week. They are supplied by the T. W. Hand Co. of Hamilton:

Ascent of Coloured Signal Balloon. This Balloon carries a trailer that changes colour a number of times.

Ascent of Large Sized Coloured Balloon, carrying a trailer that gives a series of brilliant lightning flashes, and finally disappears after discharging a bunch of coloured stars.

Discharge of New Bombshell; The Northern Crown, displayed in two bursts. The first burst shows a fretwork of interlaced gold. The second burst throws Clusters of Gem-like Stars into the fiery fretwork.

Ascent of Dragonette Rockets, with long, bright streamers that writhe and twist into wonderful shapes.

Ascent of Novel Bombshell. The Stormy Petrel, giving a wide field of darting stars, which disappear in lightning flashes.

Aerial Spinners. A new bombshell discharging fiery devices that gyrate rapidly as they descend.

Sparkling Glory. A very brilliant star-shaped set piece. The 8 points of the star are embellished with triple sets of Golden Gerbs arranged to throw curved lines of glittering fire in a fiery design of great magnitude. The interior of the star is filled with coloured points surrounding a whirling centre of fire.

Ascent of Serpentine Rockets with long, trailing stars that descend in spiral paths. A pretty and striking novelty.

Ascent of Floating Festoon Rockets These beautiful Rockets break into Festoons of Stars which float with the wind and transform into a variety of tints.

Ascent of Exhibition Rockets, Snowdrops. Dazzling white stars, discharged in bunches and disappearing in crystallized silvery spray.

The Golden Fir Tree. This is the revival of a beautiful set piece, first produced for Napoleon at a fete at Malmaison.

All the limbs are loaded with golden fir cones which spout forth jets of sparkling fire mingling and forming into a great tree of seething gold.

Flight of Silver Tourbillions, rising in a whirlwind of silver fire, and disappearing at a great height.

Ascent of Weeping Willow Rockets. These graceful rockets take the form of the weeping willow foliage, in descending streams of dusty gold.

Discharge of Fine Bombshell. The Bridal Wreath. Breaking in a circlet of many coloured stars.

Grove of Jewel Palms. A wonderful ground display, running for a great length. Palm trees of choice Roman Candles filled with cone stars, pearl spreader stars, streamer stars and coloured gem stars. These trees are placed in a long row and between them are enormous Geysers throwing up perfect volcanoes of fire sparks, corruscations and spangles.

Ascent of Floating Chain Rockets. These Rockets discharge long chains of stars which float in the air for a long time. The stars change colour several times, and dissolve in showers of silver.

Ascent of Novel Bombshell; Japanese Gold Fish. Filled with big erratic stars that fly in many directions and seem to swim in the air.

Aerial Spinners. A new bombshell discharging fiery devices that gyrate rapidly as they descend.

Firework Flying Machine. This is a pyroplane that rises to a height of 100 feet. It then swoops down to within 20 feet of the ground when it rises again to a great height and disappears from sight. This wonderful effect is produced entirely by the fireworks that are mounted on the framework of the pyroplane.

Discharge of Special Bombshell. Beauty of the Orient. This is a star galaxy, embracing ruby gem stars, turquoise stars, amber stars, Viridian stars, diamond stars.

Discharge of fine Bombshell "The Aurora"—scattering myriads of Amber and Silver Stars with pink heads, and leaving Streams of Diamond dust.

Musical Wheel. A Revolving Octagen Device, driven by powerful Cascades of fire. The escaping fiery streams produce shrill siren-like whistles and shrieks in several different tones.

This fine and novel device commences with a rotating mass of golden streams, interlaced symmetrically and extending outwards to a fringe of golden dust. Ruby and Emerald Clusters are scattered amongst the golden threads. The whistles are very loud and varied in tone. This is one of the most important of the 1916 novelties.

Goldfields of the Air. Ascent of Exhibition Rockets. All golden effects—Goldstream rockets, Japanese streamers, Enck's Comet Rockets, Klondyke Nugget rockets, Flitter Star rockets.

LONELY WOMEN IN ENGLAND FEW NOW, SAYS DRAMATIST

LONDON, Sept. 6.—According to St. John Ervine, the dramatist, the war has effected one social change of no small importance when it is considered how large in England is the number of "lonely women."

Mr. Ervine regards this class as constituted chiefly of spinsters with private income and widows without families, who "spent their days in pre-war times in drifting from boarding houses in Bayswater, carrying their dullness with them, these lonely, workless women, in peace time sitting in hotels and boarding houses waiting for the next meal or taking little unadventurous, very circumscribed walks in Hyde Park or High street, or on the promenade.

They had nothing whatever to do, and they were at an age when excitements with which young people can fill their idle hours either frightened them or made no appeal to them, and so, according to their temperaments, they filled up big gaps in their lives with a miscellaneous collection of ailments and affections and terrors, mean nigglings or futile benevolences, back-biting or bridge—perpetual, piffling bridge.

"Now if there is a lonely woman left in England it is her own fault. If there is a woman in these isles who is without occupation, without friends, without definite and high purpose, that woman has no one but herself to blame. Wherever one goes one sees women formerly idle now busy over work that not only employs them, but inspires them.

In cities and towns and villages one sees them making bandages and surgical dressings, packings parcels, picking sphagnum moss very carefully, lest anything might be entangled in it that would injure a wounded man on whom it is to be used. All these and myriads of other employments have turned lonely, useless women into women who have many friends and are performing valuable work."

Albert Brown In "The Black Feather"

What promises to be a gala event of the local theatrical season is the appearance at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday, Sept. 19th, of the celebrated Albert Brown in a new play especially written for him by the Canadian dramatist, W. A. Tremayne and entitled "The Black Feather." It may be safely said that no American actor who has appeared in Canada for many seasons has achieved the wide popularity which Mr. Brown won in "The White Feather." Its name was a success, legitimately earned, for the present-day stage boasts few men equally gifted in the matter of magnetism and skill. The manner in which he places himself immediately en rapport with his audience recalls the triumphs of the older generation of comedians. In "The Black Feather," as in its predecessor, he plays the role of a secret agent of the British intelligence staff, who by posing as a dandy and idler circumvents the enemies of Great Britain.

Will Observe The Holy Days

Hebrews of Peterboro' Are Making Preparations For the Observance of the Jewish New Year Which Falls on September 28th

Already the Hebrews in Peterborough are making preparations for the observance of New Year's Day and the Day of Atonement.

The Jewish New Year falls on the 28th of September, beginning at sundown, and continues until sundown of the following day. On this day it is traditional in the Jewish ritual that the ram's horn or "shofar" be sounded, historically symbolical of a holy call to the people to mend their ways. In the orthodox synagogues the blasts of the "shofar" have resounded every morning, beginning with the first day of the Jewish month of Elul, according to the traditions, and will be continued until the end of the New Year's services.

The Day of Atonement, known as "Yom Kippur," comes one week after the Jewish New Year, known as "Rosh Hashanah," and the two holy days coming as they do close to one another, constitute the part of the year in which the Jews of the world are most repentant for their past follies and sins.

NEW INDUSTRY FOR PETERBOROUGH COUNTY

Company to Be Formed for the Purpose of Raising Hogs on Alfalfa Clover—Is a Success Elsewhere

A movement is on foot in Peterborough to establiah a company for the purpose of raising hogs on alfalfa clover. It is the intention of the promoters to secure suitable farm lands in Peterborough county where this work can be carried on. Mr. R. Hanlon, 450 Rogers street is interested in the movement and is prepared to take a substantial financial interest in the company.

Mr. Hanlon states that this work is carried on very successfully in the United States. He is thoroughly familiar with the conditions incident to such an industry and sees no reason why such a movement could not be made a success in Peterborough county.

Coming Attraction

A little more than four years ago there came to these shores for the first time, sweet Molly McIntyre, a dainty, brown-eyed little miss with a winsome smile and a face described as a fascinating combination of beauty and character. There was just the slightest trace of a Scotch burr in her voice when she spoke, due to the fact that this charming little miss hailed from Inverness, where the natives speak the old standard Scotch founded on the Lothian dialect. There is very little trace of dialect in the speech of Inverness people, and what little there is is soon lost sight of when the Inverness people leave home. The little lassie in question has not lived in Inverness for several years. She had come to these western shores, from London where she had been playing in various theatres of the world's metropolis and created a most pleasing impression by her characterization of "Bunty," in the play in which that winsome lassie pulls the strings. Miss McIntyre's success as "Bunty," in America and Canada was one of the pronounced hits of the season in which she made her debut here. "Molly McIntyre and Bunty," were the names which were immediately associated with the best among the theatrical offerings of the western hemisphere and the little lady at once established herself, as one of the most popular actresses in this country. Her success in "Bunty," was followed by an equal one in "Kitty Mackay." She will appear here at the Grand Opera House Tuesday, Sept. 12th, for one night only.

ALTERED THE MINUTE BOOK

MONTREAL, Sept. 7.— Alterations in minute book which make it appear that the Drolet street deal, whereby the city paid $180,000 for property now valued at $40,000, was passed by a full board of controllers instead of by a meeting at which its two opponents were absent, were discovered by the Royal Commission probing this purchase.

Don't Spoil Your Hair By Washing It

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

MAY SELL LEFT-OVER STOCK TO WAREHOUSES

Export Establishment May Help Liquor Seller Out

Cannot Dispose of His Goods to Vendors

TORONTO, Sept. 7.—The hotelkeeper or the liquor shop proprietor who does not succeed in selling off all his supply of liquor by 7 o'clock on Saturday, the 16th, will not have to drink it himself. The fact that the Ontario Temperance act makes it illegal for them to have it on the premises after prohibition goes into force or to sell it to anyone, has caused more than a little worry to licensees.

There will, however, be little trouble upon that score. The Ontario license board is expected to use its own judgment in its attitude toward ex-licensees, and arrangements, it is stated, are now being made by which surplus stocks in shops and hotels will be taken up. The Ontario Temperance act provides that export liquor warehouses may be established to take over stocks to be sold outside of the province. These warehouses, of which there will be one or two at least, will be able to buy up the surplus stock just before closing hour on the 16th and later remove it to their storage rooms, where it can be kept until it is sold. In cases where the firms operating the warehouses are not prepared to buy, the liquor can be stored in the same manner and disposed of outside of the province, on a commission basis. These warehouses, of course, have no relation to the vendors provided for under the act. The few vendors who will be appointed will have the right to purchase supplies anywhere, but they will not be able to buy up left-over stocks for the reason that after prohibition is effective and the vendors in business it would be illegal on the hotelkeeper's part to sell them. The vendor's stocks will be secured from the brewer and distiller.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD.

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

U-LINER CARRIED THE WARRANT

New York, Sept. 7.—Six years ago when the rye and barley shocks dotted the fields of the North German plain, Valerie Klescnaka, a harvest hand, was murdered. She was a peasant girl from Russian Poland who had come down with thousands of others for the harvest season to Mecklenburg-Schwerin. She was working on the Ritter-Gut estates, the property of Prinz Eitel Friedrich.

Yesterday Wadislaw Kubicki was arrested at his home in Jersey City, charged with the murder of Valerie Klescanaka. The warrant was signed by the magistrate of a town in Mecklenburg-Schwerin. Accompanying the document were sixty type-written pages of evidence gathered in the six years by German policemen. Also there were photographs of Kubicki, of Valerie, and of the pond into which her body was thrown.

The Deutschland had found room in its cargo for the documents that were to permit a German detective to report to his chief that the Klescnaka murder case was complete and the alleged murderer under arrest awaiting trial.

Officers of 141st Have All Resigned

Took Action En Block After Lt.-Col McKenzie Was Relieved of Command

PORT ARTHUR, Sept. 7.—A commotion was caused by a telegram from Ottawa relieving Lieut.-Col. D. C. McKenzie of his command of the 141st Battalion. No reason was given. All the other officers immediately resigned.

Colonel McKenzie lives at Fort Francis and had a large medical practice. He has spent thousands of dollars organising the regiment, which is known as the "Bull Moose Battalion." He recruited nearly every eligible man in Rainy River district. It now numbers nearly nine hundred.

It is reported that a board will enquire into the battalion's affairs and that five hundred men will be drafted at once to a new military centre. The incident has created a sensation in the city and district, where Col. McKenzie is highly popular.

THE BORDERLAND OF MYSTERY

CANADIAN OVERSEAS

Two well known writers were describing the sound of the guns in France as they heard them from the top of the Downs of Sussex. One likened them to "the human stroke of Fate," the other heard in them "the pulse of Destiny."

More prosaically, they sound like the beating of gigantic carpets by gigantic women at a great distance. All walks on the Downs now are accompanied by this sinister sound of far-off beating, which is sometimes as faint as the ghost of an echo and sometimes rises almost from the fold of the purple-heathered land. At all times strange volumes of sound roll across the bare uplands, and reverberate in those hollows in the Downside. Often walking alone, with neither man nor animal in sight, you turn sharply to see who is galloping behind you. There is no one—only the phantom horseman dashes by with a thunder of hoofs and suddenly you are left alone on the Downs with the larks overhead.

For centuries this has been the abode of ghosts, but these unsettled times are bringing new and strange ones. Some unromantic souls aver that the present supernatural conditions existing are the result of the guns in Flanders; that it is due to their action that the hens' eggs are addled, that the country is covered by dark and cloudy weather. But the old shepherd shakes his head. He has heard these riders both by day and night; he has felt their flying robes as they dashed by; night after night he has listened to the wild shriek of a woman—a shriek which echoed and re-echoed over the Downs until his blood has curdled, and he has heard a strange moaning over the moors as the dying night slowly gave way to the dawn, dimly revealing strange and uncertain things. He knows because for years he has lived with these ghosts. He can tell you how the church bell rings far out over the hills, rung by unseen hands; he will confide in you its strange power to foretell peace, how three months before the Boer was ended it fell to earth, and that once again it fell on May 3rd last.

August is well on its way, and you may still hear the guns from the top of the Downs; the sun blazes in a cloudless sky and the eggs are no longer addled.

Dr. Frederick Describes Arrival of Russians

SALONIKA, July 30.—Received a bunch of papers yesterday, but no letters. This has been a great day, one to be long remembered. The Russians arrived, we have been expecting them for several days. We went down in the car at 2 o'clock to the city. The streets were crowded and we were not sure where to go to get the best view, but we pushed on through the crowd until we came to the end of the street, near the quay, where there were a number of military police. I asked one of them if the Russians were coming out that way and he said Yes, but if I wanted I could go out on to the quay. So I went back for the others. Capt. Stammers of Smith Falls and three nurses and we went out to the landing stage. Here were gathered officers of all sorts, several bands, English and French, and all the notables of the city. Here we took a number of interesting photographs. After about half an hour the lighters, loaded with troops came in, the national airs, Russian, French, British and Servian were all played while everyone on shore and ship stood silently at the salute. Then the chief officers came ashore, followed by their men They continued going down the quay to somewhere so we followed and the military landing officer, who knows us all well, came along and told us where they were going to form up and be inspected by General Serrail. We went over to this spot and climbed a pile of telegraph poles, where we had a grand stand view of the whole proceedings.

I was introduced to one of their officers who turned out to be their chief medical officer, so I invited their four medical officers over for dinner to our mess to-morrow evening.

While we were waiting for General Sarrail to come along the Base Commandant invited us all to tea so the three sisters, a couple French officers, one of whom is a count, two Russian officers and we two Canadians, all went over, got in a motor pinnace and across the harbor to the Base Commandants place for tea getting back just in time to see the inspection.

Then we went down to the main street, along which the procession was to march and stopped in front of the crowd. Just then the troops who lined the street as a guard of honour moved along in front of us, one file deep and there we were again in the best spot to see. The procession was headed by the French Cuirrassiers in their bright metal helmets and long flowing horsetails down their backs, on prancing horses. Then a band, then the chief Russian officers and troops, then another band and more troops. They certainly are a fine body of strong, husky men and will give a good account of themselves. The poor Greeks looked very sorry for themselves like some one who has not been invited to the big party next door.

After this we got in our car and came most of the way home. The Russian camp is very near us, so we get out and waited for them to march past again.

So altogether it was a very interesting day and there was no part of it for which we did not have a front seat in the grand stand.

We have it all figured out in our own minds just what is going to happen here, where it is going to happen, and how, but I cannot discuss that matter. Anyway by the time you get my letter you will know as much about it as I do. To give you an idea though, how much one can depend on newspaper reports.

Not long ago a long article appeared in the paper telling about the trip of the Russians to France, how they came and what ports they passed. Now we find out they never came that way at all or ever saw any of the places mentioned. But everything is looking rosy, although in all probability it will be a long time yet probably another year.

Art Howson was down yesterday and had dinner with me and we had a great afternoon's tennis game.

This evening we have had a grand rain and for week or so the weather has been delightfully cool. This rain will overcome the shortage of water in some places.

Yours affectionately,
E. V. FREDERICK.

John Barrymore in "Nearly a King" Commences To-night

We are securing exceptionally good pictures at the present time and one of the best is to be seen at our theatre for the balance of this week. John Barrymore is starring in 'Nearly a King,' which is one of the most novel screen comedies ever conceived.

This story embraces every phase of the playwright's art, from farce to melodrama, from sentiment to adventure. It contains a plot that is fascinating in its varied appeal, and is further distinguished by the fact that for the first time since his association with the screen, Mr. Barrymore interprets two characters simultaneously. The fact that one is an American and the other a Prince, whose romances become confused, adds to the interest. In the end, however, each marries the girl of his heart, but not until they have proceeded through the most startling and humorous series of trials and adventures possible to imagine.

Widow of Count Killed In Action Weds in Forest

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 7.—Mr. and Mrs. William Tudor announce the marriage in Dublin, N. Y., of their daughter, Comtesse de Pierrefeu, formerly Miss Elsa Tudor, widow of Comte Dedons de Pierrefeu, to Mr. Joseph Daniels Leland, of Boston. The wedding quickly followed the announcement of their engagement last month.

The ceremony was performed at sunset in the Cathedral Woods by the Rev. Malcolm Peabody, an intimate friend. Present at the wedding were Mrs. Tudor, Mrs. Joseph D. Leland, mother of the bridegroom; the children of the Comtesse, Yann Tudor de Pierrefeu, and his sisters, Dolores, Lenora and Katherine de Pierrefeu, and Miss Elizabeth Thacker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Thacker. Mrs. James Lovell Little played violin selections written especially for the occasion.

The Cathedral Woods are beautiful and dark, a primeval forest with moss under foot. The bride passed through a lane lighted by two hundred or more candles, in standards, up a little pool in the centre of the forest, and there the ceremony took place. The bride and all of the children were dressed in green and the children bore wreaths of wild greenery which they had made. The younger children were in bare feet, which help to lend picturesqueness to the scene.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland will live in Concord and they will go there about November 1.

Miss Tudor and Comte de Pierrefeu of France, were married here in 1904. He was killed in action soon after the war started in Europe, where he had gone to serve his country. The Comtesse devoted herself to relief work among soldiers, and had charge of a hospital at Dinard. After her husband's death she returned to America and since has done much good work in raising funds for the relief of soldiers in France.

Mr. Leland was graduated from Harvard in 1909, and is a member of the Harvard Club, the Tennis and Racquet and the Exchange clubs in Boston. He is an architect of the Boston firm of Loring & Leland.

USEFULNESS OF PRAISE

More of It Should Be Used

Praise is never wholly undeserved. Risk it.

Go ahead. Say it. You can hardly come in contact with anybody without noting some commendable thing. Speak of it.

And if any criticism, any salt or sour word, comes up in your throat, swallow it back.

What a vast, kindly, benevolent, bottomless pit is the pit of the great Unsaid. It is the Gehenna valley of our lives, where lie the burned refuse of our unkindnesses.

You are full of gentle thoughts and gentle words, only you do not realize how full until you begin to speak.

For this world of human hearts is dry and dusty. Most men and women go about smitten with a cruel thirst. The sons and daughters of men perish for appreciation.

Then water them. Sprinkle them with the gentle rain of your cheering words. Drop the dew of your admiring glances and warm smiles on the just and upon the unjust, with heaven's indiscrimination.

We Americans are an odd lot. We are soft as wax in our hearts, full of generous feeling, hungry to help the next man. But we hate to admit it.

I have walked the city streets, in lonely moods, and searched the face of every passer by for a human look. But it was dreary picking. Men glanced at me and looked quickly away. Women never looked at all.

Mine are the people I have loved, if only for a moment. They constitute my estate. I own them. I do not own my purse.

"'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands." I do not own my house, the contents of my strong box, my furniture and pictures; no, nor the wife I have legally bound to me, nor the children I have begotten, save in so far as I love them.

There is but one right and title in the court of souls. It is love. It is appreciation. Anything or anybody in this world belongs to the one who appreciates it, or him, or her. No other claim will stand in the great assizes.

And I do not own those who appreciate me, they own me. It is the lover, and not the beloved, that has the best end of the bargain. Love is its own reward. Hence, get rich. Pile up property. Be a soul millionaire. Do this by the practice of appreciation. Be an appreciation expert. The wider, more refined, subtler, keener your power to see the praise-worthiness of men and things the wealthier you are. Be a Hetty Green in appreciation.

GREAT TITLES WON BY THE SWORD

Will the present war produce a new British dukedom? Probably it will, for it is a curious fact, and one apt to be overlooked, that although the minor peerages are filled by all sorts and conditions of men, access to the highest rank of all has usually been won in the first instance by the sword.

The first Duke of Marlborough, for instance, was given the title for his services to his country. So, too, was the first Duke of Wellington. The first Duke of Norfolk died fighting for his King on Bosworth Field. The first Duke of Manchester fought for King William at the Battle of the Boyne.

The first of the Dukes of Somerset—whose sister, Jane Seymour, married King Henry VIII.—fought for his Royal brother-in-law in France and Flanders, and they have been at it pretty well ever since.

The first Duke of Grafton commanded the troops in Somersetshire sent against the Duke of Monmouth, and later on saw fighting in Ireland, where he was wounded. An ancestor of the present Duke of Sutherland was standard-bearer to Prince Edward, son of Henry VI., at the Battle of Taweesbury.

The present Duke of Rutland is descended from the famous Marquis of Granby, who upheld the arms of England in Germany throughout the Seven Years' War. The Dukes of Northumberland have been fighters ever since the days of the crusades; while the first Duke of Portland was descended from the early of that ilk who accompanied William of Orange to England, and fought as a lieutenant-general at the Battle of the Boyne.

KARLSRUHE'S FATE.

London, Sept. 7. —Captain Aust, second officer in command of the German cruiser Karlsruhe," stating that on November 4, 1914, when the Karlsruhe was lying in latitude 10.7 north, 58.25 west, she was torpedoed by an inviaible craft. The ship broke in two and sank immediately with her commander and many of the crew.

The position given would be just east of the West Indies, which is exactly where the Karlsruhe's grave has heretofore been located by rumor. But the story hitherto has been that the ship struck a reef and was blown up by her crew.

CRAZED NEGRO FIRED GUN IN A CROWDED STREET CAR

INDIANAPOLIS, India, Sept. 6.—One is dead and two are injured as the result of Thomas Dorsey, colored, becoming crazed on a crowded street car and firing a number of shots down the aisle of the car at his wife. Dorsey committed suicide when cornered in the car by a policeman. His wife is injured seriously. Another colored woman was shot.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL OPENS AFTER BEING CLOSED SIX WEEKS

After a six months' vacation, the Queen Mary hospital was opened this morning to admit two cases of diphtheria. Dr. Amys stated this morning that all local cases of contagious diseases must be treated at the Isolation hospital. This will evidently put an end to whatever practice of home treatment there may have been hitherto.

Japan Denounced By Chinese Press

PEKING, Sept. 7.—The Chinese press strongly denounces the Japanese demands made in China in connection with the conflict between Chinese and Japanese troops at Cheng Chiatun, Mongolia, on August 13, which resulted in the killing or wounding of many on both sides.

The demands call for the dismissal of the Chinese officers in command of the troops, the withdrawal of Chinese troops from the district, indemnification of the families of the Japanese killed and the police rights for Japan in inner Mongolia.

The Peking Gazette says: "The demands of Baron Hayashi (Japanese Minister to China) upon China respecting the Cheng Chiatun incident have created profound disappointment. At the moment China was beginning to credit the Japanese with good will Tokio took a step which is unintelligible except on the theory of continuity of the Japanese policy as applied against Yuan Shih-kai. That policy is aggressive, if not predatory. China alone and single handed cannot withstand its pressure."

The Gazette asserts that the demands threaten China's sovereignity and urges the appointment of an investigating commission composed of representatives of the United States, Great Britain, France and Russia.

WILL INSTAL TWO MORE HYDRANTS

Utilities Commission Met Last Evening —The Water Service in Auburn

At a meeting held last evening the Utilities Commission authorized the installation of two additional fire hydrants. One of these will be placed at the corner of London and Donegal streets, and the other at the corner of Smith and Donegal streets.

The matter of laying a water main to Auburn was discussed. When the work at present in hand is completed the work will be proceeded with.

An agreement has been executed between the Commission and the Grand Trunk railway authorizing the laying of a water main under the railway tracks.

Mr. C. A. G. Spence was instructed to make written reports respecting the condition of the city water whenever the water is tested.

NOVEL DRESSING TABLE

A bride who is furnishing her home out of a meagre allowance has made herself a delightful dressing table from a plain legged one intended for kitchen use. She shortened the legs, enamelled it gray and provided it with a glass top over a cover of rose patterened chints. A plain mirror, enamelled to match was hung on the wall behind it.

FEAR LANDING IN BELGIUM

ENEMY WRITER SAYS THIS ALLIED MOVE WOULD MAKE RETREAT INEVITABLE.

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—The fear that a large British army may be landed in Belgium and Holland to attack the German forces in Flanders and France from the rear and recapture Antwerp has been revived. One of the foremost military writers says in the "Armee und Marinenachrichten" (Army and Navy News):

The general offensive of the allies on all fronts keeps our armies busy. The British and French attacks on the western front, which have their centre and greatest force in Picardy, do not sufficiently disclose where our enemies intend to strike their main blow. It is possible and even probable that the "big rush" on both sides of the Somme is only a feint.

The real intentions of the allies are probably disclosed by an article written by an unnamed French admiral and published in "L'Information" a few weeks ago. The admiral says that the new strategic plan of the allies is to exhaust the German power of resistence by attacking on as many fronts as possible, and he continues:

"We must create new fronts to compel the enemy to thin his lines everywhere. An effective way to accomplish the result will be the landing of a large British army on the coast of Belgium. This can be done, if the English sea power is fully used."

All signs point to it that we will have to fight the main British forces in Belgium and on the Dutch border before the winter comes. This would make a general retreat from France inevitable.

Sunday Tells New York It Must "Show" Him

With these words as the final answer to the committee trying to get him in New York to conduct a revival campaign Billy Sunday, accompanied by "Ma" Sunday, left this city yesterday morning for his home at Winona Lake, Ind.

"Come back to New York!" shouted the Rev. Dr. E. S. Holloway, of Hope Baptist church, a member of the committee, at the Pennsylvania Limited pulled out shortly after 11 o'clock. "We'll show you."

Sunday's departure ended a whirlwind visit of twelve hours, which began when he arrived at the Waldorf-Astoria Sunday night from Ocean Grove. He met James M. Spears, chairman of the New York committee, and Dr. Holloway at the hotel. With "Ma" Sunday to complete the party they visited the former American League grounds; Manhattan Field, adjoining the Polo Grounds; Jasper Oval and other fields as possible sites for a tabernacle.

"The tabernacle must be big enough to hold 20,000 people," said Mrs. Sunday. "Of those we examined only the American League Park will do."

"What do you think of the anti vice crusade?" Mr. Sunday was asked.

"Bully! Great! Hallelujah-" he exclaimed, jumping with glee. "Whatever action the Committee of Twelve takes against vice is fine. It prepares men for the higher ideals.

Sunday will stay at Winona Lake four days. Then he will conduct revivals in Detroit and Boston, and if the New York committee has 'shown' him, will come to this city in the early part of February.

Roasted meats have a better flavour than baked ones. The meat should be first placed near the coals to sear and then drawn back to cook at lower heat.

EACH SUCCEEDING DRAFT IS KEENER THAN ONE BEFORE

Sergeant-Major "Tom" Geggie Tells About Continuous Rejuvenation of Battalions at the Front

The following letter has just been received by Rev. A. Logan Geggie of Toronto from his nephew. In a recent issue of a Border paper the information is given that in the last fight in which the King's Own Scottish Borderers were engaged the casualties numbered 500. This explains why the unit of which Thomas Geggie has been Battalion Sergeant-Major from the beginning of the war is now in billets. The writer's estimate of the spirit of the recent drafts is interesting.

Since my last letter, drafts, and again drafts, Highland men and Fifers and men fra' Gala Water are pouring in. This, for the fourth or fifth time in the war, is the rejuvenation and each succeeding crowd is even keener than its predecessor. Nothing of war-weariness is yet visible among the youth of our land. Officially we are "resting" and, my word, some rest. Six to eight a.m. (and how can one help cursing the originator of summer-time, when, at the presumable sixth hour, one drowsily reflects that it is still really five a.m.) nine to two, and, alternate evenings, eight to midnight, after which we may safely consider ourselves finished for the day. There is a certain amount of humor in the notion that the most of these chaps are ardent, one might almost say violent, trade unionists, who a couple of years ago were fighting tooth and nail for a maximum wage of umteen shillings per diem. The hours here are necessary. There are still lessons to be learned—still things turning up that we hadn't quite counted on as late as June 30 last. Situations that cost us two hundred in casualties last time are going to be less than a quarter in expense the next occasion. Hence the dozen or so hours a day hard labor and hence the acquiescence, nay eagerness, of one-time trade unionists with notions of their own regarding the duration of the daily effort.

IN A PEACEFUL BILLET.

Man, I wish that I could describe the peacefulness of this present billet of ours. Try to help me with your own imagination. Put the point of a pin on any village midway between the coast of France and where the horror exists. Here, the ripeness of wheat, the hum of the reaper, the "Bon jour, messieur" of kindly inhabitants, the pure lung tonic of fresh, untainted air, the morning dew, the glorious sunshine, the peace of evening, the chapel bell; and, by way of a contrast, up there at X. (perhaps the censor in his kindliness of heart will allow you to identify the spot by a name somewhat similar to "Long Valley") there is destruction indescribable—the music of the Angelus changed to the scream of flying shrapnel, the reaper wields the scythe of pain and death, one holds his breath to bursting point rather than inhale the dreadful putridness around, and feels that God has turned his back on humanity. Try to imagine it—think it out—and tell me the why!

FIGHTING FOR RIGHT TO LIVE

At any rate I have lived to see how beautiful the world can be—and how easily. I ask for you, my uncle, the image of a Gladstone, the persuasive tongue of a Beaconfield, and the fervor of a John Bright, to be devoted henceforth to the fight against the hellish diplomacy which makes this delightful thing possible. Not at the present can this be done. The first thing is victory for our civilization—victory for, to resurrect an old labour cry, the "right to live"; and then you and the cloth, and others not of the cloth, must see to it that the people are daily made aware of what is happening, and to what events are leading. It isn't always wise to be too explicit. For instance, about a year ago I wrote you some cutting things about the Daily Mail which, at this date, I would gladly draw back, and possibly we don't know all the facts of the "returning Haldane's uneasiness", but it seems to me there is something mighty far wrong in that gentleman's philosophy.

Closing this for to-night (11.30). At 6 a.m. to-morrow we are attacking the German front line (in presumption); really they are held by our very own friends, the West Kents, so whatever side wins there won't be a lot of harm done. In the tortured French and Tommy Atkins, "Bong swore."

A TWO-YEAR ANNIVERSARY

August 15th.

To-night I am tempted to be reminiscent, for is this not the anniversary of our first arrival in France Two years ago to-day! Have there ever been two such years in the world's history? One can sit back for a minute, shut one's eyes and the mind pictures present themselves one after another with a realism never yet equalled by any cinema: Mons, Le Sateau, the Marne and Aisne, Givenchy, La Basse, Messines, Ypres, Hill 60—this dug-out and that open fire-swept field—the faces of good pals along since gone to the Great Beyond; the misery of blistered heels and frozen toes, and mud, and blood, and dust, and noise. Yet, after all, it is something to have lived through these twenty-four months—to have been among those who have "felt it, and smelt it, and seen it"—something to have been able to watch the military beast rise to the zenith of his vigor and strength, and then to gradually, yet inevitably, lose his power of wind and limb. Some of us will still live to see the loathsome thing crushed broken, and stamped out of existence, and prove to whoever may stop to read, that whatever else may flourish in this world of ours, the gospel of brute force or tardily will not. Yes, yes, there are good days ahead—of that there can be no doubt (and just as I am getting warmed up, there arrives Tammas Hope, the postie, who, I am very glad to say, is still with us, saying he "canna wait ony langer", so I maun hoy this intal his poke at yince.)

BY WAY OF ILLUSTRATION.

Defendant in Criminal Suit Shows How He Pushed Complainant.

It happened in the court room during the trial of a husky young man who was charged with assault and battery.

Throughout an especially severe cross-examination the defendant stoutly maintained that he had merely pushed the plaintiff "a little bit."

"Well, about how hard?" queried the prosecutor.

"Now," said the Attorney, "for the benefit of the Judge and jury, you will please step down here and, with me for the subject, illustrate just how hard you mean."

Owing to the unmerciful badgering which the witness had just been given the prosecutor thought that the young man would perhaps overdo the matter, so get back at him, and thus incriminate himself.

The defendant descended as per schedule and approached the waiting attorney. When he reached him the spectators were astonished to see him slap the lawyer in the face, kick him on the shins, seize him bodily, and, finally, with a supreme effrot, lift him from the floor and hurl him prostrate across a table.

Turning from the bewildered prosecutor, he faced the court and explained mildly:

"Your Honour and gentlemen, about one-tenth that hard!"

Hens Must Not Trespass On Neighbours' Gardens

Complaint of D. Guthrie Upheld by Magistrate Dumble in Police Court This Morning—One Dollar Fine Levied as An Example

Two vindicate the law and to remind the public that wandering hens are a neighbourhood nuisance, Magistrate Dumble this morning imposed a fine of one dollar on Mr. Thos. Price, 59 Olive avenue, when it was proved that the thoroughbred Columbian Wyandottes belonging to his son Fred, had trespassed on the property of Mr. David Guthrie.

Although the complaint was laid against the father, Mr. Dumble held that it was a family affair, that he would hold the father liable since the birds came from his property, although they belonged to his son. Mr. Price, senior, was responsible, he concluded, for the reason that the fowl were kept on his property in a manner that was liable to get him into trouble.

Mr. Guthrie stated that he did not claim any damages from the defendants, but he did wish they would keep their fowl at home. Early in the spring he had sent them a note with this request, but frequently during the summer the chickens had invaded his premises. On recent inroads they had pecked at tomatoes, destroying a number of them, and tomatoes they regarded as low dear for hen feed, especially neighbours' hens.

Guthrie told of three occasions when hens from the Price lot came through to his garden. He had held two of them for over a week until two boys called and stated that Mr. Price had sent for them. Complainant handed them over. On the following day another hen appeared and Guthrie renewed his request.

"Fred, the son, said they were paying taxes and I was only paying rent," testified Guthrie, and apparently this difference was regarded as a privilege for poultry.

"The married son said he would give me a push on the nose."

On Saturday the plaintiff locked up two more of the Columbian Wyandottes and held them until this morning.

Mr. Thos. Price stated that the chickens were his son's. They were wired in a coop which was partly covered at the top, and he couldn't understand how they got out. Witness asserted that their's were not the only fowl that entered Guthrie's garden. He had seen therein hens belonging to another neighbour named Pollard; they were often in the Price yard, but witness said he wasn't making any "howl" about it.

Magistrate Dumble remarked that this was a common nuisance, the wandering of hen's over neighbouring gardens. One man was not at liberty to cause an annoyance to his neighbours, especially in the destruction of garden produce which had been carefully planted and tended.

Mr. Howard R. Armstrong of Gordon and Widdifield's office appeared for the defendant.

LONDON MOVIES RAIDED TO GET "SLACKERS"

London, Sept. 7.— The authorities are systematically raiding moving picture theatres, prize fights, railways and elsewhere for men of military age without exemption certificates.

This afternoon 150 spectators at a boxing contest at Blackfriars were arrested. A few dashed for freedom amid the jeers of the crowd. They were detained at the police station for examination.

MEETING OF THE LOCAL BRANCH OF THE PATRIOTIC FUND

Steps Will Be Taken to Close Up the Subscription Accounts—The Auditor's Report—All Claims Have Been Met—All Subscriptions Will Be Needed

A meeting of the members of the active branches of the local Patriotic Fund was held last evening at the patriotic rooms. Those present included all who take part in the distribution of the Fund and in the care and collection. The object in view was to consider and take steps to close up the subscription accounts and to devise means of bringing in the money. An amount of about $9,000 is still outstanding from the last campaign, exclusive of the grants from the city and county. It is seen, easily, that all that was subscribed will be needed, even with the strictest possible economy and care to carry on the distribution to the end of the year. After that means will have to be devised to provide for next year's needs, if the war lasts so long. At present the outlook, while favourable for the Allies, does not indicate the approach of cessation of hostilities. And until that takes place the fund has to be kept up if we are to meet our obligations.

It was decided at the meeting to make a selection from the list of those in arrears, the names to be ally see the subscribers and arrange aly see the subscribers and arrange for payment, either in bulk or by instalments. It is expected that this course will bring in almost at once funds for immediate needs. The list of beneficiaries is now reaching up to nearly 800, and is still growing, and the monthly call requires so much as $8,000 to cover. Many names have been deleted from the list, for various causes, but the number is rapidly being replaced. The local responsibilities have passed, long ago, away beyond anything that was expected when the branch was formed, but the liberality and generosity of our people has so far enabled all claims to be met. Further on a meeting of the teams' captains and teams' members will be called to deal with the bulk of the list of arrearages. Of this meeting due notice will be given.

Auditor's Report.

At the meeting, the auditor, Mr. W. R. Morris, submitted his half-yearly audit. These figures are printed below, and are necessarily condensed to reasonable limits. Figures relative to the sister branch, the Relief Fund, are also given. The report was received and declared quite satisfactory. The figures include up to June 30th, of this year, and go back to the inception of the Fund, in order that a complete statement be available.

In reviewing the report Mr. O'Connell referred to the long and valuable service, given, almost continuously during the last two years by Mr. Aylmer, Mr. Crane, and those concerned in the collection and financing of the subscription amounts. It had been a labour that had resulted most successfully because it was done persistently and from day to day. Taking up the Relief Fund, and commenting on the almost extraordinary calls made during the winter of 1914-15, resulting from a state of unemployment, he pointed out that for a very considerable time as many as 400 families had been assisted from the Fund. The work of determining and investigation had been most onerous and troublesome, but it was largely to the credit of the distribution committee that to-day there still remained in the bank so much as nearly $9,000 to its credit. As the period of unemployment had passed there were no calls on this fund other than a few of a compassionate nature, and the balance would be held for the future. What the necessity that might arise he could not conjecture, but it was a satisfaction that if the emergency came in the future that the city had at hand money to grapple with it without making a call on the resources, either public or private, of the city.

CHINESE "PERIL" APPEARS.

Proposed Reorganization of Empire May Give Japan Something Else to Think About.

The so-called "yellow peril" erstwhile has had to do with little people of the Flowerly Kingdom, China, the big, lumbering empire, says the Louisville Times, has never arisen to the dignity of a "peril," yet we wonder what may be the significance of the proposed reorganization of the Chinese navy. That a reorganization is pending we gather from propaganda from official publicity sources.

Admiral Liu Kuan Laung, Minister of the Navy, has seen a great light. He recommends to the people of the empire a complete reorganiaztion of the naval service. Following an inspection trip Admiral Liu conceived the idea that all the existing war ships should be reorganized into four compact fleets. The name suggested for these divisions are Pei Yang, Nan Yang, Hupeh and Fukien. Of course they might, with all patriotic consistency, be called Yak-a-Mea, Yen War, Park Gob Song and Chop Suey, but an Admiral has rights which must not be questioned.

According to Admal Liu's scheme the Pei Yang squadron will be composed of ten war ships with a total of 11,500 tons, quartered in the territorial waters of Chihli and Shantung; the Nan Yang squadron of twenty-three war ships with a total of 29,984 tons, quartered in the waters of Kiangsu, Hunan and Anhui; the Hupeh squadron of six war ships aggregating 4,500 tons, and the Fukien squadron of six war ships with a total of 5,870 tons.

Not exactly formidable, to be sure, but it indicates that the militant spirit is rampant. When China begins reorganizing her navy isn't it time to take preparedness by the forelock? We ask you, Japan, isn't it?

ORIGIN OF GAS JET.

A woman's thimble is said to have been the means of suggesting the first gas burner.

William Murdock, the inventor, first burned the gas simply as a flame from the end of a pipe. One day in an emergency he wished to stop the illumination. Hurriedly looking around for something, Murdock seized his wife's thimble and thrust it over the light, which was immediately extinguished.

There was a strong odor of gas, however, says the Popular Science Monthly, and the experimenter applied a light to the thimble, discovering that it was full of holes, through which tiny jets of flame appeared. The importance of the result was that the illumination from those two or three tiny jets was much brighter than had been given by the great flare from the end of the pipe. Acting on the principle which this chance discovery revealed, he constructed what was known as the Cockspur burner.

Need Hospitals For Diagnosis

Present Day Status of Medical Practice Calls For Special Institutions, Says Dr. Mayo

ONLY THE RICH AND POOR CAN NOW AVAIL THEMSELVES THE BEST SERVICES.

According to Dr Charles H. Mayo, the junior of the two Mayo brothers, who have made St. Mary's Hospital, at Rochester, Minn., a world famous surgical centre, the one great present-day need in the direction of hospital development is the hospital devoted exclusively to diagnosis. An accurate diagnosis of the patient's ailment having been made a report and directions for treatment could be forwarded to his regular physician.

In the surgeon's opinion such a method of procedure would be to the mutual advantage of both the patient and physician—and especially to the advantage of the great body of patients of the middle class. The latter would then be able to afford the services of specialists, which they are hardly able to afford at present. It is only the rich and the poor who can afford such services now, and consequently the middle class gets the poorest service of all. Such hospitals, Dr. Mayo believes, should be organized in every large town, and also in connection with the medical departments of universities.

The surgeon's ideas on this subject were voiced recently in an address delivered before the Catholic Hospital Association at Milwaukee. It is reprinted in the current issue of The Modern Hospital. His subject was "Nature, Value and Necessity of Team Work in a Hospital." He called attention particularly to the present great need for hospital organization, the best location for hospitals, and the step forward that has been made in the establishment of pay clinics.

Dr. Mayo called attention to the fact that the history of hospital development antedated the Christian era, but that the true usefulness of the institution was not recognized until about the year 1500.

"The necessity for hospital standardization," he continued, "has been discussed in various medical meetings for several years, with the annual appointment of committees for reports and much good has been accomplished from the publicity. The American College of Surgeons has of necessity taken up the work of standardizing hospitals, and all institutions which desire to be recognized must come within State requirements. Such investigations and classification of hospitals will require several years. The greatest help is expected from this association of Catholic hospitals now holding its second annual meeting.

"Hospitals in Europe have been more wisely located than in America, having a setting in spacious grounds, where they secure the full benefit of air, quiet and sunlight. In this country we have built in the most congested areas, lacking every hospital need except plenty of the poor. In such localities there should be only emergency institutions or automobile ambulance stations. Hospitals situated in cities should have at least a country convalescent home, where ambulatory patients may recover. Automobile transportation of the sick is now so comfortable and rapid that distance is no longer a factor to be considered in the location of hospitals.

"In modern times hospitals are quite dependent on their corps of nurses, whose ability, training and attitude toward the work are essential for efficiency. In Europe the social standard for nurses was for a long time very low. They were recruited from the lower classes, even from the prisons. Fortunately, in America, the profession of nursing was started on a higher plane, and our nurses excel those of the world in intelligence education and culture. In Europe the nursing profession was modernized and reorganized in the middle of the last century through the necessities of war, and the present war is rapidly improving the standard of hospital attendants in the countries involved.

"A nurse's training is a liberal education in itself. The instruction in cleanliness, the knowledge and the treatment of disease, and especially the instruction in preventive medicine and domestic science are valuable, not only to the family but also to the community. Thus it is that the ranks of nurses are largely depleted by matrimony. A training school for nurses is essential, at least for all large hospitals.

"Efficient trained nurses are of great value in general nursing. They are permanent general supervisors over the nurses in the training school, and have a personal interest in maintaining the hospital standard.

"The internes are a recognized factor in hospital organization. They are the physicians and the surgeons in charge, representing their chiefs of staff. The interne is guided in the care of the patient and the theory of his training becomes transformed into actual practice. Minnesota does not grant a diploma to a graduate in medicine until he has had one year of service in a hospital as interne following a four years' medical course. Further, the medical department of the University of Minnesota will not accept a student who does not hold an academic degree. When we have added to this a four year medical course and three additional years of graduate work for a master's degree, the training of such an American physician is equal to or better than the requirements of any of the countries of Europe.

"An efficient, harmonious working corps of physicians is very necessary in the organization of a hospital. It is not for us to discuss the method by which the staff of medical attendants should be chosen. They should certainly be considered for their fitness, and should hold their place on civil service if their efficiency is maintained. It should not be necessary for the hospital to furnish reputation for attendants who are below par and who have secured appointment by political or church pull, or the fact that they were family physicians of some of the directors.

"There are certain positions in a hospital which, to secure the highest efficiency, should be maintained by fixed salaries—those of the pathologist, bacteriologist, chief anesthetist, and the surgical registrar. With the recognition of the fact that many of the acute and chronic diseases, local and general, arise from a local focus—the most common source being the mouth—the true importance of dentistry is now recognized, and a dentist should be associated with every clinic and hospital, or subject to consultation call.

"In the standardization of hospitals efficient methods of making and keeping records of all sorts will be necessary, especially the records concerning patients, their care, and the results of operations or treatment * *

"With all of the various hospitals, general and special, there is still need for one more—a hospital for diagnosis. In the rapid advance of medicine during the last fifty years we have seen the disappearance of that former friend and counsellor, the family physician. Medicine has become so vast, so monumental, that it is no longer possible for one man to encompass it, at least in practice, although he may have very wide knowledge of the principles and theories.

"Team work as exemplified in large clinics and in hospitals has become necessary in the care of the rare and complicated cases representing about 10 per cent. of the total, while even special examinations for the well known diseases require experts in various lines in order that the diagnosis may be proved and complications not overlooked. In the past such examinations could be secured by the wealthy who could pay for them, and by the poor, to whom they were free.

"It is the middle class, the larger number, who are most dependent on the ability of one man or his assistant. The middle class in cities, are frequently seen at free dispensaries, because of the presence of specialists and more complete equipment. Mount Sinai Hospital has started a pay clinic, and Dr. Goldwater, its Superintendent, has stated in defence of its plan:

"'Experience has shown that persons of moderate means who are in need of high grade specialists have the greatest difficulty in obtaining them, for such physicians, either in their private offices or in the field, do not give their services for nominal fees. This problem, it is universally conceded, must be solved, and a great many patients are forced to solve that problem in their own way by going to free dispensaries; in fact many such patients are referred to the dispensaries by general practitioners, who send cases to the dispensaries for diagnosis. This is especially the case when the making of diagnoses requires the use of special apparatus and equipment, and the co-operation of a number of physicians.

"'There is a large number of patients who certainly could not be put in the pauper class who cannot afford to go to the specialists. The question before us is how to solve the problem and to this the Trustees have been devoting much attention.'

"The situation must be recognized and dealt with. To maintain a high standard and keep the profession filled with educated and cultured men, who are equipped with modern apparatus, it must be made better. In order to do this it is necessary that physicians obtain more than the present average compensation. There are now less than half as many students of medicine as there were five years ago.

"In large cities and in the medical departments of universities diagnosis hospitals should be founded solely for the purpose of observing patients, the taking of all kinds of special examinations, including laboratory tests, special vaccines, and X-ray examinations. To be highly efficient, it should have also an experimental department. When the diagnosis has been completed, patients should be referred to their home physician with the diagnosis and the plan of treatment. From the librarian of the clinic could be sent references to recent literature on the subject.

"Some cases could be referred to special hospitals and sanatoriums and others to surgical institutions. Such a diagnosis hospital would have the greatest educational value and its main supporters would be the general practitioners, especially those located in the smaller communities. Undoubtedly it would do much toward the elimination of that nefarious practice—the division of fees and the barter and sale of sick human beings."

Mailed Fist Heavy On All Bulgaria

SOFIA, Bulgaria—Particularly interesting is the present Bulgarian situation. The only communication between this country and the outside world is through Roumania, Austria, Germany and Turkey, but as these countries, too, are isolated, nothing but news of continued German, Austrian and Turkish victories comes in through the Balkan Agency, affiliated with the official German Wolff Bureau, while a strict military censorship keeps us in the dark as to the real situation of not only the Balkan front, but of the interior of Bulgaria as well.

Nevertheless, if one wants to study the general situation it is reflected in what news one is able to gather here in the capital of the kingdom, he will have ample proofs to justify a growing pessimism as regards the future of the country.

In the first place, Bulgaria having entered the war on the side of Germany, never suspected that hers was to be a position of a vassal at the hands of the German General Staff; yet this is precisely what happened from the earliest days of the war. Military Bulgaria was placed on the same level as Turkey by the superior Teuton command. In every post of a certain importance and responsibility a German officer with a small staff was appointed, Bulgarian forts on all borders passed into German hands, the railroads of the country were submitted to German control, and instead of the Bulgarian Polkovnik, it is the German oberst who rattles his sword in even the regimental headquarters of the Little Czar's bodyguard.

One has only to know how proud every Bulgarian is of the national army, to understand the impression created by the employment of such Teuton methods in the country of an ally. But this is not all. The Department of Posts, Telegraph and Telephones has passed into the hands of German experts, who keep an eye on what is happening hourly in and out of Bulgaria, and keep the German staff posted on everything. Even the local press censorship is in many instances in German hands. This is what happens in the military or semi-military administration of the country.

Grip on Agriculture Leased.

But things are no better in other branches. Take for instance, Bulgarian agriculture. Germany from the first laid hands on the products of the Bulgarian soil. With those minute calculations so characteristic of the German method of working, it was soon proved that only one-third of the Bulgar crops was really needed for home consumption, while the rest had to go to feed the starving billions of the fatherland.

The Bulgarian Minister of Agriculture protested and Stambolisky, the leader of the agricultural party in the Sobranje, threatened to have the whole agricultural population of Bulgaria raised against any policy tending to create starvation in the country. Thus the German attempt to put Bulgaria on the bread ticket basis failed, as likewise failed the attempt to introduce meatless days, for the purpose of sending to Germany as large quantities as possible of Bulgarian cattle. The friction originating from this attitude of the Germans toward the Bulgarians resulted in a manifest coldness of the population in their dealings with the Teutons.

But if the plight of the civilian in Bulgaria is serious, the position of the Bulgarian soldier under German rule is infinitely worse. Put an old firm under new management and the newcomers will find that everything was wrong under the old regime. This well-known axiom applies just as well to an army, as to any other business. The attitude of the German officers who took charge of the Bulgarian army toward their Bulgarian comrades is one of scarcely hidden contempt, which has increased since Bulgaria made it clear that she did not care to starve for the sake of Germany. Lule-Burgas does not count for much in the eyes of a survivor of the Marne who can show an iron cross won in Warsaw. One has to see the German officers here in Sofia, mostly tall, well built fellows, impetuous and quite overbearing in demeanor, to understand what military Bulgaria has to put up with.

Now that Serbia has been wiped off the map, Bulgaria wants only to settle down ad make peace with the Entente, come to terms with her Balkan neighbours, and have nothing more to do with the European war. The Germans know this, and that is why they have put the whole country under the mailed fist. The result is seen in daily clashes between the two military elements, not only in the secluded privacy of barrack and camp but even in the places where Broshek and Shumla beers flows freely in a vain effort to cement Bulgo-German friendship. Worst of all, these encounters are a common occurrence on the advanced Macedonian posts of the two armies and many a time reports of Bulgaro-German conflicts in Monastir and Ghevgheli are smuggled up to the Bulgarian capital.

Financial Position Serious.

These things, however, are mere incidents when compared with the seriousness of Bulgaria's finances since she entered the war. Notwithstanding the occupation of the entire Serbian territory, the monetary outlook in Bulgaria goes from bad to worse. Since the beginning of the war, nearly one year ago, the Governments of Germany and Austria have given to Bulgaria in the shape of loans $10,000,000 monthly. This amount is transferred to the credit of the Bulgarian National Bank by the State banks of Germany and Austria, but as a matter of fact the moneys never leave the two empires. Instead, one part of these amounts is sent to Bulgaria in the shape of raw and manufactured products, such as coal, iron, sugar, army and medical supplies, matches, and other commodities, while for the balance the Bulgarian National Bank issues paper money. Of this there is now in circulation nearly $140,000,000, against $20,000,000 in gold and silver deposited in the coffers of the Bulgarian National Banks and in the banks of Germany and Austria, but of these deposits, too, less than $20,000,000, of which $17,000,000 in gold is deposited in Bulgaria, the rest being in Germany.

Small change is so scarce in Bulgaria that a bill was submitted to the Sobranje to compel the national bank to mint 2,000,000 worth of five-franc silver pieces and issue the same amount in coins of one, two and half franc pieces.

The abundance of paper money and the scarcity of gold combined with the stoppage of nearly all Bulgarian exports, resulted in a great increase in the price of gold. French twenty-franc pieces are worth in Bulgaria anywhere from thirty-two to thirty-five francs, while the cost of living has become almost prohibitive, from the lack of imports, and the greed of speculators. Coffee costs one dollar per pound, sugar is not to be found at any price, kerosene has vanished from the shops, and while the well-to-do have electric light, thanks to the German coal, the poor have to depend on church tapers for the illumination of their miserable homes. There is also a great scarcity of soap, while Austrian matches come at distant intervals.

Food Scarce and Costly.

As far as meat is concerned only beef is allowed to be butchered, and this is of a non-eatable quality; twice a week no meat is sold to private individuals, while only the hospitals can have it. Mutton is allowed, provided it weighs more than thirty pounds when slaughtered, while no cattle less than six years old are permitted to be killed for culinary purposes. Pork, potatoes, and vegetables of any description are not to be found in any market, being used exclusively for the feeding of the German and Austrian troops now in Bulgaria. Bread costs seven to eight cents a loaf, but it is not eatable. An idea of the cost of other commodities may be had from the fact that an ordinary pair of shoes costs anywhere from $17 to $20.

The army having taken twenty-six classes of reservists, there are not enough hands to till the soil, and poverty in the rural districts is increasing at an alarming rate. The Government foreseeing a famine gave three and four weeks' furloughs to the farmers now under the colours, but then there is a lack of cattle, of horses, of vehicles, and in many instances of seed as well, which makes any agricultural work wellnigh impossible.

Bulgaria to-day has nearly 350,000 men on her southern frontier, while the German forces scarcely amount to more than 60,000 troops. According to what is known here, immediately after the Serbian resistance had been broken and the Anglo-French forces repulsed, the Bulgarian army established small garrisons in most of the occupied Serbian cities, and after sending 30,000 troops to Albania to co-operate with the Austrian forces, centred all of its available forces against the French and British, and especially in the lines between Petrich, Strumnitsa, Valandovo, Doiran, and Gevgheli. From Doiran to Monastir the German and Austrian troops held the line, while between Ochrida and Monastir the Eighth Bulgarian Division was stationed. From the latter part of February this year to the end of June, as far as it is possible to learn there have been few important changes in the disposition of the Bulgarian forces, which were thus apportioned:

Between Dedeagach and Xanthi the Tenth Bulgarian Division. At Skoplie the Third Division. In Albania one division, probably the second. Between Ochrida and Monastir the Eighth Division. This total of four divisions numbers approximately 100,000 to 120,000 men, to which 60,000 Teutons must be added, making in all a force of 180,000 troops facing the Allies in the Balkans in March this year.

But Bulgaria had also to attend to the safety of her other frontiers, therefore she sent three divisions, the First of Sofia, the Sixth of Widin, and the Fourth of Preslawa, to the Roumanian border. Following Roumanian peace assurances and the withdrawal of a corresponding Roumanian force from the border, Bulgaria dispatched two more divisions to Macedonia, while the Eleventh Independentt Macedonian Division, entirely made up of Macedonian officers and troopers, is held ready for any emergency.

Therefore one may be quite exact in saying that the Bulgarian troops facing the allies in the Balkans, together with their Teuton allies, amount at this time of writing pretty near to 400,000 men all told.

Attitude of the Army.

Are these troops eager to fight? That is a question which can be answered with difficulty. The Bulgarian people as a whole, are tired of war. What they see is not the brilliant side of the Balkan campaign, but the dullest part of it. They entered it hoping that it would end soon, and leave them the masters of Serbia and of the Balkan Peninsula. Once their foe beaten, they expected the Allies to withdraw. This was not done, and, what was more, the allied contingent in Macedonia was strengthened. Then for a time they hoped that Greece and Roumania would remain neutral to the end of the conflict, and this is no more certain today than it was ten months ago.

Germany had promised them to end the war by a Balkan victory. The victory was pretty nearly complete, but it did not end the war. Bulgaria now is asking Germany whether this thing is to continue any longer, and Germany, in all probability, is answering that Bulgaria must prepare for other blows, provided this would put an end to the Balkan campaign and the sufferings she has had to endure on account of it.

BRIDE FOR SIXTH TIME.

Arkansas Woman, 29, Has a Long Matrimonial Record.

Mrs. James Richards Lea, aged 29, of Conway, Ark., became a bride for the sixth time when she was married to a man named Roberts in the court house there by Judge John W. Holt, according to County Clerk James M. Lea. The fifth marriage took place about three years ago, and the bride lived at Russelville since that time.

Mrs. Roberts is a sister of George Doss, aged 43, of the same place, who recently eloped with Addie Pruitt, 13 years old, that marriage having been annulled.

PITRE IS IN MORE TROUBLE

Montreal, Sept. 7.—Friends of Pitre and Secours have been making strong efforts to settle the assault charge made against them in the criminal courts by John Demeny, judge of play in the National-Shamrock lacrosse match on the National grounds last Saturday.

A man named McGuire, a spectator, accuses Pitre of having struck him a most cruel blow in the early part of the match, and wounding him so badly that he had to be assisted into the club house by two policemen. He threatens action.

In the Police Court this morning, Pitre and Secours entered a plea of not guilty, and were allowed out on parole until next Wednesday.

Landlords Are Contemplating An Advance in Rents

Vacant houses are as scarce now as they were plentiful ten or twelve months ago. One real estate dealer stated that last spring he had eighty-five houses on his hands, compared with a generous dozen at the present time. It is an other evidence of the complete reversal of all the gloomy forebodings of the pessimistic. Work is plentiful and so is money. Families that had "doubled up" have reached a condition of prosperity that has permitted them to occupy separate houses. In fact it is not so long ago that even three, and in a few cases four, families shared the shelter of the same roof. This forced economy expained in a measure the numerous untenanted houses that stared vacantly into many of the city's streets last winter. It also offers the main reason why rents were considerably reduced during the real estate depression.

Three prominent property owners stated recently that their rents aggregate less than two years ago and that the individual rentals are lower. On the other hand the taxes have increased appreciably during the same time, and the real estate candle is burning at both ends. Any of these men will tell you that the tenant is getting too much of a good thing at the present time, and it is time for the landlords' innings.

The present demand includes houses of all classes, the medium rate dwelling being a leader. The brisk conditions in the factories have attracted families who can afford a good average house with modern conveniences. In fact there is no sign of war at the present time unless it be the prosperity, whether stable or not, that so many persons are enjoying.

ITALIANS AROUSE GREEKS.

Pushing Forward in Northern Epirus and Taking Possession.

London, Sept. 7.— A steady advance in to the interior of Albania by Italian forces from Avlona is reported in an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Athens. According to these advices, the Italians are pushing forward in northern Epirus, disestablishing Greek authority and prohibiting the departure of prominent citizens from the regions occupied. The Italians also have begun to build roads and technical works.

The despatch says inhabitants of this region are preparing a protest to send to King Constantine and to Great Britain, France and Russia.

DEUTSCHLAND DYES GO BEGGING

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The extraordinary prices asked for the dyestuffs brought to this country by the Deutschland and recently distributed among the leading importers in this city are having the effect of fending off prospective buyers who refuse to pay the prices demanded. This is particularly true as regards alizarine wool and cotton dyes, the users of which seem content to struggle along with the dyestuffs furnished to them by American manufacturers rather than pay from ten to twelve times the normal prices.

CONFESSES SHE SHOT HUSBAND

CHICAGO, Sept. 7. — Mrs. Iva Barnes confessed that she shot and killed her husband, James R. Barnes, while they were strolling in Washington Park. Barnes was the Chicago representative of a New York soap firm. The woman, who had been estranged from her husband, told the police he had attempted to strangle her.

SON-IN-LAW SUES CHARLES F. DALY

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Charles F Daly, a vice president of the New York Central Railroad, has been named defendant in an alienation action brought by his son-in-law, Willard R. Barnet, one-time assistant general passenger agent of the railroad. Papers in the action were filed in the County Clerks office, the plaintiff asking damages to the amount of $500,000.

Another action was brought by Mr. Barnet against Herman E. Willer, assistant to Mr. Daly, who is named as co-defendant. In this action, for alleged conspiracy, the summons has been filed.

Mr. Daly also has been cited to appear before Supreme Court Justice William P. Platt, in White Plains, and to bring with him his daughter, Mrs. Charline Daly Barnet. Mrs. Barnet lived with her husband until March 12 last. Mrs. Barnet obtained custody of their child, Charles Daly Barnet, by Supreme Court order in May, with the proviso that the child, be permitted to be taken to his father's apartment once every two weeks. It is alleged that this proviso was not complied with.

Herman L. Roth, of No. 1,480 Broadway, Mr. Barnet's attorney, filed the papers in the case yesterday, a copy of the complaint in the alienation action already having been served upon Mr. Daly at the Biltmore Hotel.

In the alienation action Mr. Barnet alleges that Mr. Daly "maliciously and wrongfully enticed" his daughter away from the plaintiff on or about March 12, and has "ever since detained and harboured her against the consent of the plaintiff and in opposition to his utmost peaceable efforts to obtain her from the defendant's custody control and influence.

In being thus deprived of his wife Mr. Barnet alleges that he has been put to great trouble and expense to recover her from the defendant, and that he has suffered damage in the sum of $500,000.

Mr. Daly and his daughter and grandson have been stopping recently at the Gramatan Hotel, Bronxville.

FAIR EXHIBIT IS PROFITABLE IF PROPERLY HANDLED.

Aside from actual business done and prospects secured, a well-arranged and attractive fair exhibit offers a general advertising medium for the dealer's store that he certainly cannot afford to overlook. What better advertising can there be than personal contact with the trade? And in what way and at less cost can the dealer meet more of his trade than at the county fair?

The important factors in connection with a successful fair exhibit are the location of the booth, the dealer's personal attendance, and the attractiveness of the exhibit. Plans should be made early and desirable space secured, and if possible not too close to a merry-go-round or other noisy attraction, as it serves to distract attention and makes it difficult to talk to the prospective buyer.—J. R. Hunter in De Laval Monthly.

FOR PREVENTS THE FRENCH FROM ADOPTING BASEBALL.

"Had it not been for the outbreak of the war," said John McGraw recently, "I believe that the French people would have taken up baseball very strongly. The citizens of Paris were quite enthusiastic when we visited that city on the trip around the world, and we would have drawn an immense throng but for a cold heavy rain which fell all that day.

"It would not be surprising to me to see France adopt the game at the close of the hostilities, as they are great natural sportsmen. Look at the manner in which they took to boxing and the short time in which they produced good fighters of their own."

sent only been given foot drill. Barriefield Camp is sorry to have to part with the officers and men of the brigade, but in the interests of the service, and for the sake of the great cause for which they enlisted, all must bow to the wishes of the administration of military affairs, and take the removal sweetly. Another brigade will undoubtedly take the place of the present one, and Kingston is the only place in the district where such a brigade can be properly trained, Lt.-Col. Arnoldi will leave Barriefield with the good wishes of all both for himself and his brigade.

LONDON, Sept. 6.— Casualty lists for the first two weeks of August show that the British army lost 600 officers killed, 1,702 wounded, and 204 missing, a total of 2,506. This brings up the losses since the beginning of the war to 39,972 officers, of whom 11,442 have been killed or died of wounds, 24,680 wounded and 2,880 are missing.

In the fortnight six lieutenant-colonels were killed.

Word has been received from Ottawa that a cable has arrived from England to the effect that Lieut. Frank L. Bradburn, son of Mr. T. E. Bradburn, who was officially reported wounded about two weeks ago, has now returned to duty.

Ottawa, Sept. 6. — Recruiting for August totalled 7,248, as compared with 8,675 for July, 10,796 for June, 15,090 for May, and 32,819 for the record month of March. The falling off in recruiting for August is about what was expected by the Militia Department, considering all the circumstances of increased labour demand, harvest requirements, etc. The number of recruits since the outbreak of war has now reached a total of 361,693, of whom 153,765 were enlisted since the first of January last.

Alberta took the lead last month among the military districts in regard to the number of new recruits. The Province provided 1,155 new soldiers. To date the total of Alberta since the outbreak of war is 34,885. Ontario supplied last month 2,546 recruits, of whom the Toronto Military District enlisted 985, London District 572, and Kingston District 991. Quebec Province recruited 630 men, the Maritime Provinces 569, Manitoba and Saskatchewan 451, and British Columbia 698.

GIVE HUN FLIERS MILITARY BURIAL

Press of England Outspoken in Matter—Incident Called One of Official Obtuseness

LONDON, Sept. 8.—The crew of the Zeppelin which was destroyed in the recent air raid on the east coast of England will be interred this afternoon with the appointed military honours at Potter's Bar burial ground, about fourteen miles from Cuffley.

The morning newspapers express varying opinions regarding the propriety of a military funeral. The Express says: "We hope the decision to give a military funeral to the Zeppelin death-dealers will not be carried out. Would you give a military funeral to the man who sank the Lusitania?"

The Graphic says: "If these men are to be interred with the same honours as accompany the burial of our greatest heroes, the moral sense of the nation will resent another outrageous example of official obtuseness."

The Times calls the objections "indescribable petty," and adds: "The flying men of the two peoples have a mutual respect for each other, due to the danger of their calling which is something quite apart from the feeling in other branches of the service. This mutual respect has led to special treatment on both sides, and for our part we are quite content to leave the soldiers to order matters in their own way."

The Daily Mail says: "The honour of a military funeral is not conferred by the British government, or people, but by the flying corps, which is the best judge of what consorts with its honour."

King Constantine Missed A Very Great Opportunity

Completely Under Prussian Influence, He Rejected Britain's Offer of Cyprus and Allowed Serbia to Perish, But Crown Prince's Interests Lie With Balkan States—Kingdom is a Prey to Warring Factions and is Threatened With Invasion.

SIGNS OF REVOLUTION

King Constantine, who is reported to have abdicated the throne of Greece in favour of his son, Crown Prince George, is a monarch who may be said to have missed one of the greatest opportunities that ever came to the ruler of a small State. He easily could have revived the ancient glories of Greece, but lost the chance through his leaning toward the cause of Prussia and her Teuton, Bulgar and Turkish allies.

Great Britain offered to cede Cyprus to Greece if he would join in repelling the invaders of Serbia, but he refused, and the offer was withdrawn. Ignoring the treaty which bound him to act in defence of Serbia in case she were attacked, he attempted to maintain an impossible neutrality. Leaving the Serbs and Montenegrins to their fate, but not daring to oppose the Allies, he has fallen between two stools, and his kingdom is a prey to warring factions and is threatened with invasion.

Beginning his reign after the assassination of his father, King George I., at Salonika on March 18, 1913, he was very popular and was hailed as the liberator of Macedonia from the thrall of the Turks. Under his reign the territory of the kingdom increased more than fifty per cent. as a result of the Balkan wars and the annexation of Crete.

The Greeks had a tradition, cherished for centuries, that when a Constantine sat once more on the throne the Eastern Empire would be revived and the Cross would be raised again on the dome of St. Sophia, which had borne the Crescent for 463 years. In many official documents he was styled Emperor Constantine XIII. The last Byzantine emperor was Constantine XII., who was killed on May 29, 1453, when the last vestige of the great Roman Empire disappeared and Constantinople was taken by the Turks under Mohammed II.

UNDER PRUSSIAN INFLUENCE.

But he was educated by Prussian tutors and was completely under the influence of the Potsdam Court. He was married at Athens on October 27, 1889, to the Princess Sophia of Prussia, sister of Emperor Wilhelm.

The King always was known as a man with opinions of his own, even to the extent of opposing a ministry which he thought was going contrary to the interests of the country. The Tricoupis Cabinet ran contrary to his wishes and the Tricoupis Cabinet went out of office. The Venizelos Cabinet met the same fate.

With the entrance of Turkey into the European war the question of the intervention of Greece soon began to be seriously considered, but King Constantine insisted upo strict neutrality. The Cabinet, headed by Mr. Venizelos, which was for war on the side of the Allies, finally tendered its resignation. The Greek attitude, at least as far as the war party was concerned, was largely to the effect that if Greece had no hand in the war her interests might suffer when peace was arranged.

In the second month of the war the Greek Premier had intimated to the Entente Powers that Greece would join their cause actively if the necessity should arise, and with the commencement of the operations against the Dardanelles the government believed the time had come for Greece to abandon her neutrality. The King, however, refused to countenance this project. It was argued that sending forces to the Dardanelles would dangerously weaken Greece's defence on the Bulgarian frontier, and since Greece had received no formal invitation from the Triple Entente her entrace into the war would be undertaken without any guarantee from the Powers as to the Greek position on the mainland.

The King's refusal to consent to the war policy is said to have been actuated by a consideration of the military difficulties. Unfortunately, his entourage held strong pro-Prussian sentiments. The principal officers of the General Staff were pupils of the Berlin Kriegsakademie and were firmly convinced that Prussia must ultimately win the war. This, and not fear of Bulgaria, was said to be the real reason of their opposition to Greece's participation in the operations against Turkey.

QUEEN AND CROWN PRINCE.

The Queen, as a Hohenzollern princess, was wholly for her brother's course. Hardly a day passed but she received from the German Military Attache the official Berlin war reports. It was reported that one the evening preceding the King's final decision a long telegram from the Emperor was received at the palace urging Greece's abstention from the war. It was also said that the Queen openly declared that if Greece took such action she would immediately leave her adopted country.

Crown Prince George, however, is bound by no such ties. His interests lie rather with the Balkan States than with Western Europe. Two years ago he was betrothed to Princess Elizabeth of Roumania, who was twenty-one years old last October. Crown Prince George was twenty-six years old last July.

He is described as a man of liberal mind, in true sympathy with the aspirations of the Greek people. It has been assumed that if King Constantine's policy of non-interference in the war should lead to his disappearance from power the Crown Prince would be the man to whom the pro-Entente party would turn.

The Crown Prince has kept in the back-ground during the war. When the Entente troops landed at Salonika last year the King sent the Crown Prince to take charge of the Greek forces there. It was reported several months ago that the Prince had been sent on a mission to the German and Austrian Emperors.

Mr. Ward Price, official British press representative, sent from Salonika a report that King Constantine had fled from Athens to Larissa. This despatch was discredited in official circles in London. Doubt also appeared to be cast on its correctness by despatches filed from Athens on Wednesday, one of them telling of coming meetings between the King and the Entente Ministers and others having to do with the illness of the King, who recently underwent a slight operation. It is possible, however, that the King may have secretly left Athens, as reported by Mr. Price, and that his absence was concealed from the newspaper correspondents there.

SIGNS OF REVOLUTION.

Apparently a revolution is under way in Greece. Since the entrance of Roumania into the war there have been various indications of political turmoil in Greece, owing to the conflict between the neutralists, represented by King Constantine, and those who desire to intervene in the war with the Entente Allies, led by Mr. Venizelos, who has been Premier and who heads the popular party. An Athens despatch predicted that Greece would abandon neutrality within the immediate future. It has also been represented that King Constantine was finding his position very difficult, on account of the growing strength of pro-Ally sentiment.

There is in existence in Greece a committee representing the liberal, or Venizelist, party, and it is possible that the Greek garrisons surrendered to this or some similar body. The committee was appointed on Sunday, on the occasion of the demonstration of 50,000 Greeks before the residence of Mr. Venizelos in Athens, and was instructed to present to the King resolutions warning him not to interfere in the approaching elections and to prepare the army for a possible rupture of existing conditions.

The part of Greek Macedonia in which the forts mentioned in the despatches are located is in Northern Greece, close behind the front on which the Entente Allies are fighting the Bulgarians and their allies. Vodena is on the railroad line between Salonika and Monastir, an important means of communication for the Entente Allies. It is forty-five miles west of Salonika. Fort Little Karaburna is on the Gulf of Salonika about ten miles south of the city.

RUSSIANS PLAN A CAMPAIGN AGAINST TURKS AND BULGARS

Strong New Army Taking the Field For This Special Purpose.-Will Soon Be Exerting Full Strength—Russia Will Settle the Eastern Question By Eliminating Turkey and Bulgaria

ENEMY SHORT OF MEN

LONDON, Sept. 8.— Russia is to settle the eastern question by eliminating Turkey and Bulgaria entirely from the war, obtaining for the use of Russian troops either the Bulgarian Black Sea port of Varna or Constantinople itself, and using it as a base for the crushing of Germany and Austria.

A strong new Russian army is taking the field with this special mission, says the correspondent of the Morning Post at Petrograd. When the army has gained one of these ports as a base of supply Russia will be able to strike the Teutons with 50 per cent. more power.

HARD TO GET SUPPLIES.

"In spite of the present co-operation of the allies, which amounts practically to a pooling of all their resources," says the correspondent, "Russia has had difficulty in getting supplies through the remote ports of Archangel and Vladivostok. What has been accomplished in this line, however, has been marvellous. The population of Archangel, which two years ago was under 20,000, is now six times that, while other townships of the same region now exist with a population of 20,000, where before there was none.

"Russia's new army for the east made no drain whatever upon her strength. If Russia had full port and base facilities she could put 22,000,000 men in the field. For a time she was unable to arm and equip all the millions she summoned to the colours, but this difficulty has disappeared and soon Russia will be able to use all her strength.

GERMANY SHORT OF MEN.

"It is fully realized that Germany's weak point when opposed to Russia is her comparative shortage of men. While Russia can comfortably withdraw whole armies at frequent periods of rest, the Germans are hard pressed to maintain sufficient men to defend their front. While this is disastrous for the Germans, Russia can spare of her millions, tens of thousands of splendid soldiers for service in France and Salonika."

BELMONT TOWNSHIP RURAL SCHOOL FAIR

Will Be Held at the Havelock Park on September 19th—Prizes For Progressive Pupils

The rural school fair movement for the encouragement of the study of agriculture, has assumed large proportions in this county. This year no less than seven fairs will be held, commencing with the Belmont Township Fair, to be held at the Havelock Park on Tuesday, 19th inst., from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m.

The other six fairs will be held at Westwood, Zion, Douro, Warsaw, Bridgenorth, and Ennismore.

Although the fairs will not be held for a few weeks yet a great deal of work in preparation has already been done, including the visiting and judging of the scholar's plots at their homes.

Cash prizes are given for the following classes: oats, mangels, corn, potatoes, carrots, flowers, weeds, weed seeds, poultry, live stock, insects, domestic science, art apples.

Interesting special prizes are being offered by the Campbell Flour Mills Co., for bread made with Cream of the West flour.

Altogether an enjoyable as well as a profitable time is planned for the scholars. The event is one which makes school life more attractive and pleasant, and should have the co-operation of all, especially the parents.

The HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

Perhaps all dogs are not worthy of mention in our Home Circle Column, but as there is a dog in most homes, the following words from Lawyer Vest will cause you to be more patient with your canine friend if you have one.

Mr. Vest's speech in praise of the dog was made while attending court in a country town. He was prevailed upon to help the attorneys in a case where suit was brought for $200 for loss of a dog. The defense tried to show the dog had viciously attacked the defendant, while the plaintiff sought to prove the killing of the dog was an act of malice. Mr. Vest made no reference to the evidence. In a low voice he said:

"Gentlemen of the Jury: The best friend a man has in the world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter, that he has reared with loving care, may prove ungrateful. Those who are nearest and dearest to us, those whom we trust with our happiness and our good name, may become traitors to their faith. The money that a man has he may lose. It flies away from him, perhaps when he needs it most. A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill-considered action. The people who are prone to fall on their knees to do us honor when success is with us may be the first to throw the stone of malice when failure settles its cloud upon our heads.

The only absolutely unselfish friend that man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is his dog. A man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and in sickness. He will sleep on the cold ground where the wintry winds blow and the snow drifts fiercely, if only he may be near his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer. He will lick the wounds and sores that come from encounter with the roughness of the world. He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When all other friends desert, he remains. When riches take wings and reputation falls to pieces, he is constant in his love as the sun in his journey through the heavens. If fortune drives the master forth an outcast in the world, friendless and homeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying him to guard against danger, to fight his enemies.

"And when the last scene of all comes and death takes the master in its embrace and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by the graveside will the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad but open in alert watchfulness, faithful, and true even in death."

The jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiff for $200.

Oh, if you would gather all the tender memories, all the lights and shades of the heart, all banqueting and reunions, all filial, fraternal, paternal and conjugal affections and you had only just four letters with which to spell out that height, and depth and length, and breadth, the magnitude, and eternity of meaning, you would, with streaming eyes, and trembling voice, and agitated hand, write it out in those four living capitals H-O-M-E.

THE POOR

The cold weather of the week that is past has set us all to thinking of the poor. We wonder to how many of us the weary, dreary phrase of hopeless poverty is anything more than a romance. Sitting in our warm and comfortable homes, by pleasant fires with luxurious beds waiting to receive our well fed bodies, we can have no more comprehension of what grinding poverty means than an angel in the full glory of paradise can know of the deepest depths of hades. Think of it! No fuel. Absolutely none. No bed, but piled up rags; little children wailing with cold and helpless hunger; closets bare as old Mother Hubbard's, smells that reach high heaven in their foulness. And in their depth of poverty, to which even our imaginations can scarcely descend lies a lurking curse like the wild beast in its lair. The sordidness of poverty eats out the soul of a man as a tiger drinks blood. Brutality, apathy, the cruelty of fiends, are begot when pride and ambition die utterly.

Home should be made the most interesting and best loved spot on earth not merely four square walls of wood and brick; it should be the foundation of civilization, the very word should touch every cord of the human heart with its angelic fingers, a place where that is centralized on the higher and better of things of life, bringing forth in the highways and byways an influence that will be felt by all with whom it comes in contact. It should be a place where the heart is a place where our feet may leave but not our hearts, a place where angels unfold their wings, the place we love best, because it is the place where mother is.

"I DIDN'T RAISE MY GIRL TO BE A SENTRY."

'Twas night time in the city, the hour was growing late,
A matron and her mother in a stately home did wait.
That matron, full of sorrow, sighed and tried in vain to speak,
While scalding tears were running down the powder on her cheek.
At last the door flew open. "Aha!" a man did cry.
"I'm sorry I am late, dear, but I cannot tell a lie.
I met some old-time friends downtown and simply had to stay"
His wife's old mother looked at him, and unto him did say:

Chorus:—
"I didn't raise my girl to be a sentry.
To stand on guard all night and wait for you.
I didn't raise my pet to cry her cheeks all wet
And think her days of happiness are through.
When Sophie married you she made a botch, man,
Like many other girls I've often saw;
I didn't raise my girl to be a watchman!
She's coming home to live with me and Paw."

PSALMS OF LIFE.

By J. P. McEvoy.
(Lines of Entreaty to Friend Wife.)

Miss Venus (I have it direct from the bard)
Was bookoo bambina, considerable pard.
A luscious collection, a larrupin' lass,
A lallapoloosa, an armful of class.
And crammed and suffused with perfections, I hear—
A 36—28—12 dear.
But think you Miss Venus would shine in the mob
If poets had seen her eat corn on the cob?

And Dido, I'm told, was a coruscant coot,
A cunny chiquita, a darb, and a beaut.
The poets were loud in their praises of she.
Three years before the war Brusil.
But granting her speed and no cylinders missin'
And grant her deserving a stop, look and listen,
Still Dido, the pippin, would look like a slob
If she were observed eating corn on the cob.

And Helen of Troy, had speed, curves and control.
And she wasn't hep to the succulent maize,
Which fact, I contend, vastly bettered her ways.
For who could attribute charm, beauty or grace,
So wife of my buzzum, pay heed to this blob
And don't, I implore you, eat corn on the cob.

BRACE UP SHOULDERS CITY HEALTH WARNING

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Rules for office workers, issued and indorsed by the Health Commission:

"Square your shoulders and brace up."

"The consumptive stoop does not make for health."

"The slouch, the sag, the droop, the slump endanger your health and your job."

"All loads will be lighter if you brace up."

The Health Department did not tell any special reason for issuing the warning at this particular time, but there it was in the circular.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

The Arrest of Paul. Acts 21: 17-40. Golden Text: Thou shalt be a witness for him unto all men of what thou hast seen and heard. Acts 22:15.

1. Verses 17-19. What reason is there to believe that there is no other class of people who so love one another, and so rejoice in each other's fellowship, as real Christians?

2. What special reason was there for the Christians at Jerusalem receiving Paul with such gladness?

3. Paul told them of the wonderful things which God had wrought through his ministry among the Gentiles; should Christans always tell of the victories of their faith and works, or is it liable to engender pride and to look like boasting?

4. Verses 20-22. Why does a good man always "glorify God" at the success of others, and why is a man who is not truly good generally jealous at the success of others?

5. What either in heaven or on earth is the greatest cause for joy? (See Luke 15:7.)

6. Why could, or could not, a Christian, either then or now, be fully led of The Holy Spirit, if at the same time he were "zealous of the Law"?

7. There were "thousands of Jews" at that time who were Christians, not withstanding they were propagating doctrines out of harmony with the Gospel: how much error may a man teach in these days and still be reconciled to God?

8. Verses 20-22. When a church expels a devoted minister for no other reason than preaching a wrong doctrine, how is the action regarded in heaven and why?

9. In bringing the two dispensations is it likely that God "winked" at the Apostles trying to graft the law of Moses into Christianity, or was it God's plan that Jewish Christians should keep the laws?

10. Is it probable or not, and why, that James and the elders at Jerusalem knew of the full liberty of Christ's gospel or that "the law" was to be abandoned? (See Gal. 5:1-6. Heb. 8: 8-13, et seq.)

11. Verses 23-26. Did James and the elders give Paul good advice in this matter of the vow and of the four men shaving their heads and can you conceive that God was directing them to give such advice?

12. Did Paul do a wise thing or otherwise, and why, to join those four men in the matter of the vow, when he must have known he was joining in a useless ceremony?

13. Paul in one place states, "I am made all things to all men, that I might save some." How far may we carry out that principle without being guilty of deception?

14. Verses 23-26. Is it possible or not, and why, to live a very comfortable life, without "striving" or making any strenuous effort, and live a victorious "Christian life"?

15. Why cannot a Christian eat dainty food, eat more food than he needs for perfect health, use tobacco, engage in worldly frivolities, nor do anything which he would not do if he thought Christ was coming next week, and still retain the favor of God? Why?

16. Verses 27-28. What is the difference between a Christian who, from prejudice, speaks evil of another Christian, and those Jews who spake falsely of Paul?

17. Verses 29-30. Why should we never form an opinion, nor spread a rumor from mere appearances, without clear evidence that it is true?

18. Which generally raises the more excitement, a rumor or something very good about a man, or something very bad, and why is it so?

19. Verses 31-40. What is it in human nature which, when their anger is stirred, makes one class or race, or political party, or religious body, so cruel to another class, or race, or political party, or religious body?

20. Is there reason to believe or not, and why, that the temper of a twentieth century crowd stirred with anger against a man, is any more humane or fair, than that of this crowd?

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and above all, keep it up! As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening, and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast, act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

During the Mexican war the United States soldiers sang a song of the period which started "Green grow the grasses, oh." So the greasers called them gringoes.

How to avoid Operations

Hospitals are great and necessary institutions, but they should be the last resort for women who suffer with ills peculiar to their sex. Many letters on file in the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., prove that a great number of women after they have been recommended to submit to an operation have been made well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Here are three such letters. All sick women should read them.

Marinette, Wis.—"I went to the doctor and he told me I must have an operation for a female trouble, and I hated to have it done as I had been married only a short time. I would have terrible pains and my hands and feet were cold all the time. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and was cured, and I feel better in every way. I give you permission to publish my name because I am so thankful that I feel well again." —Mrs. Fred Behnke, Marinette, Wis.

Detroit, Mich.—"When I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was so run down with female troubles that I could not do anything, and our doctor said I would have to undergo an operation. I could hardly walk without help so when I read about the Vegetable Compound and what it had done for others I thought I would try it. I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and used them according to directions. They helped me and today I am able to do all my work and I am well." —Mrs. Thos. Dwyer, 989 Milwaukee Ave., East, Detroit, Mich.

Bellevue, Pa.—"I suffered more than tongue can tell with terrible bearing down pains and inflammation. I tried several doctors and they all told me the same story, that I never could get well without an operation and I just dreaded the thought of that. I also tried a good many other medicines that were recommended to me and none of them helped me until a friend advised me to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. The first bottle helped, I kept taking it and now I don't know what it is to be sick any more and I am picking up in weight. I am 20 years old and weigh 145 pounds. It will be the greatest pleasure to me if I can have the opportunity to recommend it to any other suffering woman."—Miss Irene Froelicher, 1923 Manhattan St., North Side, Bellevue, Pa.

If you would like special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Family Secret

It Came Out Gradually and Satisfactorily

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

When I was old enough to desire a child to play with me I said to my mother:

"Mamma, why haven't you another little girl for me to play with?"

She kissed me and told me that I had a little brother whom I had never seen, but he was coming home soon and I would have a companion. I was too young to seek for a reason why this brother, whom she called Georgie, had never been at home since I had been born. I simply accepted the fact and rejoiced that I would have a playmate.

Georgie arrived a couple of days later. He was several years older than I. I asked him where he had been living all the while, and he said that he supposed he had been with his mother, but a few days before he came to us she had told him that she was not his mother and then was sent to us.

Whatever explanation of all these matters was made to us was called forth by our childish questions, and they were answered vaguely. We looked upon each other as brother and sister. We lived in a place in the country where we saw no other children and when we began to be educated were placed in charge of a young woman who taught us the rudiments and as we grew older had tutors.

When I was ten years old something occurred that troubled me. A lady visitor called on my mother. I was in an adjoining room reading a story book and as quiet as a mouse.

"Is Clara still ignorant of the fact that she is not a Clayton?" asked the visitor. My mother's name was Clayton.

"Yes, but she is getting to an age when we shall find it hard to keep the secret."

"How about George?"

"He being older than Clara, we may expect still more difficulty in his case."

"I question it. Boys are not so curious about seeming trifles as girls. A boy's mind reaches out to discover what is going on without—how things are made and all that. A girl is curious about those things which immediately concern her."

I was thunderstruck. I could scarcely refrain from running into the other room and begging my mamma to explain what I had heard. But the presence of the visitor restrained me. I would wait till she had gone. I stole away and upstairs to my room, where I shut myself in and gave myself up to all kinds of (to me) terrible forebodings.

By this time George had grown old enough to crave the society of boys of his own age and was out playing ball with some of his friends. Therefore I did not see him before I had had a conference with mamma. This was perhaps fortunate. As soon as the visitor had gone I went to her and almost with tears in my eyes asked her what the lady had meant by saying that I was not a Clayton.

Mother was evidently quite put out at first, but presently she took me up on to her lap and said:

"I will explain this if you will promise to ask me nothing more till you become eighteen years of age."

I gave a reluctant promise, and she continued:

"Papa is not your real father. Your real father died when you were a baby, and I married papa when you were too young to know anything about it."

This was a great shock to me. Remembering how it affected me, I have ever since condemned the bringing up of children in ignorance of their true parentage. After what my mother told me I was curious to know about George. Forgetting my promise to ask no more questions, I begged mother to tell me about him. She considered for awhile, then said:

"George must soon know about his case, but not now. I will tell you about him if you will promise to keep what I say a secret from him for the present."

I gave the promise, and she continued:

"George is not your brother."

This was not the shock to me that the secret about my papa was. Possibly this was because of George's introduction into the family at a time when I was old enough to take cognizance of his coming. Mother continued:

"George's mother and I were very dear friends. She died when he was two years old, and George was given in charge of a woman who took care of him till he came here. I would have taken him at the time of his mother's death, but it was then impossible. There had been an arrangement between me and her to that effect, and I carried it out as soon as I was able to do so."

Mother paused here for awhile in order, I presume, to give me time to get somewhat used to what she had told me, then concluded what she was saying.

"And now, my dear little girl, I wish you to be brave and strong and say nothing to papa or George as to what you have learned, but leave it to me to make it all known whenever I find that it will give the least shock."

I made the promise sadly and kept it. This, for a child, great responsibility that was thrown upon me added several years to the few I had lived and made a woman of me earlier than I would have been without it. I presume my papa, as I continued to call him, was told that I had stumbled on the family secrets, but he never mentioned the matter to me nor I to him. There was no change in our treatment of each other except that, having learned that he had treated me as his daughter who was not his daughter, my affection for him increased rather than diminished.

I have since been quite proud of myself for giving mother a free rein as to what course she should take with regard to giving George his part of the family secret. From the day I gave her the promise to keep it I never mentioned it to her or asked her when she would tell him. This I think was more than was to be expected of a child. Month after month, year after year passed, and the matter was never mentioned.

But a time came when the relationship between George and me became a matter of importance. When he was in his eighteenth year and I fifteen he was treating me as a sister, while I knew he was not my brother. The statement of the lady through whom I had learned the facts that a boy looks without rather than within the home circle was verified in this case. George seemed to me to be very stupid about it. Nevertheless there were times when I wondered if he had not fallen upon the secret and was keeping his knowledge of it from me as I was keeping mine from him.

On his return from an absence when I was sixteen he took me in his arms and kissed me. Then, holding me off and looking at me, he saw a blush on my face.

"Look at the red!" he exclaimed, and, drawing me to him again, he gave me another kiss. Naturally this served to deepen the blush. I playfully boxed his ears, which, instead of making the matter appear more brotherly and sisterly, had the reverse effect.

"The last ear box I got for a kiss was for another fellow's sister," he said and, giving me a second kiss, released me. I stood for a moment panting, not knowing what to do or say, then walked away in a dignified manner, followed by a laugh from George, which made me feel that I had come very near a giveaway.

But a worse one followed. A friend of mine, Bessy Lawrence, made me a visit, and George seemed to me to be very much struck with her. This was the first revelation to me of the fact that I did not relish any other girl stepping in between George and me. I tried not to show jealousy, but did not succeed. Bess ended her visit in a huff, and George asked me what in the world was the matter with me. Since I could not explain, I walked out of the room, leaving him to put his own interpretation on my action.

There seemed to be plenty of funds in our family, and, since George was not in a hurry to settle down to business, he concluded to spend a year in travel. He asked me to go with him; but, knowing what I did, of course I declined. He urged me for some time, insisting on my giving him a reason for my refusal. I gave him a number of them—all trumped up—and he laughed at me. When he started on his journey he called out:

"I won't promise!" I shouted. And he drove away, waving his handkerchief till I could see him no more.

He returned in six months, and after the first welcome, when he and I were alone together, he came to me and said:

"Sis, do you know the reason why I came home sooner than I intended?"

"No. Why "

"Because I couldn't stay any longer away from my dear sister."

"You'll be saying that to some other fellow's sister pretty soon."

"Have you a brother?"

"What a question!"

"If you have I'm saying it to some other fellow's sister now."

I wondered if he could have got the secret.

"Sit down here," he added, drawing me to an easy chair big enough for us both. Then he continued:

"You and I were betrothed the day you were born. I have not known these things as long as you have, but I have known more than you. I have long known that papa and mamma are not my real parents. My real parents I never saw. My real mother arranged with my second mother that I should come into this family and be brought up with you, hoping that we would make a match. When it came time for me to come here mamma settled everything in her own way, and I consider it the right way. She is not to be blamed for anything, though some persons will say that she made a mistake. She certainly gave you a brother and me a sister. It now remains to be seen whether we shall be transformed from the grub brother and sister to the butterfly lover and lovers."

The rest would only sound pleasing if given in the terms of the novelist, who caused the hero lover to declare himself in terms that have been carefully written and duly worked over. I need only add that an understanding of the situation, as had been intended years before, and its termination were a relief and a matter of satisfaction to our dear papa and mamma as well as to ourselves.

JOHNNY'S MANNERS.

Where the carefully-trained child learns bad manners is a standing mystery to its watchful parents. These anxious readers of the young are often heard propounding this query, but generally without result. Once in a while, however, out of the deep silence, comes an illuminating answer.

Johnny furnished one just the other day. He had just finished a particularly toothsome dish of apple pudding, which he ate to the last morsel. Then, despite the fact that there was company at the table, he deliberately picked up his saucer and licked it clean.

"Johnny!" exclaimed his mother, after a horrified gasp, "who did you ever see do a thing like that?"

"Dogs," replied Johnny.—Life.

"Pa, what is a bluff?"

"A bluff, my boy, is the wail the average travelling man makes about the money he loses every week on his expense account."

WHEN THE GERMANS CREMATED A LIVE BAKER IN HIS OWN OVEN

(By Herbert Corey.)

GERBERVILLERS. — This is not primarily a story of murder. It is the story of the discovery of that murder, of the amassing of proof against the murderer, of the proof of that old adage that "murder will out." There is something about blood guiltiness, it seems that forces confession. A man may be a thief and hold his tongue for years. Once he touches blood the story forever hangs at the tip of his tongue.

Two years ago the Germans burned Gerbervillers. The world knows the story. Sixty chasseurs with a pair of machine guns held up a German army at the crossing of the little river that runs through this rural village. The German artillery had not come up, by which the sixty might have been blown away. The river was in flood and could not be forded. No army can charge down a narrow lane toward machine guns while the guns have cartridges and the men have marrow. It cannot be done. It is not a matter of courage or lack of courage. It is an impossibility.

So that the Germans burned the town when the sixty chasseurs finally ran short of cartridges and went quietly away. The Germans also led fifteen old men out into a pasture field and blinded their eyes and shot them down in groups of five. Many other things were done, for the policy of terrorization was then being tried out. The Germans still believed that war could be made so terrible that France would quit fighting—being a fresh proof of the German inability to understand the psychology of another people. The townspeople who remained during this reign of terror, were hysterical with fright for the most part. It was only later that they began to piece together from each other's story a comprehensive idea of what had happened.

"But, the baker," they asked. "Where is the baker?"

The baker had disappeared. No one knew what had become of him. His house had been burned down and had fallen in a mass of calcined brick and stone upon his baking ovens. Somehow, no one knew how — the story could not be traced—the tale grew that the baker had been thrust into one of his ovens and burned alive by the soldiers. No one had seen it. No one could be found who had been told this grisly thing by a German. But the tale was there. It would not be forgotten.

"Let us search his ovens," the villagers have asked Sister Julie, that nun who has more courage than any army corps, and who drew her six trembling sister nuns in line behind her to oppose a German army, and who opposed it successfully. Nothing appeals more quickly to the German than that sort of courage. But Sister Julie pooh-poohed the idea.

"Who heard the story first?" she asked. "Give me some proof there is truth in this story before we go digging in a pile of dusty ruins. There are more important things to do. Who is to feed my old people and my little ones while you please yourself by idly digging about in dusty ruins?"

The story would not die. It had an amazing vitality. Of all the stories of murder in Gerbervillers this one seemed the most enduring and the most fragile. It rested upon not an atom of proof, but every one believed it excepting hard-headed Sister Julie and her six nuns, who devoutly believe what Sister Julie believes, and no more. This week a soldier whose home is at Gerbervillers came back on permission. It was his first permission during the war. For two years he had only known that his home town had been stamped out of existence.

"And they say," his townspeople wound up their narrative of sack and flames, "that the Germans burned the baker alive."

"I know all about the baker," was the soldier's surprising answer. "They burned him in his upper oven. He screamed as they thrust him in."

Last week on the Somme the army of the French took many thousands of prisoners. This Gerbervillers man was one of those who was sent out to guard them, with others of the Gerbervillers company. One of the Germans examined his regimental insignia with interest. The German looked at it and then turned away, and finally came back again.

"Your regiment," said he, "was raised around Gerbervillers?"

The French soldier asked some questions. The German said that he and others of the prisoners had been present at the burning of Gerbervillers.

"If my officer would let me, I would slip my bayonet through your middle," said the French soldier gritting his teeth.

"You would be right," said the German soldier. "We did awful things there. I did none of them. I kept my hands clean. But the others did them. It was an order."

They talked off and on for three days. The German seemed to have something on his mind. He would lead up to the subject and then shy away from it. At last he bolted. He could resist no longer. The sentence came from him as though he could not close his teeth on it.

"We burned the baker in his upper oven," said he. "He shrieked as we thrust him in."

The French soldier got all the names and all the details from the German. Then he came home to Gerbervillers on permission and after everything else had been talked over, this story of the baker came to the front. The French soldier went to Sister Julie with his new evidence, and that capable woman (she is the mayor and police force in Gerbervillers now) ordered that the debris be cleared away and the ovens be opened. They had never been touched from the day the Germans fired the town.

The Appetite of Youth Quickly Restored

Appetite is useless unless digestion is good. Dr. Hamilton's Pills make tremendous appetite and keep digestion up to the mark as well. The liver, bowels and kidneys are stimulated, the stomach strengthened, and robust health quickly follows. Dr. Hamilton's Pills instill vigor and snap into the system, make folks feel youthful and happy. You'll forget you have a stomach, forget your days of sickness if Dr. Hamilton's Pills are used. Insist on having Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, no other medicine so good.

WHEN THE APRIL FISH WENT FISHING.

One day in early spring two young men were sauntering along a path through the woods just outside a New England college town. When they reached a little spring they stopped for a drink. They were about to proceed on their way when their eyes caught the glint of a small metal box lying close up under a jagged stone in the pool just below the spring.

"What do you suppose that is, Billy?"

"Don't know, Henry. I'm going to fish it up and find out."

The water in the pool was two or three feet deep; the stone proved to be heavier than it appeared to be, and it rested on one end of the metal box, which was partly sunken in the gravel of the pool. There was much puffing and splashing and damage to clothing before the box was landed.

Opening it, the two found within a flat piece of wood, at which they gazed in solemn silence.

"This is undoubtedly the day after the last day of March, Billy," responded the other gravely.

The wood within the metal box was thus inscribed:

"Have the kindness to replace me, without needless delay, in the nice, shiny metal box, and then carefully wedge us back under the big rock, so that we can catch the eye of the next fool freshman that happens along."

Then ensued more puffing, more splashing and further damage to clothing, until everything was in place again.

Molasses Cream Cake.

One cupful of molasses, one-half cupful sugar, one egg, two and a half cupfuls of flour, one dessertspoonful of soda, salt, one dessertspoonful of cassia, cloves and nutmeg, one cup of sour cream. Beat all together. Bake in sheet tin. Very light like a sponge cake.

Germans Have Fallen Back

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, Sept. 8.—The War Office admits that the Germans in Eastern Galicia, have fallen back before the Russian attacks and also near Zlota River.

AN ODE TO CANADA.

Ye sprightly muses, who from realms of light,
First came to illumine, man's dark rayless night;
Touch my cold lips and tongue with living fire,
With patriotic love my heart inspire.
That I may sing, by deep devotion taught,
Thy praise, dear land, where heaven has cast my lot.

How passing fair, thy beauteous vernal bowers,
Where summer reigns, bedecked with fragrant flowers
And jubilant, a warbling feathered throng;
Pours on the air, a flood of silvery song;
Ten thousand charms of smiling nature lie,
Luxuriant 'neath they cloudless azure sky.

Forest primeval, glorious and grand,
Defiant, firm and storm king's power withstand;
Like giant sentinels, with burnished spear,
Their frowning heights, hold mountain ranges rear;
Laud of broad rivers, lakes and sparkling stream,
Wherein the finny tribes abundant teem.

League after league, thy boundless western plain,
Rolls a rich tide of yellow ripening grain;
To bless the laborers toil, the fertile fields,
Their wealthy stores of harvest plenty yields;
The graceful maple, which adorns thy hills,
Sweet nectar worthy of the gods distils.

And even when blustering Boreous ruckly blows,
Whirling in wreathing clouds the fleecy snows;
On the smooth bosom of the ice bound lake,
To gaily glide, what thrilling pleasures wake;
Or o'er the beaten track with snorting steed,
To music of the jingling bells to speed.

In peaceful homes, blest type of heaven on earth,
Calm flows the current, of sweet social mirth;
Warm cheering beams, benignant friendship throws,
A cordial welcome, every stranger knows;
And witnesses for God, tall church spires rise,
Thus pointing to our home beyond the skies.

No foot of slave thy sacred soil may tread,
Nor fill oppression, lift her ensign red;
Justice and mercy, on they councils wait,
And freedom site enthroned within thy gate;
Here every race, home born or alien draws,
The sure protection of impartial laws.

Sons of thy sod, if need be proudly die,
That free unfurled the Union Jack may fly;
And her best boast that Canada can claim,
Fair virtuous daughters of a spotless fame;
Within these borders, every good we find,
That favoring heaven, bestows upon mankind.

The dews above, with vernal showers combine,
With sparkling treasures of the nether mine;
From where Atlantic heaves her briny crest,
To calm Pacific shimmering in the west;
From further north to loud Niagara's foam,
No country's fairer, 'neath the vaulted dome.

Amid fair bowers, where first my life began,
Contented would I spend the alloted span;
And fain at last would find a tranquil rest,
Enfolded close to that maternal breast;
While soft the gentle zephers murmur by,
And o'er me shines the blue Canadian sky.

Grain Markets Were Easier

Grain Was a Cent Lower and Corn Half a Cent Higher—The Cattle Markets

The grain markets were generally easier yesterday, wheat futures at both Chicago and Winnipeg closing below Wednesday. Manitoba cash wheat was a cent lower, and corn half a cent higher. Feed barley was three cents off, and Ontario new winter flour up ten cents. On the farmer's market, bundled straw advanced $4 a ton and loose $1 to $2 a ton.

Manitoba wheat, track bay ports—No. 1 northern, $1.72; No. 2, $1.70 No. 3, $1.66

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, 52c to 54c; No. 3 white, 51c to 53c.

Ontario wheat—No. 1 commercial, $1.22 to $1.24; No. 2 commercial $1.18 to $1.20; No. 3 commercial, $1.14 to $1.16; feed, 98c to $1; No. 2 new crop $1.28 to $1.30.

Peas—No. 3 nominal, car lots, $2 to $2.10.

Manitoba flour—First patents in jute, bags, $8.40; second patents in jute, 7.90; strong bakers, in jute $7.70 Toronto.

Ontario flour, new—Winter, $5.70 to $5.80, in bags, track, Toronto, according to sample, seaboard, in bulk $5.60 to $5.70.

Millfeed—Car lots, delivered Montreal; shorts, $29; bran $28; good feed flour, per bag, $2.25; midlings $30.

Hay—Baled, No. 1, track, Toronto best grade new hay, car lots, $10 to $12; No. 2, $9 to $9.50; straw, $6 to $7.

CATTLE MARKET.

Receipts at the Toronto Union Stock Yards yesterday were 24 cars with 156 cattle, 25 calves, 887 hogs, 326 sheep.

The light run of cattle at the Union Stock Yard was mostly of the poorer grade, though the few choice beasts brought in sold well up at the top quotation, choice heavy steers selling up a few cents. Common cattle sold fairly steady.

Hogs were decidedly firm, selling $12.10 off cars.

Spring lambs were easier, selling down half a cent.

Calves were fairly easy, the poor quality accounting in part for the lower quotation.

The market was generally slow and draggy, though the very small run was easily cleaned up. With the exception of the firm tone in choice steers and the weakness in lambs and calves, prices were much the same.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

To keep a cake from sticking to a pan, grease as usual, then throw in a little flour and dust all around the pan.

Ice cream spots on silk should be sponged with clear water to dissolve the sugar, then use naptha or ether for the grease, always having a fresh blotter underneath the goods.

A nice way to serve squash is to cut it into thin slices, put in a cheese cloth bag and boil in well salted water. Carefully remove the slices, without breaking to a hot platter, and pour melted butter over them.

Crabapples minced and pickled, make a nice relish.

Very sheer material should be pressed on a soft surface without dampening.

Equal parts of lemon juice and glycerine will whiten the skin. If there is the slightest tendency to superfluous hair never use fat or oil of any kind on the skin.

Jet may be cleaned with alcohol and water.

Chloride of lime sprinkled around where rats are will drive them away, and peppermint oil will keep mice away.

To clean matting, wipe it with a cloth wrung out of salt water. This will also keep it from turning yellow.

Mix a little vinegar with the stove polish and the blacking will not fly off in fine dust and it will take less rubbing to make the range bright.

FASHION JOTS.

Even hats are made of silk jersey.

The skirts of fur coats will be full.

The waist line threatens to creep up.

Evening wraps are exceedingly full.

New fur coats define the waist line.

Taffeta silk trims mousseline dresses.

The jackets of the new suits will be long.

Box-pleated skirts will be worn this fall.

Fall promises more fur trimming than ever.

Shades of tan and gray will be fashionable.

High neck nightgowns are coming into fashion.

Square necks are most becoming in bathing suits.

There is a decided preference for the white blouse.

Just for the fall wear a white taffeta Tam o'Shanter.

Flat trimming continues to be fashionable in millinery.

We are told that the fall suits are going to show a decided waist-line.

Printed silks in novel designs will be used for lining purposes.

Ribbed taffeta silks are very popular and will continue to be.

Fringe will be much employed in the trimming of winter hats.

Only the slender woman can wear bouffant fashions successfully.

A PLACE FOR EVERYTHING.

In the home of a recently married couple the kitchen closets testify to careful planning on the part of the little bride, who superintended this part of the building. There were two closets without the cupboard, and they were built out from the wall of lovely yellow pine boards. They were painted to match the wainscoting of the kitchen—a lovely greyish green.

One closet reached to the height of six feet, was about two feet deep and about 2 1-2 ft. wide. The door, which swung out very easily on hinges, was very shallow at the bottom but widened to a depth of a foot at least at the top. This made the closet look as if it were a long box put on end and slit diagonally down its length. On the doors were many shelves and racks for saucepans, cooking utensils of all kinds and trays, the coffee and tea pots. In the shallow part of the closet at the top were nails for ladles and long spoons, which would not fit in the kitchen table drawer. Beneath the closet was deep enough to hold the dishpans and large kettles.

The advantage of this closet is that one can get at any article without reaching too high and without disturbing any other article.

"An apple a day keeps the doctor away," says the old saw. A contributor to the "Rural New Yorker" betters this advice by saying: "Talk about 'pink pills for pale people'; there is more health-giving virtue in the big red and yellow pills grown on an apple tree than in all the drug store remedies. I don't mean nibbling daintily at an apple once a day, but having them at meals, sauce, pies, baked, and eating from three to six raw daily." Golden Sweet, Hubbardston, and Smokehouse are the varieties recommended for this generous regimen, and two of these are described as large in size.

A YEAR INDOORS.

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad, and smothering feelings came on till I thought that I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESS

By Anabel Worthington

The popularity of the one piece dress is so well established that it is not necessary to dwell on the advantages of such a garment. However, when we see one that is particularly serviceable and sightly we like to sharpen our eyes to every detail of its designing.

In the illustration, No. 7,869, we have a very stylish and youthful looking model. The over blouse effect is cleverly suggested by a designer who fashioned the collar and vest in one piece and in contrasting color. The waist fronts are gathered at the shoulder seams and stitched to the vest trimmed with tiny pearl buttons in groups. The crown cuff on a short length sleeve is of material in the collar and vest. Long sleeves are provided for in the pattern.

A raised waist line is used for the skirt in six gores, which is smartly pocketed at each side front gore and made with a narrow seamed panel down the front. As in the waist, the skirt has its closing in front. The use of a belt is optional.

Linen, cotton poplin, plain white and striped gabardine, figured voile, lawn and silk are some of the fabrics to be considered for developing this design.

The pattern, No. 7,869, is cut in sizes 36-42 bust measure. To make in size 36 will require 4⅝ yards of 36 inch material for the dress and 1⅛ yards 27 inch plain goods for collar, vest and cuffs, also the pocket trim.

You may obtain the pattern by sending 15 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

The Foe's Counter Attacks Fail Completely

FRESH FRENCH SUCCESS AT VERDUN

French Completely Stop All Enemy's Counter Attacks

Hold All Ground Gained and in Addition Make Fresh Gains at Verdun---Berlin Admits Loss of Trenches South of the Somme and in the Verdun Sector---Roumanian Towns Occupied by Bulgars and Germans.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

PARIS (French Official Communique), September 8.—Four attacks in dense formations were launched by the Germans south of the Somme last night between Vermandevilliers and Chaulnes. None of the attacks succeeded in reaching any French positions, and the French took 200 more prisoners, the War Office announced to-day. The Germans attacked heavily against the new French positions between Berny and a point south of Chaulnes, suffering heavy losses. North of the Somme there was great artillery activity but no infantry fighting.

The French made further progress on the Verdun front last night by grenade attacks. A German attack at Vaux Chapitre, where the French made a most successful drive Wednesday night, was repulsed.

SUCCESSFUL BRITISH RAID NEAR LILLE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, September 8.—British troops southwest of Lille last night raided the German trenches southeast of Guinchy and near Richebourg Lavoue, inflicting severe losses on the occupants, says a British official statement issued this afternoon.

IRON GATE TAKEN BY THE ROUMANIANS

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, September 8.—A Bucharest despatch to the Times to-day reported that the Roumanians have occupied Orsova at the "iron gate" to Hungary. Vienna admitted this some days ago.

Roumanian Towns Are Occupied By Enemy

Special to The Examiner:

SOFIA, September 8.—Bulgarian and German forces have occupied the Roumanian towns of Dobsic, Balchik, Cavarna and Kaliakpa. Teutonic gunners are shelling the railway station at Turn Severin.

Berlin Admits Loss Of Trenches To French

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, September 8.—The Germans have lost trench sections to the French in the fighting south of the Somme, west of Berny, and also northeast of Souville, on the Verdun front.

Three British Boats Are Sunk By Subs.

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, September 8.—The Ellerman liner Tagus and the British steamer Strathay have been sunk. Thirty-four of the latter's crew were rescued.

The British steamer Hazelwood was sunk off Yarmouth. Later despatches reported that all the crew of the steamer Strathay have been saved. The Tagus displaced 5,566 tons. The Hazelwood displaced 3,102 tons.

The Return of Florence Johnstone

Eminent English Actress and Her Company of Star Performers Are Still Attracting a Large Share of Attention

The return last evening of the eminent actress, Florence Johnstone and her company attracted a large audience to the Grand Opera House. The company will remain here until Monday night and will present all new plays together with a matinee on Saturday afternoon. The production last evening was that quaint English comedy—"Merely Mary Ann". The play was well handled and the individual work of the performers was excellent. To-night the company will present "Kindling". This is something new and should attract a large gathering of Peterborough theatre goers.

WOMEN FAINTED WHEN STORM HIT KENILWORTH

Some Timbers Fell and Race-goers Rushed From Grandstand

KENILWORTH RACE TRACK, Windsor, Sept. 8. — A violent wind and rain-storm broke across the Kenilworth race track yesterday just after the second race. The cyclone preceded the rain and blew the dust in clouds into the grand stand. Some loose timbers falling caused the race-goers to rush out of the stand, but there was no panic, and no one was hurt, although several women fainted. The rain was most refreshing after the intense heat. The track was rendered sloppy by the rain.

The surfaces of roads are planed, scarified, rolled and made ready for use in a single trip over them of a machine that a Pennsylvania has invented.

AVIATOR WILL ATTEMPT RECORD FLIGHT TO-DAY

Victor Carlstrom to Try to Fly From Toronto to Ottawa, on to Montreal and Return to Toronto

WILL CARRY PASSENGER

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—The greatest long distance flight ever attempted in Canada will be made to-day when Victor Carlstrom, one of the most noted of the Curtis flyers, will fly from Toronto to Ottawa, accompanied by a member of The Mail and Empire staff, and deliver personally to Premier Borden an important message from J. A. McCurdy, head of the Curtis Aeroplanes and Motors, Limited, who has been the vital factor in the organization of the Curtis Long Branch Aviation School, which has sent 450 trained flyers to the front, and which is at present training 150 other for the aerial branch of the service.

The message from Mr. McCurdy will touch on the question of a Canadian Air Service, a question that has been growing more and more important with each day's progress of the war. It is felt that Canada should assume some responsibility in the training of aviators and should also have some credit for the splendid type of men that she has sent to the front to undertake the most perilous of all combatants' work. It is expected that the flight from Toronto to the capital of the Dominion will be a big factor in stirring the public up to a realization of the great role that aeroplanes will play in conducting the war to a successful conclusion. It is also expected that the flight will be of assistance to the Government who have under consideration at the moment the future of the Canadian Air Service, and that it will have the effect of hastening their decision.

On to Montreal.

Mr. Carlstrom will rise from the Long Branch field at 10.30 a.m. to-day unless weather conditions are so bad as to render flight impossible. He will be using a Curtis Aerial R2 type of machine which is a little larger than the type of machine now in use for instruction purposes at the Long Branch School. Its motor is of the well-known Curtis type and of 160 horse power.

The aviator expects to make the flight, a distance of 266 miles, as the crow flies, in about three hours, or in other words, to travel at an average speed of little more than 85 miles an hour. At Ottawa, Mr. Carlstrom will have to choose his place of landing, in itself a difficult task. Upon landing he will immediately deliver the message to Premier Borden, and then after a couple of hours rest will proceed to Montreal, a distance of about 109 miles. He expects to reach Montreal in a little more than an hour after leaving Ottawa, and so should be here before sunset.

Return Over St. Lawrence.

Mr. Carlstrom will pass the night at Montreal, and plans to return to Toronto the following day, following the River St. Lawrence as a guide.

The total distance to be covered in these flights will be approximately 700 miles, a flight which has never before been attempted in Canada, and which has been carried out but a few times in the entire history of aviation.

ALLIES WILL GIVE GERMANS NO REST

LONDON, September 8.—Renewed infantry onslaughts by the Anglo-French troops of even great magnitude than the successful strokes early this week on the Somme, are certain to follow the incessant night and day bombardment of the German lines. The Allies intend to give the Germans no rest. Plentifully supplied with fresh troops, the programme is to pound steadily at the German lines with a view of wearing out and demoralising the Teuton soldiers and preventing troop movements to the East. The evening newspapers to-day reported that the Germans are now holding on to several points on the Somme front, most precariously, and may be compelled to surrender several places under the next great smash.

HOW SERGT. FRED THOMAS MET DEATH WITH WORKING PARTY

Q. M. S. Sam Thomas Describes the Heroic End of His Brother---Was Shot Through the Throat While Directing Work of His Men Under Trying Circumstances--247th Men Are Making a Canvass---To-day's General Military News.

Details of the death of her husband, Sergt. F. A. Thomas, of the 21st Battalion, have been received by Mrs. F. A. Thomas, Brown street, from her brother-in-law, Quartermaster Sergt. Sam Thomas, and From Sergt. R. C. Custance, both of the 21st Battalion. Q. M. S. Thomas writes as follows:

Aug. 22, 1916.

A few lines trusting they reach you safely and find you and the children well. This letter offers an arduous task but duty compels. I have lost the best chum of my life.

Ottawa will have notified you long before my letter informs you. You know this life of our is full of dangers and this particular struggle is all chance.

Fred had been detailed for a working party the night of the 20th inst. The nature of the work was the construction of a new trench. Fred had many new men under his supervision and to make progress with his allotment was assisting in laying sand bags on the parapet under trying conditions. German snipers and machine guns were very busy and one of the bullets found its billet in Fred's throat. He never spoke after he was hit and died before he reached the dressing station. I was notified by our own adjutant (Lieut. Cunningham, Fred's old platoon commander) of the occurence, and proceeded to where he was. He bore his natural expression on his face and one that I will never forget. You have my deepest sympathy dear sister and also that of Col. E. W. Jones and his officers and comrades, who related to me their sincere regret. I have the sorrowful honour to convey you their condolences.

Fred was buried at 5 p.m. on the 21st of August with the highest respects of all his officers, and the whole of his company attended the service, including many officers of the battalion and those who were particularly intimate with him escorted him to his resting place."

Sergt. Custance writes:

With great regret I am writing this letter to tell you that Sergt. F. A. Thomas was killed on the night on August 20. Perhaps you will have received some kind of notification from Ottawa by now, but I think it is part of my duty to write to you to show our sympathy on your behalf, because you know that Fred, Sam and myself were always together when at Kingston.

Death came almost instantly through a bullet wound in the neck. I was not there at the time, but one of the boys who was there said that Fred dropped right where he was and that not a word was heard to come from him. We buried him in the 21st cemetery about 5 p.m., on the 21st and a cross was erected the next day."

The Toronto Telegram says: Local hockey fans will be surprised to hear that "Vic" Gilbert, the clever net guardian of last year's Argonaut O.H.A. senior team, is now in khaki. He is a sergeant with the 238th Forestry Battalion, with headquarters at Ottawa. Gilbert was considered the best net guardian in the game last year, and his great work always attracted much attention at the Arena. In fact it was his playing that had so much to do with the splendid showing of the Double Blue. Near the close of the season, just when the Argos had a chance for the championship, Gilbert was taken ill on the afternoon of one of the important games, and had to be rushed to the hospital, where he was operated on for appendicitis. It was thought that he would be unable to pass the doctor for enlistment on account of the operation.

Kingston Whig: Major G. I. Campbell, Chief Recruiting Officer for Military District No. 3, was at Barriefield Camp on Wednesday in consultation with officers of the units located there. The major is trying to devise some scheme that will bring in sufficient recruits to send all of the units out of the district at full strength. To do this advantage of the season must be taken owing to the probability of the orders for immediate overseas service being expected at any time. There are very few days, or weeks at the most, in which the work may be done, and for this reason the greatest speed must be shown.

The fall fairs will be taken advantage of to the fullest extent, and no one is a closer student of the dates for the fall fairs than the officers of the units at the camp. To every one, without regard to the place in which it is held a recruiting staff will be sent. They will conduct meetings, and the visitors to the fairs will have given them a full explanation of why the Empire now needs men. The requirements of the service will be detailed and the most strenuous effort of personal appeals will be made to bring in more men to the khaki ranks.

At present the details for the plans have not been completed, except in cases where the fairs are already being held. Every commanding officer has taken the matter up and will detail parties for the work.

OTTAWA, Sept. 7.—New regulations are being provided for ensuring the fitness of men accepted for service in the expeditionary force. Recruiting officers are to be required to make certain that men entering the force are within the age limits, and medical officers will also be called upon to exercise great care against the admission of unfit men. A recruit will be examined first by the local medical officer at the place of enlistment, and on reaching the mobilization centre he will be re-examined by a medical board, after he is finally attached for overseas service. If there is any doubt as to his condition, he may be re-examined on request by the medical officer.

Steps are being taken also to keep some sort of record of men rejected for unfitness, probably by obtaining from such men signed cards, certifying to their rejection. This is for the purpose of preventing men once rejected from applying at other places, a common practice.

OTTAWA, Sept. 7.—It is expected that Canada will have contributed two thousand recruits at least for the Royal navy, by the end of the year, under the arrangement announced by Hon. J. D. Hazen, last night, in Toronto. The plan agreed upon between the Canadian Government and the Admiralty provides for a maximum of five thousand men. They will be recruited in Canada and sent to England for the major part of their training. In the work of enlistment the Government will have the services of Captain, the Hon. Rupert Guinness, who came to Canada some weeks ago for the purpose of securing recruits for the navy.

One of the principal difficulties has been the inequality in the rates of pay as between the British and Canadian services, the pay of the British sailor being much below that prevailing in the Canadian naval service as well as in the land army. This difficulty is being overcome by the new scheme under which men enlisted in Canada will receive Canadian rates of pay.

Sharp Defeats For The Austrian Forces

Roumanians Successful on Both North-western and North-eastern Fronts in Transylvania While Germans and Bulgars Win Battle on Southern Frontier.

RUSSIANS TO HELP

LONDON, Sept. 7.—On both the extreme north-western and north-eastern fronts the Roumanians have inflicted sharp defeats on the Austrians. In the former region the pass of Gyergo-Ditro-Orsova has been seized together with seven machine guns and important food stores. In the north west Vienna admits a retreat before a Roumanian encircling movement which took place 20 miles within Hungarian territory. Heights south-west of Dorna Watra have been conceded to the Roumanians. The Austrians retired to the heights west of Olah Toplotaa.

Air raids against a number of important Roumanian cities have aroused a demand for reprisals against German, Austrian, Bulgarian and Turkish residents, according to a Bucharest despatch. Bombs were dropped on the capital Constanza, Ploesta, and other cities.

Meanwhile the Germans and Bulgarians have won an important success on the Roumanian southern frontier. They have captured the important fortress of Turtukai, 37 miles south-east of Bucharest, and one of the principal outlying defences of the Roumanian capital. The armored defence works were blown to pieces by heavy artillery, and more than 20,000 Roumanians, including two generals and 400 other officers, were taken prisoners. The invaders captured 100 guns. The fall of the fortress opens the way for a passage of the Danube and an advance up the valley which leads direct to Bucharest.

The Berlin official report says: "The victorious German and Bulgarian forces have taken the strongly fortified town of Turtukai by storm. The number of prisoners taken by them, according to accounts already received exceeds 20,000 among whom are two generals and more than 400 officers. More than 100 cannon were captured. The Roumanians suffered heavy casualties.

Large Russian forces have joined the Roumanians in the defence of their southern frontier, and already are striking back at the Germans and Bulgarians. The Russians engaged in strong counter-attacks against Dorbric, which recently fell into the hands of the Bulgarians, and appear to have checked the invasion in this section.

In explanation of the capture of the Roumanian garrison at Turtukai, a Sofia despatch to the Vossische Zeitung, received here by way of Copenhagen, says that the Roumanians were prevented from retiring across the Danube by the violent artillery fire of the attacking forces. It became a case of annihilation or surrender, and the garrison surrendered.

CANADA'S DEBT NEARLY DOUBLED SINCE WAR BEGAN

Now Stands at 658 Millions, an Increase of 186 Millions Since This Time Last Year—War Expenditure is Heavy

24 MILLIONS IN AUGUST

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 8.—Canada's net debt stands at 658 millions. This is an increase of 186 millions since this time last year. The net debt has nearly doubled since the war commenced. The total revenue for the month of August amounted to 16 1-2 millions, an increase of about two and quarter millions over that for August, 1915. Customs receipts accounted for an increase of a million and a half, excise for an increase of 300 thousand, and public works, including railways, for an increase of over half a million. The post office receipts, despite additional stamp tax on one cent, show a decrease of nearly half a million dollars. The total ordinary expenditure for August was ten million dollars. The war expenditure for the month reached a substantial total of 24 millions. For the first five months of the fiscal year ended with August 31, the total revenue amounted to 84 millions, an increase of 24 millions over the corresponding period last year. The total ordinary expenditures for the five months amounted to 38 millions, which is an increase over last year. For the five months the expenditure on war reached the formidable total of 76 millions.

Mr. Rowell Visits Scotland, Ireland and England

Special to Examiner:

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Mr. Newton W. Rowell, K.C., M.P.P., leader of the Ontario Opposition, has returned to London after visiting both Scotland and Ireland. On September the 5th he went to Birmingham to attend the Trades Union Congress.

During his visit to Scotland he viewed a portion of the British fleet, being received on board H. M. S. "Lion," by Admiral Beatty, of Jutland battle fame.

In Ireland Mr. Rowell was royally entertained at Dublin and Belfast by the Lord Mayors and leading citizens. He has devoted much attention to agricultural questions, seeing many leaders both Nationalists and Unionists.

To-night the Ontario Liberal leader addressed a prohibition meeting here, and emphasized the fact that prohibition could never have been carried in Ontario unless by the hearty co-operation of the men who took a social glass themselves, but realized the necessity of absolute prohibition at the present time.

BIG BLUFFING.

A great many have wondered at the extraordinary antics of Uncle Sam during this war. But he is not responsible when domestic politics comes into play. We have seen him "grin and bear it" as if he liked it, when Germany walked all over him. Germany has murdered United States citizens on the high seas and not a word of effective protest; only polite little deprecatory diplomatic notes. It would have alienated a certain voting element and wouldn't have changed other votes, if President Wilson had stood up to Germany like a man. Of course, in the case of the Lusitania, only the lives of American citizens were taken; and human life is not valuable — not a negotiable commodity since Lincoln abolished slavery. But Uncle Sam gets very much "on his ear" when trade, commerce, and money are at stake. Drastic law measures involving boycott, non intercourse, closing of mails, etc., engage the attention of the law makers. When flesh and blood are held so cheap, bread—business—must be held dear. But we mustn't take Uncle Sam seriously at election times. He is great at bluffing. A voter that has voted is a dead 'un and after the presidential election is over the Eagle will cease to scream.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

The latest "Public Service Bulletin" issued by the Ontario Government contains much useful and interesting information. The section devoted to the Workman's Compensation Act emphasizes the importance of this beneficent measure. While the ordinary machinery of the law has rested during the big vacation, the work of the Compensation Board has gone steadily on. Adjudication of claims and awards and payments to injured workmen and their dependants have been made during the holiday season as usual.

It is stated than an average of 270 new claims are being allowed weekly in addition to more than twice that number of continuing and pension payments, making a total of 850 compensation cheques issued each week. The average weekly compensation being paid is about $22,000, at the rate of more than a million a year. If this act had been in force during the eleven years since the present government came into power and compensation made at the present rate, the workmen of the province would have received more than 12 million dollars.

One advantageous feature of the present law over the old way is that law suits to collect compensation, with their big expense to both employer and employee, the prolonged duration, the heart-burning and creation of hostility between employers and men, are a thing of the past. All that is usually necessary is to meet the requirements of the act, calling for workmen promptly reporting accidents to employers and prompt reference to the Compensation Board, these, in addition to the report of the doctor are sufficient in ordinary cases for the award of compensation, though, of course, in some cases special investigation is required and carefully made. The sole conditions of compensation required are that the injury must have arisen in the course of employment and all the old questions of negligence, contributory negligence, voluntary acceptance of risk or other requirements of the old law are set aside. Compensation, adequate and prompt is the rule instead of the exception as in the past.

Under the old law compensation if allowed after long and tedious and expensive law action or inaction was fixed as a lump sum by the judge or by the jury, both having little or much sympathy in the matter. Now it is paid in instalments, and at a certain definite rate. For disability of the workman the allowance is 55 per cent. of his earning capacity, while in case of death, the allowance is $20 per month to the widow and $5 per month for each child, or where only children are left, $10 per month for each child, the total, however, not to exceed $40 per month or 55 per cent. of the workman's average wage. This is an improvement over payment in a lump sum, when there is a possibility of the compensation being badly invested or frittered away or falling into the hands of a second husband to the detriment of the step children.

Instead of the act being a detriment to the employer, it is an advantage; there are created better relations between workmen and employer; causes of friction are removed. The employer who pays his assessment under the act is immune from costly law proceedings and liability to heavy damages. He knows approximately his liability and by providing for it is thereafter free from liability, unless he incures a special responsibility by reason of unsafe conditions of his machinery or premises.

The chief good feature of the Compensation Act is its fairness to both employer and employee; its avoidance of law proceedings, always costly and seldom satisfactorily and never to both sides, as is possible under awards made under the present law, and the certainty that the workman and his family are not unprotected in case of accident.

MEN AND MUNITIONS.

The Montreal Mail has the following:

There is abundant evidence on every side that Canada is wholeheartedly in this war for a fight to a finish. To falter at this stage would be suicidal. It would undo all the splendid work of the last two years and would give a fresh lease of life to the enemy by encouraging him. He is discouraged now, and he must be kept so, but incidents such as that which occurred at Place d'Armes the other day will not help. It is certain that anything of that kind is promptly wirelessed to Berlin and issued by the authorities there in an almost unrecognized form as evidence of war weariness among the Canadians. The Canadians are not weary of the war. They deplore the terrible sacrifice of life which it entails, but they are as resolute to continue as they were to start two years ago.

There is some truth in these statements. If "Canadians are not weary of the war" there is a tleast evidence that Canada is weary in well doing. There is a lamentable lull in recruiting; and it is reported, and no doubt a fact, that there is a production of munitions, inadequate to meet the need, and under the capacity of our factories. The explanation in both cases is that the government has not a firm grasp of the situation. The government shows an indifference to recruiting that in no doubt largely explains the unsatisfactory results.

From the beginning this indifference has been manifested. The government seemed to think that its duty was done when it authorized the raising of a battalion and left the work to private interest and action. It is well known that in this military district, if it had not been for the heroic work of the Speakers' Patriotic League, the recruiting results we have had would not have been had. If we have any success, in recruiting a new battalion the government must show an active interest in the work. Private enterprise should not bear the whole responsibility of recruiting. It is, of course, recognized that recruiting is more difficult than in the earlier stages of the war; the supply of material is greatly lessened; employment is plentiful, and a large number of men that might enlist are as profitably employed in the making of munition — doing as good and as necessary work as if they were in the trenches.

In the matter of munitions the apathy of the government is responsible for a good deal of the deficiency of output. The work has been turned over to a Munitions Board, whose efficiency is hampered by lack of authority. If it makes a contract with a manufacture to produce a given quantity of shells within a certain time, the Munitions Board has no power, in case the contracted for amount is not produced, except to cancel the contract, which is the very last thing to be done in view of the urgent need of munitions. To be of real use the Munitions Board should, obviously, have behind it the powers the government can exercise if it would.

The people of Canada may not be "weary of the war," but it is evident, that there is a good deal of indifference in regard to the measures necessary to continue Canada's active and effective participation. We can, to considerable degree, place the responsibility for popular indifference upon the indifference of the government, to its failure to take practical and official interest in recruiting and its failure to take off its gloves and handle the matter of munition production in a way to secure results. The academic enthusiasm of the Mail, is all right in its way, but it is not business. It is very fine to express sounding assurance that "Canada is wholeheartedly in this war for a fight to a finish," but words do not sign up soldieds nor win battles. These need men and munitions. Private patriots should not have all the responsibility. They should, at least, have the cooperation, if not the energetic initiative of the government. Sir Sam Hughes windily proclaimed that Canada was ready to furnish half a million fighting men. Where is he now? He should be "on the job" spurring on the government to do its level best to make good his boast.

British Columbia Political Conditions and The Elections Contest

On the 14th inst. polling will take place in the provincial elections for British Columbia, and the Bowser government will then be tried for its life. The result, however, will not be known for some time, as the soldiers and the sailors of the province who are away from home, are to be afforded an opportunity of casting their votes. It is the possibility of this absentee vote, under the unfair machinery which the government has created, being unlawfully manipulated, which gives the opponents of the government most concern. The resident vote, it is believed, will be overwhelmingly in favour of punishing the government for the wasteful manner in which it has dealt with the public lands of the province, its extravagant grants to railway corporations and its many corrupt acts, including the appointment of the late premier, Sir Richard McBride, as agent-general in London. Mr. Bowser has endeavoured, to some extent, to retrieve his unfortunate past, by such progressive acts as submitting prohibition and woman suffrage to a referendum, but the results of the bye-elections which have been recently held would seem to indicate that Roblin's fate will almost certainly be his. Striking evidence of the disgrace into which the Conservative government of the province has fallen is given by the courageous stand in opposition taken by Sir Hibbert Tupper, son of the late Sir Charles Tupper, who is opposing the government strenuously because of its dishonesty.

"I see," he says, "no reason why we should not insist on politics being played honestly. All through Canada we have seen the fatal connection between politics and patronage. The most glaring illustration is the Manitoba scandal in respect of the parliament buildings. But this is only the apex of the pyramid of patronage. The pyramid itself is built of a thousand little meannesses. There is no need for me to go into details. They are clear in every man who knows anything of political life. The real, fundamental issue between the people of British Columbia and the government of Mr. Bowser, is this question of patronage. I do not know whether the Liberals will take the lesson to heart if they are victorious. But just as surely as the sun sets, so will a Liberal government find itself mired in the same slough which has destroyed the credit and prestige of the present provincial government if it allows patronage to govern its actions."

Continuing he says:

"I am a Conservative and always have been. I do not believe, however, in supporting a government simply because it calls itself Conservative, especially when that government is in the hands of a man whose sole conception of politics is kultur. Mr. Bowser, himself, states that it is necessary to 'grease the palms of an Indian' at times. I deny there is any such necessity. For the premier of a government to excuse bribery on the ground of necessity is exactly the same as for a nation to excuse the violation of Belgium on the ground of necessity. Is the man who makes such an excuse for his actions fit to be at the head of a responsible government? The people of British Columbia are asked to adopt the Bowser brand of political honesty. Echoing faintly for many a long year, but soon to be heeded are the words of Calhoun in 1835: 'The very essence of a free government consists in considering offices as public trusts bestowed for the good of the country and not for the benefit of an individual or a party.'"

The record of a Conservative government must be rank and smell to heaven when a Tupper is found allying himself with Liberals in order to accomplish its overthrow, but that is the situation which exists in British Columbia to-day. Under the circumstances, the fall of Bowser would seem to be an absolute certainty, and even if he should by desperate methods succeed, as Premier Roblin of Manitoba did in carrying the elections now pending, Canadian political history affords ample evidence that retribution is the certain penalty for crimes which arouse the public confidence.—Brantford Expositor.

OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—J. W. Ste. Marie, City Solicitor of Hull, Que., is lying in a critical condition at his home as the result of taking four patent headache powders to cure a violent headache.

Scientists differ greatly as to the earth's age estimates varying from 20,000,000 to 150,000,000 years. One of the first estimates was that of John Phillips, who in 1860 based on a study of stratified rock his assertion that the figure lay somewhere "between 38,000,000 and 96,000,000 years."

SCAVENGING RULES

1. NO owner or occupant shall allow, permit or maintain upon premises owned or occupied by him within this Municipality any earth privies or earth closets or vaults below the surface of the ground except where the exigencies of the situation demand it, in which case such may be allowed by permission of the Local Board of Health or Medical Officer of Health, but such permission must be evidenced in writing, and such earth privies or earth closets and vaults when so allowed shall be constructed in a manner satisfactory to the Medical Health Officer or the Sanitary Inspector.

2. IN the construction of privies above ground or box closets which are hereinafter described as box closets there shall be in each of such privies or box closets a box made of one and a half inch matched lumber, three feet six inches in length, twelve inches in height and fourteen inches wide inside measurements, and these boxes shall be set up not less than four inches above the surface of the ground on the outside, and those box closets or privies which open at the rear thereof shall have an opening with a hinged lid; the opening shall be large enough to allow the box to be easily drawn out for the removal of the contents, but for those box closets which open at the end or side the box shall have a handle at the end nearest the opening so that it may be readily withdrawn.

3. WHEREVER such earth or box closets are by permission or compulsion established, sufficient dry earth, wood ashes or coal ashes must be thrown upon the contents to absorb the liquid part of the deposit, and all closets which are not constructed in accordance with this By-law shall be cleaned out, filled in and closed, in accordance with the provisions of this By-law, immediately after the last time being cleaned previous to, and in any event not later than September 15th, 1916, and no garbage, tins or other refuse shall be put in such privies or closets at any time.

4. THE charge for the removal of the contents of box closets or privies shall be forty cents (40) per month, and cess pools or vaults the cost of removal of the contents of the same shall be the sum of Two dollars and fifty cents ($2.50), where the quantity to be removed is less than one cubic yard, and Two dollars and fifty cents ($2.50) per cubic yard or fraction thereof, where the quantity to be removed is more than one cubic yard.

5. ALL box closets, cess polls and vaults must be cleaned at least once a month.

17. ANY person found guilty of a violation of this By-law shall on conviction thereof be liable to a fine not exceeding TWENTY DOLLARS and costs, and in default of payment thereof the said fine and costs may be levied by distress and sale of the goods of the offender, and in case of there being no distress or no sufficient distress out of which the same can be levied, the said offender may be committed to the common gaol of the County of Peterborough for any period not exceeding six months unless the fine inflicted and costs (if any), including the costs of the distress and of the committal and conveyance of the offender to the said Gaol are sooner paid. 8d-56

235TH BATTALION ON RECRUITING TOUR

BOWMANVILLE, Sept. 8. — The 235th Battalion, under command of Lieut.-Col. S. B. Scobell, which has been stationed at Camp Hoskin, Bowmanville, for several months, left on Wednesday on a two months' trek through the united counties of Northumberland and Durham. The battalion will visit twenty-three principal towns and villages, returning to Bowmanville about Nov. 1. At Newcastle, the first stopping place, seven recruits enlisted and are now accompanying the battalion on the trek. Recruiting meetings will be held each evening at which Mrs. H. W. Parsons and Lieut. S. A. Sanford will speak.

FIVE VICTIMS OF ASSASSINS

Long Records of Deaths in the Dilworth Family.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 8.— For the fifth time the hand of an assassin claimed the life of a member of one family when Dwight P. Dilworth was mysteriously killed in New York.

The first Dilworth to meet violent death was George, a lieutenant in the Federal Army, who was killed by a "sniper" when delivering a message.

James Dilworth, a Montana ranchman, was the next slain. He scolded an employee for failing to cut hay, and that night the employee, when drunk, shot him from ambush.

Ten years ago William P. Dilworth, on Thanksgiving morning, was counting his cash in his hardware store in Oklahoma City, when a robber entered and killed him. The murderer was captured and is serving a life sentence in the penitentiary.

The only remaining living member of the family is Richard Dilworth, a clergyman in Pennsylvania. He was a missionary to Alaska, and was a bittery enemy of the whiskey element. After an extremely hot attack on liquor in a small mining town he was waylaid, assaulted, and left for dead. He was found by friends and recovered.

HIS FAST WAS A FAILURE

Dr. Huffman Thought It a Cure, But He Died of It.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Sept. 8.— Dr. H. C. Huffman, oculist and advocate of fasting as a nature cure, died here, a victim of his belief, after going without food for sixty-nine days.

Huffman began his fatal fasting June 30 at his open air camp. After a foodless period of forty days he attempted to eat, but his stomach refused to accept nourishment.

Despite warnings from friends, Huffman insisted the reaction of his stomach was trivial and that a resumption of fasting would help nature rid his system of poisons.

Last Saturday after three more unsuccessful attempts to eat the oculist became delirious, was taken to Dr. C. A. Davies' nature sanitarium near here, and thence to the city hospital.

Fasting was the weapon with which the oculist thought he was fighting death. Two years ago doctors told him he had not long to live. He went to his camp and fasted for forty-seven days, returning to his home stronger and greatly improved. Last year he fasted thirty days.

This is an easy and quick way to clean windows in damp weather: Put one part of paraffin to two of water, wring out a cloth fairly dry, and finish with a soft cloth, and you will have a fine polish in less than half the usual time.

WOMAN ADDICTED TO DRUG HABIT

Wife of Man Known as "Phil the Jew" Anxious to Be Cured

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—Unmistakably signs of the physical and spirit wrecking work of morphine and heroin when taken for other than medicinal purposes were written all over the countenance of Mabel Philips when she appeared in the Women's Court yesterday, and dejectedly pleaded guilty to the charge of having drugs in her possession. The prisoner is the wife of Montague Philips, supposed to be "Phil, the Jew," and now in custody on a similar charge.

Mr. Austin Ross, counsel for Mrs. Philips, addressing Magistrate Denion, said that unfortunately his client had contracted the drug habit. She was anxious to be cured, and was willing, even anxious, to go to the Industrial Farm, where she would receive treatment that would restore her to health. It was a pitiful plight for a woman to be in, but credit must be given for her desire to save herself from physical and mental disaster.

The magistrate concurred with counsel's views, and sentenced the woman to a term of six months, but afterwards reduced this to four months.

Joseph Pountney, druggist, 1091 Bathurst street, was arrested on charges of selling morphine and heroin during the months of August and September to Mabel Philips and her husband, Montague, without prescriptions or orders from doctors.

FARMER WAS KILLED BY FALLING CHIMNEY

TILBURY, Sept. 7.—Ben Snyder, a farmer of Tilbury East Township, was killed while tearing down the chimney of an old church building that he had recently purchased. He was working alone and a few minutes after the chimney crashed through the building he was found on the floor with a broken leg and a fractured skull. From the nature of his wounds it is supposed that he was on a ladder and was thrown from it by the jar of the falling chimney. Dr. Sharp was promptly summoned, but Mr. Snyder passed away in a couple of hours. He was one of the first of the colony of American farmers that settled in this section, coming here from Wood County, Ohio, about five years ago. He leaves a widow and a grown up family.

HOTELMEN BAR SOLDIERS.

Ask Militia Dept. to Declare City of Hull Out of Bounds.

Ottawa, Sept. 7.— An unusual request comes to the Militia Department from the hotelkeepers of Hull, the Quebec city opposite Ottawa. They do not invite the patronage of soldiers, and ask that the city be placed out of bounds for men in uniform. Disorders have repeatedly occurred. The Hull hotelmen figure that when Ottawa closes its bars they will have more business than they can take care of, and so the soldier patronage can be eliminated. The department has not yet acted on the request.

Britain Building Miles of New Ships

LONDON, Sept. 7.—There is a certain small section of British waterfront where more ships are under construction to-day than the entire shipbuilding facilities of any other nation could undertake at one time. They include every type of craft, from submarines to battleships and from steam trawlers to Atlantic liners. Most Governments lay down their battleships and cruisers singly, and the lesser craft perhaps in pairs, but here battleships loom up as twins, light cruisers by the half-dozen, destroyers in rows of ten, with many braces of long submarines, and an occasional monitor.

The war fleet under the hammer and the paint brush here would rank in the naval list above the establishments of several modest maritime powers. It could demolish with one volley the two squadrons which fought the battle of Manila Bay, and then steam against the combined American and Spanish fleets off Santiago with confidence. The merchant ships on the stocks are as many as the United States mercantile marine has added to its register in several years.

"We have trained crews ready to step on board all these ships as soon as they are fitted," a naval officer remarked.

Under the guidance of Hugh Law, Nationalist Member of Parliament for West Donegal, a party of correspondents spent a crowded day on land on water, and on ships in dock at this base. They saw some things which they are not permitted to describe in detail, and many things which they cannot describe for lack of technical knowledge; for the ordinary man the visit furnished mostly illumination upon the vast scale on which sea power is arranged, and upon the kind of men who manage it, and their hard but cheerful lives.

MILES OF SHIPS ON THE WAYS.

The general stage setting for this swift review of the fighting and trading vessels under construction consisted of several miles of waterfront crowded with skeletons and hulls. The stocks carried everything of the final type—until next year, or next week, for very naval campaign means new ideals, new devices, new lines of construction. Two years of active service under war conditions have brought a great advance to the British Navy, already acknowledged to be the leader in most naval matters. Every ship and every detail of a ship is the last word in its class, according to the judgment of engineers and fighting officers. In one noticeable detail at least British naval architects appear to have been converted to the principle of one feature of American warships.

The monitors make an appeal to an American because there is a suspicion that other navies were disposed to scoff at them for years. Yet here they are, with all their superficial changes and embellishments a tribute to what the brain of John Ericsson conceived in the sixties. The monitors have been very useful to the British Navy in this war. They have been employed in the shallow waters off the coast of Belgium, and even more effectively at Gallipoli. The correspondents there described them fully. Two or three strata of the outlying hull may be penetrated by torpedoes, and the monitor can still keep at work with her guns.

Two battleships, almost prepared for the water, are expected to demonstrate themselves the most efficient machines of their family ever commissioned, and they look it. The battleship standing in the timbers on land with all its lines revealed, showing its adaptability for speed, presents a different picture from the fighting ship seen above water, and has a suggestion of a racing yacht. These had been constructed in some thing like half the time consumed in making a big warship in pre-war days. There were several so-called destroyers certainly as long as many light cruisers of earlier times, ten of them extended side by side in one row, and others elsewhere.

BUILDING MANY SUBMARINES.

Beyond the destroyers was a line of long thin skeletons of submarines, whose size could not be judged at all accurately in a passing view, even if it could be reported. Compared with the new old-fashioned submarine, they are as the Aquitania to the Philadelphia.

Floating alongside a dock was a brand new submarine, painted and polished like a touring car fresh from the shop. The young commander stood alongside and proudly pointed out some of the craft's attractions. From his transparent enthusiasm the vessel might have been a pleasure yacht instead of the vehicle for the most dangerous form of adventure that fighting men undertake.

"Of course we are not in the same class with Horton and Holbrook," he explained, "but I hope you will hear something from X-17," pointing to the number painted on the turret. He observed also that this craft could submerge in twenty seconds.

From this largest shipbuilding station in the world, with its miles of smoking factories, and with its reverberating clangor of thousands of hammers ringing upon steel, the party traveled over night to the most extensive naval base in the world. This was a place where ships run in for repairs, for oil, which is almost the only fuel of these days, for ammunition and stores. Here they are replenished, refitted, repainted frequently, and then disappear into the mists of the North Sea, of which a typical one was encountered on the morning of this visit.

The force of skilled and common workmen at this naval base is larger than can be kept at constant employment, for the force must be able to grapple with emergencies and with quick oprations on a big scale. Wireless is a great aid. Every squadron coming into this port telegraphs its needs. The materials and the men are ready on the piers and in the supply ships when the fighting craft appear.

MRS. COLT AGAIN ASKS A DIVORCE

GREENWICH, Conn., Sept. 8. — A second action for divorce has been brought by Mrs. Elizabeth Browne Colt of Ridgefield, Conn., against Harris Dunscomb Colt, of New York city. The case, which was returnable to the Superior Court, Bridgeport, was adjourned for a month. Mrs. Colt is represented by Prentice W. Chase of New Haven, and William C. Rungee of Greenwich. William Rand and William T. Jerome of New York, are counsel for Mr. Colt.

In the first action, started by Mrs. Colt, about a year ago on the ground of alleged desertion, a decision was handed down last June by the Supreme Court of Errors in favour of the defendant.

In the present action the plaintiff alleges that on May 1, 1913, and a long time before that, the defendant deserted her and continued such desertion with total neglect of all duties of the marriage covenant for more than three years. She also alleges he was guilty of intolerable cruelty to her in Connecticut, New York, Massachusetts and other States. She asserts that he owns real estate and personal property valued at $200,000. She asks a divorce, custody of a child and alimony.

Mr. and Mrs. Colt were married December 12, 1894. They have one son, Harry Dunscomb Colt Jr. fifteen years old, who is a student in St. Paul's School, Concord, N.H.

Mr. Colt is a member of the law firm of Curtis, Mallet, Prevost & Colt, No. 20 Broad Street, New York.

MAGISTRATE IS MULCTED

Must Pay $40 for Punishing Father for Son's Error.

The police magistrate of Chesterville will have to pay $40, costs of the motion by Lemuel Leselle for an order quashing his conviction. Lemnel's son, William, used language against a lady residing in that village and the magistrate directed that the father be brought before him and fined him $1 or ten days.

"This is visiting the fathers with the sins of their sons," commented Mr. Justice Middleton. "He probably deserves it, but what law authorizes it?"

J. A. Macintosh, for the magistrate, admitted that there was not much in the way of legal support. The conviction had been made in good faith.

"It was unutterably stupid," declared the judge.

The conviction was quashed.

CONVICT'S CHILD IS DEAD.

Little One Passed Away While Father, a Toronto Man, Waited Sentence.

Barrie, Sept. 8.—Patrick Lyons, who has figured frequently in the Toronto Police Court, and has served four sentences on charges of forgery, burglary and theft, was sentenced again by Police Magistrate Radenhurst Wednesday for four months for stealing a camera and watch from Leo McSloy of the Bell Telephone Construction Department.

Then he was told that his 2-year-old son had died during the night of infantile paralysis, the first case of the kind here.

When freed Lyons will have to face charges of burglary and army desertion preferred by the Toronto police.

A British sentry had considerable trouble with a batch of German prisoners who behaved in a high-handed and insolent manner. On being reprimanded, one of the latter, drawing himself to his full height, exclaimed:

"Don't you know I vos a Pomeranian?"

"It disna matter if ye were a Newfoundland," was "Tommy's" answer; "ye've got tae gie in tae the British bulldog.

KICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

It is expected that the Maritime Provinces will provide many of the recruits for the navy, although the inland provinces will be expected to do their share, especially in the region of the Great Lakes.

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—With the latest call that has gone out for enough foresters from Ontario to make up one company of the 242nd Forestry Battalion, there has come to the young men of Ontario another chance to become part of a military unit which does not carry with it the regular hazards of war. The 242nd Battalion, under the command of Lieut.-Col. J. B. White, is following closely upon the heels of the 238th Forestry unit which made such a remarkable showing in recruiting, but all this new unit is asking from Ontario is full company of 250 men, and judging from the manner in which men are responding, there will be little difficulty in raising the required number. The 238th recruited to over-strength in Ontario, so left slightly over fifty men behind to form the nucleus for the 242nd and these men taken with those already signed on by the 242nd, bring the strength of the Ontario company over seventy men. There is not the least doubt that many Ontario men, who for various reasons cannot join a regular fighting unit, are recognizing the opportunity for service offered by the forestry battalions and are losing no time in taking advantage of the opening.

EXPERIENCED OFFICERS

Col. J. B. White is a widely experienced military man, and makes an ideal commanding officer. He left Canada some months ago as Major with the 234th Forestry Battalion, saw some months experience with them in the forests of England and is now admirably fitted to lead another battalion into the same kind of duties. For the work asked of the 242nd is identical with that of the 238th. It is strictly a forestry unit, and its duties will be to go to England or Southern France to cut down the forests to keep the boys at the front supplied with the necessary timber for building trenches and offensive works. Col. White, before becoming a military man, was a manager for the Riordan Pulp & Paper Company whose mills are in Ontario. Col. White has received authorization from the Department of Militia to recruit all over the Dominion, and for that reason he is not asking Ontario for many men. He is seeing to it that Ontario's company is fully officered by officers from this province; as a matter of fact there are always twelve Ontario officers of companies raised in other provinces. For the Toronto head recruiting office, which remains at the old stand of the 238th at 55 Queen street west. Col. White has chosen Sgt.-Major C. S. Lewis, who did such good work for the 204th Battalion, and later for the 238th. Sgt.-Major Lewis takes full charge of recruiting, while Lieut. G. T. Reid, a Toronto man, has been brought over from the 160th to take command of the company. Lieut. A. H. Dangerfield, and Lieut. H. D. Turing, two other Toronto men, take charge of the barracks, which have been taken over from the 238th, while Capt. W. B. Hagerman of Markham looks after the recruiting at St. Catharines and London.

Other Ontario officers on the 242nd are Capt. G. H. Johnson of Arnprior, Lieut. Neal M. Ferguson of Haileybury, returned soldier, Lieut. Paul Ogilvie of Ottawa, returned soldier, Lieut. Edrick H. Read of Ottawa, returned soldier, Lieut. Louis Carling of Ottawa, Lieut. Gordon H. Rochester of Haileybury, Lieut. Gordon Purley, nephew of the High Commissioner for Canada, Lieut. John E Hughson of Ottawa, and Capt. F. W. Morris, Adjutant. From this it can be seen that Ontario gets more than her full share of officers and should therefore do well for the 242nd in the matter of recruiting. While it is intended to open depots at various points all over the province, those at present open are at Toronto, Hamilton, Brantford, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls and London.

The Kingston Standard says: E. Gus Porter, M.P., of Belleville, is interested in having North Hastings placed back in the recruiting area of Hastings County, instead of being used for Peterborough.

Pte. Chadwick of the 136th Battalion, C.E.F., has been transferred to the 247th and has been taken on the strength of the new Peterborough unit.

The officers of the 247th Battalion have commenced a systematic canvass of the business places on George street, with a view to ascertaining the number of eligible men employed. The canvass will be enlarged afterwards until eventually a complete list of men of military age will be secured.

Mr. Max McClellan is among the latest Peterborough boys to join the colours. Mr. McClellan who has been employed in the Montreal Office of the Royal Bank, was in the city last night and left to-day to report for duty with the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery.

Barn and Summer Crops Destroyed in Yesterday's Storm

Fire originating from a lightning bolt during yesterday's electric storm destroyed the barn and its bulging contents of crops on the farm of Neil Powers, Concession 13 Otonabee, below the old brickyard, south of the city. Neighbours first discovered the blaze and gave the alarm. It had started in the upper part of the building which in a short time was wrapped in flames. Only the horses were saved, the other stock being in the fields at the time. But the hay and grain, including some of last year's oats, were totally consumed with the barn which burned to the foundation.

Mr. Powers moved from Ennismore, it was reported, several years ago, having purchased his present property from Edward Lynch.

To Investigate Lobby Charge

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The Senate lobby committee decided to-day to investigate charges of Senator Chamberlain, made on the floor last night, that Sir Joseph Pope and other Canadian officials lobbied against the adoption of the Chamberlain amendment to the revenue bill. This would practically prevent the admission into the United States of halibut or salmon from the North Pacific.

DISCHARGE IS ORDERED.

TORONTO, Sept. 8. — Because a justice of the peace has no authority to deal with the charge brought against Thomas Nelson, that he drove furiously in Newcastle on August 7th, Mr. Justice Middleton yesterday directed the discharge of the prisoner, who had been sentenced to sixty days imprisonement. It was alleged that he had driven his horse at sixteen miles an hour in very hot weather.

Park Street Sewer Held Up At C.P.R. Crossing For Week Past

The progress of the outfall sewer on Park Street has been held up at the C. P. R. crossing for more than a week. During that time not a pipe has been laid. The last one was put in seven or eight days ago, close to the south side of the tracks, and although the Board of Works have been fully aware that they must have arranged with the C. P. R. to burrow under the tracks, negotiations have apparently been delayed until the last moment. The workmen are continuing the digging of the trench on the north side of the crossing, but they are within a few yards of the Rink Street terminal or junction with the old sewer. But the principal fact is that the work of pipelaying has had a week's obstruction until some negotiations are entered into with the railway company to dig beneath their main line and crossings. The whole situation seems to bear on the face of it the stamp of administrative negligence or incompetence, and the conclusion of the work will be delayed by the present impasse. Between Westcott street and Perry street the trench work was carried along with exceptional progress. Between Perry and Albert street another stretch of quicksand has been reached. Those who have visited the work have naturally wondered about the present delay, and the only apparent answer is that some one who should have had all the prearrangements with the C.P.R. completed, failed to begin or conclude them before the pipe was resting against the tracks.

Storm Dispelled The Heat Wave

Yesterday's Storm Was Accompanied by a High Wind

An electric storm of unusual severity for this season of the year, passed over the city yesterday afternoon, while a less severe storm was accounted for during the night. The storm in the afternoon was accompanied by a high wind which blew down a number of signs and demolished a few fences. Some wire trouble as also experienced by the power companies. The storm had the effect of dispelling the heat wave that enveloped the district for the greater part of the day.

MOLLY M'INTYRE COMING TO THE GRAND

While Manager F. C. Whitney, who is presenting the dainty little actress, Molly McIntyre at the Grand Opera House, Peterborough, does not believe in having the plot of the play published in advance, it might be said that the new play "Silent Sue," is in a way based on an argument advanced by G. Bernard Shaw, and the following lines between the "Professor" and "Mrs. Kathryn Sylvester," a scheming woman of fashion, will give an idea of the plot:

Professor—"The Bishop is so positive that it is my duty to disagree with him occasionally, yet I meant every word I said."

Katharine— "What was the argument this time?"

Professor—"The quick brain of the middle lower classes versus the ordinary intellect of the usual fashionable young lady?"

Katherine—"Under what heading do you classify the intellectual lower class?"

Professor—"The crook."

Katharine—"Why?"

Professor — "Dissatisfaction with one's condition in life and a desire to better it at any cost, are the first signs of an awakening intelligence. You remember Bernard Shaw's argument in 'Pygmalion?' I certainly agree with him."

Katharine —"What was the argument? I never saw 'Pygmalion'?"

Professor—"Shaw maintained that by taking a bright intellectual crook, particularly a girl, dressing her in fashionable clothing and teaching her to ape society manners, within twelve months time, you would make her such imitation of the genuine article that few would distinguish the fraud, that is if she cared to exert herself."

Katharine—"Do you believe that?"

Katharine—"And every one was deceived?"

Professor—"The young lady was the belle of the season, but by degrees, disliked, for what she called the hypocrisy of society life began to grow on her."

Katharine—"And what happened?"

Professor— "She disappeared with the family jewels and my aunt was too much afraid of being laughed at to try to recover them.

From this it must not be inferred that 'Silent Sue' is a "crook" play, and the management assures us, that it is not, though "Sue" was herself brought up in the company of thieves and crooks in the East End of London. But to give in advance the story of "Silent Sue" would hardly be in keeping with the soubriquet of the heroine.

NO DOUBT ABOUT THIS BEING A GOOD REMEDY

Sufferers From Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism Should Try It

The announcement in Tuesday's Examiner of Dr. Banta's Kidney Pills has been taken advantage of by a number of people to secure this excellent remedy. Sufferers from kidney trouble and rheumatism will do well to seriously consider the matter of giving of Dr. Banta's Kidney Pills a trial. Your health is a most important matter. Symptoms of deranged kidneys should be promptly attended to. If you give Dr. Banta's Kidney Pills a fair trial we will stand back of our guarantee to refund the money if you have not been benefitted. We know the value of Dr. Banta's Kidney Pills for Kidney trouble and rheumatism, and hope those who are in need of such a remedy will not delay in giving the Pills a trial. Do not neglect your kidneys, is excellent advice.

Dr. Banta's Kidney Pills are to be had at Lynch's Drug Store, who stands back of the above guarantee.

Galway Shooting Case Will Likely Be Heard Here

It is understood that Mrs. George Davis of Kinmount, who is held in Lindsay jail on a charge of the attempted murder of Fred Spencely, also of Kinmount, will be brought to Peterborough for a preliminary hearing before County Magistrate Langley. The local county authorities have received no definite information regarding this phase of the case, but from the reported fact that the shooting took place on the Peterborough side of the County's northern boundary, it is expected that the hearing will be held here.

RAILS ON LOCOMOTIVES.

And Also on the Coal Tenders—Order Issued After Year's Delay.

Ottawa, Sept. 8. — The Railway Commission has ordered that all railways shall equip all locomotives of 100,000 pounds or over with handrails on the side of the cabs above the windows, running the whole length of the cab; that the tender of all such locomotives shall be equipped with railings on both sides on the top of the roping. The rails on the tenders are to run the full length of the fuel storage. Foot-rests in the cabs are also ordered.

This applies to all locomotives of the class described except those used in international traffic and merely passing through Canada.

The order is the outcome of a hearing a year ago.

NEW SERB ARMY IS A MIRACLE

Transformed From Discouraged, HeartSick and Worn Band, to Well Equipped, Eager Fighters.

TROOPS IN FINE CONDITION

A few months ago the survivors of the Serbian army were painfully beating their way over the Albanian mountains. Tired, starving and weary men these, in very truth a phantom army, weighed down under the demoralization which comes of a hard tussle against overwhelming odds, harried marches in isolated groups and snow-clad, roadless heights, exile from home, and empty stomachs.

Certainly, you would never have considered it possible that this human wreckage of yesterday could to-day be fit and ready to take its place upon the battlefield and share the task of driving the invader from the Serbian lands.

(Since the above, published in the London Chronicle, appeared, the Serbian army has again taken the field.)

Yet the miracle has been accomplished. The wonderful physique of the Serbian peasant has combined with the organizing genius of the British and French missions and the resources of the grand alliance, to save from the Serbian retreat no fewer than 150,000 hale, hearty and well equipped fighting men, full of renewed courage and enthusiasm, and waiting impatiently for the order to march homeward.

Last Many at Corfu.

Ever since their arrival at Corfu the losses among the soldiery have been inevitably heavy. Many of the physically ruined men came only to die, and the cemeteries, which here and there dot the island, often recall the aftermath of a battlefield. In the early days arrangements were primitive, food scarce and hospital accommodation inadequate; but to this disorganization the British and French missions speedily set a term. Epidemics were successfully kept under, and it is no exaggeration to say that 90 per cent. of the troops are now as healthy and strong as ever in their lives.

In British Uniforms.

The Serbian army was never so well equipped as to-day. The infantry are garbed in British uniforms complete even to he buttons; puttees have replaced the gaudy native hose, and Balkan sandals have given way to English boots. A French rifle and overcoat add to the picture, and only the national headdress remains of the familiar makeup of King Peter's battalions. The cavalry present a smart and business-like appearance in the silver-blue tunics of the French horsemen.

Army Reorganized.

With an eye to its futur place in the scheme of operating, the army has been reorganized from top to bottom. Of the old general staff who passed through victory to defeat, there remain only the Crown Prince Alexander, as commander-in-chief, and the genial professor who forsook his chair at the university to direct the military press bureau when hostilities began with the Austrian ultimatum. The aged Marshal Putnik, for years a martyr to suffering, has handed over his charge to more youthful keeping. Armies have been reconstituted and divisions modelled and staffed anew, for the last campaign consolidated some reputations and made others. Thus, with the army reduced to half its former effective, some commanders with European reputations have had to stand aside.

Exile Only Temporary.

Since their return to health and strength the troops have been kept well employed at company, regimental and musketry drill and a feature has been made of class instruction in military tactics. There is, however, no suitable terrain for manoeuvres in Corfu, and these exercises, in so far as they are necessary to an army which has learned its lesson in the hard school of experience, will be carried out in Macedonia.

Outside of their military duties the men are encouraged to spend their leisure in the decoration of their camps, the cult of personal cleanliness and their national games and dances. The depression which one might expect to find is non-existent, for there is not a Serbian on the island who regards his exile as other than temporary.

When making jellied soup from broth, remember that the broth should be strong, well seasoned and cleared with white of egg.

VICTIM OF SHOOTING AFFRAY HAD HIS LEG AMPUTATED

Strained Relations Have Existed Between the Two Parties For Some Time—Spenceley Went to Get an Explanation and Received a Charge of Shot Instead.

KINMOUNT, Sept. 8.—Fred Spencely, the man who was shot in the knee by Mrs. Davis, had his leg amputated yesterday morning above the knee, at the Ross Hospital, Lindsay. The operation was successfully performed by Doctors Blanchard, Collison and White.

The Davis homestead where the shooting took place is situated near the fair grounds just across the Galway boundary in Peterborough county. Spencely, the victim, is a married man with a large family, and together with Mrs. Davis, husband, is employed at Austin's mill.

How Shooting Occurred.

Strained relations have existed between the Spencely and Davis families. On Wednesday, it is said, Mrs. Davis left a letter with the clerk at the Austin mill office, with a request that it be handed to Mr. Spencely. The letter was couched in pretty strong language, and warned Spencely to keep away from the Davis homestead. Spencely had one of the mill hands read him the letter and at six o'clock went direct to Mrs. Davis for an explanation. A pretty warm argument, it is claimed, ensued at Mrs. Davis' door, and the latter threatened to get a gun if Spencely did not leave the premises. Spencely, it is alleged, informed Mrs. Davis that he did not give a damn for her or the gun. The shooting then followed, a discharge of buckshot entering Spencely's right knee at the side and going right through, leaving a gaping hole.

Mrs. Davis afterwards stated she did not intend shooting Spencely, but took down the gun in order to frighten him. She is at present at the local jail.

The affair caused considerable excitement in Kinmount and vicinity, where the two families are well known.

Give Officers Coloured Servants Releasing Soldiers For Trenches

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—According to a London cable to the Times, reports are current that the government intends shortly to raise the military age limit to 45 years. Some colour is lent to these reports by the war office in forming an infantry battalion from reserves of the Household Battalion.

The measure will turn to good use troops who played an ornamental part in the army and there will remain a sufficient force of Household Cavalry to mount guard in Whitehall and other places to provide royal escorts when required. With the streets full of khaki-clad soldiers, the spectacle of goregously uniformed cavalrymen seems almost an anachronism.

The belief that the age limit under the Military Service Act will be raised soon has arisen chiefly out of Sir William Robertson's recent declaration that Great Britain must not only win the war, but win the peace, coupled with Lloyd George's refusal to give a pledge not to raise the military age limit.

Another combing out process is said to be in contemplation. Winston Churchill's allegations as to the numbers of men behind the fighting line also are being looked into, and Lloyd George is said to be considering the question of employing coloured people behind the fighting line, thus releasing men from the non-trench population for fighting purposes.

MUST OBSERVE LAW UP TO LAST MINUTE

Prosecutions Will Not Be Barred By License Act Repeal.

The licensee who attempts to disregard the law in the closing days of licensed liquor selling, believing that with the Liquor License Act out of existence on September 17, he cannot be punished, will get a rude awakening. According to legal authority the repealing of the License Act by the coming into operation of the Ontario Temperance Act will not affect any prosecutions for offences committed while the old Act was in force.

It is stated that the point came up recently when license inspectors expressed some doubt as to the status of prosecutions not disposed of before September 16. Reference to the statutes by the Solicitor of the Board cleared up the point, a special section declaring that the repeal of any law shall not affect the previous operation of the law. In other words, the enforcement of the law before September 16, even if the prosecutions come after the date of repeal, is not interfered with.

GOOD AVERAGE CROP IN CANADIAN WEST

Superintendent of Immigration Says Conditions are Not at All Bad.

OTTAWA, Sept. 7—W. D. Scott, Superintendent of Immigration, who has returned from his annual visit to the Western Provinces, thinks that the crop will average well, although conditions vary not only as between provinces, but in each province.

"Conditions," said Mr. Scott "are not at all bad, though in some parts the yield is light, especially in Southern Manitoba and parts of Saskatchewan. It depends upon cultivation and early seeding. Prices are good. I was told in the West that there would be 165,000,000 bushels of wheat There is plenty of labour for the harvest, the farmers having asked for 40,000 men, and having secured 37,000 in the first response.

Speaking of immigration, Mr. Scott said that Americans of a good class were taking up land in the West.

PETROL TANK IGNITED AND ZEPPELIN DIVED TO EARTH IN FLAMES

Lieut. Robinson, Zeppelin Destroyer Tells of His Exploit

Aviator Spent Most of Day Near His Capture—Was Given an Iron Cross Found in the Wreckage.

LONDON, Sept. 8, (By Lieut. W. L. Robinson).—"I had been up something over an hour when I first saw a Zeppelin. She was flying high. I followed, climbed to get a position above, but in the heavy fog she escaped me. I fired at her at long range but she made off before I could see if any damage had been done. I determined that the next ship I saw I would attack from the position I found her in. I met her just after 2 o'clock. Soon she appeared to catch fire forward in her petrol tank. The flames spread rapidly along the whole body. She made off to the eastward afire. In a few minutes she dipped by the nose and dived slowly in flames to the earth. I was so pleased that in my excitement I looped-the-loop several times, and then showed my signals to stop firing, and came back."

"Awarded" Iron Cross.

Lieut. Robinson, who has been awarded the V. C. for his work, was one of the most unconcerned spectators in the field at Cuffley, where the destroyed Zeppelin lay early Sunday morning. While he was chatting, with his back toward the wreck of the airship, the searchers discovered an iron cross.

"Pass the word to Robinson," said the senior officer. When the lieutenant went up to him the senior officer gave him the iron cross and later a revolver, which was found in the wreckage. This was the first indication which the spectators had that it was Robinson who brought down the airship.

Discovered His Prey.

When the alarm that Zeppelins were approaching was given in London on Saturday night, Lieut. Robinson immediately ascended in his aeroplane. Several times the searchlights revealed his plane flying around in search of a Zeppelin. At last, in the darkness, he picked up an airship, which in a moment later stood out in the glare of several searchlights.

Protected by Smoke.

Lieut. Robinson made his attack at close range. The Zeppelin attempted to elude him by sending out great clouds of smoke. It disappeared in the clouds, but Robinson kept up the pursuit, dropped his explosives, and soon saw the Zeppelin burst into flames.

Rushed to the Scene.

The lieutenant flew away safely, and, descending to a lower level, signalled that he had accomplished his task. Within ten minutes he was dawn and was telephoning his report to headquarters. Then he jumped into an automobile and hastily drove to the scene of the wreck.

WAR WILL END IN MARCH.

PARIS, Sept. 8.—The Germans will have begun to squeal by November, and the war will end by March." This statement was made here by H. G. Wells, the famous British writer, who has just returned from the French and Italian fronts.

ONTARIO FARMER SHOT HIS WIFE

Culmination of 25 Years of Domestic Strife, He Tells Police

OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—Alphonse Barre, a prosperous farmer living at Rose Corners, a few miles east of Casselman, yesterday morning shot his wife as she lay in bed, then leaving his three small daughters to find their mother's body, walked two miles to the village of St. Isidore, tolled a death knell on the bell of the Roman Catholic church, and surrendered himself to the police. It is said there has been trouble in the family for more than twenty-five years.

The shooting was committed about five o'clock. Barre had concealed his revolver under his pillow, in preparation for a quarrel with his wife in the morning. He has admitted the deed was premeditated, and maintains he is glad it is over.

Shot Awakened Children.

First word of the tragedy was brought to neighbours by a fifteen-year-old daughter. She and her two sisters had been awakened by the sound of the revolver. They rushed into their parents' bedroom, where they found their mother on the floor dead, and their father standing a few feet away with the revolver in his hand.

Barre, who remained cool, walked out of the house and made his way to the little Roman Catholic church at St. Isidore, another hamlet just a couple of miles east of Rose Corners. He entered the church and pulled the bell rope. Having done this, he returned to his home, where he found Chief of Police Boisvineau and a constable waiting for him. He allowed them to place the handcuffs on him. Before being led away to Casselman, he begged to have one last look at his dead wife.

Tired of Quarreling.

Barre told the police officials that there had been friction between his wife and himself ever since they were married, over twenty-five years ago. More serious trouble had developed durin gthe last two months. Barre states that he grew sick and tired of quarreling with his wife.

When arrested, Barre had over $200 in his pocket. He states, however, that he had no intention of trying to evade the authorities.

A BIG CROP OF ALSIKE

Mr. R. S. Duncan, District Representative, at Port Hope, says a young farmer, by the name of Herman Peters, of Canton, who lives five miles north of Port Hope, threshed last year 86 1-2 bushels of Alsike, by weight, from approximately seven acres. The seed was sold to a seed merchant in Toronto for eighteen and a half cents a lb., or $11.10 per bushel. This is a total production of $916.15, or $130.00 per acre, almost a record in alsike seed production.

TO GET JUST ONE CENT.

New Low Record in Bankruptcy Returns Set in Middle West.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 8. — Creditors of E. G. Hadden, a local grain dealer who was adjudged bankrupt several months ago, will receive the smallest final dividends ever paid on a claim in a bankruptcy court, according to John F. Harper, referee.

On a claim of $2.90, the L. A. Meyer Company, one of the creditors, will receive a check for 1 cent. The Hotel Pfister will receive 7 cents on a claim of $8.15. The claims aggregate $36,-128.12, with assets of $104.54 to divide among many creditors.

HUGE BLACKMAIL SYSTEM.

Vice Inquiry Exposes System Operating on High Social Plane.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—In tracing the dismal windings of the "white slave" traffic, the District Attorney's investigators have suddenly found themselves confronted with the machinery of a vice system operating on the highest social plane.

Its victims are men and women of wealth who dine and dance at the best hotels.

It is complicated with blackmail, drugs and the production of flash-light pictures for the terrorizing of those who fall into its snare. Its professional adepts are men and women of charming manners.

It selects its victims according to their rating at Bradstreet's, and although this limits it to a smaller scope than the brutally simple form of white slavery exploited by Yushe Botwin and his competitors, it has wrecked some promising lives. It has separated several wealthy men and women from large sums of hush money.

Assistant District Attorney Smith said he had addresses of ten luxurious resorts in the city to which the blackmailers have lured victims and tricked them into situations of such a debasing character that they would be willing to pay a fortune to avoid exposure.

Store Editorial

Our buyers report they worked harder on their Fall trip this season than for many years.

The main reason was the efforts they were compelled to exert to be able to get NEW goods to sell at OLD prices.

In the case of certain items it was absolutely impossible to secure desirable goods below the advanced prices now in force.

In other cases, strenuous efforts were successful in securing merchandise BELOW the price charged by most houses. We found many cases where the wholesalers were taking advantage of the situation and advancing prices unreasonably. These wholesalers were ignored.

So when making purchases at this store this season you can feel assured you are securing ONLY reliable merchandise and which can be purchased at the lowest possible cost.

BRITAIN TAKING NO CHANCES ON THE NAVAL QUESTION

At the first burst of war, seemingly by some providential accident Great Britain had the bulk of her fighting ships at the one critical spot and the whole German naval force was instantly paralised as far as immediate use was concerned. From that time on, has continued a far greater ship building contest than the wildest imagination could forecast and in this contest England is hopelessly in the lead with practically every necessary condition in her favor. She has many times more men and money, far better facilities, and complete freedom of trade with the entire world for materials. She is building whole squadrons and small fleets of war vessels of various types. Within one week from the date of the Jutland fight she could have launched just twice the number of destroyers that she lost in that fight. Many more are now on the way and she is daily launching new boats of various classes.

Many of the boats now nearing completion are far superior to any vessel now afloat. A single battle and far more powerful than the cruiser, about completed, is larger and far more powerful than the largest and most powerful super-dreadnought afloat and speedier than the fastest cruiser.

But there is at least one class of "mystery" ships about which no one except the very inner circle know anything definite. These are completely enclosed within high walls inside of the enormous naval yards. It is rumored that they are a totally new type of battle ship, entirely out-classing the greatest super dreadnoughts, armed with 20 inch guns capable of shooting projectiles of three ton weight to a distance of 35 miles—death dealing machines of unimaginable magnitude. England is taking no chances on the naval question.

ADA TAKE HAD 700 DESCENDANTS

It Has Been Estimated That This One Woman Cost the Country $1,200,000

In 1740, according to the records of the eugenists, a woman was born named Ada Take. True to her name, she took everything there was to be had in the way of liberties and licenses. She died a confirmed drunkard, and altogether she had 700 descendants. Among them were 100 children born out of wedlock, 181 women of the street, 142 beggars, 46 workhouse inmates and 76 criminals. It has been estimated that this woman cost the country $1,200,000.

By way of contrast the Ladies' Home Journal tells of an Englishman, born in Queen Elizabeth's time—a clergymen with a good wife. In the year 1900 there had been 1,394 descendants of this family, traced and identified. Of them 295 were college graduates, 12 college presidents, 65 professors, 60 physicians, 108 clergymen, 101 lawyers, 30 judges (one a vice-president of the United States), 75 army and navy officers, 60 prominent authors and 16 railroad and steamship presidents.

BUSINESS HAS REACHED SUBSTANTIAL PROPORTIONS

Mr. Edgar Burnham, Local Representative for the Montreal Biscuit Company Takes a Partner Into the Business

Mr. Edgar Burnham, local representative for the Montreal Biscuit Company, also dealer in confectionery and a full line of paper stock and sundries, has taken a partner into the business in the person of his brother, Mr. Edward Burnham. The latter is not a stranger to Peterborough, having resided here for some considerable time. The business is one that has developed in the past four years from a small beginning at the corner of Park and Weller street to its present substantial location on George street, opposite the Canadian Pacific Railway station. Both Mr. Edgar Burnham and his brother have had considerable experience in the grocery line, and are thoroughly qualified to cater to the trade. The rapid growth of the present business testifies to a well founded appreciation of the service and quality represented by this well known firm.

C. P. R. Chief Clerk Receives Club Bag From Staff

Last night the staff of the C. P. R. met in Mr. Dodd's office to say goodbye to the chief clerk, Mr. Ivey, who is leaving to-day to accept an agency at Kingston.

After Mr. Dodd had read the address eulogizing Mr. Ivey for his capability in handling the office, and assuring him of the appreciation of the staff for the many kindnesses they had received from him, Mr. Cuffe presented him with a handsome club bag.

Mr. Ivey was taken by surprise, but in a neat speech he thanked the staff for the beautiful gift. He said it was with regret that he was leaving the Peterborough office, where he had worked for nearly twelve years, but that he would always remember the pleasant times he had had with the clerks.

Mr. W. McMillan succeeds Mr. Ivey as chief clerk.

Paris Sees Crushing Defeat For The Foe On The Somme Front

Front of Attack Gradually Broadening Under Inexorable Pressure —French Adapt Themselves to New Conditions

By Wythe Williams.

Paris, September 8.—After visiting the Somme front early in August, I made the statement, based not on what I was told by the military authorities, but on personal observation as a neutral correspondent, that the offensive of the French on the Somme was only the beginning; that it would ultimately be greater than any previous French offensive, and that it would end only in a crushing defeat for Germany.

A few days later, as if in answer to that assertion, a statement appeared in the New York papers, on the authority of a German general, that the "French offensive had failed." Almost in the same breath he remarked that no commander in this war would make a statement for publication since it showed a lack of confidence, irrespective of what he knew to be the truth.

If proof were needed as to the character of the French offensive, the events on the Somme since Saturday go far to supply it. In two days' battle of four or five fighting hours each the French forces have inflicted defeat on the flower of the German army, have taken more than 6,000 unwounded prisoners, with corresponding military supplies, have stormed what the Germans asserted were impregnable fortifications on a front thirteen miles in length and averaging over a mile in depth, and with minimum losses on their own side have added, it is estimated here, 50,000 men to the list of German casualties.

That is a great record, of not only French courage, but also of co-ordinated operations in the most difficult warfare since the history of battles began. The Bavarians on Sunday proved that when after their first two counterattacks from the little wood of Marriere, near Le Forge, had melted with appalling losses under the fire of the French seventy-fives, their gray-green masses surged forward yet again, a scant half hour later, only to die just as hopelessly but just as bravely on ground already covered with thousands of bodies of their comrades.

Behind the French armies there is method and science, greater science and greater method than in all the much advertised clockwork attacks on Verdun. The Germans are trying to fight the war on lines already laid down by the General Staff, the French have adapted themselves and their tactics to suit each change in the military circumstances, and every Frenchman now knows that he is not "cannon fodder," butchered in the hope that the enemy will give way from sheer exhaustion, but a unit, carefully selected to accomplish a particular piece of work, and for that reason not to be sacrificed uselessly lest the whole work suffer because parts of it are undone.

Let any one who is tempted to ask if the French offensive has failed, recall that since July 1st the French have advanced along a fifteen mile front to a depth of five to ten miles, that everything they have won has been held against no matter what reaction, that each day's objective has always been attained and at minimum loss, and finally that the ground thus won was defended by ample forces and strengthened with every device of modern warfare. It may be said by some that at Verdun also the Germans progressed regularly for a time, only to fail in the end. But there is an all important difference. Their advance was compelled gradually to narrow almost to a point, with the result that the concentrated fire of the French artillery broke the wedge end as often as the Germans tried to thrust it further.

On the Somme the French front of attack has steadily widened—first in the river bend, then north of the stream to Guillemont, and now another thirteen miles further south of the Somme, almost to the confines of Lassigny and Roye.

One must not imagine for a moment that the French are trying to break the German line with a sudden rupture, as of a dike, through which the whole flood may flow.

Theirs is Grant's method—inexorable pressure, steadily widening and steadily increasing, which is to be maintained until this whole sector of the German front can bear no more, and gives way—a collapse that will overwhelm the invaders' whole system of fortifications from the sea to Switzerland.

FALLING OFF IN THE FALL WHEAT ACREAGE

Peterboro' County Farmers Have Experienced Difficulty in Putting in the Fall Wheat Crop

Agricultural operations in Peterborough County will take on a new impetus as a result of the generous showers of yesterday and last night. The prolonged drought of the summer months has hardened the ground to such an extent as to make it impervious to the plough. The result has been to delay the sowing of fall wheat and other seasonal operations. Agricultural experts predict a falling off in the fall wheat acreage, due to the inability of the farmers to prepare the land for the amount intended.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

ATHLETIC SPORTS AT INDIAN RIVER MONDAY

INDIAN RIVER, Sept. 5.—The Athletic Field Day, held at this place, Labour Day, was again a great success. The weather was perfect and while the attendance was hardly as large as expected, on account of many other attractions, yet some 350 people gathered on the grounds of W. H. Borland's field to witness the sports. Many heretofore unknown athletes surprised the crowd by their performance.

The baseball match for a silver cup proved exciting and fast, the final score being 6 to 8 in favour of Indian River. Mr. Victor Bullock captained the Sixth Line of Otonabee team and also twirled. Mr. Harry Reid was the receiver. Mr. Wm. Guerin was captain of the Indian River nine; McDonald and O'Leary, the battery.

Mile Race—1st, Milton Clydesdale, of Norwood; 2nd, W. Edwards of Lang; 3rd, Don Hope, of Indian River. Time, 6 min., 3 sec.

100 yards Race—1st, V. Bullock; 2nd, A. Carveth; 3rd, B. Cardwell, Westwood. Time, 10 1-2 seconds.

Fat Man's Race—1st, Jno. Garvey, Indian River; 2nd, M. Walsh, Douro; 3rd, F. Walsh, Douro.

Boys' three-legged race—1st, H. Garnett and S. Wood; 2nd, R Killeen and M. Meade; 3rd, F. Cameron and W. Graham.

High Jump.—1st, Stuart Hall, Otonabee; 2nd, R. Hope, Sixth Line; 3rd, J. Hope, Sixth Line. Height 4 ft. 7 in.

The tug-of-war contest was won by Gilbert Elmhirst's team.

Broad jump—1st, R. Hope; 2nd, Geo. Heffernan; 3rd, B. Cardwell.

The prizes were distributed at the evening entertainment, Miss Scott of Peterborough gracefully making the presentations. The programme given by members of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music was very much enjoyed. Miss Scott's singing and a trio by the Misses Logan and Master Gliddon being especially enjoyed.

KILBANE IS VERY MODEST

Only Wants $10,000 and a 33 1-3 Per Cent Privilege to Meet Welsh.

Cleveland, Sept. 8.—Johnny Kilbane, world's featherweight champion, who Monday knocked out Geo. Chaney, will meet Freddie Welsh in a ten-round bout in Brooklyn, N.Y., provided he gets $10,000 and a privilege of 33 1-3 per cent. Kilbane's manager received a wire yesterday from a New York promoter, asking for terms. If the bout is staged it will take place either at Ebbets' Field, the home of the Brooklyn National League Club, or Madison Square Garden, New York.

Fifteen-Year-Old Boy Is a Sensation

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8.—R. T. Jones, jun., the 15-year-old boy of Atlanta, is the surprise and sensation of the national amateur golf championship, which is being played here. The southern youngster worked his way into the third round by defeating Frank W. Dyer, the Pennsylvania State champion, four up and two to play.

In order to win, young Jones had to overcome a lead of four holes, gained in the first six played. He did this by coming home in 34 strokes, despite a six on the eighteenth, an easy par hole. This brand of golf squared the match, and in the afternoon Jones won handily, being 6S for sixteen holes, when the match ended. Had Jones played the game by holes he would probably have had a 153 for the day's work and thus tied the low medal by Fownes in the qualifying round.

In working his way into the third round Jones has got in with seven other golfers who have national reputations.

The championship is working up to the best finish in years, with all the prominent players left to fight it out in the remaining rounds.

A BASEBALL GAME AT THE FRONT

Games Are Played Within Range of Crown Prince's Big Guns.

London, Sept. 8.— The American Ambulance Field Section No. 8, under Austin Mason, of Boston, claims the baseball championship of the Verdun salient, having defeated the other three ambulance sections of this sector, and also the Norton and Harjes ambulance units. Section 4, under Oliver Perry of Morristown, N.J., ranks second, losing but two games, and Section 1, under Herbert Townsend of New York was third. Section 2, under J. T. Walker, of New York, occupies the bottom berth in the league race.

"French-American flyers often fly above the grounds watching the game, but once in a while a German hovers over the diamond, and must be driven away before he drops bombs and runs the field." Mason writes: "The games always are played within range of the Crown Prince's big guns, but seldom does a shell bursting in the vicinity stop a contest. When a game is called on account of the rain of shrapnel bombardment, cards are issued for the poilu spectators to return and witness the resumption of the game on another day. The chief trouble is that the French baseballs are worthless, and we are using a dozen in playing a full game. We can't get American made baseballs, and wish the patriotic fans or big league officials would send us boxes of used ball, bats and gloves.

PETERBORO' RINKS IN COBOURG

COBOURG, Sept. 8. — Sixteen rinks, representing Cobourg, Peterborough, Bowmanville, Millbrook, Oshawa and Port Hope took part in the grand tournament on the Port Hope bowling green, where play went on from ten o'clock in the morning until after midnight. A large crowd of spectators watched the different contests with great interest. The grounds were quite elaborately decorated, the Union Jack being everywhere in evidence, supplemented with bunting. A large booth was erected at one side of the green, where sandwiches and coffee were served.

The first prize in the primary, fine Jaegar blankets, went to Stevenson of Oshawa, while Will D'Laney of Cobourg carried off the second prize, four very fine club bags. In the consolation awards Hall of Oshawa won the first prize, four Jaegar sweater coats. Russell of Millbrook was second and received four handsome casseroles.

ESSAY ON CHESTINESS.

By Jas. J. Montague

King Solomon cut a wide swath in his day
With money and power galore,
With dozens of houses and hundreds of spouses,
And servants and slaves by the score.
And every one said, "When our great King is dead
We might as well chuck up the game!"
But Solomon died in the height of his pride,
And the world rolled around just the same.

The handsome head-waiter, the King of Finance,
The statesmen whose words are our law,
The regular bears in the world of affairs,
Impress us with reverent awe.
They fancy the seasons will cease when they pass,
Yet they go, one by one, to the urn
Where the low and the high both are filed when they die,
And the world never misses a turn.

And, therefore, young person, beware of a chest,
No matter how high you have climbed;
If you dropped out to-day they would tuck you away,
Unwept for, unknown and unrhymed.
No doubt you imagine you, too, are a bear;
No doubt that is possibly true;
But if you winked out there is also no doubt
That we'd manage to do without you.

ARMY COUNCIL NAMED

Gen. Carson Will Be Head of Overseas Administrative Body.

LONDON, Sept. 8. — An army council for administration of the Canadian forces on this side will soon be established, with Gen. Carson as president, the other members being Generals Steele, MacDougall and Meighen, with Col. Murphy quartermaster-general, and Col. Frank Reid adjutant-general.

THE WORK IS NEARING COMPLETION

The work of repairing the market scales will be practically completed to-day. Two big loads of refuse was removed from the pit under the scales together with a number of very active rats.

THE JOYS OF AN UMPIRE

PETERSBURG, Va., Sept. 8.—Denied admission to the baseball park by officials of the Petersburg Virginia League club, Umpire Buckley, assigned to officiate at Tuesday's game with Newport News, crawled through a hole in the fence, declared the game forfeited to Newport News, and then was taken to jail on a trespass warrant sworn out by the city collector. He was released on bail.

The incident caused a near-riot among the fans. Petersburg club officials said Buckley's decision had made him obnoxious and they took vigorous measures to force another assignment.

ROCKEFELLER JR. MAKES SUCCESS OF "PATERNALISM"

It Has Uplifted the Mining and Industrial Workers' Families in Colorado and Wyoming

Denver, September 6. — War and strife, armed guards, lawless strikers and strike breakers as symbols of the conditions which existed three years ago in the many coal camps of Colorado, have been replaced by industrial peace, willing workers, pretty homes and happy women and children. And none of these people are today making any complaint against the corporation "paternalism," as the miners' leaders and agitators characterised the programme for industrial betterment inaugurated by John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

The betterment work inaugurated by the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company in its many coal camps and steel works and coke ovens in Colorado and in the two large mining camps at Sunrise and Chicago, in Wyoming, has many angles. The latest betterment work taken up by the company is for the improvement of the workers' living and social conditions by employing a corps of trained women workers in nursing, social and domestic lines. The corps now numbers five women, each an expert in her line of work, and the number probably will be increased if the plan proves its expected success.

SANITATION AND PLAY.

Three of the women are trained nurses. They will be available whenever needed for cases of illness or emergency operations. They will also visit the homes of the miners and steel workers, make the acquaintance of the women and the children, and give them sound advice in cleanliness, hygiene and housekeeping. Among other things they will supervise the care of the teeth of the children. Attention will be directed also to home sanitation. It is thought that camp epidemics can also be greatly reduced through the nurses watching for the first indications of contagious diseases and establishing quarantines. Besides these multitudinous duties, several of the nurses will attend to social service work in several of the camps.

The expert social service worker and playground teachers will co-operate with the visiting nurses in bringing about a more intimate social and medical service, making for a vast improvement in the family and social life of the employees.

What these women instructors will be able to accomplish is yet problematical. Whether or not the majority of the miners' wives in the coal and iron camps will resent this helpful intrusion of their homes, is questionable. The officials of the company realise that this line of work will require much tact on the part of the nurses and the social workers, and the first requirement of the women selected for these positions was tact.

Ability to win the confidences and trust of the employees is another qualification. Without that it will be difficult to induce some miner's ignorant wife to keep the chickens out of the parlor or convince her that the meals she cooks for her hard working husband are practically indigestible, or that little Willie requires a bath at least once a week.

Thus far the men and women of the camps and works have heartily responded to the efforts made to better their condition and raise the standard of living. Neat homes, with gardens and flower beds, better food, more hygienic living and better sanitation, have already worked wonders in the camps and the personal visits of the nurses and social workers are expected to bring these to a still higher level

COMBINATION OF FORCES.

The system recently initiated is due to the combined action of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, the Young Men's Christian Association, and John D. Rockefeller, Jr. In securing the services of the women workers the company was actuated by the need of a more efficient and intimate medical and social service. It became apparent that the medical department already well equipped for dealing with cases of illness and accident, would gain greatly in efficiency by having trained nurses for dispensary work and to provide home instruction in matters of sanitation and hygiene. At the same time it was thought that the work of the Y. M. C. A. inaugurated in most of the camps at the beginning of the year, could be rendered far more valuable if it could be intimately related to the homes of the miners by the services of trained social workers.

The efforts of the men who are behind the social betterment plan have proved good for everyone who has been affected. Better living conditions, cleaner pastimes for their leisure hours, better educational benefits for their families—in fact much that goes to make life worth living in a coal camp—has been instituted.

There are Y. M. C. A. buildings or rooms in every camp; there are children's playgrounds in several of them; several of the camps have bands and band stands where open air concerts are given; every camp has one or more baseball teams, and at the Minnequa plant there is an organized league composed of teams from the different mills, offices and furnaces.

The working of the industrial plan is nearly all directed by joint committees appointed by the company and the workmen. There are committees on industrial co-operation and conciliation, safety and accidents, sanitation, health and housing, and recreation and education.

$3,000,000,000 IN HANDS OF MAKERS OF AUTOMOBILES

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—"Europe has poured more than three billions of dollars into the purses of the American people in the last twelve months, according to R. C. Rueschaw of the Reo Motor Car Company, "and since all of the munitions contracts are for three years, will continue to pour it for some time yet.

"That money is here and there's no reason why it should not stay here. Europe is in dire necessity for certain things we could make and sell, and she is paying us for them. There is nothing Europe makes that we must have; therefore there is no valid reason why that money should go back.

"We are told, of course, that a number of factories formerly idle are now prospering on European business and that a great many other factories are making abnormal profits from the manufacture of articles outside their regular product.

"This last is important if true and I would ask you to consider the matter more thoroughly.

"The number of factories which formerly were idle and which are now doing a profitable business is small by comparison with the number that for the moment changed over to the making of articles which Europe wanted, and for which she was willing to pay heavily.

"It is not true, however, that these latter are making greater profits than they would have made had they stuck to their last. I have in mind several concerns that have come within my own notice, and one in particular, whose business was making automobile parts. That concern took on a large contract for war munitions — specifically, fuses. The price seemed big and looked as if it would pay, and let the regular business go for the time being. But to-day the head of that concern tells me they would have made twice the money had they continued to supply their regular customers with their standard product.

"Now in this case, the cessation of the strife on the other side will not mean a slump, but simply a return to normal conditions and normal profits.

"The very fact that everybody in every walk of life feels keenly the shortage of certain articles of everyday use is the best indication that the factories and mills, which formerly made those articles, have now been diverted to the making of war munitions and other supplies for European countries.

"The fact that there is such a shortage shows that there is waiting plenty of demand for the staple articles from those plants.

"The close of the war will mean that their needs are going to be supplied, and that means a distribution of prosperity.

"Meantime many who are in debt have paid their bills, and can now make a fresh start. Various concerns have discharged their obligations and retired their bonds. This gives them a clean slate. The only sufferers in this case are those who can no longer clip the coupons—no longer draw interest from those bonds. But on the other hand, these latter have gotten the coin and are now prospects for the purchase of more bonds.

"Could any business man imagine anything more beneficient than a condition which would take the obsolete articles off his shelves and at full price? Yet that is precisely what has happened. Any one who has had anything to sell has sold it and realized handsomely.

"I haven't mentioned that other phase of the matter—the resupplying of Europe with the articles she has destroyed—because that is an unknown quantity. Unquestionably Europe will be a great market for all of our products for many years to come because we must remember that everything has been destroyed—except the money. That is still in circulation.

"If Europe has spent her surplus she is only obligating future generations to pay it back. Europe must and will be rebuilt.

"Recently I was talking to a friend who lives in Europe and he astounded me by stating that Europe will for the next several years enjoy a prosperity similar to that which we in America habitually enjoy.

"I asked him to explain it. He said "You have a great many wooden houses in America, haven't you?" I assented. 'Well, we in Europe have long had stone houses — permanent places of abode," said he.

"I guess I was dense, for I didn't get the significance of the remark.

"When people have built permanent places of abode," he explained, "they do not need to build any longer, and that means the end of prosperity, for those homes are also completely furnished, and the furniture is the kind we expect to last for several generations."

"I began to see a new light. After the war Europe will have to be rebuilt—it will be as a new country—and that will mean work for everybody for a long time to come.

BYERSVILLE BOYS REAL CUT UPS TOO

Six Byersville boys will appear on Thursday, next before Magistrate Langley in the County Police Court on a charge of disorderly conduct. It is alleged that they made a rendezvous of the north east corner of Chamberlen and Boundary streets, close to a little house in which there was a patient recovering from penumonia. Their ages average fourteen or fifteen years, and their youth accentuated their language and ability to smoke cigarettes. Eleven o'clock was an early hour to them, and when they were asked to depart early they told the woman who made the request to go to h—. This is the story on which the charge is based, and Magistrate Langley will investigate it fully.

OAK HALL

MONAGHAN WANTS PARK STREET LEFT AS GOOD AS BEFORE

Some of the members of the North Monaghan Council are far from satisfied with the condition in which the city has left the section of Park Street in the county which was excavated for the new outfall sewer. The stout, top surface that formerly carried all the loads that passed over it is torn up, and in the attempted restoration the roadway was narrowed almost by half. The quicksand that was dug up is now a top soil and waggons are said to sink to the hubs. In short, several members state that the city might as well be prepared to make the road permanent, as wide as before, and with a good gravelled top.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Investment stocks led the market to higher levels at today's activity, accompanied by metal group and paper. Reading rose a point with as much for Union Pacific and Norfolk and Western White, New York Central and Erie were in fair demand.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Prices moved upward in the early trading on the stock exchange floor to-day. Coppers again were leaders in strength. U. S. steel sold at par, up 3-4, and other steel and munition shares followed.

Paralysis Outbreak Now Under Control

WINDSOR, Sept. 8.—Because the outbreak of infantile paralysis in Windsor and neighboring towns is now considered to be under control, the order issued several weeks ago by the local Board of Health barring children from attending theatres and using the civic swimming pool has been countermanded, upon the advice of the Medical Officer of Health, Dr. G. R. Cruickshanks.

All the public schools will open Monday for the fall term, this being a week later than usual owing to precautions taken. Sunday schools will also be reopened, after being closed for five weeks.

Since July 1 there have been twenty two cases of infantile paralysis reported from Essex county, including fourteen from Windsor. This establishes a record for the country.

MILK MAY BE NINE CENTS THIS WINTER

A prospect of nine-cent milk this winter is a reported probability according to several milkmen. They assert that milk is first of all scarce and fodder is dear, that butter and cheese are at top prices, pastures are none too rich, and if milk is to be retained for retail selling, it must be raised to a price equivalent to that paid for butter and cheese. This is only a rumour, but milkmen state that it should be a fact.

WOULD MAKE CLERGY LIABLE TO SERVICE

Declaration That Workers There Sympathize With Entente Applauded.

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., Sept. 8. — Delegates from Canada and the United States yesterday addressed the forty-eighth Trades Union Congress, representing nearly 2,000,000 workingmen, which is now in session in Birmingham, William D. Mahon, of Detroit, president of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, and a delegate to the Congress of the A. F. of L, presented the standpoint of the United States regarding the proposed Labour and Peace Congress on the conclusion of the war. He said:

"The United States labour leaders asked only for a call to be sent out to the workers of the nations. They did not say they would not participate unless both the Germans and their allies were present.

Delegate Simpson, a Canadian, declared that Canada had accepted the proposition, and he regretted the attitude of rejection of the workers of the Mother Country.

The congress gave an enthusiastic reception to the declaration that workers in the United States generally sympathized with the cause of the Entente allies because they thought it represented right and liberty.

At the business session the congress first adopted a resolution protesting against compulsory service. Then another resolution was adopted demanding that the clergy should not be exempted from military service.

CALLING OFF THE TROOPS.

CANNOT BLOCKADE BRITAIN SAYS GERMAN CHANCELLOR, SUB WARFARE A FAILURE

LONDON, Sept. 8.— According to definite information reaching Berne, Switzerland, from Germany, says a dispatch to the wireless press, Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German chancellor, upon being questioned at the August meeting of the federal council as to why he yielded to the demands of the United States regarding the unrestricted torpedoing of ships on the high seas, replied emphatically that the value of the submarine was exaggerated by the adherents of wholesale torpedoing.

The chancellor said that insistence on unrestricted submarine warfare would cause war between Germany and the United States and that the result of unlimited torpedoing would not justify such a policy.

Elaborating this point the chancellor is quoted as saying that Germany could not effectively blockade England nor cut off England's food supply.

Granulated sugar dropped 40 cents a bag yesterday. It is almost impossible to quote a retail price for the reason that scarcely no two grocers have been selling at the same price. Some quotations to-day were from $7.75 to $7.90 a bag.

Roumanians Continue The Advance Into Transylvania

Large Forces Have Been Shifted To Check The Attack of the Enemy

FIGHTING IS SEVERE AT MANY POINTS ON THE BULGAR-ROUMANIAN FRONT

Roumanian General Staff Has Shifted Large Forces to the South-eastern Frontier to Check the German Bulgarian Invasion---Important Forces Are Now Co-operating With the Russians---In Transylvania the Roumanians Have Resumed Their Advance.

AUSTRIAN RESISTANCE BROKEN

LONDON, September 9.—Fierce fighting at many points in the Balkans. The German-Bulgar invasion of Roumania has been stopped. Roumanians continue advance into Transylvania. The Kaiser is going to the Bulgar-Roumanian front.

BUCHAREST, September 9.—The Roumanian General Staff has shifted large forces to the southeastern frontier to check the German-Bulgarian invasion. It was semi-officially announced to-day that "important forces" are now co-operating with the Russians in the Dobrudja. A further retirement may be necessary because the Dobrudja territory is difficult to defend, and because the enemy has massed great forces on that front. Military authorities declared their confidence to-day that the enemy will be unable to throw any large forces across the Danube for an advance on Bucharest. In Transylvania the Roumanians have resumed their advance after a three-days' fight in the north in which Austrian resistance was finally beaten down. The Roumanian advance guards have now pushed thirty miles into Transylvanian territory.

RUSSIANS TO THE RESCUE.

Large Russian forces have joined the Roumanians in the defense of their southern frontier, and already are striking back at the Germans and Bulgarians. The Russians engaged in strong counter-attacks against Dobric, which recently fell into the hands of the Bulgarians, and appear to have checked the invasion in this section. Berlin reports that the attacks were repulsed.

Turtukai is one of a series of fortresses defending the Roumanian capital from the south. It is situated on the southern bank of the River Danube opposite Oltanitsa, from which town a railroad runs to Bucharest. The German army headquarters staff announced on Wednesday that German and Bulgarian troops had stormed seven of the Turtukai works, including the armoured batteries of the position.

ROUMANIANS MAKE GAINS.

Meanwhile, on both the extreme northwestern and northeastern fronts, the Roumanians have inflicted sharp defats on the Austrians. In the former region the pass of Gyergo-Ditro-Orsova has been seized, together with seven machine guns and important food stores. In the northwest Vienna last night admitted a retreat before a Roumanian encircling movement, which took place twenty miles within Hungarian territory. Heights southwest of Lorna Watra have been ceded to the Roumanians. The Austrians retired to the heights west of Olah to Plitza.

Air raids against a number of important Roumanian cities have aroused a demand for reprisals against German, Austrian, Bulgarian and Turkish residents, according to a Bucharest despatch. Bombs were dropped on the capital, Constance, Ploesti and other cities.

SPECIAL REPORT OF THE CROP SITUATION IN CANADA

Grain Crops Will Be Light in Some of the Provinces—Heavy Crop of Hay—Roots Have Suffered From Lack of Rain—Potatoes Are a Good Crop in the Maritime Provinces—Government Report on the Crop Situation.

OTTAWA, September 9.—A special bulletin issued by the Census and Statistics Office reports on the condition of field crops in Canada at the end of August, as summarized from telegrams received from the Dominion Experimental Farms and Stations in accordance with arrangements made between the Department of Trade and Commerce and Agriculture.

MARITIME PROVINCES.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND—All grain except wheat, which has suffered from blight and insects, will yield above average; roots, potatoes and vegetables most promising; fruit a light crop.

NOVA SCOTIA—Grain ripening rapidly and promising a good yield; hay gathered in excellent condition. At Kentville, roots suffered from dry weather; corn unusually good; at Amherst, roots and corn have made fair growth.

NEW BRUNSWICK—August, with more heat and less rain than usual, has been very favourable for crops; oats partly harvested promise well; hay much above average; potatoes unfavourably affected by heat will not give average yield; roots growing well and corn the best crop for years.

QUEBEC—Drought has caused premature ripening of grain and reduction of yield; roots too have suffered and potatoes are poor; at Rimouski, rains have benefited potatoes and vegetables, and the hay crop is the best in years.

EASTERN ONTARIO—A heavy crop of hay has been gathered, and in some parts there were two cuttings. Roots have suffered from lack of rain. Grain is nearly all ripe, and is threshing out a light crop owing to drought; pastures are poor from the same cause; and potatoes are likely to be a poor crop.

PRAIRIE PROVINCES.

MANITOBA—From Brandon it is reported that the Manitoba wheat crop is about half the normal yield and practically all low grades; oats and barley are an average crop. Cutting is practically completed and threshing has begun. Fodder corn is a good crop; there is no injury from frost.

SASKATCHEWAN—The weather during August has been unfavourable for grain, and damage to wheat by rust is reported from Indian Head, Maple Creek, Gull Lake, Eston, Prelate, Rosthern and Scott, reducing the yield and grade. Frost is reported from points in the Moose Jaw, Saskatoon and Battleford districts. Threshing is beginning in the first week of September. At Scott in the Battleford district the harvest was delayed by cool weather and cutting has only just commenced, hailstorms did much injury early in the month. Late crops of wheat in low land were badly frozen on the 11th. Yields of wheat that has escaped frost and rust will be satisfactory.

ALBERTA—Munson: Cutting not general until first week in September. Some wheat crops show effects of frost on August 10. Carmangay: Crops good if they can be secured before frost, hoed crops looking fine but are later than last year. Lethbridge: Harvest over a week later than last year. Cutting general; no damage to wheat from frost, no appreciable damage from rust. Lacombe: Three degrees of frost August 10 damaged much grain over area of 150 square miles. Certain localities immune, harvesting of barley is general and wheat cutting has begun. A further ten days of good weather required to render safe crops that are so far uninjured.

BRITISH COLUMBIA—Agassiz: An exceptionally bright fine month is reported, with excellent weather for grain harvest and for making a record crop of hay. Corn prospects have improved, and mangold crops are growing exceptionally well. Invermere: Weather conditions favourable for grain harvest and second cuttings of clover and alfalfa; corn backward; pulse crops good. Summerland: Weather hot and dry, nearly all grain harvested, hay harvested in good condition, apple crop equal to last year and very good in quality. Sidney: Weather continues dry, grains harvested, threshing commenced and yield good of autumn grain and peas, second crop of red clover and third crop of alfalfa harvested, corn and chard growing well, orchard crops ripening and promise well.

Cattle Market Closes Firm

Best Cattle Closed Week Strong —Hogs Firm—Lambs Easy— The Grain Market

Receipts at the Toronto Union Stock Yards this week were 548 cars, with 6,081 cattle, 777 calves, 6,983 hogs, 3,815 sheep and lambs, and 2,662 horses.

Receipts at City Yards were 73 cars with 957 cattle, 970 sheep and lambs, 1,576 hogs, 33 calves, and 18 horses.

The cattle market was fairly steady Common cattle were a shade easier than a week ago with poor demand for all unfinished grades. The best choice cattle were firm and sold a quarter dollar better than a week ago.

Stockers and feeders were a trifle more active and the demand for milkers and springers was somewhat better.

Lambs closed the week easier, though a trifle firmer than the mid-week prices, which were a half-cent off.

Hogs closed firm and steady, with prices holding well around a week ago's top quotations.

German Trench Was Captured

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Sept. 9.—British troops captured a German trench in sharp hand-to-hand fighting in the Foureaux Wood last night, General Haig reported yesterday afternoon. Twenty-one prisoners were taken.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house may feel that the lives of their little ones are reasonably safe during the hot weather. Stomach troubles, cholera infantum and diarrhoea carry off thousands of little ones every summer, in most cases because the mother does not have a safe medicine at hand to give promptly. Baby's Own Tablets cure these troubles, or if given occasionally to the well child will prevent their coming on. The Tablets are guaranteed by a government analyst to be absolutely harmless even to the new-born babe. They are especially good insummer because they regulate the bowels and keep the stomach sweet and pure. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

POWER must be reckoned in reference to the weight involved. This is the big underlying truth that is often overlooked in careless statements about horsepower.

We repeat that Maxwell cars have greater horsepower, per pound of weight, than any car built.

This has been proved within the last six months by four competitive tests made in the two leading scientific schools of the United States.

The point for you to remember is this:

Maxwell cars will take you anywhere that any car will take you and they'll take you as fast as you'll dare to travel.

Take Iron For Your Blood

Makes You 100% Stronger in 10 Days

Phosphorous For Your Nerves

Doctors are now finding thousands of people who are going through life in misery with kidney trouble, liver complaint, nervous prostration, headache, nervous indigestion, rheumatism, constipation and numerous other complaints, all due to lack of Iron in the blood and Phosphorus in the nerves.

Just as soon as the blood becomes thin, and nerves weakened you are unable to digest the little food you eat and at once your system becomes poisoned, causing liver trouble, kidney pains, headaches, rheumatism, indigestion, heart trouble, and you soon are a living thin, run-down, nervous wreck, and life to you then is a burden. The first thing you should do is to go and get weighed; then go to the nearest drug store, and get some bonised phosphorus with Iron tablets and take one or two after each good meal and you will find that in ten days you are 100 per cent. stronger. The Iron will give you good rich thick blood and the phosphorus will strengthen your nerves and the food you eat will give you 100 per cent. more nourishment than before; you will begin to get fat, your nerves will be stronger, and you will feel like you used to when you were 15 years old. You know as well as ever, doctor, that there is nothing like good old Iron to give you strength and build you up, while phosphorus acts wonders on the nervous system.

The Iron recommended here is an entirely new form of Iron which will not blacken the teeth or upset your stomach.

Life is short but you can lengthen it by 25 years if you take Bonised Phosphorus with Iron, which gives you digestive strength, and the food you eat will be nourishment to you instead of poisoning your system, causing so many complaints, which you know bring you to an early grave. Bonised Phosphorus with Iron does not contain an atom of arsenic, strychnine or any poison which has been proved so harmful in almost every tonic. It is easy to take and is taken up by the system almost immediately, making you feel 100 per cent. stronger in 10 days. It is dispensed in this city by F. C. Webber stores at 50c a box.

The HOME CIRCLE COLVAN

A BABY'S SOLILOQUY

One of our good neighbours, who claims she can interpret "baby talk," vouches for the truthfulness of the following having fallen from the lips of a sweet little blossom of humanity that recently came to a home in our city: "I am here. And this is what they call the world. I don't think much of it. It's a very flannelly world and smells of paregoric awfully. It's a dreadful light world, too, and makes me blink, I tell you. And I don't know what to do with my hands. I think I'll dig my first in my eyes. No. I won't. I'll scrabble at the corner of my blanket and chew it up, and then I'll holler; whatever happens, I'll holler. And the more paregoric they give me the louder I'll yell. That old nurse puts the spoon in the corner of my mouth in a very uneasy way, and keeps tasting my milk herself all the while. She spilled snuff in it last night, and when I hollored she trotted me. That comes of being a two days' old baby. Never mind, when I'm a man, I'll pay her back good. There's a pin sticking in me good now, and if I say a word about it I'll be trotted or fed, and I would rather have catnip tea. I'll tell you who I am. I found out to-day. I heard folks say: 'Hush, don't wake up Jane's baby.' That's me. I am 'Jane's baby,' and I suppose that pretty, white-faced woman over on the pillow is Jane. No, I am mistaken, for a chap was in here just now and wanted to see Charley's baby, and looked at me, and said I was a funny little toad, and looked just like Charlie. He smelt of cigars, and I'm not used to them. I wonder who else I belong to. Yes, there's another one—that's 'Ganma.' Jane told me, and then she took me up and held me against her soft cheek and said: "It was Ganma's baby, so it was." I declare I do not know who I do belong to; but I'll holler, and maybe I'll find out."

THE IRON BAR.

A bar if iron worth $5, worked into horse shoes, is worth $10.50; made into needles, is worth $355; made into penknife blades is worth $3,258; made into balance springs of watches, it is worth $250,000.

What a drilling the poor bar must undergo to reach all that. But hammered and beaten and pounded and rolled and polished, how its value was increased! It might well have quivered and complained under the hard necessary to draw out its fine qualities, and fit it for higher office?

So we say to the children and young people who weekly read this department, all the drilling and training you receive at home and at school, and which seems so hard to you, is all necessary to bring out your nobler and finer qualities and qualify you for more responsible posts and greater usefulness in the world.

A WORD TO BOYS

Our young friend, did you ever know—can you call to mind a single case of a person who, having his own way to make in the world, spent his time on the street or in any other form of idleness or dissipation, to succeed in an eminent degree in any enterprise? Look over your list of friends and acquaintances and note the course. Do you not find upon examination that those who to-day are men of influence and honour, were the youths who made the most of valuable time, turning it to good account? And, on the other hand, do you not find that those who stood on the corners with a pipe or cigar in their mouth, went from bad to worse, from worse to ruin? Sadly must the answer be made—oh, that it were not so—they have failed. Will you profit by the experience of others? Go not that way. Never be idle. Every moment of your time is a golden one, use it as such, improve the mind, fix your mind on some noble object; be men. The call is for men; will you not be one of that number who can say, "I am a man?"

The true mission of this paper in general and this department in particular, in this wonderful age of progress, is to be magnanimous, "with charity toward all and malice towards none." It speaks the truth boldly for the truth's sake, and cherishes justice as the apple of its eye. It seeks by the prosperity of right principles and high thoughts, to be useful as well as popular, to build up truth and tear down error—in short, to improve and ennoble, as well as to please and entertain mankind.

Six things are requisite to create a happy home. Integrity must be the architect and tidiness the upholsterer It must be warmed by affection and lighted up with cheerfulness. Industry must be the ventilator, renewing the atmosphere and bringing in fresh salubrity every day; while over all, a protective canopy of glory, and nothing will suffice except the blessing of God.

Woman is more practical than man, much more so. When a man discovers that he is losing his hair he invests lots of money in hair restoratives, which never do a bit of good. A woman does not waste time or money on restoratives, she goes and buys more hair.

THE ELDER SISTER.

There is no character in the home circle more useful and beautiful than a devoted elder sister who stands side by side with the toiling mother, lightening all her cares and burdens. How beautiful the household machinery moves on with such efficient help. Now she presides at the table in her mother's absence, always so neatly attired that it is with pride the father introduces her to his guest as "our oldest daughter". Now she takes a little troop into the garden with her and amuses them, so mother may not be disturbed in her work or her rest. Now she helps the boys with their hard lessons or reads father's paper aloud to rest his tired eyes. If mother can run away for a few days' recreation she leaves home without any anxiety, for Mary will guide her house wisely and happily in her absence. But in the sick room her presence is an especial blessing. Her hand is next to mother's own in gentleness and skill. Her sweet music can charm any pain and brighten the weariest hours. There are elder sisters whose presence is not such a blessing in the house. Their own selfish ends and aims are the main pursuits in life, and anything that stands in the way of these is regarded with great impatience. Such daughters are no comfort to a mother's heart. Which kind of an elder sister are you in the household?

HINTS FOR HUSBANDS

When a man has established a home, has a wife and children, the most important duties of his life have fairly begun. The errors of his youth may be overlooked; but from the moment of his marriage he commences to write an ineffable history; not by pen and ink, but by deeds by which he must ever afterward be reported and judged.

His conduct at home, his care for his family, the training of his children, his attention to his wife, his devotions to the great interests of eternity, these are tests by which his character will ever afterward be estimated by those who think or care for him. These will determine his position while living, and influence his memory when the grave has closed over him. And as he uses well or ill the brief spaces alloted to him, out of all eternity to establish a fame founded on the most solid of foundations—private worth—so will God and man judge him. He holds in his hands the private weal and woe of his wife and children; and if he abuses his most holy, God-given trust, he cannot hope for mercy hereafter. Many a child goes astray simply because home lacks sunshine. Many a wife esteems death her best friend, because he who swore before God to "love, honor and cherish" has forgotten his vows.

TWO PATHS IN LIFE.

Just in front of every young man and young woman who reads this department are two paths, leading into the future, and it is for them to select which path they will journey in. To aid them in selecting are their neighbors, some of whom in early life selected one path and others the opposite. The neighbors who have the wise choice can be seen returning to his home for the evening meal, his face radiant with joy as the children meet him at the gate, each one endeavoring to get the first kiss. The other neighbor goes home through the alley, his step is unsteady, his face flushed from dissipation, the children flee to the mother as he approaches. These two neighbors had an equal start upon life's voyage, the difference now so plainly visible is caused by the paths they selected to travel in at the beginning of the journey. A few years of training in our schools upon the one hand, or on the streets upon the other hand, will make all the difference you see in the neighbors.

* * *

Young men, black your own boots and bid every man black his. Keep your own hands in your own pockets. Pay cash, take cash. Never marry an "accomplished lady." The latest meaning of that word "accomplished" is ruin. The truest type for you, of blessed womanhood beneath the home of love, is a good, pure, educated, working farmer's girl. The name of lady becomes her; calico brings from her no sneer, no scorn. This girl will wear a hat twice without retrimming. Is she poor? So much the better; then commence together; work, make, save enjoy together. We charge you nothing for this advice, as valuable as it is.

* * *

Isn't it strange that some men who will be kind and obliging to their neighbors, gentlemanly and polite to other ladies, will be so rude and cold and harsh at home, and perfect bears to their wives—crabbed, snappish, ungenerous and altogether unsocial and hateful? Does anybody know of any such men. Not that we wish to lay all the wrong doing and blame on mankind, or condemn them en masse, not at all. There are plenty of good, noble men, but not quite enough. When they are so strong, and have so much power to do good, and win love, and bless their homes, why won't they all do it?

* * *

A muddy stream, flowing into one clear and sparkling, for a time rolls along by itself. A little further down they unite, and the whole is impure. So youth, untouched by sin, may for a short time keep its purity in foul company, but a little later and they mingle.

Let's End That Corn!

Apply a little Blue-jay plaster. That brings a wonderful wax in touch with the corn, and protects it.

This wax was invented by a chemist who has spent 25 years studying corns.

Tomorrow

You'll forget the corn. Blue-jay ends all pain.

It will prove to you that all corn pains are needless. You can stop them in an instant—and forever—with a Blue-jay. You will always do that when you know the facts.

Next Day

The corn will disappear for good. And no soreness follows. Blue-jay has proved that on 70 million corns. It will prove it to you, we promise. After that, you will never keep a corn.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

Causes of Cost: The demand for health is one of the great factors in the increased cost of living and the demand for equal rights in practice as well as in the eloquent language of political orators is another. Throughout the length of the land, agitation of the purity and cleanliness of food products, as advocated by men for the past quarter of a century is quite general. So great is the demand for clean or sterile food that the slow moving machinery of the Government is beginning to get action of the source of our food supply and is solving the problem for the farmers.

This morning's mail brought me Farmer's Bulletin No. 748, which gives to the farmer detailed instructions in making and operating "A simple steam sterilizer for farm dairy utensils." It shows how the farmer, if he is handy with tools and most all of them are, can make a thoroughly efficient apparatus with which he can sterilize his milk cans and all other utensils used about the dairy and the total cost of the outfit will run form $5.00 to $10.00 according to where it is made and the skill of the maker.

In the same mail I also received from the office of Markets and Rural Organisations of the same department at Washington, a "Report of Cold Storage holdings of butter and eggs" This report shows over eighty-seven million pounds of butter on hand which is four per cent more than was held at the same time last year and it also shows over four and a half million cases of eggs, each containing 30 dozen which is more than 24 per cent. less than were held at this time last year.

The time was and within the personal recollection of many of us when such a thing as dictating to the producers in regard to cleanliness was unheard of and the only eggs and butter kept over was what the farmer's wife carefully put away as best she could.

The production of sanitary food stuffs, its care and storage are problems that require time and expense. The farmer as well as all other laboring men worked from 10 to 14 hours per day and made a bare living. On account of unsanitary conditions the death rate was much higher. By demanding less hours of labour, better working conditions, more pay and better food we have created two factors that increase the cost of living. First we have decreased the death rate which increases the number of people to be fed and by increasing the labour of handling food stuff we have increased its cost. We want the pure food we want the people to be healthy. So long as we demand and receive these two essentials to life and happiness we must be prepared to pay the price and it is not at all likely to be less.

CLUB NOTES.

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from readers of this publication if same are addressed to Home Health Club, 5039 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, Ill. Send full name and address with 4 cents postage.

Dear Doctor: I have often thought I would write and tell you how we got along with the measles last spring. I wrote you then concerning my daughter when she had them. I followed your advice in Vol. 2 and she got along very nicely and seemed to be quite well afterwards and my other little daughter and I did not take them at all. We bathed the little girl with acetic acid in the water. She slept with her sister when she came down with them and I took care of her all the time she was sick, but we both escaped the measles entirely. Thanks to Dr. Reeder for his lectures They have helped us very much.

Now I must trouble you again. My oldest daughter complains of a pain in the small of her back and between her shoulders, sometimes so much so that she can hardly sit up. Then she has a distressing feeling in the chest just below the breast bone. Since her back has troubled her she says her eyes feel so bad she can hardly study, although she has glasses. She cannot get along without them. She has complained of her back for several years, but a few months ago she was swinging and the swing broke and she fell to the ground quite hard. Since then her back seems to be worse and the other troubles came on. Do you think the fall is the cause of the trouble and if so, what would you advise her to do? It is hard for her to go to school when feeling so bad. Of course, she is not troubled with all these aches all the time She also has the hiccoughs a great deal—sometimes lasting for several hours.—H.H.

(Answer) Your experience with the Home Health Club treatment of measels corresponds with thousands of others and I am glad to learn that it turned out very successful, the same as it always does when properly given.

Hot fomentations along the whole length of the spine will greatly help your daughter to overcome the backache. Such a treatment should not be given often. I believe that once or twice would be enough and would accomplish the purpose. Her kindeny may be a little weakened and this may also influence her eyes. It would be a good plan to have her eyes tested again by a competent oculist. Possibly she needs another pair of glasses

Now, the injury she suffered a few months ago may be responsible for the acute pains she has in the back and osteopathic or chiropractic treatment I would then consider best for her. Still, I believe that the hot fomentations will benefit her greatly. She should not be sent to school or do any kind of work if she is not disposed to do so herself. She should be given nourishing foods, must sleep before open windows, and should be encouraged in every possible way to gain strength. Osteopathic treatment will more quickly cure hiccough than anything else and is the surest treatment than can be had. Not very long ago I explained fully how it should be done.

After Vacation Peel Your Discoloured Skin

Women returning from the seaside with browned, reddened or freckled complexions will be wise in immediately taking up the mercolised wax treatment. Weatherbeaten skin had best come off, for no amount of "beautifying" will ever make such skin pretty to look at. The surest, safest, easiest way to shed the despoiled cuticle is with the treatment suggested. Put the wax on before retiring, as you would cold cream, and rinse it off next morning with warm water. Minute particles of scarf skin will peel off day by day, gradually showing the healthy, youthful skin beneath. One ounce of mercolised wax, obtainable at any drug store, is enough to make any discolored or spotted complexion clear, white and satiny soft. Its action is so gentle no harm is caused and the face shows no trace of its use.

Burning heat, irritating winds and dirt are such wrinkle-makers that the daily use of the following astringent-tonic lotion at this season is highly advisable: Powdered saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in witch hazel, one half pint. Advance Styles Seen In the Shops

Dresses That Reflect the Mode of the Moment

New York, Sept. 4.

More than half the summer is already gone and interest is being turned to darker and heavier dresses and hats. In both of these there is much to attract the attention of those on the lookout for new ideas in dress.

A visit to the best shops shows many distinct styles on display. What is really most striking is the number of one-piece frocks and the large variety of them. Some are of serge and light woollens, others are of satin or silk, according to the requirements of the woman who must have her wardrobe stocked with a dress for every occasion. In dark dresses, the navy blue serge is to be counted on again. Women never seem to tire of it, for it has so many qualities which make it too good to give up, and no satisfactory substitute has ever been found for it. White serges there are also, and they are truly fascinating.

Sleeves are long and some collars are high, though the becoming sailor collar is still retained in many models. The skirts are full, the fulness being arranged in gathers, side pleats or unstitched box pleats. There have been rumous also of the accordion pleated skirt coming in again.

A number of the new hats are in that most rich and wonderful color, royal purple. The material is velvet or satin or both combined. Another new color for hats is ruby red. Topping a black or navy blue costume one of these spots of color gives a most striking and smart effect.

But let us come back to the styles that are worn just at present.

The Dress of the Moment.

If one judges by popularity the dress of the moment is of satin or figured silk. Gathers and pleats, long tunics and interesting collars are the features that attract most attention in the present models. Gathered skirts are not new it is true but when all the gathering is placed at the sides below the hip line and finished with a heading, beneath which are pockets, we have to admit that this is a novel way of handling gathers. This treatment is shown here in an illustration. The dress referred to has the waist cleverly designed to harmonize with the skirt, for the lines on either side of the white vest would continue down to meet those on the skirt were it not for the soft girdle that comes between them.

Any Woman's Struggle For Good Health Quickly Rewarded

A SIMPLE HOME TREATMENT NOW ADVOCATED THAT GIVES FINE RESULTS.

When a woman's face grows haggard and pale, when she is tired all day and ready to cry when night comes, she ought to know something is wrong.

Putting off only make matters worse. The best advice we can give any sickly woman is to test out the following treatment.

At the close of every meal, with a sip or two of water, take two chocolate-coated Ferrozone Tablets. This seems to be the best thing going for folks that are tired out, run-down and in need of a strengthening, building-up medicine.

Ferrozone's action aids the three principal functions of the body—digestion, assimilation, elimination.

By strengthening digestion it forms an abundance of rich, red blood—this gives good colour.

By perfecting assimilation, Ferrozone supplies nutrition—this gives strength, vim, stability.

Elimination is assured because Ferrozone quickens the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels—this guarantees the maintenance of vigorous health.

Not a man, woman or child needing blood, vigor, endurance — not a person who is weak, nervous, or sickly, not a person in ill-health who won't receive immediate help from Ferrozone.

As a tonic and restorative, as a health-bringer and body-builder, Ferrozone is unrivalled. It cures because it feeds and nourishes, because it contains the elements that build up and strengthen. Try it yourself—sold everywhere in 50 cent boxes, 6 boxes for $2.50, or by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

One of the smart things to do this autumn after the law laid down by Paris is to wear a short cape over a one-piece frock as a compromise for weather that is neither cold nor hot.

Wonderful dolls which have taken a scholar 30 years to collect are now the talk of London, even war harrassed Cabinet ministers snatching time to go and see the collection, which ranges from one dating back to Moses to the latest Red Cross fancy.

SIFTO FREE RUNNING SALT

You can fill the shakers direct from the opening in the handsome, dust-proof Sifto Salt carton.

BOVRIL

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

HEART DISEASE.

IN RECENT YEARS the number of cases and deaths from disorders of the heart have markedly increased. In Ontario the ratio of deaths has steadily risen during the last decade, and as a cause of death organic heart disease now heads the list. A certain amount of the increase may be set down to better diagnosis and more accurate statistics, but these facts will hardly account for the remarkable increase during recent years.

ORGANIC HEART DISEASE

What can be done about it? In the first place means must be taken to establish not an early diagnosis but an earlier diagnosis. Every man or woman who has reached the age of 40 years should be examined by a physician; and the physician must not, as is sometimes done, slur over the examination and hastily conclude that the symptoms are those of dyspepsia.

* * * *

RECOGNITION OF HEART TROUBLE

What symptoms and signs are the most important in the testing diagnosis of heart disease? Among the most important are weariness, lassitude, and decreased ambition. If these are complained of it should lead the physician to make a most careful examination. Then there may be a tendency towards breathlessness in hurrying to a street-car, or in going up hill or upstairs, or there may be a sense of tightness or pain in the chest which disappears following a few minutes' rest. There may or may not be palpitation. Sometimes there is a slight puffiness about the boot tops or the feet are somewhat swollen, and there may be occasional spots or bright lights before the eyes with transient giddiness. Physical examination may disclose some valvular trouble, or there may be a slight change in the character of the first sound with a slight increase in cardiac dullness or some irregularity in the pulse. The condition of the arteries and pulse must be carefully noted, and the urine should, as in every first examination by the physician, be carefully analyzed. If careful examination denotes some cardiac affection, its early recognition will pave the way for such treatment as will delay or prevent further progress. The prompt and ready detection of heart disease is just as important as the early recognition of tuberculosis. By detecting it in the early stage it is usually possible, by proper diet, exercise, and regulation of work, to add years or decades of useful activity to one's life.

CONNAUGHT LABORATORY

Twelve miles up Dufferin street from the City of Toronto, on the banks of the circuitous Don River is a pretty stretch of broken land, comprising some fifty acres, is the site of the Connaught Laboratories which are destined to be a bright spot in the future public health history of this fair Province. As soon as the buildings, now in course of construction, are completed all the various serums in use at the present time in the prevention of disease will be manufactured here. The rolling pastures will accommodate the horses necessary for the blood serum used in the preparation of diphtheria and tetanus antitoxins and of anti-meningitis serum. Here, too, will be prepared smallpox vaccine and Pasteur preventive treatment of rabies. The land and buildings necessary for this purpose are a gift from Colonel Albert Gooderham to the Provincial University, which makes and supplies these products for the Provincial Board of Health, and which are in turn supplied by the Board free of cost to the people of the Province. No better work is being done for the public anywhere in the civilized world, and the Board is much gratified by the numerous letters and words of appreciation of this enterprise which come from the medical profession and the people of Ontario. The generous gift of Colonel Gooderham, it is hoped, will be but the beginning of a series of similar gifts to public health work in Ontario, which can only be successfully carried out by money, which after all judiciously used is the chief factor in the prevention of disease.

4.—Fleas. J.S.G., Hamilton.

Q.—Do fleas carry disease of any kind? If so, how may they be got rid of?

A.—Fleas carry a disease known as bubonic plague from rats, squirrels and other small animals. This disease is unknown in Canada.

Fleas may be destroyed by dusting fresh Pyrethrum powder into the seams of the clothing or by dusting the powder over the body. The floors of rooms should be washed with a solution of 5 per cent. cresol and 20 per cent. soft soap in water.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S ENVELOPE CHEMISE

By Anabel Worthington

The ambitious type of needlewoman nows that there are different degrees of elaboration for undergarments and that it is the handwork in them that makes the "store garments" expensive. In order to have the very daintiest, cut to fit the figure and at the slightest output of money even the amateur will make her undergarments. This is a good time for such delightful task.

We have chosen for illustration an envelope chemise, just the thing for wear under a summer frock. It may be made of long cloth, nainsook, silk, crepe, crossbar, dimity and lawn, and the decoration will be in ratio to the cost of material. Silk, crepe and nainsook will warrant your putting many pretty stitches in to have a beautiful garment, while some edging will be entirely appropriate for a chemise of lawn or crossbar.

At the side the garment in the picture is shaped to the figure lines. The neck is cut round and beading sewed for inserting ribbon that adjusts the neck fulness. Straight across the bust bands of insertion are effective and between them ribbon is run so that the bust is really supported. A tab end at the back centre of the lower edge is worked in buttonholes for buttoning to the front. The lower edge may have as many ruffles of lace or edging as you may care to add.

The pattern of No. 7,910 is cut in sizes 36, 40 and 44. To make in size 36 will require 2 yards of material 36 inches wide, 6½ yards edging, 3½ yards insertion, ¾ yard beading, 3 yards narrow ribbon, with 1¾ yards wide beading for ribbon across the bust.

You may obtain the pattern by sending 15 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are a genuine remedy for all forms of nerve, stomach, and kidney trouble in old or young. They are composed of carefully chosen ingredients, each one of which has definite restorative action on the nerve centres controlling the various processes of life; and thus they give new activity to the bodily organs, and new vitality to the entire system.

Dr. Ramsay Colles, J.P. of the City of Dublin, a man of high eminence in the scientific world, says:—"I have great pleasure in expressing my satisfaction as to the curative effect of Dr. Cassell's Tablets in cases of nerve troubles. From several cases which have lately come under my notice I am able to form the opinion that Dr. Cassell's Tablets constitute a safe and reliable family remedy, and appear to be specially effective for nerve and bodily weakness."

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are Nutritive, Restorative, Alterative and Anti-Spasmodic, and of great Therapeutic value in all derangements of the Nerve and Functional Systems in old or young. They are the recognised modern home remedy for Nervous Breakdown, Nerve and Spinal Paralysis, Infantile Paralysis, Rickets, St. Vitus' Dance, Anæmia, Sleeplessness, Kidney Disease, Dyspepsia, Stomach Catarrh, Brain Fag, Headache, Palpitation, Wasting Diseases, Vital Exhaustion, Loss of Flesh, and Premature Decay. INVIGORATING LAURENTIANS

(1) Chute Aux Iriquois, Labelle. (2) On Lake Joseph, Laurentians. (3) Going Picnicing.

ONE does not need to be wealthy to enjoy the luxury of a very pleasant holiday amongst some of the most beautiful scenes in the world, for amongst the Laurentian Mountains you can be accommodated at a nice boarding house or hotel at extremely reasonable rates. The Canadian Pacific Railway serves the real pleasure haunts of the Laurentians. Shawbridge, Piedmont, Ste. Adele, Ste. Margaret, Val Morin, Ste. Agathe, St. Jovite, Mont. Tremblant, Labelle, Annonciation, Nominingue, Barrette, and Mount Laurier, are all on the line that crosses this enchanting district for a distance of 158 miles. The atmosphere amidst these resorts is bracing and healthy, and to look on the wonderful profusion of lake, river, woodland, and mountain scenery is in itself, a vigor restorer. In any of the holiday places you can enjoy a comfortable rest, or you may ramble out amongst the romantic valleys and mountain slopes, feeling so happy that you forget what time it is, and perhaps return late for lunch or dinner. The waters of the rivers and lakes are clear and refreshing, and as they have sanded bottoms they are suited to the temperaments of the most critical of swimmers and bathers. Fishing, canoeing, motor boating, tennis, golf, mountain climbing are amongst the chief sports. But if you do not wish to indulge in any of these you may sit on the shaded verandah of your hotel and enjoy yourself chatting with good steady minded Canadian folks, many of whom will be of your own frame of mind.

SEVEN YEARS TORTURE

Nothing Helped Him Until He Took "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

ALBERT VARNER

Buckingham, Que., May 3rd, 1915.

For seven years, I suffered terribly from Severe Headaches and Indigestion. I had belching gas from the stomach, bitter stuff would come up into my mouth after eating, while at times I had nausea and vomiting, and had chronic Constipation. I went to several doctors and wrote to a specialist in Boston but without benefit. I tried many remedies but nothing did me good. Finally, a friend advised "Fruit-a-tives". I took this grand fruit medicine and it made me well. I am grateful to "Fruit-a-tives", and to everyone who has miserable health with Constipation and Indigestion and Bad Stomach, I say take "Fruit-a-tives", and you will get well".

FIND DRINK BILL GROWS IN BRITAIN

LONDON, July 21 (Letter)—Half a million pounds a day is being spent in this country on drink, according to the calculations of persons employed by the United Kingdom Alliance and other temperance bodies. It is further asserted that the figures for the six months ended June 30th last show that despite the regulations of the Control Board designed to restrict consumption of alcohol the amount spent in intoxicating liquor per capita is considerably more than during the first six months of 1916.

This is 'Economy Week,' and in the schools and from the pulpits, at lectures and at extemporized meetings in factories, by pamphlets and advertisements and appeals in the newspapers the nation is being urged to reduce expenditure in some shape or form and to invest the money thus saved in war loan script. Among all the appeals made to the public none has attracted so much attention as a series of articles contributed by Arthur Mee to the Daily Chronicle and a number of provincial papers. Some extracts present a striking picture:

BRITAIN'S DRINK BILL.

"The drink bill since the war began must have reached £350,000,000. It should stagger a man and make him blush with shame. We must have spent more money on drink than we have spent on shells, and we have gone on spending while Mr. Asquith's words ring out that we need every pennyworth of strength to win the war. Men talk of 100,000 aeroplanes to end the war, but we shall soon have spent enough on drink in war time to buy 200,000 aeroplanes, and we must have spent enough already to have fed with cartridges every machine gun on the British front since the war began. I think it would be true to say that we have poured more of our financial strength into this trade since August, 1914, than we have actually fired away in France.

"Here is a text for the people. They are paying more for everything, and they pay more for three reasons: Because produce, shipping, and labour are scarce. There is not one of these things in which drink is not largely responsible. Bread is dearer because drink has used up corn enough during the war to feed the nation for 300 days, and sugar enough to feed the nation for 90 days. Shipping is scarcer because drink has used up shipping space equal to a fleet of twenty very large ships working all the time. As to labour, drink uses up the strength of 500,000 workers, and imposes a carrying and lifting burden of 500,000 tons a week on our roads and railways.

"What would be the effect on prices if all this produce and shipping and labour were released for useful things? What would be the effect in speeding up the war if all the energy used up by drink were put into munitions? It would cheapen nearly everything; it would shorten the war and cut down our casualties. It would free enough money to send 80,000,000 cartridges a day to the British front, or three Queen Elizabeths a fortnight to Admiral Jellicoe.

"Russia, wanting strength and money too, found both in prohibition, which has increased her efficiency 30 per cent. and intrenched her finances as in a rock; France, putting this thing away from her has covered herself with immortal glory and astonished the world. It was the Kitchener way, but it is Russia and France, and not the land of Kitchener, that follows it. We fight on with our broken strength. We pay £5,000,000 a day to beat the Kaiser and carry on Lord Kitchener's work, and for £1,000,000 a week we license a power that plays the Kaiser's game by weakening England and keeps back the harvest of Lord Kitchener's work."

Mr. Mee draws particular attention to what he calls "The danger to the navy."

"It is over fifteen months," he writes, "since Admiral Tudor presented to the Cabinet his terrible record of the effect of drink on work being done for the Admiralty; and a week before that Admiral Jellicoe himself had been so anxious that he sent an urgent message begging that something should be done. He hoped the Admiralty would not think him exceeding his sphere of action, but the efficiency of the fleet was so affected that he felt it his duty to wire. There are also the warnings of Captain Greatorex, Director of Naval Equipment, who said the only solution suggested was to close, partially or totally, all public houses, and of Captain Bartelot, who begged for some leading statesman to speak plainly on this subject, and pleaded forcibly for the total prohibition of spirits as the most effective act that could be taken to win the war, adding that 'any measure less drastic will not be a cure.' As if that were not enough we find the reports of dozens of official investigators all telling the same terrible tale.

"Particularly tragic, in view of our shortage of torpedo craft, is the warning of the superintendent of the building of torpedo boat destroyers, that some form of enlisted labour seemed the only way to meet the difficulty unless restrictions could be imposed on public houses. There is on record, too, the suggestion conveyed to the Admiralty by an officer overseeing the construction of vessels on the North-East Coast, that prohibition of spirits was the only solution short of martial law; and at the time all these warnings reached the Government the Shipbuilders' Federation, with not a teetotaler among them, came up to Downing Street in great alarm and warned the Cabinet that total prohibition was the only way of getting as good work in the workshops as we get in the trenches.

"There seems no doubt as to where the navy stood on prohibition, and the statement drawn up by the Admiralty had this note of wisdom in it: 'Total prohibition, with all its attendant objections and disadvantages, would at least have the general effect that all classes would at last realize the existence and seriousness of the war, and that they were personally involved in its consequences.'"

Lloyd George's Onslaught.

It will be recalled what a storm Mr. Lloyd George brought down upon his own head by asserting that the industrial output of the country, particularly in regard to war material, was jeopardized by the drinking habits of the workers. Mr. Mee advances some new facts in regard to this point:

"We shall never know how much of the shortage of shells was due to drink, but it was more than any of us would like to know. General von Donop inquired and found that the grave statements of the Shipbuilders' Federation applied equally to works turning out shells, fuses, guns. It was clear that something was tragically wrong with munitions as well as with transports; an enemy was sowing tares among the wheat. The Admiralty appointed a Director of Transports. We all remember how Mr. Churchill announced his discovery in Parliament. The papers were full of Graeme Thompson. Mr. Thompson looked into the matter and found out what was wrong, and almost the first thing he told the Admiralty was that it was necessary for the efficiency of the army and navy to withdraw all drink licenses throughout the kingdom.

"It was with all these things in mind that Lloyd George at last approached this subject. He faced the facts and told the nation the bitter truth — that we were fighting two enemies, Germany, and Drink, and that Drink was worse than Germany."

Mr. Mee's conclusion is that the Government should introduce prohibition. In some quarters he is being bitterly attacked. One sample of these rejoinders will serve. It is taken from The New Witness, a weekly publication, edited by Cecil Chesterton, who, when he is not denouncing Lord Northcliffe, is upbraiding Lloyd George (most often he couples them together in one attack). In this particular instance Mr. Chesterton sees in Mr. Mee's articles "the first fruits of Mr. George's appointment as Secretary of War." "That he is using his position at the War Office to further the aims of the teetotal trust, whom he serves on the Liquor Control Board, there can be no doubt" in Mr. Chesterton's mind. He continues, apropos of Mr. Mee:

"The inane follies of this person would not be worth noticing were it not that they repeat the aspersions made by Mr. George upon the workers of this country. Finally, this lackey of teetotalism takes upon himself to say that one day last August Lord Kitchener found on his desk in Whitehall a desperate appeal from Sir Ian Hamilton for 100,000 men. 'If this help could be sent at once,' it says, 'we could still clear a passage for our fleet to Constantinople.' 'But,' says Mee, 'Lord Kitchener had not 100,000 men to send, though prohibition would have given them to him easily.'

"It is significant that the article emphasizes each insult made by Mr. George. Mee insists that men who work on an average eighty hours a week could work double the time if they went without stimulants; in other words, he implies that a man could work twenty-three hours out of the twenty-four and apparently keep fit and well for months on end. Not content, however, with this preposterous nonsense, he states that 'in thousands of homes throughout the land it is too pitifully well known that drink has enormously increased our casualties.' That is, of course, a resurrection of the old lie as to the shortage of munitions. This time, however, the blame is transferred from Lord Kitchener to the munition worker, who, Mee insists, swells the list of our killed and wounded because, rather than make shells, he wallows in drink. We make no doubt that Mr. George will continue the campaign of insult against the worker, and that he will utilize his position as Secretary of War to press forward the cause of teetotalism."

It is much too early yet to make any predictions as to what will be the prohibition campaign in its new form; but that some measure of reform will be undertaken is commonly believed. The experiment which is being tried by the Board of Control at Carlisle, where all the public houses have been taken over by the board, is being watched with keen interest.

CHOKED WITH WHEAT.

Australia Having Difficulty in Getting Carriers for Export.

The Australian Government's purchase of fifteen large steamships in England to be operated by th Commonwealth in the movement of Australian wheat to Europe will not go far towards solving the problem. The steamers have a total cargo capacity of 120,000 tons, but it is doubtful if they can make more than two trips each to Europe before the end of the year, and this will dispose of only 9,000,000 bushels of the huge quantity of the cereal that is awaiting shipment here.

Australia has almost 100,000,000 bushels of wheat stored in sheds or beginning to sprout in stacks where storage is unavailable in country railroad yards, and the Commonwealth's next wheat harvest is already in sight to further complicate the problem.

The Government's purchase of the steamers is hailed by the Labour party with gratification, for the establishment of a Government-owned fleet has long been a plank in its platform.

My Favourite Brown Bread.

One cup of graham meal, one-half cup Indian meal, one-half cup rye meal, one-half cup flour, one even teaspoon salt, two even teaspoons soda Gift. Rub in one teaspoon, heaping, of lard. Add one-half cup molasses, two cups sweet milk. Steam three and a half, or four hours is better. This recipe I have used many times Someone please try and report.

RIVER OF GASOLENE USED.

Almost 2,000,000,000 Gallons, It Is Expected, Will Be Used in This Country This Year.

We will consume in this country this year almost 2,000,000,000 gallons of gasolene, which, says the Popular Mechanics Magazine, is the equivalent of a stream six feet wide and one foot deep flowing at the rate of one mile an hour. Five years ago gasolene retailed at thirty-five cents in England and from forty to seventy-five cents on the Continent, and there are those who even predict forty-cent gasolene here some day.

Recent improvements in refining have considerably increased the percentage of gasolene extracted, and inventors are confident of perfecting carburetors which will use kerosene; but for the present we are confronted with a decrease in the gasolene content of the older oil wells, and an insufficient capacity in the refining plants. Our exports, however, of gasolene in 1915 were considerably less than in 1914, although more crude oil was sent abroad.

There is also a strong probability that, with the reconstruction and resumption of business abroad at the close of the war, consumption there will be much greater than now. Horses will be scarce and time will be everything, and the motor car truck will receive a great impetus. Just how long the present oil wells will continue to produce, or when and where new oil fields will be discovered, no one can say with certainty. Before that day arrives, however, it is fair to expect that chemists will have found some substitute or inventors a method of making one gallon do the work of more.

War is the real test of friendship, because in war we judge by deeds.—Provost Dunlop.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Hildegarde

How She Decided Between Two Unruly Suitors.

By F. A. MITCHEL

The modern traveler steaming up the river Rhine will pass not far from its junction with the Moselle in quick succession the ruins of three castles, each perched on an eminence.

There is nothing so inviting to a dreamer as to picture in its prime what has belonged to a distant past. In gazing up at one of these piles of stone he sees its towers rising above the battlements, its ensign floating from the highest point. A drawbridge is lowered, and out pour a troop of armed men. Some merchant traveler has been seen in the valley, and these horsemen are going to extract from him the wherewithal for their suzerain to support this proud establishment, or perhaps a company of a different kind will emerge—

A glimmering, glittering cavalcade of knights and ladies, and every one
In princely sheen arrayed.

On what mission are they bent? Is it merely for exercise and pleasure, or do they carry some important message to a neighbor or the emperor?

This may now be fancy, but there was a time when it was not. That heap of stones was once what the imagination recalls. Time and again men at arms rode down upon the luckless merchant. As for the knights and ladies—

• • • They rode and rode, and the steeds they neighed
And pranced, and the sun on their glossy hides
Flickered and lightened and glanced and played
Like the moon on rippling tides.

These three castles were once occupied, one by Baron Hugemont, another by Count Herbert Ballenstein and the third by Baron Carl Steigler. Hugemont was an old man; the other two were young. Hugemont, having passed an age where a man is ready to fight for what concerns him, was in an unpleasant position. He possessed a daughter that each of his two neighbors wanted to wed. If he gave her to Ballenstein he feared to offend Steigler; if he gave her to Steigler he would incur the enmity of Ballenstein. And this is the burden of my story.

Hildegarde was kept at school in Cologne till she was seventeen years old. Till then she had seen neither Ballenstein nor Steigler, nor had they seen her. When she had finished her education her father, in order that she should make her debut in the social world of the region in which she lived, gave for her a hunting party, to which the neighboring nobles were invited. One bright morning a company of knights and ladies were gathered in the courtyards of the castle, each with a falcon on the wrist; the drawbridge was lowered, and the cavalcade emerged.

From the moment Count Herbert and Baron Carl saw Hildegarde each was attracted to her. As the company rode out from the castle it was led by her, with one of these young men on either hand. When they rode back again she was still thus flanked, for neither would give way to the other.

On the face of each man was a scowl flashed now and again at his rival, while between them, like an angel between two devils, rode the smiling maiden.

When her father heard of this rivalry he was sore distressed. He was a shrewd old man and foresaw that since he had the disposition of his daughter's hand the burden of a decision would fall upon him, and him alone. It would avail nothing for the rivals to fight each other for Hildegarde, because the victor could not claim the prize. The baron that same evening called her into his cabinet and said:

"My daughter, this rivalry that has sprung up between Count Herbert Ballenstein and Baron Carl Steigler may result disastrously for us. If I give you to the count the baron, incensed, will pick a quarrel with me, and I shall not be able to protect myself against him. If I give you to the baron I shall have the same to fear from the count. I am thinking of solving the problem by sending you away."

"Calm your fears, father. If these young men apply to you for my hand tell them that I alone will decide which I will take for a husband: that you have nothing to do with the matter I will manage it so that neither will have cause to be wroth with you or even with me, and yet I will marry the one I want."

"Then you have a preference?"

"I have."

"Is it the baron or the count?"

"To tell you that, dear father, would not be wise. In fact, you must report to no one that I have already chosen."

"Very well, my daughter. I sincerely hope that you may succeed in averting a catastrophe."

With that he kissed his daughter and she returned to her apartments.

The very next morning Count Herbert rode into the castle courtyard and asked to see the baron. He was admitted to the old man's presence and made a formal application for Hildegarde's hand. He was evidently aware that his rival would make the same demand and showed a certain irritation. He did not say that he would not be refused, but his manner conveyed that impression. When he was informed that Hildegarde would choose for herself in the matter of a husband he was surprised, for in those days girls were not consulted as to whom they would marry. However, he made a virtue of necessity and accepted the situation. Indeed, he could not very well do anything else.

As he rode over the drawbridge he met Baron Carl Steigler entering the castle. Steigler knew the reason for the count's having been there, and the count knew the reason of Steigler's coming. They saluted each other formally as they passed, Ballenstein riding homeward and Steigler passing into the courtyard. The latter made the same application as the former and received the same reply. Since his suit was left with the lady alone, there was nothing to do but accept the situation and leave his fate in her hands.

Both suitors were informed that Hildegarde would need some time in which to make up her mind, and in the interval she would treat them both as friends. A message was sent to them that they would be received on alternate weeks, and since Baron Herbert Ballenstein had been the first to offer himself he would be received first. He called at the castle nearly every day during the period and offered presents. But Hildegarde, though she received him affably, declined to accept gifts from him or his rival. Steigler was also received kindly, but neither of them was given any reason to believe that he was the favorite suitor.

To social gatherings which took place at the castle both men were invited, and Hildegarde met them at other affairs given by her neighbors. At these meetings she was careful to show no mark of favor to the one that she did not grant the other. Her father, whom she had told she had made choice between them, watched her often when she was with one or both of the rivals in order to discover which she would choose, but he was not able to detect the slightest difference.

Meanwhile the suitors, being held in suspense, were growing impatient, each averring that the condition was becoming unendurable and if the lady did not soon come to a decision he would vent his wrath on his rival. To this she responded that if they killed each other she would be relieved of the necessity of making a choice. This quieted them for a time, but not for long.

When Hildegarde was ready to give the advantage to the one or the other she informed them that they were equally attractive, equally wealthy, both noble, and it would be impossible for any maiden to choose between them; the matter must be left to chance. If they would agree to abide by fortune's decision instead of her own she would provide the means. They must pledge themselves to hold only fate accountable for the result and take no revenge upon any one.

Had not the suitors been worn out with waiting they could not have been brought to accept this method of decision. As it was, one of them gave in, which compelled the other to do the same. They were summoned to the castle on the same day and hour, where they found Hildegarde in an apartment in the center of which was a table, and on it stood two candlesticks. A servant brought in a candle mold and some melted tallow. Pouring the tallow into the mold, he permitted it to cool, then removed two candles, which he handed to his mistress.

"You see," she said to her suitors, "that these candles, having been made in the same mold, are exactly the same size. They should burn an equal length of time. Nevertheless there will be some difference, if only a few seconds."

She directed the servant to turn his back to her and handed him one of the candles, and he was to give it to either the baron or the count, as he liked. He handed it to the count. The other candle remained for the baron. Each man was asked to place his candle in one of the holders. Then Hildegarde put the wicks together and lighted them at the same time by the same flame.

"Gentlemen," she said, "my reply to the honor you have done me is in these candles. I will marry him whose candle burns the longer."

Every provision had apparently been made to leave the decision in the hands of fate. It did not seem possible that either suitor could be favored above the other. The candles were of such length that they would burn about an hour. While they were burning the suitors were in an agony of suspense. They were free to go from the room and return to it at will. The baron walked back and forth most of the time in the courtyard, the count doing the same elsewhere. To them the life of the candles seemed interminable, but they burned so evenly that no eye could detect any difference. When only a quarter of an inch remained to each Baron Steigler's candle seemed to indicate that its combustion was a trifle less than Count Ballenstein's.

From this point the difference grew more and more perceptible, and when Ballenstein's candle was flaring in the socket the wick of Steigler's was still in its original position. Both men were now bending over the candles, Ballenstein's face white as marble. Presently, without waiting for his candle's last flicker, he rushed from the room and, mounting his horse, left the castle.

Then the baron advanced, took Hildegarde in his arms, and, looking up, she gave him the first expression of love he had ever seen in her eyes.

When her father congratulated her he said to her: "It is fortunate, my child, that, though you left the decision to chance, you are to marry the man of your choice. That is evident."

"Tush, papa! It is now safe to tell you another secret. Will you keep it?"

"Of course."

"I put salt on the wick of Carl's candle. That made it burn more slowly."

Reducing Expenses

THE war has increased the cost of living. The housewife must, therefore, make her money go farther. By using a tea, like Red Rose, which is largely composed of Assam Indian teas, she can reduce her tea bills considerably. The rich Indian strength requires less tea in the tea pot.

LISTEN FOR THE BRONCHIAL WHEEZE WHEN YOU BREATHE DEEPLY

It means that disease will soon attack the lungs. Wheezing is distressing to the sufferer and annoying to his friends. Nothing half so certain in bronchitis and throat trouble as "Catarrhozone"; it gives instant relief and cures even the worst cases. Bronchitis fairly flees under the magic influence of Catarrhozone, which cures so thoroughly the disease never returns. Other remedies may relieve, but Catarrhozone cures bronchitis, catarrh, and throat trouble for all time to come.

Beware of dangerous substitutes meant to deceive you for genuine CATARRHOZONE which is sold everywhere, large size containing two months' treatment, costs $1.00; small size 50c; sample size 25c.

GREAT TENNIS STAR WENT OUT BRAVELY

Most Authentic Account of Wilding Tragedy Wich Touched World at Sport—Answered Empire's Call

The true biography and obituary of Anthony P. Wilding has been written by Wallis Meyers. He gives the authentic account of how the famous lawn tennis expert died. The narrating in part follows: Tony Wielding was born in Christchurch, New Zealand, 1883. He hated war in the abstract, says Meyers. He had no quarrel against the Germans, or, for that matter, against any man; his was not a pugnacious nature. But Tony had the instinctive love of the overseas man for the motherland. He answered his country's call just like the rest of the famous British tennis players, five of whom, including Wilding, won captaincies in the Imperial army.

At first Wilding obtained a second lieutenancy in the Marines, but soon his knowledge of the Continent, his skill as a motor driver were employed in the Intelligence Corps. Shortly afterward he joined the Naval Air Service, and then at the Dardanelles, joined the Duke of Westminster's squadron of armored cars.

Never Had A Chance

In May Wilding took part in a great attack. On May 8 the end came as such a gallant gentleman would have wished it to come. When he arrived at the trench to instruct the gunlayer as to the emplacement he found the officer in the immediate section to be Lieut. Milburn, of the 4th Suffolks, a wellknown lawn tennis player and a personal friend.

"He was in splendid health," recalls Milburn, "and seemed thoroughly pleased that at last he had been allowed to bring his gun right into the firing line. Of course, everybody knew that the morning of the 9th meant a lot of dirty work to be done."

His Philosophy

That night Anthony met another lawn tennis friend, Lieut. R. S. Barnes. They sat in the latter's dugout, exchanging lawn tennis reminiscences. Just before Wilding wrapped himself in an old coat, Barnes said to him: "Well, old man, you were in rotten form when you met Brooks!" Wilding merely shrugged his shoulders and replied:

"One can't always be at one's best." It was his last reference to the game he loved. At 4.45 there came a hearty burst of laughter from the dugout. Immediately afterward a heavy shell exploded on its roof. The bodies of two private were taken out first; then Lieut. Barnes, still breathing; finally, from a mass of iron, earth and sandbags, all that remained of Capt. Wilding. He had been killed instantly.

THE BREAKING POINT

Soldiers At Times Deferred Until All Killed

The practical question which has been often discussed among soldiers is when the breaking-point is reached—after what proportion of losses the defensive or the offensive will crumble. The question is really two-fold, for the problem in defence is different in kind from the problem in attack. In the latter, to carry on requires a certain modicum of hope and mental energy; in the former there need be no hope, but only a passive and fatalistic resistance. It is useless to speculate about the breaking-point in a defence. Against savage enemies, when there is no hope of quarter, even ordinary troops will resist desperately. Again, if men from pride of honor or from any other cause are wholly resolved not to surrender, they will perish to the last man.

There was no man left of the Spartans at Thermopylae, or Roland's paladins at Roncesvalles, or the steel circle of the Scots at Flodden. Yahub and the defender of the Black Flag were utterly destroyed at Omdurman. There were no survivors of that portion of the 3rd Canadian Brigade at the Second Battle of Ypres which held St. Julien. None returned from that company of the 2nd Scots Guards who were cut off at Festubert. They remained on the field of honor with a ring of the enemy's dead around them. The men, too, who find themselves in the last extremity, and are supported by a shining faith, will wait on death as on a bridal.

Rugby Coach As Warrior

When Harry Griffith, the famous rugby expert, was at Camp Borden, Khaki Life wrote: Harry Griffith, the famous Varsity rugby coach, is at the School of Infantry qualifying for lieutenancy. Harry has not yet become as expert a tactician in sloping arms and the like as he was on the gridiron. Still he wasn't a week in camp before he had evolved an entirely unique and altogether drastic method of wrestling the rifle to his shoulder. By the time he had climbed upon it and disentangled rifle barrel from legs and arms, he as sergeant of the guard, had done the impossible. The only trouble was that while he could stick over this interference stuff on the football field the military referee is somewhat strict.

Lieut. Etienne Bieler, reported as wounded, has fifty-four of his relatives fighting with the allied forces including three brothers. He is the son of Prof. Charles Bieler, of 93 Columbia Avenue, Westmount, Quebec.

King Winter is armed with countless millions of ice-hard snow-crystals, driven by the full force of winter winds; his destructive work is aided by rapid changes in temperature, which freeze tiny particles of water in the pores of unprotected woodwork, tearing the wood fibres apart as freezing water splits a wrought-iron pipe. In the course of a long Canadian winter he can cause irreparable damage to an unprotected silo, barn or home. He attacks in vain, however, the building protected with

The Old Army And The New Are Both Fine

Standing close beside the gangway of one of the hospital ships to be berthed at Southampton was a tall, fair-haired sergeant, who came to attention and saluted, like a Guardsman on parade, though his left arm was slung and his tunic was in tatters. The dust which covered his ragged jacket was caked on it by darker, thicker, stuff than water; the familiar, unmistakable stain which covers so much khaki on hospital ships; the stain that tells you a man has given freely of the life within him in the service of King and Country, says the London Telegraph.

In some indescribable way the sergeant was trim and smart, though bandaged and clothed in rags that were muddy and bloody. His smartness, then, must have gone a good way beneath the surface. It certainly was marked. I waited a few minutes to chat with this N.C.O. and it happened that the first question I put to him took this form:

"Well, Sergeant, how do you think the new army is shaping?"

There was something at once humorous, modest and very pleasing about his flickering half-smile.

"The new army, sir? Oh, I think the new army's all right, sir. Doing fine, I should say. Master Boche finds 'em a pretty tough nut to crack, I think sir. I don't think there's much the matter with the new army, sir; from the little I've seen of it."

"Why, haven't you been out long, then, Sergeant?"

Again the flickering, modest, humorous smile.

"I was in the retreat from Mons, sir; wounded there, and hit again at Loos, sir. This is my third trip home in a hospital ship. But, of course, it's all different now."

"Then you are of the Old Army?"

"Fourteen years' service, sir, come October."

"H'm! When you come out of hospital this time you'll wear three gold stripes, Sergeant."

The smile was perfectly radiant this time.

"We don't count wounds in my regiment, sir."

It would be most difficult to explain how much this sergeant impressed me, or what was conveyed by his smile and his tone. There was, for example, a kind of a caress in his voice when he used those two simple words, "my regiment" which I am quite sure cannot be described.

NEW GRAFTEAD ON OLD ARMY

Some hours later, on another ship, I had a little talk about it with an officer of the Regular Army—a captain, whose majority cannot be far from him, I apprehend. He has seen service in Gallipoli, as well as in France, and been wounded in both theatres of war.

"Odd you should mention that," he said. "I've been thinking of that very point: the new army and the old. Tradition counts for an enormous deal, you see, in any army; in the training and the fighting; men make soldiers of one another, you know, given the tradition and the atmosphere. And in the absence of these things, to have accomplished in the new army—well, it's a wonderful tribute to the qualities of the race. Nobody knows so well as a regular soldier what a miracle it is.

"The world hardly wants telling at this time of day that Tommy is an invincibly fine soldier; the very best. He proved it such a long time ago; and he's been proving it ever since.'

"Of course, it's a mistake to suppose that we have two separate fighting forces: old army and new army. It isn't that at all. The service battalions, as you know, are mostly battalions of regiments whose records were fine records before the German Empire was ever thought of.

"There are battalions and companies in the new army that owe an enormous deal to a single Regular sergeant-major; and there are service battalions with retired Regular officers commanding whose training has made them equal to any line battalion in the world.

"Then of course, there are plenty of Regular battalions with hardly a score of the old hands left in the ranks. They have done their bit, from first to last, and done it so well that they had to be remande many times over from drafts. But the regiment never dies, you know. The root of the matter is there all the time, and the surviving officers and non-commissioned officers work pretty hard to prevent any falling off in its quality. I think perhaps that's really the whole thing, isn't it? A strictly non-military nation has, in an extra-ordinary short space of time, built up a huge army, from the very closely pollarded stem of a little one which—well, perhaps the arch-Hun made a bit of a mistake when he described it as a 'contemptible' as well as a little one. Its record wasn't exactly contemptible, was it? The root is the old root, and the present big tree seems to me to have the old fibre running all through it. Can't very well give it higher praise, can you? And, mind you, it deserves the highest praise that can be given, as I think the Boche is beginning to realise."

SHAKESPEARE

(By Herbert Kaufman)

Little squire courtiers dared to patronise his genius. Doubtless he often cringed and shamelessly fawned before potent nobles. City merchants and goldsmiths vaguely held him in the contempt men universally bestowed upon all player folk. The Law co-ordinated him with thieves, vagabonds and prostitutes. He muchly lived in the half-world—mainly as it lived. Altogether, his estate was rather humble.

England was uncouth. Elisabeth herself, vulgar and nasty. Assuredly he knew nothing of nice refinements. Therefore it is exceeding strange how sweet and clean he kept his quill.

A tower, a bridge, and a crazy old ramshackle or two are all that remain to mark his London. The last Tudor is gone. Of Drake and Raleigh and the proud companies whose exploits made splendid the virgin's reign, perhaps a score of dilute-veined collaterals still endure. We do not even know the name of the great dandies and haughty chatelaines who condescended to approve his mummeries.

Vanished dust, these. And all that was a mighty medieval city has long since been fed to wood-worms and broken into junk and carried away in rubbish. But his words are still golden on our lips. The mintage of his mind is universal coin—his phrases spent from Cape to Cape. Yellow and white man daily mine the treasuries of his imagination. His sentences are gilb on clucking, hissing, purring tongues—are vernacular throughout the world. He 'put a girdle around the earth', and then around eternity.

"Thrones totter and empires fall, the tidal wave sweeps from the sea and tears the fortress from the rocks, the rotting nations drop from on Time's bough and only things the dreamers make live on."

It is always the unattainable that fascinates. Johnny, says the "Christian Advocate," wished that he was Tommy Jones. "Why?" asked his mother. "You are stronger than he is, you have a better home, more toys, and more pocket money." "Yes, I know; but he can wiggle his ears."

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL BLOW ON THE SOMME FRONT

THE AUSTRIAN FORCES ARE DEMORALIZED

THE GERMANS ARE BEING SLOWLY PRESSED BACK BY THE RUSSIANS

Russian Lines Are Now Within Less Than Four Miles of Halitz, the Southern Gateway to Lemberg---Enemy Is Counter-Attacking Desperately to Stop the Russian Advance---Turkish Troops to the Rescue---Germans on the Defence Around Verdun---Battle is Gradually Dying Out Like An Extinct Volcano---Success For the Serbians.

RECRUITING IN SOUTH AFRICA

PETROGRAD, September 9.—Turkish troops have been shifted to the Halitz front to reinforce the Germans who are being slowly pressed back by Russian assaults. It was officially announced to-day that the Turks and Germans are attacking Russian positions east of Halitz, and along the Narajuvka River to the north. They are attempting to throw back the Russian lines now within less than four miles of Halitz, the southern gateway to Lemberg. Northeast of Halitz the Turks and Germans are counter attacking desperately to stop the advance of the Russian right wing, which has already reached the Gnila Lipa River and is now attempting to move westward against the Gnila Lipa to flank the Germans out of Halitz. Further gains for the Russians in the fighting in the wooded Carpathians were announced by the War Office to-day. The Czar's troops captured a series of heights south of Baranov, taking five hundred prisoners and war material.

PARIS (French Official Communique), September 9.—The French struck another successful blow against the German lines south of the Somme last night, capturing a small wood east of Beloy. The War Office announced to-day that 7,700 prisoners have been made on the Somme front since September 3, and that the German losses in recent attacks on this front have been frightful.

Turkish Troops Have Come to the Rescue

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, September 9.—Evidently Turkish troops have come to the rescue of the hard pressed Germans in Galicia and have checked the Russian advance on the fortified City of Halitz. The German War Office announced this afternoon that the Turks have driven back the Slavs taking one thousand prisoners.

Russian Boats Bombard The Enemy

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, September 9. — Russian naval forces were engaged against the Bulgarians yesterday for the first time, it was officially announced to-day. Torpedo boats bombarded the port of Balchik captured from the Roumanians by the Bulgars, sinking 21 barges loaded with bread.

French Forces at Verdun are Regaining Their Lost Positions

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WITH THE FRENCH FORCES AT VERDUN, September 9. — The Germans are now entirely on the defense around Verdun. The great battle begun 201 days ago has now entered its third and final stage. The French are steadily winning back their lost positions. The battle will gradually die out like an extinct volcano. Fighting on the west bank of the Meuse has practically ceased. Hill 304 and Dead Man's Hill are now numbered among the glories of the past. On the east of the river the Germans are concentrated for a final desperate struggle to retain the forts of Vaux and Douaumont.

Another Plot in South Africa Disclosed

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

CAPE TOWN, September 9.—Details of an attempt to foment another rebellion against the British in South Africa were disclosed at a trial yesterday at Bloemfontein of two Nationalists, Van der Merwe and Schenken, on a charge of high treason. General DeWet, who informed the Government of the movement, testified that he warned the men against attempting another uprising. The hearing was adjourned. DeWet was released from prison last Christmas after serving a term for treason.

Serbians Gain Important Positions on Macedonian Front

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, September 9.—The Serbians on the Macedonian front have gained important heights west of Lake Ostrova. The Russians in the Carpathians have captured several heights, taking a number of men and guns.

RUSSIAN FLEET SHELLED ENEMY.

ATHENS, September 9.—German reports say that the Bulgarian forces have progressed fifty miles into Roumania along the Black Sea coast. The Russian fleet has, however, shelled them out of two towns occupied by them.

SOUTH AFRICAN NATIVES FOR FRANCE.

PRETORIA, South Africa, September 9.—Premier Botha has arranged for the recruiting and sending to France of ten thousand natives, well disciplined and under capable officers, for dock and other labour there. They will be organized in battalions and paid current wages.

GERMANY MUST SEND 400,000 TO AID AUSTRIANS

General Alexieff, Chief of Staff of Russian Army, Says Austrian Armies Are Very Badly Demoralized

"NO THOUGHT OF PEACE"

Special to The Examiner:

IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS, RUSSIAN ARMY, Sept. 9.—Germany must send 400,000 men to aid the demoralized Austrians if she hopes to stiffen their resistance, Gen. Michael Alexieff, Chief of Staff of Emperor Nicholas' Army, told the United Press to-day. Furthermore, German troops must provide the driving power if Von Hindenburg attempts the great Eastern offensive talked about in Berlin. The Austro-Germans cannot count upon the Turks for substantial aid, said the man who directs the movements of the Russian millions of troops. The Turks can send no more than fifty thousand men to support their Teutonic allies.

He would not say that the Austrian armies have been crushed. They are, however, badly demoralized. Gen. Alexieff praised the work done by the Allies on the Western front.

"But what about peace?" he was asked.

A look of grimness overspread his face.

"Peace probably is some distance off," he replied. "Neither side has attained the object for which it is fighting. There can be no thought of peace now. War must follow its inevitable historic course."

STREET CAR AND AUTO COLLIDE

Small Boys Said to Have Been Largely to Blame for this Accident

A new automobile belonging to an Otonabee farmer named Keefe, residing east of Keene, was struck by a George Street car at the corner of Lock and Lansdowne Street late yesterday afternoon. The wind shield was broken into fragments, and the hood badly dinged, but the car was run to a garage on its own power.

Evidently its vitals were intact. Neither of the occupants were reported seriously injured, although the driver received a rough shaking It was stated that while the car was travelling east on Lansdowne Street, several boys threw stones at it near the Exhibition Grounds corner. Mr. Hambridge turned to look for the source of the stones, it was said, and reaching Lock Street, was almost on top of the street railway before the George Street car was noticed. The driver turned sharply, but the car was struck a glancing blow. Small boys frequently exhibit a lawlessness that leads to serious results, and in this case the accident might easily have ended in a fatality.

VISIT OF QUEEN'S FIELD AMBULANCE A BIG FAIR FEATURE

Visitors to Peterboro' Industrial Exhibition Will Get an Unusual Chance to See Interesting Department of Military Life---Boys in Khaki Will Arrive on Thursday Afternoon---Artillery Leaves For Petawawa---To-day's General Military News.

The visit of a detachment of Queen's Field Ambulance to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition next week will afford Peterborough people an unusual opportunity to see a department of military life with which the general public is unfamiliar. The boys in khaki will arrive from Barriefield on the 5:30 G.T.R. train on Thursday afternoon, and will give demonstration of first aid work, stretcher drill, etc., on Friday afternoon and evening, and on Saturday afternoon. Fifteen Peterborough boys will be in the squad, and the boys will get a warm reception from the thousands of Exhibition visitors.

Lieut. D. J. More, of Peterborough, with the 21st Battalion, has written the following sympathetic letter to Mrs. F. A. Thomas in connection with the death of her husband, Sergt. Fred Thomas:

Dear Mrs. Thomas,—I wish to express my deepest sympathy to you in your sad bereavement. I felt the blow very badly, as Fred and I were brother sergeants together for a long time.

He was with a working party of which I had charge, and I had just visited him to see how his party was getting along with their work and had not left him more than two minutes when the word for stretcher bearers was passed along. When I got there a few seconds later, poor Fred was dead. The bullet had gone right through his neck and killed him instantly.

I can assure you that everything was done that could have been done, and he was laid to rest in Ridgewood cemetery with all his other brave comrades this afternoon at 5 p.m. Poor Sam is very badly shaken up and has the sympathy of the whole battalion with him.

I need only say that the loss the battalion has sustained, and the deep grief that everybody feels was shown in the attendance of nearly the whole battalion at the funeral.

Believe me to be, Mrs. Thomas, in deep sympathy with you. I remain,

Yours truly,
D. J. MORE.

(Kingston Standard: Eleven of the best athletes in Barriefield Camp will leave to-morrow for Toronto to take part in the military sports which are being held there under the auspices of the Exhibition authorities. These men have been chosen by a process of strenuous elminating contests held at Barriefield, and it is expected that they will give a good account of themselves in the different classes in which they will compete at Toronto. They will be headed by Sergt. Major O'Neill, formerly of the Princess Pats and now of the Instructional School, B. F. & P. T., an all-round police champion of Canada and of Ireland; and Captain "Nick" Bawlf, paymaster of the 154th Battalion, the well known all-round Canadian athlete. The expenses of the team are being paid by the camp members, and the men from Barriefield will be pitted against the best athletes from Camp Borden, Niagara and Petawawa. Tom Flanagan, the well-known sporting promoter, will head the Camp Borden team.

'Kingston Standard: The military brigade, composed of the 72nd (Queen's) Battery, the 73rd, 74th, 75th, together with the ammunition column, will leave the city this evening for Petawawa camp under Lieut.-Col. Arnoldi. This will leave a gap in the appearance of the camp in front of the water towers, and the men of this brigade will be very much missed. The artillery has made friends in camp and the brigade hich is leaving this evening is composed of the best material obtainable in Canada. The men will hardly come back to Kingston from Petawawa, as it is said they will go overseas before the big camp in the north closed. A big effort is being inaugurated to recruit the batteries to strength, and the campaign to secure recruits for Queen's Battery began in earnest yesterday. Queen's Battery is advertising in the columns of the Standard for men and Capt. Carr-Harris has been granted leave to carry on the campaign.

Writing to his wife, Gunner Jas. McCormack, a Peterborough member of the 4th Battery, C.F.A., says: "The people of Peterborough seem to have forgotten about the 1st contingent boys. We never hear anything of them now. I guess the people were taken up too much with the 93rd and the boys that were doing the fighting and still doing it, and have been doing it for the last eighteen months, are forgotten.

To be Captain—Capt. R. Cleghorn, 3rd Dragoons.

To be Lieutenants—Lieuts. R. G. Johnston, 46th Regiment; T. Quinn, 57th Regiment; S. Dunsford, 57th Regiment; A. H. Cameron, 57th Regiment.

Lieut. J. A. New was in the city last evening for a few hours. Lieut. New is one of a draft of officers recently selected for overseas. He will probably leave Canada within a few days.

A TREASURED PHOTOGRAPH

COBOURG, Sept. 9. — When the late Gunner John Fairhurst of the Cobourg Heavy Battery was killed by a shell at the front he had on the wall of his hut a photograph of his wife, daughter and granddaughter. This photo was afterwards picked up from among the remains with several splinter holes in it, but the features intact. This relic was sent back by Lieut. Peterson, and this week delivered to Mrs. Fairhurst.

WEEK HAS BEEN A SPLENDID ONE FOR ALLIES' CAUSE

Visions of a Much Earlier Termination of the War Than Anybody Believed to be Possible a Few Weeks Ago

POLITICAL SITUATION

by T. P. O'Connor

London, September 9th.—It never rains but it pours, even in war as in other things. Thus the past ten days have brought about such a rapid succession of big strokes of luck for the Allies that already they begin to see visions of a much earlier termination of the war than anybody believed to be possible a few weeks ago.

The sudden entrance of Roumania into the conflict on the side of the Entente Allies; the almost equally sudden and complete transformation of the Greek situation; the happy succession of advances along the French front, cheering as they are, have no greater significance, nor have they caused more universal rejoicing throughout England than the destruction of one of the huge Zeppelins which participated in the raid over the south eastern counties early last Sunday.

PUBLIC FEELING.

The strength of public feeling over this incident, which is apparent on every hand, clearly reveals how burning is the rage and hatred which these savage air attacks on women and children have excited in England. At the same time it ought to be added that a great measure of pity has been extended to the unfortunate Germans whose charred bodies mingling with the wreckage of the giant aircraft, shocked even the triumphant onlookers. It is creditable to the English spirit that they were buried with full military honors.

Although the latter proposal resulted in a storm of protest from certain quarters, it was on the other hand clearly recognized that the measure of personal responsibility of those who participated in these raids is slight and that they cannot be held to strict accountability for the senseless slaughter of civilians.

Undoubtedly this series of events, crowding as they have one upon the other, is profoundly influencing not only the foreign but the home situation, and the present Ministry having finally begun to win the war may thus be enabled to weather many storms at home that otherwise might prove perilous.

A RESUME.

Though the vacation is not long until the House of Parliament are at work again, it is a good time to take a survey of the parliamentary and especially the Ministerial position. A few weeks ago it seemed quite certain that the present Ministry could not last. Everything seemed to be going against it, and at the same time. The horror over the mismanagement of the Mesopotamia expedition, the recrudescence of the bitterness over the failure in the Dardanelles seemed to be bringing things to a climax. The climax was supposed to have come when with a combination of mismanagement and mischance the Irish settlement broke down; it seemed quite impossible to save the Ministry. On top of this came the question of the prolongation of parliament and the registration of Great Battle is Being Fought Between German-Bulgar Armies and Russo-Roumanian Forces in Eastern Roumania.

AUSTRIANS WITHDRAW

LONDON, Sept. 8. — Roumania, which entered the European war less than two weeks ago, is now the scene of a great battle between Russo-Roumanian forces and armies of the Central Powers. The southern part of Dobrudja, or Eastern Roumania, has become a fighting ground, and the opposing armies are engaged from the Black Sea to the Danube along a front of about 70 miles.

Bulgarian and Turkish troops, advancing along the Black Sea coast, have occupied Baltjik and two other seaports, Sofia reports, and the fortress of Dobritch, or Bazardjik, 50 miles southeast of Bucharest, has been taken by a combined Bulgar-German force. The armies of the Central Powers have not yet crossed the Danube, all reports agree.

The Roumanians continue their offensive in Eastern Transylvania, and also have occupied the important town of Orsova, on the Danube, above the Iron Gate. Advancing from Csik Szerda, in Transylvania, north of Kronstadt, the Roumanians are driving westward, and Vienna admits the withdrawal of Austrian forces before attacks against Hargitta.

Fall of Tutrakan.

The capture by the left wing of the invading army chain of the Roumanian fortress of Turtukai (Tutrakan), one of the Danube bridgehead "gates" to Bucharest, the kingdom's capital, is admitted tonight by the Roumanian War Office as follows: "On the southern front after desperate struggles the enemy occupied Turtukai."

How desperate these struggles were was indicated by yesterday's official report from Bucharest that no less than ten violent attacks on the bridgehead had been repulsed.

The capture of Turtukai is by far the most significant success scored thus far by the Bulgarians and their Teutonic allies in the Roumanian campaign. Once the Danube is crossed at this point, a railroad leading directly to Bucharest is at their disposal. The new progress toward Silistria too, is important for that fortress once in their hands, the invading centre could swing to the northwest to Bucharest or hasten to the aid of the eastern army should Russian successes make it necessary.

In their advance on Silistria, the invaders already have pushed beyond Kurthunan and Akkadunlar, 12 miles south of their objective.

An Amsterdam despatch to-night quotes German newspapers as greeting with jubilation the fall of Turtukai fortress. The Cologne Gazette, recalls that Field Marshal von Moltke considered this the best point for crossing the Danube, but the newspapers do not predict a Bulgarian march aginst Bucharest. The Cologne Volkszeitung says:

"The crossing of the Danube is barred to the Roumanians and Russians and the capture of the fortress itself is a weighty victory even if one leaves out of consideration possible further successes."

Turtukai Not a Fortress.

Roumanian authorities in London say the result of the fighting in the Roumanian Province of Dobrudja is being greatly exaggerated, and that what has happened was more or less what was expected. They say there were not as many Roumanian troops in the district as the Germans claimed to have captured. The Danube tower of Turtukai was not a strongly fortified place, but was simply defended by earthworks.

An Athens despatch to the Tribunal states that the 52nd Bulgarian Regiment mutined and was removed from the front and the leaders were shot. The 12th and 20th Regiments, it is added, were overwhelmed by the Serbians near Ostrovo.

Austrian troops have been withdrawn from their positions west of Csik Szereda, 50 miles north of Kronstadt, before Roumanian attacks, says the official communication issued from Austro-Hungarian headquarters to-day. Heavy fighting continues east of Halicz, Galicia, the statement adds.

CHURCH UNION.

The project of union of the churches — Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational — at one time considered virtually an accomplished fact, has met a lion in the path. The opponents of union in the Presbyterian church seem to be no mere idle recalcitrants, but a well organized body, for the "preservation and continuance" of the Presbyterian church in Canada, with a "general," a "cehtral," and a "finance" committee, and a "central executive" office. This formidable organization lends emphasis to the opposition movement, and gives significance to the announcement made in another column of a convocation of "Presbyterians opposed to church union"—"on the proposed basis"—in Toronto on Oct. 17th. The opposition is founded upon the present proposals and cannot be reasonably construed as opposition to the principle. It is evident, nevertheless, that application of the principle, however, admirable, and theoretically desirable, will have to reckon with sentimental and substantial consideration difficult of easy adjustment.

SEPTEMBER.

The autumn afternoon wore on slowly and sleepily. Above the close-cropped stubble the heat waves simmered in visible vibrations that spread across the field of gold to break on the ragged edge of the weather-worn snake fence. It was pleasurably warm beneath a September sun receding south with rays growing daily less and less direct.

A patch of foamy cloud floated overhead with imperceptible motion. Only the slender, topmost branches stirred with the faint breath of a breeze. Fields and woods were hushed as with the silence of the first Lord's Day. Here is solitude and serenity, Enervating it may be, too, for September spends itself like an old man who favours the sunlight for the warmth his own smouldering fires fail to provide.

Here is nature's anodyne for tired bodies and ragged nerves. The fragrant amber air, the gentle warmth, the kindly sky lull, the senses into grateful oblivion of past and future. Life is only in the languid present. Such is the spirit that enjoys the open. Let dynamic winter come with its filling lungs and pulsing blood. September afternoons are static. Full-lipped summer, in departing, clings with cloying embrace in contrast to the passing kiss of spring.

The profound calm accentuates the droning of the bees in the bushy tops of the golden rod, the humming of innumerable field flies, seemingly suspended on fairy filaments in mid air, and the incessant chirping of the crickets hidden in the grass and stubble. But as these sounds are heightened by the Sabbatical silence of the afternoon so do they, in turn, vivify that silence. They are part of it, impinging upon one's consciousness only when it turns to perceive them. Occasionally a buggy rolls by leaving a light cloud of dust supported in fancy by the cedars that fringe the road on either side. Far away to the south, a smoky haze suffuses the rolling country, melting into the misty outline of the horizon. The stillness is acute. In a little marshy swale the frogs nod drowsily, and the visible world seems but the scene of a pleasant dream.

This is the glory of September with its pervading appeal to the senses, its illusion of permanence, its soothing contentment. No matter that in after hours we realise their evanescence. September's gifts bring their own reward to those who seek them. Material they may not be; nordid they certainly are not.

"I understand you have moved your office."

"What is the matter?"

"I was next door to a painless dentist and I could not stand the yells of his patients."

GOOD AND BAD MORTGAGES.

What is the difference between a lien and a mortgage?

In effect, both may be good, and both may be bad. The difference in essence is so slight that it recalls the lines of the little-known, eighteenth-century English poet, John Byrom:

Strange all this difference should be
'Twixt tweedle-dum and tweedle-dee.

A lien implies a right to retain property till some claim is satisfied. A mortgage goes deeper, as its origin mort, gage—dead, pledge—implies—the property pledged becomes dead, or entirely lost by failure to pay.

"Mortgage" has a more sinister sound and significance than "lien," but both may be good things—an investment instead of an obligation, according to circumstances and conditions.

A mortgage placed upon a home to raise funds to purchase a piano or an auto, or a mortgage on a life insurance policy, to buy an auto, as has been known to be done in this city, is a questionable investment. The home is imperilled, not for absolute necessities, but for pleasure.

When a man pledges his partly-paid-for-house and lot, for money to fully pay for it, and to be repaid by degrees, he is making an investment whose dividends consist in the pleasure of possession, and the pride and advantage of his owning his own home, which is a realizable asset compared with the dead money invested in a big sheaf of rent receipts—all he has to show for hundreds paid out in rent.

There are many cases in which a mortgage is a blight and a burden; there are many cases in which it is a boon and a blessing. The example of a man raising money on mortgage to pay for his home is one, and another consists in a man who cannot get the money otherwise to borrow money or mortgage to pay for underdraining his farm.

This is cited because proof of its wisdom and profit is abundant, and because it is typical.

We have before cited the advantages of under-draining, in Otonabee. This year, in spite of wet and drouth, farmers with underdrained lands have excellent crops, while on other lands there are inferior crops—mere apologies—or no crops at all, the wet weather of spring preventing seeding altogether.

A North Monaghan farmer who, in addition to his annual tale of tile, last year, put in $700 worth of field tile, this year he had a bumper crop and declared that the expenditure he made last year was paid for by the increased crop yield.

But we have official, documentary, evidence of the benefits of underdraining farm lands in the Ontario Government's Public Service Bulletin.

This report states that in two of the farms attached to public institutions, 55 miles of tiles had been laid under 750 acres.

The results are astonishing.

At Whitby, this year, there is a splendid crop of corn growing on a field that has never been broken since it was cleared—being too water-soaked to cultivate. In spite of this wet spring the land was planted in good time. The garden at Whitby of similar character, under-drained, gave similar goor results. Last year a field of 21 acres, underdrained, yielded in net profit—with all material labour, manure, etc., charged—of $595.52—a sum which more than paid in one year the cost of drainage, the average cost of underdraining being $22.50 per acre.

At Brockville, a field of 36 acres, whose previous crop was ox-eye daisies and other weeds, yielded crops of the value of 1,176 dollars, a profit of $832.00 after all expenses were charged. Another field, on the same farm, absolutely useless and growing water reeds, man-high, before it was underdrained, last year produced 56 bushels of oats to the acre. At Orillia 200 acres in the past mill-pond and waste ground, is underdrained and yielding good crops.

The conclusion of the government, according to the report, is that the expenditure put on tile draining is abundantly justified by the truest touch-stone, results. Drain tiles laid under ground, form the foundation of profitable farm production.

If the farms of Ontario, without tile drains, were placed under millions of dollars of profitable mortg-

REFASHIONING THE FABRIC OF EMPIRE

Mr. Asquith's recent phrase that "the fabric of the Empire will have to be re-fashioned" after the war, and that after the championship of blood between the peoples of the United Kingdom and the Dominions upon the battlefields of Europe, Asia and Africa "it will never be possible to revert to our old methods of council and of government," has started a spirited discussion among Canadians in London as to the various proposals for Empire federation. Mr. Donald Maemaster did well to raise a warning voice in the British House of Commons against schemes of Imperial Federation which impinge upon the rights of Dominion self-government and interfere with the well-recognized constitutions of the nations within the Empire. His idea is that a beginning of Dominion participation in Imperial affairs should be made through the medium of that most important adjunct of the Cabinet, the Committee of Imperial Defence. The committee is representative of the fighting services of the Cabinet and of the Dominions, and is at this moment an effective link between the executives of the self-governing States of the Empire.

This idea is warmly supported by the Canadian Gazette, published in London, which holds that the war has proved the usefulness of the Committee in respect both of land and sea defence, and it would be a simple executive act to enlarge its scope and representation. To the British Ministers, headed by the Prime Minister, who are already a part of it, let there be added, says our contemporary—not in an occasional and complimentary way, but as continuous and fully fledged members—the Prime Minister and one other Minister from each Dominion, the second Minister being the High Commissioner, whose residence in London would enable him to keep his Ministerial colleagues in the Dominion in uninterrupted touch with the Committee, and therefore with the British Cabinet. Foreign affairs, as well as matters of Imperial defence, do now come before the Committee, but in a spasmodic way. The enlarged Committee of eighteen would be definitely constituted a Committee of Imperial Defence and Foreign Relations, "having to do with everything that relates to defence and foreign relations." Among its duties it would report to the several Governments what should be the money contribution of each to the defences of the Empire and any other Imperial services, leaving each Government to provide the money in its own country in whatever way it pleased. Mr. Macmaster says, in regard to this proposed method of providing contributions:

In that way we (the Dominions) would have representation on the Committee of Defence and Foreign ed by way of contribution being afterwards assessed through the Overseas Parliaments themselves, the taxation would be imposed by the Overseas Dominions themselves, and therefore there could be no complaint on that score. The only objection there could be to this suggestion would be that the Overseas Dominions might say: "Is this a proper proportioning of the responsibility?" "Are five millions too much for Australia, or seven millions too much for Canada?" I am using these figures simply for the sake of illustration. It is true that the figures might be criticized, but, on the other hand, when you come to justify them in the respective units of the Imperial partnership, you would have the authority of the Committee of Defence and Foreign Relations in support of the individual Governments which had taken responsibility upon the report of their own representatives that that was a proper proportion.

The Canadian Gazette notes that these suggestions could be put into operation forthwith on the fit of Mr. Asquith, and urges him to "Do it now." For our part we see no such hurry. Canada has had representation on the Committee of Imperial Defence for years, and the Canadian Government is in the full confidence of the Imperial authorities as to the co-operation of Canada in the war. That closer relations will result in the future goes without saying, but the question of Canada having a say in the whole foreign policy of Great Britain involves many important problems that cannot be settled by a fiat issued in London. The people of Canada will want to be consulted in whatever may be done in the way of the formal settling up of an Empire Constitution. We should go slowly, and have a very definite idea of where we are going. As regards the subject of contributions, which is lightly dismissed in the proposals by empowering a couple of Canadian representatives to infor mthe Dominion Government what it ought to pay, it should be remembered that the principle of money payments or Empire taxation has yet to be decided. Is Canada to follow Australia's example in having a navy of her own? If so, that will make a difference. If not, is Australia to keep her Navy and develop it as her contribution to Empire defence instead of making a money contribution? If so, will Canada be content to have none? We put these questions not in any antagonistic spirit, but to show that before we proceed to Empire taxation, we should decide the principle on which such action would be taken, and that can only be done by a very full and frank conference between representatives of all the parties concerned backed by the mandate of the people they represent. — Montreal Herald.

age to provide funds for underdraining, they would have immensely increased crop yields that would pay off the millions of existing and unprofitable mortgages representing, in many cases, foolish and improvident expenditures.

Thus it is seen that there are good and bad, profitable and unprofitable, wise and foolish mortgages.

A mortgage, either a good or bad investment on the one side is generally profitable for the mortgagees; and there is presented now a splendid chance for every wage-earner to hold a mortgage upon the best property on the continent; to hold a mortgage upon the Dominion of Canada.

The new Government war loan, to be issued in a few days, will present a splendid chance for investment, with absolutely gilt-edge security—virtually a mortgage on Canada.

With the high rate of wages and plentiful employment, the prudent wage-earner will have money to invest—in Government bonds, at 5 per cent., a good-paying rate of interest. Every citizen with a few dollars can become a capitalist with advantage to himself and, at the same time, be helping on the cause of humanity by contributing a few silver bullets to the munitions of the armies of the Empire.

SCAVENGING RULES

1. NO owner or occupant shall allow, permit or maintain upon premises owned or occupied by him within this Municipality any earth privies or earth closets or vaults below the surface of the ground except where the exigencies of the situation demand it, in which case such may be allowed by permission of the Local Board of Health or Medical Officer of Health, but such permission must be evidenced in writing, and such earth privies or earth closets and vaults when so allowed shall be constructed in a manner satisfactory to the Medical Health Officer or the Sanitary Inspector.

2. IN the construction of privies above ground or box closets which are hereinafter described as box closets there shall be in each of such privies or box closets a box made of one and a half inch matched lumber, three feet six inches in length, twelve inches in height and fourteen inches wide inside measurements, and these boxes shall be set up not less than four inches above the surface of the ground on the outside, and those box closets or privies which open at the rear thereof shall have an opening with a hinged lid; the opening shall be large enough to allow the box to be easily drawn out for the removal of the contents, but for those box closets which open at the end or side the box shall have a handle at the end nearest the opening so that it may be readily withdrawn.

3. WHEREVER such earth or box closets are by permission or compulsion established, sufficient dry earth, wood ashes or coal ashes must be thrown upon the contents to absorb the liquid part of the deposit, and all closets which are not constructed in accordance with this By-law shall be cleaned out, filled in and closed, in accordance with the provisions of this By-law, immediately after the last time being cleaned previous to, and in any event not later than September 15th, 1916, and no garbage, tins or other refuse shall be put in such privies or closets at any time.

4. THE charge for the removal of the contents of box closets or privies shall be forty cents (40) per month, and cess pools or vaults the cost of removal of the contents of the same shall be the sum of Two dollars and fifty cents ($2.50), where the quantity to be removed is less than one cubic yard, and Two dollars and fifty cents ($2.50) per cubic yard or fraction thereof, where the quantity to be removed is more than one cubic yard.

5. ALL box closets, cess polls and vaults must be cleaned at least once a month.

17. ANY person found guilty of a violation of this By-law shall on conviction thereof be liable to a fine not exceeding TWENTY DOLLARS and costs, and in default of payment thereof the said fine and costs may be levied by distress and sale of the goods of the offender, and in case of there being no distress or no sufficient distress out of which the same can be levied, the said offender may be committed to the common gaol of the County of Peterborough for any period not exceeding six months unless the fine inflicted and costs (if any), including the costs of the distress and of the committal and conveyance of the offender to the said Gaol are sooner paid. 8d-54

THE PETERBOROUGH RED CROSS SOCIETY COLUMN

All those who have been so generously contributing to the Prisoners' of War Fund will be glad to know that cards have been received from Sgt. Arthur Field and Pte. Hopkins thanking their "adopters" for the Red Cross parcels which have been arriving regularly, and stating that they depend almost entirely on them for their food.

Parcels for Prisoners.

The following letter, dated June 13th, gives an exceeding interesting account of the work of our Prisoners' of War Department:

Dear Mrs. Plumptre,—

Many thanks for your letter. I shall be only too happy to give you any information about the work in this department. The first question you asked as to how our parcels are done up and where. All our parcels of provisions are packed at the Civil Service Stores, where a room is set apart for this purpose, and two or three men men do nothing else but attend to our parcels. Someone from this department of the Red Cross goes up at least once a week to see that everything is going on all right, and the parcels are being properly packed. We have never had any cause to complain of the work of the Civil Service Stores which has been most consistently satisfactory throughout. The Export Manager takes the deepest interest in the work, and does all he can to promote its success.

The parcels are packed in double cardboard boxes, and then in strong brown paper. I enclose lists of the contents. We have given a guarantee to the Government that no contraband or printed matter is ever enclosed in our Red Cross parcels, and that no aliens are employed in the packing of them. I think, therefore, that our parcels are very seldom opened by the Censor, in fact the returned prisoners assure me that in almost every case Red Cross parcels are not opened from the time they leave the Stores until they are opened in the presence of the prisoners themselves in the camps in Germany.

You say it is hard to convince people that the men get their parcels. We also are continually being asked that same question, and can only continue to give the same answer. About 20 of our men are now, I am glad to say, interned in Switzerland, and have most of them written us most charming letters. (See Mail Bag.) They one and all urge us to continue sending as much food as we can to their comrades left behind, as they say they are almost entirely dependent on their parcels from home. With the tightening of the blockade there seems no doubt that food conditions in Germany are getting worse all the time, and of course, the prisoners suffer first. It behoves us therefore to redouble our efforts on their behalf, and to send as much as we can, trusting that the one good quality the Germans have displayed, viz., their honesty in delivering the parcels, will continue.

After ten months of sending bread from Switzerland we decided that a change might be advisable, and that the men would welcome a different kind of bread for a time. We are, therefore, now sending from Dudeney & Johnston, Bedford, who bake a special and very excellent white bread for prisoners. We have had very satisfactory post cards acknowledging the arrival of this bread in excellent condition.

As you know, a large percentage of the men are subscribing 10s a month for their parcels. This suggestion was made to them by the Pay Office, who thought. I consider quite rightly, that many of the men might be glad of an opportunity of helping themselves, instead of being entirely dependent on funds subscribed by the public. They are all in receipt of their full pay which is mounting up for their benefit therefore this arrangement seems only fair. It is, however, of course quite voluntary, and a good many have written to say they are unable to agree to the suggestion.

A large number of our men are "adopted", and money continues to pour in for the fund in the most satisfactory way. The generosity of people in Canada has been truly magnificent, and I think now I can safely say that all our men are being sent a 5s. parcel of provisions weekly as well as the 4 lbs. of bread. The fund raised by H.R.H. the Duchess of Connaught, is being devoted to supplying tobacco and cigarettes which seem much appreciated and give great pleasure.

The only packing we do here is the clothing. In the winter we sent 5 parcels to each man, and are now again sending out another smaller supply. We have also been promised from the warehouse a variety of articles such as handkerchiefs, towels, soap, brushes, and other toilet necessities, which we are going to pack and send out to them. (This was done early in July.—Ed).

We have got parcels returned to us from Germany as if the men to whom they are addressed are dead or cannot be traced. These parcels are returned to us quite intact.

This is all I can think of for the moment to tell you. Should you require any further information, please write and I will endeavor to supply it.

It has been such a pleasure to see Colonel Noel Marshall, and his keen interest in the work has been most encouraging.

I fear these terrible lists of casualties will mean many more of our men being prisoners in Germany.

Yours very truly,

EVELYN RIVERS BULKELEY.

WHAT DO WE NEED?

From Red Cross Bulletin for August:

What Do We Need?

From an interesting report of the needs of French Hospitals we learn what are the chief articles required. "Gauze by the yard and cotton by the pound are more popular than ever. Surgeons who know we furnish these articles, look to us for continued help."

Our readers will note that the demand is for these goods in bulk, and not in made dressings. In a previous report from the same committee, this was definitely stated: "Bulk gauze and cotton were always asked for in the French hospitals in preference to pads and compresses." This corroborates the instructions received from our own Commissioner, and will show why it was decided to discontinue the making of dressings.

For a long time past, we have known that almost all our own hospitals (except Field Ambulances in action) preferred to make and sterilize their own dressings, but as we were sending thousands of cases of supplies to France, we did not stop the making of dressings until there was a general consensus of opinion that France also preferred help in the form of materials to be made up into dressings.

We know that this decision has caused some disappointment and inconvenience to our Branches, but the Head Office exists partly to find out the real needs and communicate them to their Branches, and we feel sure that our Branches would justly resent our action if we allowed them to go on making supplies which are not necessary for fear of inconveniencing our workers.

The needs of the hospitals—our own and those of the allies—are continually changing and our machinery must be so constituted as to change also.

In the earlier stages of the war there was no doubt a great demand for made dressings before the French hospitals were systematically organized, but this stage has passed and we have an immense store of dressings ready for emergencies and for the use of the advanced ambulances during action or for army hospitals who may need them in emergencies.

Two statements may serve as an illustration of the amount of dressings we have been receiving. The City and District Branch of Victoria, B.C., has been turning out dressings at the rate of about 12,000 per week; while the Provincial Branch of Quebec has turned out about 1 1-2 million since the beginning of the war.

But there is no need for our workers to be idle.

Besides the perennial need for socks, we want thousands of "comfort bags," and "housewives", shirts with collars, pyjamas, knitted red cotton ties, sheets and towels; 2,500 shirts with collars were recently sent to our Canadian prisoners of war from our stores. "News from Home" is also popular, both in hospitals and trenches, and would give occupation to many of those who, for one reason or another, cannot sew or knit.

There is no doubt that the needs of our work are more and more those for which money, rather than work is required.

Our hospitals have reached a semi-permanent stage, and need more and more equipment for the proper care and amusement of the "getting-better" man who is not well enough to go to a convalescent home. Hence the call for Recreation Huts to which our Commissioner refers in the report of his late visit to France. Another side of this need is presented by the call for motor wagons to take out men suspected of tuberculosis, or garden seats or shelter for the same cases, or material for use in "special" hospitals.

Such supplies are entirely outside the scope of the Ordnance Department (which now very largely covers the needs of our own hospitals in the way of garments) but lie entirely within the scope of the Red Cross. A reference to our Commissioner's reports will show that the indents of our hospitals are very largely outside the class of things sent from Canada; or, in other words, for things which must be bought rather than made. In this category, are cotton and gauze in bulk, rubber goods and drugs, as well as the provision of Homes for Nurses, additional hospital buildings, etc., which call for very large cash expenditures.

A contribution of twenty-five dollars has been received from Mr. G. A. Smith. This sum has been realized from the sale of woollen knitting needles, in which Mr. Smith has been busily engaged during the last few months.

SERVICE.

ENGLISH WOMEN PAYING PRICES FOR PATRIOTISM

War Workers, Whose Thoughts Wander, Victims of Accidents in Factory

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Seared by molten metal, blinded by steel shavings and with fingers snipped off by the cruel machinery of the munitions factories, English women and girls are paying the price of patriotism, as well as their men at the front.

Industrial accidents have not diminished, despite the claim of labour experts that women are more careful than men. Their inexperience is believed to account for many of the accidents so the experts may be right after all, in theory. But theory won't restore sight or knead the kinks out of pitifully mangled hands.

Another explanation is that feminine puddlers, machinists and lathe hands become pre-occupied at their work when their thoughts flit to the men fighting in France, the ladle tips or the belt slips off the roller there's a scream and another casualty goes down on the growing list.

A big shell factory in Lancashire has claimed its share of victims. A soldier's wife is the latest worker to be seriously injured. Her mind wandered for a second from the deadly machine before her and the knife came down, lopping off the thumb two fingers and part of a third from her left hand. But she'll be back, at some kind of a war job when the wounds are healed. The workers know shells have got to be made.

Many women have become skilled mechanics who a few months ago were accustomed to manual work. They all brave the dangers of industry cheerfully to do their bit in the war.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Agassiz, B.C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter, and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was formerly entirely cured of protruding piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

ENORMOUS PROFITS MADE ON OLD BOATS

Even Sailing Vessels Fetch Big Prices and Are Used to Carry War Material

LONDON—To the rise in shipping values no end is yet apparent. Second-hand boats now fetch prices that would have been considered extravagant for new vessels a couple of years ago. Even very old craft command more than their original cost.

Twelve months ago steamers were being sold at an average rate of £7 12s. per ton, but latterly sales have been on the basis of £20 2s. per ton — a jump of 171 per cent. Prices have ranged up to nearly £40 per ton for two-year-old ships, and even vessels thirty years old have fetched £27 per ton. The profits made on sales are so large that many of the boats have changed hands several times during the past couple of years.

which was sold for £26,200 in 1914, was disposed of for £100,000 last year, and has lately been knocked down again for £140,000. Another vessel, 20 years of age, fetched £36,500, and has now realized £101,000. A third ship, built in 1891, which was priced at only £7,800 in 1912, sold for £21,000 last year, and yet again for £62,000 quite recently.

Four other craft, the newest ten years of age, which together were disposed of for £117,000 in 1915, have recently fetched £355,500. Two other examples may be given. One 27-year-old boat, which was sold for £45,000 in 1913, has just been disposed of for £100,000, and one 18-year-old craft, which realized £20,000 in 1914, has now changed hands for £135,000.

The above representative scales relate only to steamers, but sailing ships can supply equally astounding illustrations of the phenomenal rise in values. In 1915 the average rate per ton realized was about £4 11s., but this year the mean has been around £9 9s., an increase of 107 per cent. Twenty-year-old ships and over have commanded £13 per ton, whilst even craft built in the seventies have fetched from four to six pounds per ton.

PERISHED IN PAIL OF WATER

Infant Fell In During Temporary Absence of Mother.

GUELPH, Sept. 9.—The eighteen-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Talbot of Eramosa township walked out into the woodshed and tumbled head first into a bucket with a small quantity of water in it. Only a minute or so afterwards the mother found the child, but there was no sign of life, and it is thought that in the fall its neck may have been injured in such a way as to cause death.

OTTAWA PRIEST WOUNDED

Rev. J. J. O'Gorman Shot While Helping Bring in Wounded.

OTTAWA, Sept. 9. — Major, the Rev. Dr. John J. O'Gorman, pastor of the Blessed Sacrament Church of this city, who went overseas as a chaplain of the Canadian forces in France, has been wounded, and is now in a hospital in Amiens, France. The young priest sustained his wound, a fracture of the left arm, caused by a German shell, while engaged in bringing in the wounded from the firing line. His condition is not dangerous.

SOUR MILK LOSSES

HOW MUCH OF YOUR MILK WENT BAD DURING THE HOT SPELLS?

Why it Pays to Buy PASTEURIZED Milk

Just sit down and connect up the excessively hot weather of this Summer with the quantity of ordinary raw milk that has gone sour with the heat, and see if it would not have paid to have been among the growing number of Pasteurized Milk users.

THE KEEPING QUALITIES OF

have been well demonstrated all this Summer. It has stood the test of the severe temperatures, and proved its Safety.

The Relative Difference in the Price of Pasteurized and Clarified Milk, as compared with ordinary raw milk, is more than made up by the sour milk losses and annoyances.

DO YOUR CHILDREN HAVE LOTS OF SOUR MILK?

The food of first importance in the sustenance of human life from infancy is PURE MILK, and the greater the purity the greater the advantage.

While Pasteurization, properly executed is an efficient and practical means of protecting the consuming public against danger from infected milk, it interferes in no way with its digestibility or strengthening properties. It retains all its important values and is free from the danger of raw milk.

MORNING, NOON AND NIGHT

Drink a glass of Pure Rich Milk from the Peterborough Creamery.

It is delivered in Sterilized Sealed Bottles, superceding the former primitive method of ladling with a dipper from large cans,—hence eliminating the danger of contamination from dust, dirt, smoke and debris from the street while the cans are open.

All the danger from infected milk does not originate on the farms where there is plenty of pure air, green clover and fresh running water, but from exposure of milk cans and bottles to the impurities of the city streets.

Clarification, in like manner contributes to the cleanliness of milk, because it removes all sediment and other objectional matter, whether it came from the cow, or the cans, or the milker.

PUBLIC IN THE NORTHWEST SATISFIED WITH PROHIBITION

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta Have Had Prohibition For Several Months Past and "Dry" Area is Nearly 1000 Miles--A Neutral View of the Liquor Question in the West—Writer Believes Inkeepers Should Command Greater Respect Than They Do—Wet and Dry Hotels on Pacific Coast Compared.

By Chas. E. Compton.

Owing to the fact that the Province of Ontario will in a few days go dry, it may be interesting to Ontarians to know just exactly how the public of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta are finding the prohibition measures enacted a comparatively short time ago. In passing through those provinces last month I endeavored to get an expression of public opinion from the public and not from prejudiced individuals. I did not consult the long-faced minister, whose conscientious convictions compelled him to say that a smell of a whiskey bottle was equivalent to walking over the inferno on a tight rope. Nor did I talk "booze" exclusively to the man who had once sold it, with the result that silver and gold dollars weighed down the scales on the balance of conscience. Again it seemed ridiculous to ask the women what they thought of the "grog," for that very word is sufficient to open a tirade from them upon the liquor traffic.

THE TEMPERATE MAN.

But I tried to find the man whose appearance gave me the impression that he once had used liquor, and "could let it alone"—if necessary. It was the clerk, the tradesman, the mechanic or the trainman that appealed to me in this instance.

When I way a boy in Toronto I was always led to believe that farmers considered it an outrage if they had to drive in the country for more than five or six miles without stopping at a tavern. Not only in York County, but in many others, the taverns were considered an absolute necessity. Time rolled on and gradually one by one these wayside bars disappeared, and the peculiar part of it all was that nobody died for the loss of them.

If they were necessary in moderate Ontario one would imagine that their usefulness would be two-fold on the prairie, where the traveller is at the mercy of terrible forces of nature.

1,000 MILES DRY.

To think of a thousand miles west of Winnipeg so dry that a traveller cannot have a little "toddy," at first appalls one. Over the doors of the Canadian Northern coach was placed the sign, "Public drinking strictly prohibited within the Province of Saskatchewan."

Although it must be said to the credit of those temperance advocates that as a rule the passengers on trains are much improved by the prohibitory measures, yet I saw two men with a bottle making repeated visits to the women's washroom. The porter had to remind them were they were, etc., and the drinking stopped to view at least. In Manitoba, and that province has been dry for three months, the consensus of opinion was in favor of prohibition. From several sources I understand the "dispensaries" in Saskatchewan were not so satisfactory as it was hoped they would be. The result is that the people will be asked to vote on their abolition.

At Edmonton two gentlemen who looked like general merchants, remarked that the number of drunks for the month of July was reduced from some thirty to three. They said it was their belief that the liquor business was going for good.

There is no use discussing the pros and cons of the liquor business in British Columbia for I believe prohibition in its general term has never been tried there.

HOTELS DETERIORATED.

In many local option communities in Ontario I have found from actual experience that when the three-fifths vote compelled the hotelkeeper to close his bar the hotel went back and was everywhere noticeable especially in the meals and rooms, but in Vancouver and Seattle I had experiences that will live as everlasting arguments that a man may keep a rooming house and without selling liquor make a comfortable living.

As perhaps everybody knows, the State of Washington passed prohibition a considerable time ago and now is as "dry as a bone."

While in Seattle I stayed at the Rainer-Grand, a hostelry of rather pretentious proportions. I was given a splendid room with a private bath, two wash basins, etc., for $1.50 per day.

The manager informed me that he was making as much as when his "house" was under license. For example he saved a very heavy license that went up into the thousands each year. "Why," he said, "I save $400 per month by closing my dining room which had to stay open with the bar." There was no noise. Everything was orderly and there was no indication of deadness.

Coming back to Vancouver, having had the "Dunsmuir" recommended to me, I engaged a room there, not specifying what floor, only that it have a private bath. To the top floor I was escorted and it was not nearly as nice a room as my recent home in Seattle.

I nearly exploded when I found I had to pay $3 per day for the room only and extra for the telephone. In the Seattle hotel it was free to guests. Now I know what "milking the tourist" means. So I have pictured things as I have found them.

Whether Ontario will be satisfied under prohibition or not one cannot safely prophesy, but I believe those engaged in the business will never want to go back to it again when they learn that the travelling public will pay for good accommodation whether booze is served or not.

The innkeeper is one of the most useful agents in modern society and for years he has in many many cases borne unjustly the stigma placed upon him by fanatics who have taught the public to believe that he is of the worst sample and kind of mankind.

Why should not an hotel proprietor be regarded in the same social standing as a merchant or professional man? Perhaps that day is not far distant.

SCAVENGERS' FEES

Under the new Scavenging By-law of the City, important clauses of which are published in another column, the fees or payment for the work are payable to the scavenger and not at the City Offices. Householders should read the clauses of the By-law. 3d-56

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

Recent events have shown that usefulness is one of the principal assets of the work of the Boy Scouts' Association in Canada. It is one of the aims of the organization to teach the Scouts services useful to the public, and handicrafts useful to themselves. A short time ago we heard of how Boy Scout in the vicinity of Toronto went to the rescue of the berry growers of that district. They not only relieved the scarcity of labour situations in that particular district but they rendered a distinct service to the nation. Now we hear that the 1st Boy Scout Troop of Creelman, Sask., is building a Scout hall which is to be used at a meeting place, and "Club room". Two friends of the movement kindly placed two building lots at the disposal of the boys, and while the little building is slowly going up on one corner, the rest of the property is maturing a fine crop of potatoes and other vegetables which will go a long way toward paying for the interior furnishings. Besides their income from their garden, the Creelman Scouts have added considerable to their bank account by work of various kinds done for the town.

He was only sixteen, but he stood by his gun to the last." Such is the story of one brave Scout — John Travers Cornwell, who served his country on the "Chester" during the battle of Horn's Reef. He died of wounds which he received early in the battle. Of him the Captain of the Chester says: "His devotion to duty was an example for all of us. The wounds which resulted in his death within a short time were received within the first minutes of the action. He remained steadily at his most exposed post at the gun waiting for orders. Al but two of the ten crew were killed or wounded, and he was the only one who was in such an exposed position. But he felt he might be needed, and indeed he might have been, so he stayed there, standing and waiting, under heavy fire, with just his own brave heart and God's help to support him."

For this act of heroism, which has added to the achievements of Scouts during the war—the Chief Scout has awarded the Bronze Cross to commemorate Cornwell's splendid example to the Brotherhood of fearlessness in the presence of death.

His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, Chief Scout of the Boy Scouts Association in Canada, while on a recent visit to the Western provinces, inspected the 3rd Brandon troop which is composed of Indians. He mentioned that this troop was the first Indian troop he had seen in Canada, and he expressed great pleasure at meeting them and he complimented them on their fine bearing. He also spoke of the significance to the Dominion and Empire, of the blending of the original inhabitants and the British born, brought about by the Boy Scouts Association.

CAR COLLIDED WITH A TREE

Mr. F. A. Conners of the City Mission Figures in an Automobile Accident

Yesterday an automobile driven by Mr. F. A. Conners collided with a tree and was slightly damaged. Mr. Conners' little girl sustained a few slight bruises, but the rest of the occupants of the car were uninjured.

Doing Good Work In North

Shantyman's Christian Association Carrying On Commendable Effort

Rev. Thos Joplin, Field Secretary of the Shantymen's Christian Association who is visiting the city in connection with this important work, stated to-day that the Association was very anxious to assist some special cases who have been burnt out in the Forest Fires of the North. "I feel sure, Mr. Joplin says, that people do not fully understand conditions. Our missionaries have saved many of these people who lead lonely lives. Our Superintendent, Mr. Henderson, visited a woman who had intended to take her own life on account of the fact she had never had a visit from anyone in four years. The Association conducted 400 meetings in the camps, visited many settlers homes, gave away thousands of Bibles, Testaments in 12 languages.

All this work was done by men who give their lives for only nominal pay.

Mr. Joplin would like to save $500 to help this noble work. Will you help? Send your subscription to Rev. Thomas Joplin, Y.M.C.A., Peterborough, Ont.

Barn Destroyed In Emily Township

Storm Did Considerable Damage to the North—Barn Roof Blown Off

LINDSAY, Sept. 9.—This section was visited by a rather severe electrical storm Thursday afternoon, accompanied by a windstorm of some violence. About midnight another electrical strom passed over, and reports received show that considerable damage was wrought throughout the district.

House Badly Wrecked.

During the afternoon storm the house occupied by Mr. W. R. Robertson, on the old Hickey farm near the sand pits, was struck by lightning and badly damaged, the gable being knocked completely off.

Large Tree Shattered.

A large shade tree in front of Mr. J. G. Edwards' residence on Russell Street, Lindsay, was badly shattered, a portion of it falling over the fence.

Cement Work Damaged.

On Glenelg Street, Lindsay, a portion of the green cement laid in connection with the curbing and gutters as damaged somewhat by the heavy rush of water. The damage was easily repaired, however.

Barn Burned in Emily.

On Friday morning, between one and two o'clock, lightning struck the barn on the farm occupied by Mr. John McDonald, next to the Peter Murtha farm in Emily. It was completely destroyed, together with its contents.

Barn Roof Blown Off.

Driving Shed Wrecked.

Mr. Malcolm McArthur, who lives near Grass Hill, had his driving shed blown down during the storm.

HOUSE DAMAGED AT MOUNT HOREB

LINDSAY, Sept. 9.—Thursday afternoon a fire broke out in the residence on the Stanley Sluggett farm, Mount Horeb, occupied by Richard Wellington and for a time it was feared the structure was doomed.

The fire started in the roof of the winter kitchen, and Mr. Wellington and family had to work like Trojans before subduing it. The roof as completely stripped of shingles before the fire was extinguished.

To add to the situation the severe storms of the afternoon and midnight followed, with the result that the kitchen was completely flooded and the contents badly damaged.

BIG SCOW FOR TRENT VALLEY CANAL

Mr. Brummel, of East Trenton, has just completed a new type of boat for carrying freight. This boat from outside appearance, looks like a huge scow. It is to be run by two twenty-horse power gasoline engines and two propellers and has a capacity of 600 barrels of apples. It was built for navigation purposes on the Trent Valley Canal.

TO-MORROW IN GEORGE ST. CHURCH

The members of the George Street Methodist church are reminded that the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered at the close of the morning service. In the evening Rev. R. G. Peever will preach on the "Ontario Temperance Act".

Ambulance Work Under Shell Fire On Verdun Front

"Could Not Be Beaten This Side of Hades" One of the Drivers Writes to His Wife in London

New York, Sept. 7.—The following letter from a Red Cross ambulance driver on duty around Verdun has been forwarded by his wife living in London, to whom it was written:

"I have been carrying the dying and wounded from the gigantic scrap heap of Verdun night and day. Going back from the hospitals in convoy in empty ambulances is a sight which could not be beaten this side of Hades. If it were put on as a moving picture stunt it would crowd the biggest show house and have a century run. The roads are a solid mass of automobiles, traction-drawn artillery, lorries and busses and every kind of conveyance imaginable, all going up in a dead straight line or returning for another load. The way the roads are kept up under such enormous traffic is a miracle of efficiency.

"Overhead aeroplanes whirl their way on missions of sudden death; their death defying pilots cut the solid gloom in throbbing pulsations, and presently far ahead are sought by the searchlights of the enemy as prey for the aircraft guns.

"As we get along, sometimes onrising to eternal damnation the sudden over-oiling of an engine ahead which has created the stink mist in which one finds himself, sometimes casting a glance of sympathy on a returning convoy laden with crippled men, one gets the benefit of pyrotechnics on a scale never put up. Vivid, ghastly, blue star shells radiate their pallid light right ahead, revealing for miles around the many men lying dead. Then the shells hail like a Chick Evans drive in all directions, and make life hideous.

"Nearer and nearer we got to the area where we shall find the field hospitals with its battalions of loaded stretchers ready for removal by our ambulances. Still the cannons keep up their incessant grumbling. The ears tire behind the cotton wool stuffed drums and the eyes water as the acrid fumes of the fight ahead dilate themselves in the wind.

"On the field men are gathered in reserve in readiness for a march to the relief when the orders are received for a counter attack. Peculiar is the way the impending ordeal affects the men. Some laugh and are absolutely fearless in their contempt of death others become revengeful in their lust to kill, while the nervous are a little afraid. But when the onslaught is made all are the same — lusting for blood to cleanse the rape of France.

"We then reached the barn at the rear of the trench outlet, which is used as a field hospital. There our load awaits us, and we make our way back to the rear of the fighting line.

SURPRISE OF HIS LIFE.

"I got the surprise of my life the other night. The depot I was evacuating is right under fire and frequently the wounded get another dose as shells aimed at random burst over the farm buildings. An orderly with little comfort for the wounded, was helping load the stretchers into the ambulances when a slightly wounded soldier turned up shivering from the cold, being without a coat. The orderly turned aside for a moment and pulled off his coat. I came around to the rear side of the automobile to find out the cause of the delay, and flashed my torch on the figure of the orderly who was industriously removing the cardigan worn underneath the tunic. To my surprise a pair of indignant eyes met mine as the light revealed a dainty laced garment, which slipping had revealed the bosom of a woman. Neither of us spoke as she quietly got into her tunic again and hurried to do her orderly's duties.

I ascertained that the lady was a Parisian-American. I have frequently talked with her since concerning the little episode. J. W. Brookes, an American artist attached to our gang, was a witness of the affair and has reproduced it. I bet it will cause a mild sensation when he gets home.

"You cannot conceive the surprise I felt to see a woman in the midst of such carnage. There are a lot of Americans right on the firing line here. J. B. Samson, an American, received a medal for holding up the business end of a machine gun when all his comrades were either dead or wounded. Another thing the Americans have done—they have taught us to chew gum!"

NEW FACTORY FOR BELLEVILLE

BELLEVILLE, Sept. 9.—Work has begun on the foundation of the plant of the Maple Leaf Tire Co., Ltd., just outside the city limits. The cost of the buildings and plant will approximate $100,000, and employment will be given at the start to one hundred hands, and ultimately it is hoped to employ five hundred men.

CHOLERA INFANTUM
Cured By Using
DR. FOWLER'S
Extract of Wild Strawberry

Cholera infantum is one of the most common, and at the same time one of the most dangerous summer complaints of infants, and many children have died who could have been saved had the proper remedy been used on the first sign of the trouble.

Cholera Infantum begins with a profuse diarrhœa; the stomach becomes irritated, vomiting and purging set in and the child rapidly loses flesh, and becomes weak, prostrated and languid.

Mrs. B. A. Cirwell, Rossway, N.S., writes: "I can recommend most highly Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. A friend of mine whose little daughter was ill with cholera infantum was given up by the doctors. The little one's mother asked me to come and see the child. I told her I had a bottle of 'Dr. Fowler's' and asked her if she would try it. When the bottle was half used the child was well. This cure was a miraculous one for I thought the child was dying at the time."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for the past seventy years. Any one who has ever used it will not accept a substitute. See that you don't. When you ask for "Dr. Fowler's" be sure that you get it.

The genuine is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price 35c.

FUNERAL OF MRS. McCULLOUGH

The body of one of Peterborough's old settlers was quietly laid to rest in Little Lake Cemetery yesterday afternoon, in the person of Mrs. Catherine McCullough, who passed away in Toronto on Wednesday morning. The deceased lady, predeceased by her husband, the late James McCullough, some six years since, had attained the advanced age of 80 years, and will be remembered by not a few of the city's older residents. Many beautiful and costly wreaths were evident, tokens of the affection and esteem in which the deceased was held by the surviving members of her family and of all who knew her. The services at the house and the grave were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Doherty, of St. Luke's Church, Toronto, assisted by the Rev. Canon Cornish, of St. John's Church.

The funeral arrangements were ably carried out by Messrs. Belleghem.

VOICE ON WIRE AT NIGHT ANNOYS SERBIAN MAJOR

Andra Piatgia, Recently Married, Accuses Mrs. Sangree of Abusing Him Over Telephone

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.— His eyes ablaze, Major Andra Piatgia, of the Serbian army, decorated by King Peter with the Karageorge Cross, stalked into the West Side Court with a complaint to Magistrate McQuade against Mrs. Kate Sangree, twenty-eight years old, of No. 235 West Forty-ninth street. He accused Mrs. Sangree of annoying him by telephoning him at "altogether unreasonable hours" at his home, No. 130 West Forty-eighth street.

The Major is tall and well built and has a temper. He complained that not only had Mrs. Sangree telephoned him, but that she also had circulated defamatory stories concerning him.

Explaining his presence in this country, Major Piatgia said he was wounded twice while fighting with his colours. From another source it was reported that while convalescent he was sent to London with state documents for the Court of St. James. Later he was sent, it is said, by the Serbian Legation in London to Washington. He was still weak from his wounds when he reached the United States. He became enamored of Miss Ada Knight, English acrtress and singer who nursed him here, and they were married three weeks ago.

"Since that time this woman, whom I never have met, has been calling me up and abusing me," said the Major, referring to Mrs. Sangree.

After listening to what the Major had to say, Magistrate McQuade sent a detective to Mrs. Sangree's home. In court Mrs. Sangree denied she had ever annoyed the Major. She declared the only thing she ever had done for him or his wife aw sto buy silk underwear for Mrs. Piatgia. She was held in $500 bail for examination this morning.

In the course of the brief hearing it developed that Major Piatgia had a letter from Prince Alexis, of Serbia, demanding an explanation of his marriage.

When the Major was questioned about his mission to the United State he declared he never had been at the Court of St. James and that he was soldier and not a diplomatist. He said he was trying to establish a business in the importation of onions from Spain. He said he might start a time for Canada or elsewhere, if he pleased, and wanted it thoroughly understood he was not posing as a diplomatist, adding that he had an office downtown.

It was observed that he wore a ribbon in the buttonhole of the el of his coat. This, he said, was not the Legion d'Honneur, but the Karageorge Cross.

At the home of Mrs. Sangree, the Martin Annex, all information was refused. It wa said that he was not at home.

Men of 141st Express Sympathy With O.C.

Lt.-Col. McKenzie Implores Them to Obey Orders—He Is Confident.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Sept. 7.—Many members of the 141st Battalion refused to parade yesterday afternoon as a protest against the suspension of Lieut.-Col. McKenzie. When the efforts of other officers failed, Col. McKenzie appeared, and with tears in his eyes, implored the men to obey orders. He assured them of his entire confidence that he would be exonerated by the inquiry. The men responded to the appeal.

Colonel McKenzie said: "I am positive that nothing whatever will be found to reflect on the integrity of the officers of the battalion. It may be that the auditors will find that accounts in connection with the battalion, and the bookkeeping may not be perfect, but I am quite confident that everything will be found absolutely straight."

Molly McIntyre At "The Grand"

Molly McIntyre, who begins her engagement at the Grand Opera House, Peterborough, Tuesday evening, had a rousing reception at the Grand Opera House, Toronto, August 28th, where she began her career as a star. Her opening night was under the auspices of the Divisional Cyclists Corps. An interesting fact in connection with the engagement was, that she insisted, and had her way in beginning her starring career under the British flag. At the end of the second act the stage was filled with soldiers. A huge Union Jack was stretched across the back of the stage, a crowd of soldiers surrounded her, showered her with roses and sang "She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Miss McIntyre responded with a speech. The little Scotch actress who has two brothers at the front, naively told that when she was a kiddie in Inverness, her brood of brothers were called "Molly's Brigade," and wish she could mobilize another one for the boys who are "the eyes and ears of army." Among the most interesting of those present that evening was Pte. Bruce Carruthers of the 48th, in charge of his nurse. Pte. Carruthers had recently returned from the front a victim of German Kultur, but a shining example of Canadian heroism and loyalty. Tuesday evening next, Sept. 12th.

WILL TRANSFER INTERNED SHIPS

Cruisers Kronprinz Wilhelm and Prinz Eitel Friedrich to be Moved From Newport News

WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept. 9.—To relieve cramped conditions at Newport News, the Nevy Department has decided to transfer the interned German converted cruisers Kronprinz Wilhelm and Prinz Eitel Friedrich to Philadelphia. This will be done between September 20 and 30. A naval escort, probably of battle ships, will be afforded to the interned ships when they make the trip from Norfolk. The matter will be taken up by the State Department with the German Embassy. It will be necessary, it is said, for the interned ships to go outside the three mile limit, but with their escort no incident is likely to result. The United States escorted the interned merchant ship Prinzessin Cecille to New York under similar conditions.

Complaints have frequently been made that there was not enough room at Norfolk for these ships. Now that the Navy Department is to undertake the construction of a dry dock there it is essential to find new quarters for them.

JITNEY SPECIAL NEW DANCE STEP

Shares Honours With Corkscrew Glide at Convention of American Society of Dancing Professors

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The jitney special shares honours with the corkscrew glide as a coming dance at the convention of the American Society of Dancing Professors, which is in session at the Majestic Hotel. As a matter of fact, one of the most interesting numbers on the programme before about one hundred dancing teachers yesterday was a Greek dance rendered by Louis H. Chalif.

The Terre Haute fox trot, better known as the "T. H." also came up again before the convention. The members of the organization take themselves so seriously that it was suggested a Presidential nominee would profit if he made an issue of dancing steps. They don't laugh at such an idea up at the Majestic, but apparently believe that it is far more important than the tariff question.

All the delegates are much interested in the "Fads at Cornell" dances, originated by students, which will be introduced at to-day's session of the convention by E. W. Prager, of Ithaca.

POTATOES DOWN TO $2.50 ON THE MARKET

Potatoes sold on the market to-day at $2.50 a bag. Some of the farmers went as high as $2.60 and $2.70, but the cheapest offerings looked as good, if not better, than the dearest. Some of the first imported spuds arrived in the city this week, selling at $2.60 it was reported.

Tomatoes were quoted by the basket at 50 and 60 cents. The quality seemed to be all that could be desired.

Duchess apples, at 15c a peck and 75c a bag, were plentiful.

Butter sold at 37 and 38 cents, and eggs at 28 cents. Chickens, per pair, were quoted at various prices, ranging from $1 to $1.35.

Rev. Dr. E. J. Stobo Leaves Hespeler Church

GALT, Sept. 8.—Owing to ill-health, Rev. Dr. E. J. Stobo, B.A., S.T.D., has resigned the pastorate of the Baptist Church at Hespeler. The resignation was received Wednesday, and under the circumstances will be accepted by the congregation on Sunday.

Dr. Stobo has been a patient at the Toronto General Hospital for six weeks, and while improving slowly, he will be unable to accept a charge for some considerable time, if ever.

The resignation was received with regret by the parishioners. Dr. Stobo had been in Hespeler for two years, and was well liked and admired by all.

DUCKS ARE PLENTIFUL ON LAKE AND RIVER

Many Campers Remaining for First Half of September—Boats Carrying Grain

The Geneva brought up 110 passengers this morning and the Rainbow 75. Both vessels have been busy lately carrying grain from Rice Lake points, and there is still a considerable quantity to be moved. One farmer is reported to have most of his 1914 and 1915 grain unsold, and is clearing it out at decidedly favourable prices to make room for this year's crop. The Geneva freighted 5,000 bushels during the past week for local mills and the Rainbow 3,100 bushels.

In spite of the unpromising morning, yesterday's cheap trip gave the Geneva about one hundred and fifty passengers. The outing proved a very enjoyable one.

Special trips to the Peterborough Industrial are being run by both boats on Friday and Saturday of next week.

Mr. Ernie Mitchell came up from a week's shooting this morning, reporting the ducks plentiful. Wood, black and teal ducks, in fact, are so numerous, he stated, that those who fail to get a bag have only themselves to blame. In Riddell's bay Ernie landed two lunge. The weeds are loosening in the river, making it muddy and unfavourable for fishing. The shooting crowd has not been numerous, except on Monday.

Many of the campers along the river have disappeared, but there are many who are braving the early night frosts for the delightful days.

The Independent Order of Foresters Is No Longer An Assessment Organization

One of the most popular resorts on the grounds, and a place much sought after, was the tent of the Independent Order of Foresters, Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto. Thousands of visitors availed themselves of the opportunity to visit this tent, seeking rest, and many times seeking information regarding the benefits of the Order, and each and every visitor was loud in their praises to Mr. Ed. Fellman and Mr. Harvey Lloyd, the two able deputies who were in charge of the work, and who were ready at all times to show kindness and hospitality to all. They say that this has been the most successful year they have had since the Order planted their tent on the Exhibition Grounds. Some fifty applications for membership have been secured. This is a record that is worthy of praise, and the thanks is due these two brothers who so ably laid before their visitors the many advantages that are to be obtained by becoming members of such a grand organization as the Independent Order of Foresters.

In interviewing Mr. Fellman and Mr. Lloyd, it was most gratifying to hear their enthusiastic remarks regarding the stability of their institution. Loud were their praises for the members who some three years ago were opposed to the readjustment of rates, but who have now returned to headquarters and are thankful for such a man as Elliot C. Stevenson, their Superior Chief Ranger, the leader who so courageously faced the unpopular problem—yet a most necessary step—in order to save the institution and allow them to continue in the grand fraternal work they are doing. They are most proud to tell you that no longer have they to label their policies and literature with "Assessment System," as their Order is now working on a reserve basis, approved by the Dominion Insurance Department. They have a surplus of over two million dollars over and above this Government reserve, and a reserve of $224.80 per $1,000 insurance, against reserves of $200.30 per $1,000, held by all Canadian life insurance companies under Dominion charter. With such a splendid financial standing, no wonder they were successful in writing up fifty applications, and an organization like this should appeal to every right-thinking man and woman. The time has arrived when every organization should get themselves placed on an actuarially sound basis, in order to avoid disappointments for the membership when they reach an age when they are unable to seek insurance elsewhere.

It was most interesting to hear them speak in regard to the great work they are looking forward to doing during the next ten years. They predict that their membership by that time will be five hundred thousand, and with such an army, they can more energetically go into the work they are doing among the orphans — at the present time they are caring for over nine hundred — and the great work they are doing in treating their members who are afflicted with tuberculosis, as at the present time they are treating some two hundred patients in their two great sanitariums, one located in California and one in the Adirondack Mountains.

To any who did not have the privilege of visiting the tent, and therefore did not receive literature, write direct to the headquarters, I.O.F., Temple Building, Toronto. They will be glad to forward literature and information at any time.

CONFERENCE OF FORCES OPPOSED TO CHURCH UNION

A convocation of Presbyterians opposed to church union on the proposed basis will be held in Toronto on the 17th of October. A committee, Rev. Andrew Robertson, D.D., chairman, has charge of the arrangements. This committee is meeting weekly at the central executive offices, 804 Kent Building, Toronto. The convocation is expected to last three days and to be largely attended. The prominent speakers, place of meeting and other details have not all been fully settled as yet. A programme is being prepared and full announcement will be made at an early date. The convocation is expected to represent Presbyterianism from all parts of the Dominion.

DRUGGISTS AND LIQUOR.

Kingston Pharmacists Have Little Desire to Sell.

KINGSTON, Sept. 9.—The Kingston druggists have not yet decided what they will do with the liquor problem, which results from the closing of the bars and shops on September 16. There seems to be no disposition on the part of the druggists to become vendors of ale, beer, and porter, which may be sold on a doctor's prescription.

Mlle. Verlet

of the Paris Opera, famed Belgian Coloratura-Soprano, is but one of many great artists who have proved by direct comparison that Edison's new art re-creates all forms of music so exactly that the Re-Creation cannot be detected from the original.

Hear Edison's Re-Creation of the voice of Alice Verlet; then hear the great Belgian Artist herself when she is on tour.

No! Your neighbors could not tell which is the real voice of Mlle. Verlet.

If Alice Verlet, of the Paris Opera, stood on your verandah, or near an open window, and sang in direct comparison with Edison's Re-Creation of her voice, your neighbors could not distinguish one from the other — nor could you, unless you watched Mlle. Verlet's lips.

This is no empty assertion. It can be proven by the music critics of leading American newspapers who have heard the test made. A booklet containing their critiques will be furnished on request.

The NEW EDISON

is not a talking machine. It embodies a new art whereby all forms of music are actually re-created. It is not alone Alice Verlet's voice which is so re-created. No voice is beyond this new art.

Come to us and hear Edison's Re-Creation of the work of the world's great singers and instrumentalists.

Week Has Been A Splendid One For Allies' Cause

voters. On both of these questions there were abundant opportunities for things being made nasty for the Government.

A SHIFTING BODY.

Things were not improved for them by the aspect of the House of Commons. That body is one of the most shifting things in the world. Its mood one week may not be the same the next; indeed its mood in the early afternoon may have entirely changed by the evening. When first the Coalition Government was formed it looked for some time as if the Ministry were going to be left without any enemies; and that it could pursue its course quite smoothly and uninterruptedly to the end of the war. All the men of official position had been caught in the Ministerial net; the men who made the criticism very often did themselves more damage than the government. For instance, Lord Kitchener was enormously helped at a critical moment in his career by the violent personal attacks upon him; otherwise there might have been much sooner the changes in munitions and other things which followed afterwards. In addition, feeling went so strongly against any washing of dirty linen during the war that everybody who criticised the government was supposed to be lacking in patriotism.

CHANGE IN ATTITUDE.

The change in this attitude of the House of Commons was partly caused by the House of Lords. That assembly has the enormous advantage over the House of Commons of being quite a law unto itself. In the House of Commons every member is more like a barrister or a witness in a court of law—that is to say, there are certain shackles of rule and of precedent from which they cannot release themselves. In the House of Lords the lord of Mis-rule is still dominant; the Lord Chancellor is theoretically and apparently in the same position as the Speaker of the House of Commons; but, as a matter of fact, his functions are entirely different. Nobody ever would think of appealing for instance from the decision of the Speaker to call one member instead of another. In the House of Lords on the other hand, the choice of a speaker is more or less in the hands of the Chamber itself; and occasionally I have seen divisions on the question whether one peer should address the House rather than the other, the Chancellor being entirely ignored. In the same way a member of the House of Lords can raise a discussion at any time he likes whereas in the House of Commons time has to be found for him by the Ministry of the day, and as most of the time of the House of Commons is pledged several times over in advance no member can get any time unless he has a tremendous backing behind him.

PARTY TIES.

Finally, party ties, which are unusually strong in the House of Commons practically do not exist in the House of Lords. In the House of Commons the party whip can usually respond quite confidently for the vote of nine out of ten, if not 99 out of 100, of the members of his party. In the House of Lords each peer, although he have party ties, is an independent and to a large extent an isolated being. He follows his own sweet will. He attends the House of Lords, or he does not just as it pleases him. Sometimes indeed there have been peers whose attendance in the House of Lords was so rare that the door-keepers refused them admission, because they were entirely unacquainted with their appearance.

In war time all these differences between the two houses asserted themselves to the advantage of the House of Peers; unshackled by party ties and by rules, each peer having an entirely independent existence, members of the House of Lords were able to devise President of the Stratford Collabate on subjects on which the House of Commons, partly compulsorily and partly voluntarily, abstained from saying a word.

PUBLIC OPINION.

With this curious result: that the House of Commons remaining dumb and inactive about many of the things which were disturbing the minds of every man in the street, and the House of Lords, rushing to the discussion of those very subjects with frankness and freedom, the popular Chamber was not for the moment apparently to represent the public will and the public opinion, and the House of Lords seemed to be its only mouthpiece. The mouthpiece, from an assembly consisting in the main of one caste and one creed—political and religious — was of course inevitably very partisan. In war time, however, when people are eager for news and being in a highly emotional state, anxious for the most vehement expression of their feelings, this partisanship was not very severely criticised. The main point with the public was that there was somewhere or other in some form or other, an expression to their enormous anxieties and their strongest opinions. And thus it was that the debates in the House of Lords gradually during this interval assumed an importance which was lacking in the debates in the House of Commons, and these debates often forced the hands of the government. It was from the House of Lords that the impulse for the Mesopotamia and Dardanelles enquiries, for the survey of the Irish situation and for many other things, originally came. To a democrat and a believer in the omnipotence of the House of Commons this presented at once a curious and a humiliating spectacle.

THE RELATIONS.

Such were the relations between the two Houses of Parliament during the first phases of the war and especially after the creation of the Coalition Ministry. In the one House there was reticence, self restraint and general agreement; in the other and less popular House there was frank discussion, candid and sometimes severe criticism, and generally an attitude of vigilant criticism if not actual hostility to the Ministry. However, the balance was redressed in the central fact of British parliamentary life that though the House of Lords can discuss and criticise, it cannot decide on the fate of Ministries. Fifty hostile votes against the Ministry in the House of Lords do not count so much as one bad division against it in the House of Commons. Thus it was that in spite of often just criticism in the House of Lords against the Ministry, things remained pretty much in statu quo; the House of Commons lay helpless and powerless against the Coalition, and such criticism as came was regarded as either nagging or unjustifiable. Nobody could even suggest that there was a possibility of a proposition, or if proposed, of carrying a vote of censure on the Ministry.

There was all kinds of rumors of internal dissension and of course in a Coalition Ministry there was bound to be some dissension. As I have said already on several occasions it looked as if the ministry could not last. Everybody felt besides another great factor which enters always into parliamentary situations in a war. It is the guns that ultimately tell in the political as well as the military field. A great defeat will break down a ministry in an hour, although the hour before it had an overwhelming majority of votes on its side; and similarly a great victory would re-establish a ministry that had been tottering to its fall. So far, therefore, as the battlefields were concerned, there was in the first two years of the war no event, either of victory or of disaster which stood out in such relief as to influence seriously the fate of the ministry at home. There was, of course, a growing sense of impatience. On the western front there was nothing but stalemate, and stalemate on the English front which was not in favorable contrast with the splendid defence of the French at Verdun. But stalemate does not mean disaster; and even in the hours when British advance against the German lines seemed to be the most difficult and the most delayed, there always came news from the British front of strong optimism; and the feeling in parliament accordingly was that things had better be allowed to drift in the House of Commons as apparently they drifted on the battle front, in the hope that a decisive moment would soon come.

PLENTY OF GROWLS.

Thus, then, we had this curious state of affairs; that the stalemate on the battle front was reflected on the stalemate in the House of Commons. There were plenty of growls, there was a great deal of criticism, more in private than in public; this minister or that or the other was described as incompetent and impossible; and very often a week began with the certainty in the minds of many that there might be a ministerial crisis. But a ministerial crisis never came; and so things remained until the ministry broke somewhat from within, and some of its scattered remnants found themselves in opposition. This was the beginning of something like a real opposition on the old lines, and marked a new phase in the life of both the ministry and the House of Commons.

INDIAN BAND TO VISIT CITY

Will Play at Salvation Army Temple — Visit of the Commissioner

The Indian Band from Indian Villages are visiting the city one week to-day, and giving a Musical Festival in the Salvation Army Citadel. A number of the original band enlisted with the 93rd Battalion, but though not as large, the band will make a good showing, musically. Adjt. McElheney, in trying to get them in in time to do something in the open air on Saturday evening, so that any of the citizens who cannot get to the Temple to hear the Festival will be able to hear them outside.

The final arrangements for the visit of Commissioner Richards and party are now made and will be as following:

Sunday, 11 a.m., the Commissioner will conduct a special service at the Byersville Temple on Chamberlen street.

At 2.30 p.m. the Commissioner will conduct a special service at the Salvation Army Hall, near Brailey's School House, and then a big united gathering at the Temple on Simcoe street, at 7.30.

No doubt the Commissioner will be greeted with packed houses at all three places.

BOY TERRIBLY HURT BY COMPRESSED AIR

STRATFORD, Sept. 9.—Harry Farmer, fourteen years old, residing at 333 Queen street, is dying at the General Hospital, and Alex. Eurlich, a Russian labourer, is held by the police pending the outcome of the boy's awful injuries. Both were employed on an air compressor in the Grand Trunk repair shops, and in some manner the hose, carrying up to 200 pounds pressure, was applied to young Farmer, who was literally blown up, his body being terribly distended and hemorrhages produced. The attention of other employees having been attracted, the Russian was seized and first aid methods were applied to the boy. Dr. Lorne Robertson rushed Farmer to the hospital, where an operation was performed. It was found that the boy's intestines had been ruptured considerably, and other internal injuries were such that the attending physician gave practically no hope of saving his life. Eurlich escaped rough handling by the timely arrival of Chief of Police Lannin, who arrested him. No charge has yet been preferred against the Russian, who protested that the boy applied the pressure nozzle himself. On the other hand, Farmer was able to speak enough to accuse the Russian of having committed the deed.

FIFTEEN COWS KILLED BY LIGHTNING STROKE

C. J. Banbury, of Dereham, Loses $1,000 Worth of Choice Animals.

INGERSOLL, Sept. 9. — Fifteen choice dairy cows were instantly killed on the farm of C. J. Banbury, 3rd Concession of Dereham Township, during a severe electrical storm on Thursday afternoon. The animals sought shelter under a tree, and were killed by lightning. This was said to be the greatest number of animals ever killed at once in the county by lightning. A few years ago nine head of cattle were killed on a West Oxford farm. Mr. Banbury's loss will likely exceed a thousand dollars, as dairy cows were never so dear as at present. They were insured in the Dereham & West Oxford Mutual Insurance Co. On the farm of Geo. Way, near here, a valuable young horse was killed during the same storm.

RACING PIGEON FLIES 1,000 MILES IN 4 DAYS

Bird Owned in Williamson Makes Record Flight from Fayetteville, Arkansas—Won Prize in Rochester.

Williamson, Sept. 9. —Bansai, the prize racing pigeon owned by Kenneth B. McMicken of Williamson, has arrived home from Fayettville, Ark., where it was shipped for release. It made the trip of 1,000 miles in four days and arrived home in prime condition.

Bansai has more than 6,500 miles of flights to its credit in various flights against time, but has made a world record this trip. He is a checkered cock, nine years old, and won first prize in 1911 at the Rochester bird show.

Much interest is shown in pigeons, as they are a part of the government preparedness plan as message carriers, Pigeon lofts are being established in various parts of the country, including one at army headquarters near the Mexican border.

Royal Order Of Turkeys

National Convention Closes at Harwood—Here on a Fishing Trip

The national convention of the Royal Order of Turkeys, which was held at Harwood on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week, closed last night. Eight of the delegates were in the city to-day. They propose to stay over for a few days and do a little fishing.

The convention was a huge success, and was largely attended by delegates from roosts across the line. Mayor John Gilman handed over the "key" to the delegates. New York City and Buffalo had a large representation, while Rochester, which is the home of many of the presiding officers, had over fifty delegates present.

YOUTH FOUND WITH BOTH LEGS SEVERED

GENEVA, Sept. 9.—Earl Burkard, 18, of South Bethlehem, Pa., was found lying at the side of the tracks of the Lehigh Valley railroad, near Burdette. Both legs were severed, and he was horribly mangled, but still alive.

The young man, who is supposed to have fallen from a freight train, was found by the crew of a fast passenger train, the engineer seeing the body near the rails. The train was stopped and Burkard was brought to the City Hospital. He was still alive, but the attending physician said there was little hope for the lad's recovery.

5 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

IN THE EAST END OF LONDON

BY CANADIAN OVERSEAS

It is a common reproach against the church that she takes no notice of what is going on in the world outside and observes only her own festivals. But in these strenuous days there is no great organization that has not felt the influence of this, the bloodiest war of history.

In the poor district in the East End there is a mission church, whose door is always open, offering a haven of peace and solitude to the passer-by. In this little church at the farthest end is a red curtain, partially shutting off a little space. On the wall behind hangs a white crucifix, and about it are grouped not only flowers, but the photos of men who are serving their country in the navy or in the army, and of men who have already laid down their lives. This is a "war-corner," one of the most touching and soothing institutions these distracted days have to offer.

To this spot the little tots wander, after school and kneel before a printed prayer. The parson is not here, and they are tiny tots, so the woman who has been cleaning the church joins them and reads out the prayer, while their hushed little voices follow her, word by word. When it is over they get up and toddle quietly out again. This is only one of many groups. They pray that our soldiers may be strong and brave; they pray for victory and for peace; they pray for the wounded, and there is one moment when the very silence is pathetic, when the little childish voices pray "O God take care of —" and in the pause each child offers the name of its own father or brother. And then out to play in the street, or in the pleasant garden behind the church. The children come daily. Nor are they all of one religion, or one nationality. The war has come into the Church and every child can give expression to the love and anxiety and hopes which the smallest may feel.

Outdoor services are frequent, too. One East End parish has put up rolls of honour in the streets. Each street has its own roll, framed, and surmounted by a cross. Here again are the photos of the men who are serving, and those who have fallen, with flags draped above, and worshippers ever near.

The spirit of the East End is admirable. It does not speak of the anti-German riots, now all but forgotten, where hooligans and bad boys had a fling. It is sane and patient, and turning to the church for comfort.

Austrian Armies Lose 800,000 Men In Three Months

Strategic Reserves Exhausted by Continuous Defeats on All Fronts

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY ON THE SOMME — The Austrian armies have just passed through a period of three months' defeats in which they have lost 800,000 men.

Their strategic reserves are completely exhausted, but despite the continual pressure of the Italians and Russians on their frontiers, the Austrians were able to scrape together eight divisions, which they sent to Transylvania.

Three divisions are badly needed elsewhere, and it seems scarcely possible, despite the difficulty of the country, that they will be able to hold the long line of the Roumanian frontier.

More Men Needed.

The question arises, where is the Dual monarchy to find more troops. It cannot accuse Germany of having failed to succor "the brilliant second." The Germans lost half a million men at Verdun before the Somme offensive began.

Since July 1 they have been losing heavily both on the Somme and at Verdun. How heavy the German casualty list has been can be deduced from the fact that since July 1 the allies have taken 48,000 prisoners at these two points on the front.

Notwithstanding these losses and the ever-increasing pressure of the French and British on the Somme, the Germans have sent some divisions to help the Austrians.

Nine of these were withdrawn from the western front, and the most surprising point is that four of them were withdrawn since July 1, when the Somme offensive began.

It is obvious that the German high command would not have withdrawn if it could possibly help it, a single man from the front which is being subjected to an offensive described in the German press as "a gigantic operation."

The German press has declared that the Germans are greatly outnumbered on the Somme, and yet so great is the crisis that the enemy had actually weakened his western front during the height of the offensive.

JOHNNY EVERS IS OUT FOR REST OF SEASON

BOSTON, Sept. 9.— Johnny Evers, captain and star second baseman of the Boston Braves, is out of baseball for the remainder of the season, Manager George T. Stallings announced. A statement from Stallings said: "Johnny Evers is through with baseball for this year. Neuritis in his left shoulder is bothering him as much as ever. To-day I had a long distance telephone talk with Mrs. Evers at Troy, N. Y. She said Johnny is still in no condition to play, and that the family doctor says it is useless for Evers to think of getting back into the line-up."

THE CANADIAN WAR LOAN

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Sept. 9.—It was announced officially here to-day that the prospectus for the new Canadian war loan would appear in all the press throughout Canada on Tuesday next. The issue will be one hundred million dollars of fifteen-year five per cent. bonds, maturing October 1st, 1931. The issue will be at 97½. Payments may be made in instalments extending over October, November and December.

$500 REWARD FOR HONEST MAID

She Found Gems Worth $50,000 Lost by Mrs. Lee Meriwether, of St. Louis.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 9.—The recovery of $50,000 worth of gems lost by Mrs. Lee Meriwether, of St. Louis, in the William Penn hotel in this city increased the bank account of Miss Margret Casey, of Bloomfield, by $500.

The girl, employed as a maid in the hotel, found the jewels in the bed occupied by Mrs. Meriwether. On turning them over to their owner she received the $500 as a reward for her honesty.

Mrs. Meriwether was speeding toward Cleveland when she discovered her jewels were missing. The train was stopped and she disembarked, hired an automobile and hurried back to the hotel. Much to her astonishment and relief she found the jewels awaiting her in the hotel office.

Gold lace and embroidery on black net are to be particularly good this season.

Smocking is seen on all sorts of pretty dresses from mothers to tiny tots.

Very smart three-piece costumes for afternoon are made with blouses of the new metal threaded silks, and the coats, which are so long that some of them only leave the flaring hems of the skirts visible, are lined with the same silk.

N. H. A. Hockey Players Can't See Any Silver Lining

Ed. Livingstone, of Toronto, the Only Owner Prepared to Continue —Ottawas Ready to Suspend

N. H. A. hockey players are not likely to strike for higher stipends or a shorter season just at present. The outlook is none too brilliant for any hockey at all. The Ottawas are prepared to throw up the sponge, so is Quebec, while the two Montreal clubs are so busy with the umpty umph race tracks in the Metropolis, they haven't reached the winter game yet. One owner, however, wants to continue. Ed. Livingstone, of Toronto, probably the heaviest loser in the league, has written the Ottawa club he is in favour of keeping the puck sliding and will do so this winter, even if Ottawa suspends, providing Montreal and Quebec are in favour of continuing.

Secretary Rosethal, of the Ottawa club, states the local organization has not definitely made up its mind to suspend, but declares emphatically the club will not continue on last year's basis. He intimates if the players and rink management are prepared to take the same chance as the club, possibly a working basis can be arrived at. The Senators sported a salary list last winter that would have covered the stipends distributed to two other clubs in the league.

On account of strained conditions a suggestion has been made that the N. H. A. continue with popular prices in vogue. This idea looks more or less congenial to the local owners, who believe a full house at cheaper prices is better for the game than a half filled rink at grand opera tariff.

The Ottawa club would be none too strong if they got back into the game. The loss of George Boucher, who is now in khaki, removes the best looking recruit turned out last year, and a lad who gave more zip to the forward line than any other player outside Gerard. Duford has also enlisted, but he will not be missed so much as he fell off in his form last winter.

Cy. Denneny, one of the best scorers of the league last season, and an exceptionally aggressive wing player, is located here permanently and is credited with the statement he will not play hockey in Toronto again. Livingstone will no doubt endeavour to work a deal for him with Ottawa. He would give the Senators a lot of front rank kick.

Although there is a general belief on the part of boxing patrons that Welsh was the recipient of favouritism on the part of Referee Roche, still it is pointed out by those who have studied the matter that Charlie White has now faced Welsh for fifty rounds—one twenty and three tens—and that the supposed knocker out has never put a glove on Welsh with disabling effect. Therefore, White has been depending on points to win his battles with the champion, and that is a feat that better boxers than White have utterly failed to accomplish.

It is the consensus of opinion that White as a probable champion of the lightweight class while Freddie Welsh is in the flesh is a dead bird in the put. Like many other heavy hitters, White does not box well enough to have a chance with a foxy ringster like Welsh.

White can topple over slow, plodding boys who permit the Chicagion to set for his left hook, but when it comes to first-class ring generals like Welsh the left hook is helpless. White has missed his last chance to bring home the championship bacon, and there is small chance of is getting another bout with the present title holder.

BOY GOLFING WONDER GAVE WAY ON SECOND ROUND OF GARDNER MATCH

One Up on First Round, He Loses by Four Up and Three to Play

Semi-Finals To-day

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—Chick Evans, of Chicago, the national open title holder, met D. Clarke Corkran, of Baltimore, while Robert A. Gardner, another Chicagoan, the present title-holder, played Jesse Guilford, the Massachusetts champion, in the semi-final matches for the amateur gold championship of the United States to-day on the links of the Merion Cricket Club. Evans' wonderful ability in match play made him a favourite in the betting. Eighteen holes were played yesterday and another eighteen will be played. The final match for the championship will be played to-day.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8.—The favourites won in the third round of the National Golf Tournament at the Merion Cricket Club yesterday and to-day will see Robert A. Gardner the title holder, paired with Jesse Guilford, the Massachusetts champion, while Chick Evans, Chicago, will play against D. C. Corcoran, the only dark horse to reach the semi finals.

Gardner more than had his hands full to dispose of R. T. Jones, Jr., the 15-year-old Georgia boy, who has been the surprise of the tournament. The title holder was one down after the first 18 holes, but by playing par golf all afternoon won on the 33rd green by four up and three to play.

From a sectional standpoint the tournament now has a decidedly Western flavor with Chicago's open and amateur champions still in. Chick Evans having put his old rival, John Anderson, of New York, out of the going to-day, 9 and 8.

Offers $18,000 For Welsh-Dundee Bout

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 9.—An offer of an $18,000 purse for a twenty-round fight here January 1st for the world's lightweight championship between Freddie Welsh of England, title holder, and Johnny Dundee, of New York, was telegraphed to-day by a local fight promoter to Welsh in New York, and Dundee in Kansas City.

WEDDING BELLS

CRANE—GRAY.

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Paul's Presbyterian church, Peterborough, on Sept. 5th by the Rev. Robert Pogue, when Birdie M. A., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gray, Wolsley street, became the bride of Mr. Geo. A. Crane of the Wholesale Drug Co., Toronto. The bride wore a navy blue tailored suit with hat to match and carried a bouquet of carnations. The young couple were unattended. The presents were numerous and costly, including two cheques from the bride's brothers, Sergt. George Gray, England, and Gunner Frazer Gray, France.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Crane left for a short trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo. On their return they will reside at 18 Millbrooke Crescent, Toronto.

BACON—HASTINGS.

In St. Peter's Anglican Church at Cobourg, on September 7th, at high noon, the marriage was quietly solemnized of Miss Winnifred May Hastings, daughter of Pte. Thos. Hastings, of the 1st Canadian Expeditionary Force, and of Mrs. Hastings, James street, Cobourg, to Mr. Walter Bacon, of Toronto. Rev. F. J. Sawers, M.A., rector, officiated. The bride wore grey silk crepe de chene with grey satin hat trimmed with purple. She was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Bacon, Toronto, and Mr. Walter Dowd, Toronto, was best man. Luncheon was served to the bridal party at The Durham after which the young couple left for Peterborough and Galt. They will take up residence at Fern avenue, Toronto.

Neglected Children In Belmont Township

Mr. C. A. G. Spence Has Returned From a Visit to That Locality —Families Intermarry

Mr. C. A. G. Spence, Agent for the Children's Aid Society, and Mr. Wm. Henry, superintendent of the Children's Shelter, have returned from a trip to Belmont Township in the interests of the society.

Mr. Spence has little to say regarding the conditions he found in the particular locality visited. Sufficient to say had there been room at the Shelter at least one family of five children would have returned to Peterborough with Mr. Spence. In one house the conditions found were disgusting. Five children occupied a room in a log house from which strange and loathsome smells emanated. Rags covered the bed, while a casual investigation failed to reveal the true parentage of the children. Families in that neighbourhood have long intermarried until it is next to impossible to trace out the family tree of any one individual. Mr. Spence says he could spend a month in that country securing data and information in the interest of the Society. This would better enable the authorities to keep in touch with the situation and follow up individual cases.

Florence Johnstone In "Kindling"

Popular Actress Was Well Received —"The Price She Paid" For To-night

Last evening, Florence Johnstone and her company of star performers, scored another success at the Grand Opera House, in the presentation of "Kindling," dramatized from the popular novel of that name. Florence Johnstone won the hearts of those present by the able manner in which she handled a most difficult role. The piece was well played throughout. The play emphasizes the love of a mother even for her prospective offspring. Recognizing her responsibility, she realizes it is her duty to see that her child is given the right to be born in respectable surroundings so as to have a fair fighting chance for a healthy existence.

"The Price She Paid" will be presented to-night. The company will close their engagement at the Grand Monday evening, when the religious drama, "The Rosary," will be repeated by special request.

Miss Edna Brioux has returned to St. Joseph's Academy, Lindsay, to resume her studies for the ensuing year.

Mr. W. G. Yelland, of the Land Titles Office, Osgoode Hall, Toronto, is in the city taking, and enjoying, his holidays.

Miss Lottie Chiles, pupil of Mr. John Allan, has been appointed Music Teacher at Albert College, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Neilson and Mr. and Mrs. Graydon, of Toronto, are holidaying at Chemong for September.

Among the guests invited by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor and Lady Hendrie to Government House to bid farewell to their Royal Highness the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and the Princess Patricia was the newly appointed Justice for the city of Toronto and county of York, Mr. G. W. Prescott. He was accompanied by Colonel Dr. Frederick Manlow, an eminent Toronto surgeon.

Rev. Albert E. Taylor, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Taylor, of 195 Murray Street, for the past month, left Friday morning to motor home to Manlius, New York, by way of Kingston. Mr. Taylor is chaplain and member of the faculty of St. John's Military Academy, and rector of Christ Church, Manlius. Mrs. Taylor and her small daughter will remain here until the epidemic of infantile paralysis is past.

BODY RIPPED OPEN BY CIRCULAR SAW

STRATFORD, Sept. 9. — Struck with a circular saw while cutting wood on the farm of the late Frederick Meyer, con. 5, Fullarton, August Glilck, a younz man, was killed.

The saw and shaft on which it ran broke loose from the bearings, as the young man shoved a block of wood forward, and the saw struck him on the breast and abdomen, cutting deeply into the stomach, lungs and bowels.

He lived only 20 minutes.

Mr. Glilk was only 32 years of age and news of his death came as a great shock. He was born in Germany, but had been in Canada fifteen years. He is survived by a wife and three children.

WILL NOT HANDLE LIQUOR EVEN IN PRESCRIPTION

BRANTFORD, Sept. 9.—After prohibition goes into effect in Ontario in a week's time local druggists will sever all connection with the liquo rtrade. When prohibition was first mooted the idea was to have the druggists handle the liquor trade, but this was not taken to very kindly in most instances. Individually, Brantford druggists have been opposed to having such an undesirable trade fostered on to them. Collectively they have decided to refuse to handle it even in prescriptions.

A similar stand is contemplated in Peterborough.

Baby Show At The Fair

Four Classes Made With Three Prizes in Each Class—Judging at 1:30 Friday and Saturday

At last night's meeting of the Fair Board it was decided to make four classes in the baby show contest and give three prizes to winners in each class. Friday afternoon baby girls will be judged, and on Saturday afternoon baby boys. At 1.30 o'clock Friday baby girls up to one year of age; at 2 o'clock baby girls from one year up to two years old.

On Saturday, at 1.30 o'clock, baby boys up to one year, and at 2 o'clock baby boys from one year up to two years old.

First prize, $5.00.
Second prize, $3.00.
Third prize, $2.00.

In addition to these prizes paid by the Exhibition, Mr. Gillespie, of the Peterborough Pure Milk Co., will duplicate the prizes won if the winners are users of the Peterborough Pure Milk Co. milk. Mr. Gillespie's prizes will be paid in milk tickets. It is possible for a first prize winner in each class to win $5.00 in cash and $5.00 of milk tickets, provided the winner is using the milk of the Pure Milk Co.

The contest will take place under a marquee at the platform at the south of the main building.

The tent will be looked after by ladies from the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club. No entrance fee is charged, outside of a 25c entrance fee to the grounds. The judges will be announced later.

OSHAWA RINK WON THE PRIMARY EVENT

Stevenson's Quartet the Winners —Delaney, of Cobourg, Second —Peterboro' Lost Out

PORT HOPE, Sept. 9.—The bowling tournament which took place on the local greens when sixteen rinks, representing Peterborough, Bowmanville, Millbrook, Cobourg, Oshawa, and Port Hope, took part was a huge success. The grounds were tastefully decorated with flags and bunting and presented a very pleasing appearance. Competition was very keen, and the games were watched by a large crowd of interested spectators.

The first prize in the primary was won by Stevenson, of Oshawa, with Will Delaney, of Cobourg, second.

In the consolation awards Hall's rink, of Oshawa, won the four sweater coats, the first prize, and Russell, of Millbrook, was second.

A REPORTED SCHEME TO DESTROY SUBWAY KEEPS POLICE BUSY

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Having frustrated the efforts of its employees to tie-up the subway and elevated railways the interborough Rapid Transit Company to-day turned its attention to its surface lines, which have been crippled since the strike was declared Wednesday night. All the cars on the so-called "Green" lines, representing the greater part of the surface system in Manhattan and the Bronx, were withdrawn at 8 o'clock last night, after maintaining during the day a service barely 20 per cent. of normal.

When the surface cars were started out again at 6 o'clock this morning the situation was in charge of James T. Waddell, known as the "King of Strike-breakers" of Chicago. He promised to crush the strike in 48 hours.

"I have 3,500 strike-breakers here," said Waddell, "and 2,700 of these are now working. They are more than enough to control the situation."

Subway and elevated trains ran last night and this morning as usual, the travelling public having returned to its accustomed routes by subway and elevated.

Several Trains Attacked

A number of elevated trains were attacked during the early morning, but in no case was there ay approach to a mob riot. Strike sympathisers o the roofs of tenement houses bombarded the trains with bottles and bricks, and in one instance with pistol shots. None of the bullets took effect, but several passengers were cut by missiles and broken glass.

Rumors of a plot to blow up the subway caused the police to maintain a watch at every underground station, but the subway trains ran during the night and early morning without molestation.

The strike thus far, according to Mr. Waddell, has cost the traction company $300,000.

The silver output for the last year, 67,500,000 ounces, while never exceeded in quality except once in this country, falls below the record of several other years in value because of low prices last year.

Summary of To-day's Activities on the New York Stock Exchange

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The Stock Market opened strong to-day with fractional increases over yesterday's closing prices in leading issues. Marine Common, U.S Steel and other strong issues opened an active market, with increases from 1-4 to 1-2.

Within ten minutes after the market had opened four new high records had been established. Reading sold to 112 3-8, Utah, 86 7-8, Atlantic Gulf and W., 179, and International Paper, common, to 25 1-2.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—United States Steel Common broke its previous high record price for the seventh time in three weeks to-day, selling at 102½. Adding to this quotation the 2¾ percentage dividend still uncollected gave the stock a value of 104¾. The unfilled orders on the books of the company on August 1st totalled 9,680,357 tons, the monthly unfilled tonnage report showed to-day. This was an increase of 66,785 tons over the July 31st figure.

Halicz Is Now Entirely Occupied By The Russians

Important Gains Made by the Czar's Forces—Two Turkish Auxiliary Ships Sunk in Naval Battle With the Russians in the Black Sea

ENEMY IS RETIRING

PETROGRAD, Sept. 11.—Halicz is now entirely occupied by Russian troops. Two Turkish auxiliary ships sunk in a naval battle with the Russians in the Black Sea. The Russians in the Caucasus capture three villages with Turk defenders. Berlin War Office admits that the Teutonic forces in the Carpathians are retiring before the Russians. German submarines in the Black Sea have bombarded Roumanian ports.

Preparing To Evacuate Rovereto

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Sept. 11.— The Austrian War Office has ordered all civilians to leave Rovereto, twelve miles south of Trieste. Austrians gained temporary footing in the Italian trenches in Adigo Valley, but were driven out with fearful losses. An Italian aeroplane destroyed a large section of the Duino Trieste railway.

Two women like to start a fuss and then leave their husbands to fight it out.

"Meat Prices Will Not Come Down" is the cheerful news from the Department of Agriculture. Meat prices will not worry the man or woman who knows that a Shredded Wheat Biscuit will supply more real body-building nutriment than beefsteak or eggs and at much less cost. Shredded Wheat remains the same price, the same high quality, supplying all the nutriment a man needs for a half-day's work. Two shredded wheat biscuits with peaches and cream or other fruits make a complete, nourishing meal at a cost of not over five cents.

SIMPLEX SHOE POLISH PRESERVES THE LEATHER

The Bremen Lost At Sea After Eluding The Patrol

Information Received in Washington Sheds Light on the Submarine Mystery—Undersea Programme Has Been Abandoned—Arrangement Was to Start Several of the Craft For America and Name Successful One The Bremen.

SUBMARINE PROGRAMME FAILS

WASHINGTON, September 11. — The merchant submarine Bremen passed the British Channel patrol and was due to arrive in American waters ten days ago. Its failure to put in an appearance by this time practically convinced naval experts that she has been lost at sea.

This information was given to-day from an official and unquestionably authentic source. It is learned that the Bremen successfully completed the first and most hazardous stage of her trans-Atlantic journey. She was later in her schedule than the captain of the submarine Deutschland predicted while he was in the United States, and this is accounted for on the ground that she was obliged to make several attempts to elude the British patrol.

But it is now known definitely that the Bremen did get past the British patrol and that the Admiralty fully expected to hear of her arrival in the United States. Granting to her a maximum period for the journey, it is said she should have arrived in American waters ten days ago. The only explanation of her non-appearance is that she has met with some mishap and has been lost. It is not believed now that her fate ever will be certainly known.

Military information obtained from Germany shows that twelve merchant submarines have been constructed or are under course of construction. Some of these, if not all of them, it is said, were transformed from cruiser submarines of a type that was not altogether successful for military operations. How successful they will be as commercial submarines, it is thought, is problematical, as they lack certain of the advantages in the racy lines given to the Deutschland, which was developed primarily as a merchant craft.

According to one report, it was Germany's intention to start several merchant submarines for the United States and to give one of them that reached here the name Bremen, hiding the losses. But no confirmation of this report is obtainable, and the information with regard to the Bremen shows that the journey of that vessel was closely traced and that the British were ready to concede failure in the attempt to intercept her and were prepared fully to hear of her arrival in American waters.

With the loss of the Bremen, it is said, there is little likelihood that Germany will be able to carry her merchant submarine programme any further, at least until next spring. There is a serious chance of encountering bad weather in September, which probably explains the fate of the Bremen, and taken from the middle of October on until spring is well advanced there is practically no chance of submarines performing this very difficult feat. The merchant submarine programme is thought to have failed. One more ship may possibly make it; but there is no possibility of any advantage to Germany, it is said, in relieving one whit the pressure of blockade.

Artificial Leg Would Not Hold Load Italian Soldier Took On

Rome — The wooden legs that Charles Swain, of Indiana, a salesman for a Washington, D.C., artificial house, brought to Italy, created all kinds of trouble for Gigi, an Italian soldier, whose legs were shot off in the Trentino.

Swain took a sample pair of legs to the Miraflori hospital, planning to demonstrate their worth and then sell a carload of them to the Italian government. He hooked the pair on to Gigi, who pounded around for an hour before he got the knack of artificially walking and then started on a tour of the hospital.

After Swain has finished conferring with the hospital heads he looked about for Gigi. He was gone and so were the legs. Soldiers were sent out to search for him. They scoured the neighborhood, but night came on and Gigi and the expensive artificial legs were still missing.

Next morning when the hospital gates were opened a dirty bundle of rags was discovered lying in a heap on the road. It was Gigi. He had toured all the neighboring wineshops. The best pair of artificial legs in the world could not support the load Gigi brought back.

Warlike Pole Would Fight Foes of Czar

ROCHESTER, Sept. 9.—Desiring to avenge the death of four brothers, Joseph Korotkich, 36, of Vladivostock Russia, visited police headquarters and petitioned Chief Joseph M. Quigley, through Philip Federbusch, Polish interpreter, to be sent to Vancouver, B.C., where he hopes to embark for Port Arthur, and eventually join the Russian army. This interesting Pole has been a world-wanderer according to his version of his past, and he arrived in Rochester to-day from Buffalo, where he vainly tried to raise transportation to Vancouver, but was turned down by the Italian consul, so he said.

Recently Korotkich heard that four of his brothers had died defending Warsaw against the German invasion many months ago, and now he is ambitious to return to his native country and take up arms against the Teutons. Other members of the Korotkich family may have met the same fate, Korootkich said, for the German bullets flew in every direction at the time Field Marshal Von Hindenburg made his successful sally into Poland. The Russians, Korotkich said, were unprepared for the fierce attack of the enemy, and lost thousands of men trying to stem the onward rush of the Germans.

Now Korotkich wishes to join the Czar's colors to avenge the death of his quartette of brothers.

WANDERINGS UNPRODUCTIVE

As a world-wanderer Korotkich has not been a financial success for when he alighted from a train to-day he possessed only sixty kopeks. Through Interpreter Federbusch the Pole unfolded an interesting tale of war experiences in Mexico. He said two years ago he was a member of the Villa outfit in Mexico, and when Carranza made life too unhealthy for those bigands Kodotkich fled and crossed to the United States, going from here to Honolulu, and returning to the United States three months ago. Korotkich said he works at laboring jobs wherever he stops, and as he subsists principally on cabbage, bred and beer, his daily expense account can be discreetly kept within the fifty-cent limit, with a room thrown in.

Interpreter Federbusch is an Austrian, with strong personal inclinations toward the army of the dual monarchy, and he listened with unsympathetic ears to Korotkich's appeal to get back to Russia so he can "shoot the heads off Germans and Austrians."

Chief Quigley had not made up his mind what disposition to make of the Pole.

Important Enemy Position Besieged By The British Capture Is Imminent

British Have Advanced to the Outskirts of Combles—Gen. Haig's Forces Have Occupied the Whole of the Village of Ginchy—All Gains Firmly Held—Strong German Counter-Attacks Repulsed With Heavy Enemy Losses—French Troops Capture a Section of German Trenches.

CANADIAN FORCES ENGAGED

PARIS, September 11.—Combles is now besieged by British artillery and capture is expected to-day. In an attack along a front of three and one-half miles the British occupied the whole of Ginchy village and the territory between Ginchy and Leuze Wood. East of High Wood and northeast of Pozieres advances were also made.

MADE FURTHER GAINS.

LONDON, September 11.—The British made further advances on the Somme Saturday and Sunday morning. All ground gained firmly held. Strong counter attacks by the Germans in an effort to recapture the lost ground failed with heavy enemy losses. French troops captured a section of German trenches east of Fleury on the Verdun front.

GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED.

LONDON, September 11.—Two heavy German counter attacks against the Village of Ginchy, captured by Irish regiments on Saturday, were driven off, General Haig reported to-day.

OTTAWA, September 11.—Casualties indicate that the Canadian forces have been in action on the Somme front.

THE ALLIES' OBJECTIVE.

The Allied line in Picardy to-day forms a right angle with the apex thrusting at Peronne, from which the point is within short artillery distance. The capture of Peronne is one great objective of the battle of the Somme. Almost immediately there promises to be a struggle for that town surpassing in fury anything that has as yet taken place in that region. Peronne is the key to the German lines of communication from north to south along the entire front from the region of Arras to Roye and the great bend of the River Aisne near Noyon. Through Peronne passes the railway from Cambrai to Roye, which is already under French fire in the vicinity of Chaulnes. No less than six great highways enter Peronne from the north and fork out again to south, southeast and southwest. On these the flow of German supply mainly depends, and the cutting of the Peronne knot would mean a weakening of German resistance along the entire Somme front. For the east-to-west roads behind Peronne are few, and not until we cover a belt of fifteen miles in width do we reach the next system of north-and-south communications knotting up at St. Quentin. The objective of last September's battle in Champagne was the cutting of the German lines of communication from east to west. The objective to-day is the cutting of the lines from north to south. Only the methods pursued are different. Instead of the breakingthrough tactics which Petain in Champagne pursued, we have now the steady blasting operations of Foch and Haig.

BULGARIANS ARE DRIVEN BACK BY THE ALLIED FORCES

Six More Towns Occupied in Northern Transylvania—Large Army of Bulgars and Germans Reported Trapped in Roumania by Russian Reinforcements.

SEAPORT EVACUATED

BUCHAREST, Sept. 11.— Bulgarians were driven from Dobric in South-eastern Roumania by Russian and Roumanian troops, and in Northern Transylvania six towns were occupied. It is rumoured that a large army of Bulgars and Germans are trapped in Roumania by Russian reinforcements.

LONDON, Sept. 11.— Russian despatches say that the Russian navy has forced the Bulgarians to evacuate their seaport of Varnaon on the Black Sea. King Ferdinand of Bulgaria and staff arrived at the German headquarters for a conference with the Emperor.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The Bulgarians abandoned several trenches in East Macedonia, leaving prisoners and munitions. The Berlin War Office says that the German-Bulgar army captured the Roumanian fortress of Silistria on the Danube sixty miles southeast of Bucharest.

Huge Strike Is Planned

Eight Hundred Thousand Trade Unionists Plan a Sympathetic Strike—Will Effect New York

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—An order recommending a general strike of New York's eight hundred thousand trade unionists in sympathy with the transit strike, which to-day affected New York Bronx and Queen's Counties, went out to the union heads to-day. The union heads recommended a general strike, with which action they claimed Gompers was in complete sympathy. The union committee which will direct the proposed general strike opened headquarters to-day and will be in daily session.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Tale of a Lost Engagement Ring

By ETHEL HOLMES

"What do you mean, Clara, by associating with that thief Ralph Cummings? Do you wish to be ostracised by all your friends?"

A singular expression came over Miss Rathbone's face, an expression that cannot be described, though some idea of it may be formed by an understanding of what caused it.

"That thief, as you call him, is my fiance."

"Your fiance?"

"Yes, we will be married next month. I shall acquaint you with the story attending Ralph's being considered a thief, after which you will be able to form an opinion of my reasons for marrying a man so branded. You are my sister and have a right to know them."

"Why may not all the world know them?"

"That you will understand when you have heard the story. When the Tophams gave their house party the episode occurred which branded Ralph as a thief. You were not there; I was. One afternoon all the automobiles on the place were got out, and the whole party was taken on a ride. I wore a short astrakhan jacket with a pocket on each side. Of course we were plentifully supplied with robes. When we returned, before taking off our wraps Alfred Topham asked us into the dining room to 'warm up,' as he expressed it. We all gathered around the sideboard and were warming up when a servant stepped up to Alf and handed him a little box that had come by express during his absence on the auto ride. We all knew that Alf had been attentive to Evelyn Mansfield, and one of the men very indelicately cried out:

"Alf opened the box and took out a ring set with a ruby between two diamonds. It was passed from one to another for inspection while the men continued to warm up. We spent some fifteen or twenty minutes in the dining room, and when we were about to separate Alf sang out:

"'Who's got my ring?'

Every one looked at every one else, but no one produced the ring. For a time it was supposed that it would be forthcoming, but since it did not appear Alf's brows began to knit. We all joined in a search for it, on the floor, under the furniture. The ring was not found. The matter began to look serious. Had some one of the guests purloined it? Alf, being host, of course could not suggest such a thing, but his chum, Ned Thurston, presently said:

"I offer myself to be searched, and I daresay that all of you will volunteer for the same thing."

Everybody volunteered except Ralph. He said that he must demur to such a process. We were all supposed to be ladies and gentlemen, and it would be an insult to each and every one of us to search us.

It took the party some time to digest what he had said, but the prevailing opinion was against it. Alf settled the matter by saying that he would rather lose the ring than put an indignity on any guest of his and forbade the search. Nearly every one considered Ralph's objection a virtual admission of guilt. It was believed that he had taken the ring, not foreseeing that he would so soon be caught with it on his person, and was obliged to choose between the course he took and full exposure. He did not wait to receive the cold shoulder, but left during the afternoon.

The blow fell as hard on me as it did on him. I had received nearly all his attention while at the Tophams, and the announcement of our engagement was expected before the party broke up. I didn't know what to do or say in the matter, so I took no course whatever, declining to express an opinion. But it was not pleasant for me to remain after what had occurred, and I made an excuse to go away the next day. They were all very nice to me, urging me to stay it out.

"Soon after my arrival at home I was called to the telephone, and Ralph spoke to me.

"'Have you found Alf Topham's ring?' he asked.

"'Have I found a ring? Do you mean to accuse me of being the thief?'

"'Look in the pocket of the jacket you wore on the auto ride. I have hoped you had found it. God grant it's there!'

"I was thunderstruck. On entering the dining room after the ride my jacket being too warm for the heated room I had taken it off and laid it on a chair in a corner of the room. Telling Ralph to hold the wire, I ran to a closet in my room, thrust my hand into the pocket of my astrakhan jacket and took out the ring.

"Running back to the phone, I told Ralph what I had done. He begged me not to utter a word to any one about finding the ring till I saw him. He would come right over.

"And now, Belle, I shall tell you how the ring got into my pocket only on your promise never to reveal it without my permission."

"I give it."

"You know you warned me against Rebecca Townsend."

"I did."

"Ralph, while the others were intent on warming up, saw Beck put the ring in the pocket of my jacket. Ralph saved me from her venom by taking the blame himself."

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have furred tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, sallow complexion, others who have bilious attacks, acid stomach or constipation are assured of pronounced improvement in both health and appearance shortly.

SOMETHING FAR MORE ESSENTIAL THAN MEDALS

Hamilton Barrister Says Medalists Do Not Always Make Good.

A prominent barrister of Hamilton, speaking to a few of his friends in the court house, referred to the recent graduations with honours of the law students.

"No doubt," he said, "congratulations were showered on the gold medalist of the class, but I do not attach much importance to the fact that a man is a top-notcher in his class so far as it concerns his future.

"Do you know," he continued, "that when I was congratulated for attaining the highest honours in my class I was rather depressed, especially when I was aware that the gold medalists of the three succeeding years have been found to be holding the most insignificant positions imaginable. One, I learned, was to-day employed as a street-car conductor in Winnipeg, another was a porter in a hotel, while the third had fallen to the level of a 'white wing' in Chicago, where he had gone to make his mark in the profession. Singularly enough," concluded the narrator, "none of these men were addicted to drink or drug habits."

As he slowly proceeded down the corridor of the old court house, he turned and said to the little group of friends: "It all goes to prove, boys, that there is something far more essential in manhood than a college education."

WOMAN SO WEAK COULD NOT SLEEP

Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

North Oxford, Mass.—"I had lost three children and I was all run down and so weak I could not sleep at night. My eyesight would leave me and everything I ate upset my stomach. I was very nervous and if I would start to sweep I would have to stop and lie down before I could finish. I was looking over the paper one day and read of a woman who felt as I did and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I took it too. Now I am proud to tell you I am feeling fine and have given birth to a boy baby. He is my 'Pinkham' baby. I keep a bottle of Compound in my house always."—Mrs. Peter Mango, Box 54, North Oxford, Mass.

Sleeplessness, indigestion, weakness, and nervousness are symptoms which indicate a lowered vitality of the female organism, and the tonic, strengthening properties of the good old fashioned roots and herbs, contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, are just what is needed by every woman who is in Mrs. Mango's condition.

France to Rebuild 3,000 Ruined Towns

France has made preparations for the reconstruction of the towns and villages of the northeast, almost 3,000 in number destroyed or seriously damaged by the German invasion. The large French cities which were untouched by the war have undertaken to act as "godmothers" to the stricken towns and communities. Lyons is ready to give maternal care to Lille, when that afflicted city shall have returned to the possession of France.

The famous Arts and Crafts College in Lille, obliterated from that city by the Germans, is being reorganised in Lyons, and at the favourable hour will be restored to Lille. Paris will be the godmother for a multitude of towns.

Several cities are bidding for the honour of having Verdun as a foster child, as the great fortress city, though not captured, is badly wrecked, and Marseilles may be successful in this regard. Arras may be allotted to untouched Dijon, which has gathered in many refugees from that war-wrecked city.

Meantime an exposition is being held at which great building and contracting corporations of France have presented models of new towns and villages which they will undertake to erect in a given number of days for a fixed sum of francs and centimes. Where hasty construction is needed these quickly erected models will be selected, a variety of plans being determined upon in view of the varied conditions of the centres of population to be replaced. A certain quantity of the quick construction work probably will be needed even in towns only partly destroyed, as the refugees are anxious to return to the sites of their homes at the earliest possible moment. More permanent structures can later on be put up at leisure.

One of the touching sights described at the Paris "reconstructed city" exposition is the crowd of refugees from the invaded region who go there, many of them shed tears at the thought that these new model structures are to take the place of the quaint, irregular buildings that have been associated with their ancestors for generations.

PROBLEM OF LABOUR.

Important consideration is given to the fact that immediately after the war there will be so much building to be done that labour will be exceedingly scarce and it will be necessary for the time being to be content, in many places at least, with makeshift structures until sufficient numbers of workingmen can be found to attend to the building of solid houses. The factories and the Government works will make a severe demand on the available labour of the country. Arrangements are already being considered for importing large numbers of Italians and Spaniards to assist in the reconstruction work.

Many of these will follow the advance of the French on the Somme front, as it is the purpose of the Government to restore conditions as rapidly as possible.

Portable three-room houses are shown at the exposition which can be erected by four men in six hours, and two-room houses which can be erected in three hours by the same number of men. One contracting company offers to construct a village, composed of a communal hall, a church, a post office, a covered market, ten shelters, five 3,000-franc houses, ten 4,000-franc farms, a public dwelling house and dormitory for ten men and another for ten women, for 103,000 francs ($20,620). A similar village erected in better fashion and with superior material, will cost 195,000 francs.

Other companies undertake the installation of light and power, of water supply, of sewerage system, at moderate prices. Still other concerns will contract for the erection of hygienic establishments and of schools, and for the drainage and sanitation works needed in the war-swept country.

The whole question regaring choice of structures to be erected and means of finding the funds and the labour with which to build them is in the hands of an interministerial committee, of which, besides representatives of the State departments, prominent personages of the political, financial, and artistic world of France form part. The committee has not decided whether the reconstruction of towns and the renovation work generally are to be intrusted to private corporations, or whether the Government itself may take charge of the entire work and mobilize the building and contracting companies to operate under Government control.

The Minister of Finance has prepared a bill regarding the indemnification of the war victims of the invaded territory, and it has already met the approval of the chief committee of the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies, and is expected to become law during the present month. Especial jurisdiction will be created to decide on the damages to be awarde an proceure will be without expense. A series of commissions is established for the purpose with right of appeal finally to the Courp de Cassation, the Supreme Court of Appeals.

SYSTEM OF INDEMNIFICATION

Where evaluation has established that, on account of depreciation of property, the reconstruction of a new similar building would represent a larger sum than the old one was worth, the interested party shall have the right to receive the difference between the old property and the cost of the new property, that difference representing a loan by the State, repayable in a term of eighty-five years. The same arrangement is made for industrial, commercial, or agricultural machinery and tools.

With regard to chattels and furnishings which have not a professional or domestic use, it is established that an unmarried person may receive not more than 10,000 francs for his total loss in this regard. If the loss shall have exceeded this sum, he will be allowed 50 per cent, of the excess. If he has one person under his charge he receives an additional 5 per cent. A married person with children may receive up to 20,000 francs and 50 per cent. of any excess over that sum and 5 per cent for each of the children. If, however, the chattels or furnishings have a commercial, industrial or agricultural utility, full indemnity will be paid for them.

TO PUSH BABY CART 150 MILES

Barring hedging or an intervening tornado, Otto Wiederberger will celebrate a victory of Belgian judgment over German by starting to walk from Albany to the Battery in New York, pushing one of those old-fashioned vehicles designated as a baby carriage, says a New York dispatch.

Accompanying Mr. Wiederberger will be a mechanician, not on foot, to keep the axles of the perambulator greased and prepared with tools to repair damage if there should be a breakdown in one of the communities along the Hudson River, in which babies take their airings in motor propelled carriages only.

Mr. Wiederberger was born in Germany and believes in the omnipotence of German arms. Holding forth along this line one evening more than a year ago in a club in Brooklyn, he was asked by Harry A. Jockin, manager of the United States Barge Office at the Battery, and who was born in Brussels, just how far he could go in backing his unqualified assertion that the war would be ended and the Teutonic allies would win by the end of the second year of fighting.

Mr. Wiederberger, his emotion overcoming his caution, said he would push a baby carriage from Albany to Mr. Jockin's office at the Battery, with any load Mr. Jockin specified, if the Germans were not victorious at the close of the second year of war, and, further, if he failed, he would forfeit $250.

Well, the war has been in progress two years, and, according to advices from France, Germany is, to say the least in an embarrassing situation. Hence the 150-mile hike.

Mr. Jockin's nature is not hard. He will permit Mr. Wiederberger to carry in the baby carriage a cargo of ice and bottles of liquid that is both mildly exhilarating and highly nutritious.

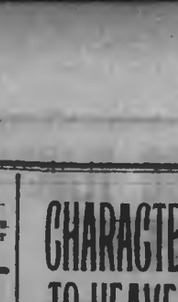
CHARACTER-LIKENESS TO HEAVENLY FATHER

Likeness to God Essential to Salvation.

God Not the Father of the Sinful World—The Father of Consecrated Believers Only—None Others Are His Sons—Adam Originally in God's Likeness, a Son—How Fallen Mankind Drifted Further From God—His Great Purpose for Their Recovery—Church First Saved—Christ and His Bride to Restore the World of Mankind—Only the Incorrigible to Be Destroyed.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its publication.]



Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 10.—Pastor Russell gave an excellent discourse to-day to the I.B.S.A. Convention which is in session here. He spoke from the text: "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in Heaven is perfect." (Matthew 5: 48.) He said in part:

Every child should be like his father; that is to say, if mankind were normal, and every child well born, such would be the natural course of things. The love between the father and the mother of a child would then tend to produce that very desirable result. The father would be so noble that he would be the mother's ideal, and the child would be in the father's likeness. Hence when our Lord speaks of His followers as being like their Father, He implies that we have been begotten of the Holy Spirit, have become children of the Highest One, our Heavenly Father, and are developing His character-likeness.

We are not to understand that the Lord Jesus was addressing everybody, in the words of our text. No; we are to make a wide distinction between Jesus' disciples and the world. We remember that Jesus said to some, "Ye are of your father the Devil; for his works ye do." (John 8:44.) And when we get the right focus on the matter, we see that, as the Apostle tells us, "The whole world lieth in the Evil One." (1 John 5: 19, R.V.) We see that Adam in the beginning was a son of God, as the Bible declares.—Luke 3:38.

God created man in His own image, as we read. The first man, Adam, was God-like—in the sense that his mind and his heart were predisposed to righteousness. Man was not made physically in God's likeness; for God is not a man. Man was made in the mental and moral likeness of his Maker. Thus it was that God placed man on trial, with the provision that he might maintain this perfect life by obedience; that then God would direct him as His child; and that Adam's children would all be God's children, because born in their father's likeness, who was created in the Heavenly Father's likeness. And thus it would continue all down through the ages. Instead of being more or less weak and fallen, all human beings would then have been glorious sons of God.

Rapid Degeneration After the Fall.

The Bible tells us that although God permitted man to go into sin and then cut him off from sonship, nevertheless He had sympathy for His creatures and did not design to let them go without making a provision for their recovery. But first He would deal with them as a race, and permit them to have a large experience with sin, sorrow, death, and all the penalties of wrong-doing, of neglecting the Heavenly Father, of losing His likeness. That large experience they have had during the past six thousand years.—Romans 1: 18-32.

Thus man's sin has brought on the whole trouble. This mental and moral perversity impressed itself upon their children yet unborn. They were generated imperfect in mind and body, with a decided bent toward sin. Then subsequent training and environment of sin had their part in accentuating the already existing conditions. So we see, as St. Paul points out, that the whole world lost God's image to a very large degree. They are not at all what we would expect if they were children of God.

But the Bible tells us that notwithstanding the world's present depravity Jehovah has a glorious Plan for their recovery. Everything that He will do for mankind is to be done indirectly, through Christ Jesus. To this end Jesus died, became the world's Redeemer. As the Bible declares, He is to be the Purchaser of all the world, paying the death penalty of Father Adam. He buys back all mankind by giving His own life for their ransom. It was to give this Ransom-price that He left His glorious prehuman station and became a man. Now He is highly exalted to the Father's right hand of power. Shortly He is to be further glorified by the Father and given control of the whole earth and all of the human race that He may carry out God's great Purpose as God framed it from the beginning. Our Lord Jesus is now the express image of the Father's person, fully desirous of carrying out all that the Father has purposed.

Ransom as Far-Reaching as the Fall.

Jehovah's Plan is broad, taking in the whole world of mankind since Adam's creation. All are provided for in the great Purchase-price furnished by the death of "the Man Christ Jesus," that all may return to God's favor if they will. This provision will in due time be brought to the attention of every human being. Very few in the present life have had their attention really drawn to this matter. Some have heard a church bell ring or have heard some hymns sung, or have perhaps read somewhat in the Bible with their minds holden. As a rule these things have very little effect upon men.

The Bible speaks of people having ears and yet not being able to hear. The whole world is deaf and blind as respects God's great Plan for a future Restitution, to be accomplished by the Heavenly Father through Jesus Christ during the Millennial Reign—the time that God has arranged for giving the world its opportunity of coming back into harmony with Him. St. Paul speaks particularly of this matter. He says: "For the earnest expectation of the creation waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God. For the creation was made subject to frailty, not willingly, but by reason of Him who hath subjected the same in hope, because the creation itself shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God. For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now."—Romans 8: 19-22. R.V.

Man was made subject to frailty away back in Adam's day, when he fell from his position as a son of God. Mankind were born frail in the moral texture of their character, frail in every way. Our Common Version reads, "subject to vanity," but the Revised Version translation, "frailty," seems clearer, though both conditions prevail. Mankind were thus subjected, not willingly; that is to say, it was not their will that they should be born weak in mind, in body, in morals, but it was "by reason of Him who hath subjected the same in hope." In other words, God permitted man's fall and its results, knowing that it would be overruled in His Purpose for the everlasting good of all who would be rightly exercised by the bitter experience with sin and death, and all their accompanying miseries. There is a large hope for man in respect to this matter.

This hope is in Christ. Mankind, now under the bondage of corruption, are to be delivered, says the Apostle. They are now slaves to sin and to Satan, the Usurper. But their shackles are to be broken, and whosoever will may then go free. They are not delivered yet. Only a few—the Church—have a measure of deliverance now; and these will, we believe, soon be fully delivered. God is saving the Church first. But the world is still in corruption, going down lower every day. But God declares that the world shall be delivered. He has provided the great thousand-year Day of Christ for the deliverance of humanity from the bondage of corruption.

Attaining the Liberty of Sons of God.

The creation is to be delivered "into the glorious liberty of sons of God." The whole human family may become sons of God, sons on the human plane. They will not be sons of God, however, until they become perfect, as was Father Adam before his fall. God will not recognize any imperfect being as His son. The purpose of the incoming Millennial Age, now at the door, is to bring whosoever will back to the original perfection as it existed in Eden, plus all the valuable experiences of the past six thousand years. Men will not be sons of God until the close of the Messianic Reign of a thousand years. During that period they will be gradually rising up, up, up, to a full resurrection. That is the meaning of the word resurrection—a full raising up from death. All who give heed to the Lord Jesus and the teachings of the glorified Church will gradually get rid of all sins, all mental, moral, and physical weaknesses, and disabilities, and will become eventually perfect.

At the close of His Reign, Christ will deliver the entire world over to the Father, all who refused to come under the terms of the New Covenant in Christ having been destroyed in the Second Death. Then mankind will be tested as Adam was tested in the beginning. Now men for the most part sin through ignorance and weakness. But then there will be no excuse; for all will be perfect, fully enlightened and able to do perfectly. Satan will be "loosed for a little season," and permitted to try again to lead mankind astray. The Scriptures inform us that all who then yield to sin and disobey God shall be destroyed by "fire from heaven." Satan will also then be destroyed finally. Then God will have a clean Universe. All sinners, human and spiritual, will have been cut off in death.

What a glorious prospect lies before the whole world! No more will mankind be bound by sin, weakness, and ignorance. They will have fully learned what the Bible says all should learn—"the exceeding sinfulness of sin." They will profit eternally by the great lessons which they will have learned in their experience with sin and its terrible effects, all of which experience our first parents lacked.

We Must Love Righteousness and Hate Iniquity.

Everything that God has decreed and directed is right and makes for the good and the happiness of His creatures; and everything contrary to the will of God is wrong and produces evil somewhere, to somebody. When the whole world shall have learned well this lesson, it will be something worth knowing. The liberty then granted to those sons of God will not be freedom from obligation to do right. No one ever will be free from God or from responsibility to God. Everybody will always be under obligation to do right. God places Himself under this obligation. "Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right?" says the Word. (Genesis 18:25.) He certainly will. In the case of our Lord Jesus, one of the severest tests which the Father placed upon Him was the test of loyalty to the principles of righteousness. "Because Thou hast loved righteousness, and hast hated iniquity, therefore God, even Thy God, hath anointed Thee with the oil of gladness above Thy fellows," was God's commendation to Him.—Psalm 45:7; Hebrews 1:9.

The Bible gives a beautiful picture of Jesus' exaltation for faithfulness. The whole world must yet come to the heart attitude of the perfect man, Christ Jesus. Those who refuse to do so will be cut off. Men must learn to love and appreciate everything that is right. They must love justice, mercy, and every other good quality of character. They must learn to hate injustice and impurity. They must root out all anger, malice, envy, strife. They must love and develop to perfection gentleness, kindness, meekness, humility, patience, self-control, love. They must have God's own character-likeness.

God's Purpose for the Church.

This same principle holds good with the Church of Christ, but operates differently; for it is a different part of God's Plan that relates to the Church. We do not need to wait until the Millennium to become sons of God. As the Apostle says, "Beloved, now are we the sons of God." (1 John 3:2.) By an arrangement peculiarly for this Gospel Age we are made sons of God in advance of the world and on a different plane—a spiritual plane. The Church is an altogether new creation. They give up their earthly life to become associates with Jesus their Lord in His Heavenly inheritance. As He sacrificed Himself for the world, so do these, through the imputation of His sacrificial merit. They share His sufferings in order to share His glory. Not only during the Millennial Reign, but throughout eternal ages, they are to share His honor and glory, as "the Bride, the Lamb's Wife," and Joint-heir.

It is to the Church of Christ that our text is addressed. These alone being sons of God at this time, these alone have God as their Father. He is not the Father of the world of sinners. The Church have been chosen from the sinner world, and have been brought nigh by the blood of Christ. They have been washed, cleansed, and covered with His robe of righteousness. They have died as human beings, and have been begotten of the Holy Spirit as spirit beings. They are to be "born of the Spirit" in the First Resurrection, if faithful unto death. They are members of Christ's mystical Body. At their begetting as New Creatures in Christ they are only embryo spirit beings. They have merely the new mind, which must grow and develop into the character-likeness of their Father in Heaven, even as their Master had this character-likeness.

They are to grow in love and in all the fruits and graces of the Holy Spirit. But they cannot grow without spiritual food and exercise, even as a human child needs food, exercise, and instruction in order to grow strong mentally and physically. The basis of our strength of character is our will; and as we seek to exercise our will in harmony with the expressed will of the Lord for us we grow up into Christ our Head in all things. We are instructed by the Master to be perfect even as our Father is perfect. We are to become thus perfect in character, in will. We are to be like Him in our minds.

It is the New Creature that is to be like God, that is to be perfect, not the flesh. The flesh will never be like God, except in the sense that we as New Creatures compel our fleshly body to serve us, to render service to the Lord as our instrument. We shall never succeed in making our body perfect; for God does not purpose to give us restitution, as He will the world a little later. Our human body is merely our servant while we wait for "our house which is from Heaven," our glorious spiritual body.

We are to have the mind of Christ. His mind was to do wholly the Father's will. Have you the mind of Christ to the degree that you are willing that the doing of God's will shall cost you something? This is a very important point. The Lord will not ask you to attain this too soon; He will lead you step by step. But He will doubtless bring you to the place where it will cost you a good deal before you become a member of the Body of Christ in glory. You must prove that your heart is right and fully loyal to God. "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God." But we are to bring our bodies as fully into conformity to the perfect Law of the Lord as we are able by His grace.

When we become copies of God's dear Son, we are fulfilling our Lord's injunction to become perfect even as our Father in Heaven is perfect. We become copies of Christ in character, God loves us when we are babes in Christ. But He does not wish us to remain babes. We are expected to grow, even as a natural babe is expected to grow and develop. If we fail to grow properly, we cannot remain pleasing to our Father in Heaven. We must come to the place where we shall love righteousness and hate iniquity, whatever its form. Otherwise we shall not be granted an entrance into the Kingdom.

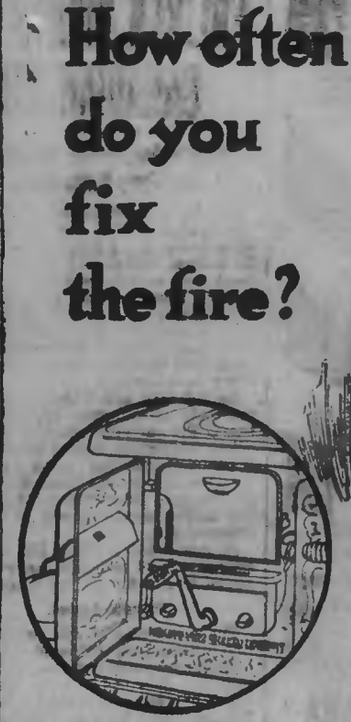
What is the reward of the faithful Church to be? It is to share in our Lord's resurrection—the First Resurrection. It is to share His glory, honor, and immortality. It is to have the Divine nature—the nature of God Himself. It is to be associated with the Lord Jesus throughout all the ages of eternity. We are now living in the time when the resurrection of the Church is in process, and now we need not sleep in death awaiting our resurrection; but the moment of our death will be the moment of our glorious "change." (1 Corinthians 15: 51-53.) The Kingdom is right at hand, just at the door; and if faithful we shall soon share the glory of our Lord.

When all the family of God have been perfected, on every plane of being, then all will have attained the likeness of the Heavenly Father; and all will be perfect as He is perfect. Man will be perfect on the earthly plane, and the faithful Church on the Divine plane.

Somehow the old fashioned mother does not want her 17 year old daughter to do the things she did as a girl.

A good soft icing is made with two cups of granulated sugar and three-quarters cup of sweet milk. Boil nine minutes; cool, beat and flavour.

How often do you fix the fire?



ITS quite a part of the day's work to look after the range. Day after day for months at a stretch there is the shaking down and making up of the fire. It is work that we have tried to lessen in making the Pandora. And this is how:

To clean the ashes out of the fire-box you simply turn the grate-handle over once and back as illustrated. Or if there are a lot of ashes, repeat the operation. That is all.

The Pandora triple grates work easily because each of the three grates is shaken separately. It will be found that they turn smoothly after years of use. And the fire-box being made of McClary semi-steel, is smooth, allowing the ashes to drop easily instead of clinging to the sides as in the case of rougher metals.

In taking out the ashes, there is no need of spilling them over the floor. The ash-pan is made large enough to hold more than one day's ashes.

The same thought is given to every feature that might save a little time and labor in the kitchen.

McClary's Pandora Range

Careful thought now before you buy your range will save much in the years to come. It will save your time, your money and your temper. If you want to study the matter over for yourself, let us place in your hands our new booklet, "The Magic of the Pandora." This book explains clearly the things you should know about your new range. There is a copy for every woman who wants to buy her range intelligently. You may secure one by sending the coupon to the factory. Why not tear it out now as a reminder.

Socialists Bitter In Cry For Peace

Circular Called "Hunger" Is Widely Circulated in Germany to Incite Wage-Earners

LONDON, Sept. 8.—A Socialist anti war leaflet entitled 'Hunger' is being circulated broadcast in Germany. It is remarkable for its bitterness and its language of frank incitement. Evidently it is being distributed widely among the troops, for copies of it that reached Holland are all from soldiers. One copy of the leaflet was brought to a Dutch newspaper by a deserter. Another was thrown over the wire entanglements along the Dutch frontier by German soldiers recently returned from leave. The leaflet, which is printed on lurid red paper, reads as follows:

"What was expected has come—hunger in Leipsic, in Berlin, in Charlottesburg, in Brunswick, Magdeburg, Koblenz and Osnabruck, as well as in many other places. Disorders, caused by the hungry masses, have occurred before shops dealing in foodstuffs, and those responsible for this state of things have no other remedy for the hungry masses than a state of siege, police swords, and military patrols.

"Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg blames England for the evils at present existing in Germany, and the advocates of the continuation of the war to the bitter end, as well as the supporters of the Government, repeat this prattle.

Nevertheless, the German Government must know that this state of things was bound to come about. War against Russia, France and England as bound to lead to the isolation of Germany. Our war-makers lament that our degenerate enemies have blockaded us, but why pursue such a course in politics as will inevitably lead to a blockade?

Assails Government Blunders.

"This criminal provocation of a world war was followed by further blunders. The Government has done nothing to prevent the present starvation of the masses. Why it has done nothing is because the Government clique of capitalists, junkers, and speculators in foodstuffs do not suffer as the masses of the people suffer. On the contrary, they grow richer through the hunger of the people.

"If from the outset of the war serious measures had been taken to prevent hunger and misery, the gravity of the situation would have been revealed to the blockaded masses, and thus enthusiasm for war would soon have cooled. Meanwhile the masses of the people were benumbed by victories and triumphs, although all the time they were being delivered into the hands of agrarian and capitalist food exploiters. The attempt was made to cause the masses to lose their cool common sense. The ruling classes do not wish to give up their plans as to the annexation of territory and the people are defrauded into the belief that if Germany can dictate the peace terms, her influence in the future will be predominant.

"We have been told lies as to German U-boats cutting off England's supplies and that England will be brought to her knees, and the war thus ended. These are fairy tales only fit for little children. Submarine warfare only makes fresh enemies for Germany, and it is impossible to cut off England's supplies even if Germany had ten times as many submarines as she at present possesses.

Charge a Deliberate Lie.

"Further, we were told that the attack on the Balkans would give Germany a chance of relieving the situation, as Turkey would be able to supply abundant foodstuffs. This was a deliberate lie, because all who are well informed know quite well that Turkey cannot supply anything, there being a lack of food both in Constantinople and on the coast of Asia Minor, in consequence of which the Turkish Government cannot even feed its own army.

"Now they would console us with the prospect of the coming harvest, saying all our misery will end immediately the corn is harvested. This is also a deliberate misstatement and simple calculation will prove it so. In the course of twenty-two months of war the produce of two harvests has been consumed, besides great quantities of cattle fodder, sugar and other foodstuffs, which had been accumulated prior to the outbreak of the war. Besides all this there was also what could be requisitioned in the occupied territory of Belgium, Northern France, Poland, Lithunia, the Baltic provinces, and Serbia, and also foodstuffs imported from Holland and the Scandinavian countries.

People Dying of Famine.

"Now there is nothing more. The occupied countries are depleted to the utmost. People already are dying of starvation in Poland and Serbia. The neutral countries are also closing their frontiers, as they are themselves beginning to suffer from lack of food. Our home harvest cannot supply very much on account of the fields having been insufficiently tilled through the deficiency of labour, fertilizer and seeds.

"The quantity of cattle available for food is small. It is now too late for the Food Dictator to provide for an equitable distribution. Foodstuffs exploiters have accomplished their work. Even if they were constrained it would avail nothing, for there is not now sufficient food to distribute to satisfy the people.

"This is the plain truth. The people have been incited to war in consequence of which supplies have been cut off. Capitalist criminals with the connivance of the Government have done the rest. What is to be expected in the future? We may carry on the war for half a year or a whole year longer, but meanwhile the people will slowly die of hunger, in which even the coming generation will be sacrificed.

"Men and women of the wage-earning class, it is with us the responsibility lies one way or the other. Either the masses of wage-earners will persevere in their stupid solidity, in consequence of which there will be a long process of misery, disease, and death, or the wage-earners will exert themselves and refuse their services to the Government and the ruling classes, forcing them to make peace.

"There is no other way out. We must act! Come forth, men and women! Let your will prevail! Down with war! Long live the international solidarity of the wage-earning classes!"

ECZEMA

Pimples form, run watery matter which turns to crust, Itching becomes painfully intense, and the disease spreads over the body. There are many variations of eczema, but all are cured by the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Relief from itching is obtained at once, and gradually and naturally the sores are healed. You can see with your own eyes just what is being accomplished from day to day by this wonderfully healing, soothing ointment, and this will encourage you to keep up the treatment until cure is complete.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

In Tropical Countries Liver Chill Very Common

In Northern latitudes also the liver is a very unruly organ and requires careful watching. The concentrated vegetable juices in Dr. Hamilton's Pills act directly upon the liver and stimulate its action to a normal basis. The blood is purified, the skin grows clear, headaches disappear and robust health is firmly established. No medicine for the stomach, liver or kidneys can compare with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c box all dealers.

"The automobiles were parked." Just what does this mean? An exchange says: "The term 'parked' is applied to waiting vehicles drawn up alongside of one another, not parallel to the curb. Vehicles drawn up one directly behind the other in a line are not 'parked,' but 'ranked' as usual on a cab stand."

King Hot Water Boiler

Get the Best! Look around and examine other Hot Water Boilers, all you like. The more of them you see, and really understand, the more you will be convinced that the King Hot Water Boiler has the best points. Take the "water-way" for example. In the King Boiler, there is about half the quantity of water and it heats twice as quick and circulates twice as fast. This heats the house in a much shorter time. The "water-way" also gets better contact with the fire by means of genuine corrugated fire pot and staggered water sections. In the King Boiler, the doors fit practically air tight, enabling accurate control of drafts. There is a double shaker, which is operated on either side by a person standing upright. The King Boiler actually does save fuel and save money. It heats a house quicker, steadier (and hotter if desired) than same number cubic feet of air can be heated by same radiator specifications with any other Boiler or radiator. "Get the Best"—means get a King. Ask your Architect or Sanitary Engineer—he knows and approves the King Boiler.

King Radiators

The King Radiators are made on a certain principle which makes them doubly capable of giving heat. Sizes and shapes to fit any space required. When you order your heating system insist on King Boilers and King Radiators.

POLICEMEN GUARD BURIAL RITES FOR PRUSSIAN AIRMEN

LONDON, Sept. 9.—A great crowd gathered to witness the funeral of sixteen of the crew of the Zeppelin which was brought down during the raid on Saturday night. In view of the strong protests which have been made against the burial of the Prussian airmen with military honours, a strong force of police was on duty to maintain order. The whole route to the cemetery in the little village of Potters Bar, where the bodies of the Germans were buried, was lined with police.

Spectators began to arrive by train, automobile and bicycle long before noon and siezed on the hill near the entrance to the cemetery as a point of vantage. Others gathered in nearby fields, for entrance to which farmers made a small charge.

During the night a common grave had been prepared for the bodies of the men and a smaller one for the body of the officer.

The funeral procession was severely simple. There was nothing resembling a military pageant and the crowd which saw it pass was silent and unmoved. At the head was a military lorry which carried a coffin containing the body of the Zeppelin commander. Another lorry bore the coffins of the bodies of the crew. Some British airmen rode in the procession.

CROWD REBUKES EGG THROWERS

A man in an automobile threw something at the British airmen. His action did not meet with the approval of the crowd, which rebuked him. As the procession was entering the cemetery a woman threw two eggs, and the crowd again protested.

The body of the Prussian officer was borne to the grave by six officers of the Royal Flying Corps. The other coffins were carried by men of the same corps. The service at the grave side was an abbreviation of the ordinary Church of England cemetery, conducted by army chaplains. The sounding of taps was the only characteristic of a military funeral by which the ceremony was marked.

The number of the wrecked Zeppelin was disclosed for the first time in the inscription on the coffin containing the body of the Zeppelin commander. The airship was the L-21.

The only coffin marked was that of the commander. It bore these words:

$2,500 REWARD TO AVIATOR

William Bow, a shipbuilder, to-day forwarded a cheque for £500 (about $2,500) to Lieutenant William Robinson, who brought down the Zeppelin. Mr. Bow had offered that sum to the first aviator to bring down a Prussian airship on British soil. Several other awards have been offered.

Commenting on the Prussian official report regarding the Zeppelin raid, the British Official Press Bureau gave out this statement:—

"It is only necessary to repeat that the damage done, viz., practically nil, was exactly what was reported in the British communiques. There was no conflagrations of any importance and no explosions."

PARALYZED LIMBS.

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Hemmenger, 19 Moore street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work and now feel better than I did for twenty years."

To scour kettles use coarse sandpaper in place of sandsoap. It gives much better satisfaction.

Never put table linen in soapsuds until the stains have been removed by pouring boiling water through it.

To remove a blood stain soak in cold water or in water with salt. When stain is nearly gone use soap and water or starch paste.

BOMBING PARTIES ENLIVEN NIGHTS ON CANADIAN FRONT

Patrols Occasionally Meet Between Lines and Sharp Fights Ensue

Canadian Headquarters in France, via London.— The artillery on both sides was active during the past week. On several occasions portions of our front were heavily bombarded by the enemy's trench mortar batteries, but our retaliation was in all cases effective. A particularly severe bombardment was directed against the sections held by a Montreal and a Winnipeg battalion.

No infantry action developed, and the reply of our guns eventually silenced the enemy's batteries. Our artillery frequently shelled selected positions and machine guns emplacements in the German line with apparent success. Numerous hostile working parties were disposed of by our shrapnel fire.

At one point a direct hit on the enemy parapet caused a heavy yellow smoke to rise for several minutes.

Patrols Active.

The enterprise of our patrols was well maintained. A French-Canadian battalion was especially active in this respect. A patrol of seven men, under Scout Moesen, crept to within a few yards of a German detached post and then bombed the garrison. Cries were heard and calls for stretcher-bearers were clearly distinguished. The enemy made no attempt at retaliation, but a searchlight swept No Man's Land in an unsuccessful endeavour to discover the party.

Another patrol of the same battalion, under Scout Tugas, encountered a German covering party of ten men protectig a large number of the enemy who were at work on their wire entanglements. The French-Canadians immediately attacked the covering party with bombs and drove it in. Our machine guns then opened fire, disposing of the working party and inflicted severe casualties.

An encounter took place between a patrol of three men of a New Brunswick battalion under Lieut. Carling, and a party of German scouts. The Germans threw a number of bombs but without effect. They then ran toward their parapet, pursued by our men. Two of the enemy are thought to have been killed and others wounded before they could reach a place of safety.

Prepare Ambuscade.

A patrol of five men from a Nova Scotia battalion, under Scout Minnick, had a similar experience. A German patrol was sighted, but returned quickly to its lines on the approach of our men. An ambuscade was prepared, and our patrols remained out for the greater part of the night, close up to the German wire, but the enemy did not again appear.

Early one morning an enemy detachment of twenty men attempted to approach one of our advanced posts near the Menin road, but Grenade Officer Lieut. Maxwell and five of the Ontario battalion, who were holding the post, were on the alert. Fire was at once opened, and bombs thrown at the Germans who, with four of their number wounded, hastily retreated.

Coloured Rockets Used.

The enemy has made an unusually frequent use of coloured rockets, evidently to establish communication between different portions of his lines.

The work on our defensive positions made great progress during the week. The Germans blew a small mine close to the trenches of a British Columbia battalion. No damage was done.

LAY WOUNDED ELEVEN DAYS

British Soldier Exemplifies Never-Say-Die Motto.

Under the title "Eleven Days in a Shell Hole," the following was issued recently by the British official press service:

"In the Seymour Military Hospital at Manchester lies a wounded soldier of the Manchester Regiment, who has accomplished a feat of endurance which the doctors declare exceeds any demonstration the war has revealed of the 'never say die' spirit of the British soldier.

"Sergeant Muddart, formerly an engineer at the great Armstrong-Whitworth Works in Manchester, was wounded by machine gun fire during the advance on the Somme. He fell with bullet wounds in his left hand, his thigh and his left leg. For cover he crawled into a shell hole over which the bullets were still whistling, and there he lay for the incredible period of eleven days and nights.

"Five days after he had been there a stretcher party went by the lip of the shel hole carrying another wounded man, and Huddart hailed them. They said they would send a party for him, but the relief never came, and Huddart says he knew why—the racket of machine gunfire told him. Shells dropped all about him; his legs and feet were buried in earth thrown up by them. He had not a scrap of food, having left his emergency ration behind him, and he lived on sips of water from his flask.

"On the eleventh day he saw an officer looking down into the shell hole, and moved his hand to show he was alive. The officer called a stretcher party, and under fire they carried away the very feeble wounded man. One of the stretcher party was killed whilep erforming the rescue.

"Huddart is recovering his strength. The doctors say it is a case of which the war has revealed many, when the man ought to have died and would have died except that his indomitable spirit refused."

AUSTRIAN SOLDIERS IN CONSTANTINOPLE

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The Times correspondent at Constantza, in a mailed dispatch dated August 6, describing conditions in Constantinople, writes:

"To-day Constantinople presents the aspect of a city in foreign occupation. Austrian soldiers are visible everywhere. Germans are also numerous, while Turkish troops hape almost disappeared. The latter, including two battalions of marine infantry, have been sent to Asia, either to fight the Russians or quell the Arab revolt, and twelve battalions of newlyformed Turkish gendarmerie also have gone eastward.

"The 120,000 men which Germany promised to send in order to reinforce the troops opposed to the Russians have not arrived, but a considerable portion of the German troops hitherto in the neighbourhood of the city have gone to Asia Minor, while supplies and munitions from Germany have been continuously forwarded in the same direction.

"Since last April the fortification of the European side of the Bosporus have been strengthened, the Christian troops, whom the Government mistrusts, being kept busy with spade and shovel. At Angora 25,000 men are similarly employed constructing defenses, and fortifications also are being raised at Eskishehir and Konah. Sixty armoured motor cars from Germany have been sent over to Haidar Pasha.

"The continued arrival of refugees from the districts occupied by the Russians depresses the public mind. The exhilaration caused by the news of Kut-el-Amara was short lived. Even exaggerated accounts of the German 'victory' in the North Sea failed to provoke enthusiasm, although the city was illuminated by order, and the Tanin announced the 'complete destruction of the British navy by our brothers, the Germans.'

"All the male population from 17 to 60 years of age have been taken for the army. Boys of 16 have been called up for training.

"A Turkish merchant, who latterly emigrated to Constantza, declares all he and the majority of his countrymen want is peace. He does not care whether Turkey wins or loses the war. The state of things is intolerable, but he does not anticipate a revolution, as the Young Turks are absolute masters of the situation."

UNITED STATES LIKELY TO ACT TO SAVE CHINA

WASHINGTON—Additional confidential information concerning the Russo-Japan treaty of alliance to-day is expected to compel this Government soon to direct the attention of the great Powers to the ne wmenace to China.

It was stated that the latest information alleges violations by Russia and Japan of the principle of the "open door" in China and that it indicates the alliance threatens the integrity of the Chinese republic.

An official dispatch from Tokio received to-day presents the Japanese Governments version of the difficulty at Chong Chiatun, Mongolia, together with the demands Japan has made upon China.

Japan asserts Chinese sources have exaggerated and misrepresented both the incident and the demands. As to the collision with Chinese soldiers at Cheng Chiatun, the Japanese Government says a Japanese resident of that city was attacked by a Chinese soldier on August 30.

POLICE ESCORT FIRED ON

A Japanese police officer sent to talk the matter over with the Chinese authorities was forced to return. He went back with an escort of twenty Japanese soldiers and, according to the Japanese version, was greeted with bullets.

The Japanese police officer was killed, a Japanese lieutenant severely wounded and fifteen Japanese soldiers killed or wounded. The Chinese soldiers, Japan charges then besieged the Japanese soldiers, but no further engagements followed.

The dispatch says the Japanese Minister at Pekin was instructed to demand the punishment of those responsible for the unprovoked attack, the reduction of the Chinese forces in southern Manchuria and in eastern Inner Mongolia, and that Japanese officers be attached to the Chinese army in the affected districts and in the military schools. Also that more Japanese police be stationed there, and that suitable apologies and indemnities be made.

DEMANDS EXTORTIONATE

Officials who would discuss the China-Japan situation to-day said Japan's demands are extortionate, involve China's administration as well as sovereignty over southern Manchuria and Inner Mongolia, and are not measured by the offense with which Japan charges Chinese soldiers at Cheng Chintun.

The Root-Takahira agreement signed in Washington, November 30, 1908 is being pointed to as China's chief hope and defense. That agreement entered into by Japan and the United States, committed both nations to the policies of status quo in the Orient, the territorial integrity of China, and the principle of equal opportunity for commerce and industry of all countries in China.

This agreement, it was asserted, is threatened, if not violated, by Japan's demands.

TURKS BURN AMMUNITION.

Were Compelled to Retreat Hurriedly in South Armenia.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 9.—Fierce battles are in progress in the region west of Ognott, in Turkish Armenia, says to-day's Russian official statement, which follows:

On the Caucasian front attempted night attacks by the Turkish on our position in the region west of Erzingan were repulsed by our fire and hand grenades.

"In the region west of Ognott, fierce battles are continuing. Hurriedly retreating, the Turkish troops burned the ammunition stores which they had established on their position.

"Persia: In the region south-west of the town of Saakize we are pressing the enemy."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S TWO-GORE SKIRT.

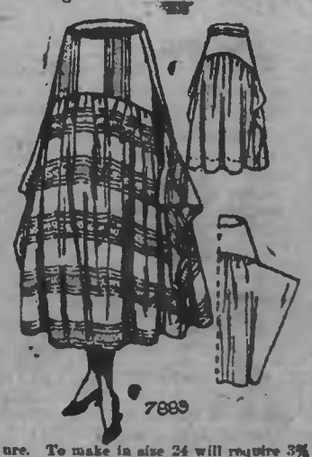
By Anabel Worthington

One of the newest styles that fashion offers in dressy skirts, and one that will carry into the fall, is this model. Lace stripe voile was used in making the garment in the picture, but there are many other attractive materials that will effectively reproduce this design, which is cut in two gores.

The "yoke skirt" is again popular, and this model has rather a deep yoke front and back in curved outline. The upper edges of the front and back gores are gathered and joined to the lower edges of the yokes. The garment has been mounted on a slightly raised waistline; a ribbon girdle in narrow width may be used if desired.

A smart development is the side draping, which is stitched to the side seams so that it has a natural "in and out" fall from where the yoke terminates to the hem.

An exceptionally smart dress will be the result of combining this skirt with a pretty blouse that may show the new frill effect—for harmony with the draping of the skirt.



The pattern of skirt No. 7,889 is cut in sizes 24, 26 and 28 inches waist measure. To make in size 24 will require 3¾ yards 40 inch material. This gives a width to the lower edge of 3 yards.

You may obtain the pattern by sending 10 cents to the office of this publication.

In ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

BRITISH TROOPS TAKE OFFENSIVE IN BALKANS

Five German Attacks Were Repulsed By Artillery Fire

BERLIN ADMITS LOSS OF TRENCHES TO BRITISH BETWEEN GINCHY AND COMBLES

Furious Battle Waging South of the Somme Says German Official Statement--French Announce a Complete Repulse of Enemy Attacks Around Bermy.

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—Loss of advanced trenches to the British between Ginchy and Combles in a furious battle was admitted by the War Office this afternoon. Fight for the possession of the Village of Ginchy continues south of the Somme. A few houses in the Village of Berny have been recaptured from the French.

The Germans also attacked near Mouquet Farm, but were driven back, otherwise there were no important operations o nthe Somme battlefront. Between Neuville, St. Vaast and the LaBassee Canal the British entered enemy trenches at several points, taking a number of prisoners.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The British troops have taken the offensive in the Balkans, it was officially announced here to-day. The British crossed the Struma River at Orljax and attacked the Bulgarians at Nivolgen and Karad Jaqueil. Heavy fighting is going on.

FIVE GERMAN ATTACKS CHECKED.

PARIS (French Official), Sept. 11.—The Germans launched five attacks against the French lines south of the Somme between Berny and a point south of Chaulnes last night, using liquid fire. The War Office announced that all these attacks were checked by artillery fire, the Germans losing heavily.

Combles Under Fire From Three Sides

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The village of Ginchy, the last remaining fortified place separating the British from the important German railway centre of Combles, yesterday fell to the troops of Sir Douglas Haig.

Combles is now under fire from three sides, by the British from the northwest and west, and by the French from the southwest. Its fall is now believed to be a matter of a few days.

Winding up a week of incessant hammering of the German lines in the initial phases of which, last Sunday, part of Ginchy and the whole of Guillemont were taken by storm, the British Saturday attacked on a front of 6,000 yards, between High Wood and Leuze Wood. As a result, they completed the capture of Ginchq and took all of the ground between the village and Leuze Wood. Furthermore, they pushed their lines forward 300 yards on a front of 500 yards east of High Wood.

Simultaneously, successfully crushing in the northern tip of the salient formed by the Somme drice, the British gained an additional 600 yards to the northeast of Pozieres. The headquarters statement issued last night tells of heavy casualties suffered by the Germans, particularly while massing for a counter-attack during the British action near Pozieres, the Teutons being caught by the British artillery fire.

The French forces on the Somme contented themselves with minor actions to-day. They captured some German trenches east of Belloy-en-Santerre, southwest of Barleux, taking 80 prisoners, and earlier in the day took a small wood east of this village, and made further progress east of Deniecourt. Including to-day's captures, the French have taken more than 8,000 prisoners since last Sunday.

FAILED TO WIN BACK AN INCH.

At every vitals point of the Somme battle line the Germans to-day launched counter-attacks of frantic bitterness. Everywhere their attempts to regain the ground lost since the resumption of the allies' big push a week ago broke down with severe losses, according to the French and British official reports. They were unable to wrest from the Entente troops an inch of the lost terrain.

Recapture of Douaumont Aim of Gen. Nivelle's Army

Special Wire to The Examiner:

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The French in a violent attack Saturday wrested from the Crown Prince a whole system of trenches east of the village of Fleury, north-west of Verdun, on the right bank of the Meuse. The night communique representing this success, says the trenches won are "in front of Douaumont." This indicates that General Nivelle is preparing for a determined effort to regain that fort, which was the first to fall into German hands in the initial phase of the Verdun drive last February. The French captured two officers and 300 men.

The Germans tried again vainly to reconquer the positions lost three days ago in the Vaux-Chapitre Wood. All attacks broke down under the French curtain of fire. Violent artillery duels rage on the whole front west of the Meuse.

The German statement admits the French penetrated German positions south of Thiaumont field work and east of Fleury, but asserts they were driven out by a counter-attack.

CANADIANS AGAIN IN ACTION THIS TIME ON SOMME FRONT

Special to Examiner.

here that the Canadians have again been in action. This time on the Somme front, to which a large number of the troops from the Dominion were moved some time ago. No detailsof the engagement are available, but the fighting appears to have taken place on Friday, when the British continued their advance, capturing a German trench and repulsing a number of counter-attacks The action does not seem to have been a heavy or serious one so far as the Canadian divisions were concerned

JULES HEDEMAN KILLED AT FRONT

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Jules Hedeman, foreign editor of the Matin, has been killed in th Battle of Verdun. He was forty-seven years old.

Regarded as the most enterprising newspaper man in France, M. Hedeman gained renown for his world "beat" in cabling to France the text of the Treaty of Portsmouth (which settled the Russo-Japanese war) twenty-four hours ahead of ever other correspondent.

He was sent into the fighting line at his own request, and promoted lieutenant and regimental standard-bearer for distinguished services.

DUTCH BAG GERMAN PLANE.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 11.—According to the Maestricht Nouvelles, a German monoplane after being hit in the wings and petrol tank by bullets by Dutch soldiers, while flying over Dutch territory, landed in the Dutch village of Kooserin. The aviator, who was uninjured, and his machine were interned.

The newspaper says the aviator probably lost his way while on a reconnoissance.

If we ever have a woman ruler she will advocate peace at bargain prices.

CAUGHT REDHANDED.

This unconventional pose of Magistrate D. W. Dumble proves that he is living a double life. In the city here he has long worn the cloak of magisterial dignity in and out of police court, until one would have supposed that he even slept in it. But here he stands exposed in a moment of play, and in his shirt sleeves with but little evident concern for the habilimentary proprieties the statutes or the criminal code and their offenders. His summer holidays at his cottage "Ballyraggit," and catches like this one landed recently enable His Worship, like the eagle, to renew his youth and to restore the vigour that characterizes his performance of professional duties.

A.O.U.W. May Be Wound Up

This is the Attitude of Many of the Members — Even Those Whose Policies Have Not Been Rendered Void Are Dissatisfied

It is the hope of many members of the A.O.U.W. that by some arrangement with the government they will be able to secure an order for winding up the affairs of the order. The members are said to be uniting with this view. Even those whose policies have not been rendered void are dissatisfied and are still paying in, but would be glad to have the government wind up the affairs so that they may know where they stand. One said: "Even though our policies are good now, how do we know we will not be treated just the same as the others whose policies are now void?' Another man stated that he had paid in as much as $108 a year and has been forced up to this amount from a modest beginning of $27. These men were told by the officials of the order that they have no kick coming as they have been protected all along. The men reply. "But at what a cost!"

FAINTING SPELLS MAY BE COMMON AFTER SEPT. 16

Poisonous Snakes Are Also Likely to Be Popular—Both Will Help Out the Thirsty Ones After Prohibition Comes Into Force

THE RULE-BOOK

Upon the closing of the bars and liquor stores on September 16th the druggists are likely to meet a big demand for liquor. The government has compiled a book of rules governing any sales a druggist may make. He must keep a special liquor book to record the sale. it's time, the name and address of purchaser, and for what illness it was prescribed. The liquor may only be supplied in quantities of six ounces or less and upon a prescription of a duly qualified physician. Beer, ale and stouts may be sold by prescription in quantities not exceeding one dozen bottles. Wines and distilled liquors cannot be sold in quantities of over a quart at a time.

Penalties for any offence against these requirements are punishable by a fine of not less than $200 nor more than $1,000, or upon default of payment of the fine, imprisonment for not less than three nor more than six years. The makistrate or judge has the power to revoke the license for a period of three years.

The druggists some time ago met and decideil to refuse to carry liquor in any form upon their premises and notified the government to that effect. Many of the druggists intend to maintain this position with regard to the sale of liquor. Some of them have never carried liquor on their premises and don't intend to do so now. A few, however, have admitted it would perhaps be advisable to carry enough in stock for the filling of legitimate prescriptions of practitioners of good repute.

Some peculiar incidents may arise, as the druggist has power to sell liquor without a prescription to a person who has fainted or met with an injury and has been brought into his place. It is likely that there will be many fainting spells, or perhaps some will keep poisonous snakes on hand so this aspect of the law may be complied with.

Druggists anticipate an increase in the sale of such things as flavoring extracts and allied products which contain alcohol, but which the law does not prohibit them from selling. Many preparations made according to the formula of the British pharmacopoela does not come under this act. Wines for sacrimental purposes may also be sold to ministers of the gospel for sacramental purposes upon presentation of a written order.

The druggist must submit his record book of sales to the board for examination in September and March of each year.

Many of the druggists here say there is so much red tape attached to the sale of the liquor that they will not be bothered with it, and think it is up to the Government to establish dispensaries for this purpose.

Canada's New War Loan Will Likely Be Oversubscribed

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—Despite the fact that the terms of the new war loan are not officially made public till to-morrow, indications here that there will be a big response, especially from small investors, no doubt is expressed in banking and brokerage circles here that there will be a great demand for these bonds, and that it will soon be oversubscribed. Many enquiries have already been received from all classes of the investing public.

Cattle Poisoner Sought By Police

OTTAWA. Sept. 11. – Inspector Henry Reburn of the Provincial Police is investigating a curious case of cattle-poisoning in Lanark County County. Six head of cattle belonging to Clarence Kilough, six or eight miles from Almonte, died mysteriously and upon investigation it has been found that someone got into the pasture with a large quantity of Paris green, which he spread over the grass. The cattle ate the poisoned grass and died.

PETERBORO' MAN STRUCK BY AUTO IN BUFFALO N.Y.

Was Riding Motorcycle on Outskirts of City at Late Hour Sunday Night —Auto Didn't Stop

HIP FRACTURED

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BUFFALO, Sept. 11. — Edward Jewett, aged 31, of Peterborough, Ont., while riding a motor cycle with a woman on the rear seat, was struck by an automobile late Sunday evening on the Williamsville road, just outside the main street city line. Jewett sustained a fractured hip. He was rushed to the Erie County Hospital, Buffalo, suffering great pain. His companion escaped with slight injuries.

The automobile that struck the motor cycle dashed away after the collision. The driver's name or the number of his machine could not be learned.

Edward Jewett resided in Peterborough until four or five years ago, as far as can be learned, and was employed for a time at the C.G.E. works. He played with the old Crescent Rugby Club, and was generally well-known among the younger men of the city.

Victim May Not Recover

Man Who Was Shot by Galway Township Woman is in a Serious Condition—Accused May Be Tried in Peterborough

LINDSAY, Sept. 11.—A report from the Ross Hospital states that no hopes are held out for the recovery of Fred Spencely who was shot in the knee by Mrs. George Davis at Kinmount on last Wednesday.

Saturday County Police Magistrate County Crown Attorney Stinson, and County Crown Atorney Stinson, and Mr. I. E. Weldon, counsel for Mrs. George Davis, visited the hospital, and took an ante-mortem statement from Spencely.

The man's condition was decidedly unfavourable when he reached the Ross Hospital on Thursday morning, due, it is said, to the loss of blood, and also the fact that the wound did not receive the necessary treatment after the shooting occurred.

Spencely alleged that on the day in question he received a letter from Mrs. Davis which stated that she wanted him to keep off her premises. He went to the Davis home on the night in question for an explanation. The woman ordered him off the place and before getting away from the premises the woman shot him in the knee.

May Be Tried Here.

This morning, County Police Magistrate Langley said that there was a question as to whether the actual shooting had taken place inside the County of Peterborough. If so, the woman would be brought here for trial... Both parties reside on the boundary between Victoria and Peterborough counties.

Mr. R. L. Dobbin Is In Quebec

Mr Ross Dobbin, superintendent of the Waterworks Department, went to Quebec to watch the linking up of the centre span in the ill-fated Quebec bridge.

DIE IN EACH OTHERS' ARMS.

Two Welshmen, Brothers, Slain at the British Front.

LONDON, Sept. 11.— The death of two brothers in each others' arms at the front is related in private dispatches. They were Corporal Tom and Private Henry Hardwidge, of Ferndale, Rhondda Valley, both members of a Welsh reriment

An officer writes: "The eldest, Tom, was hit by a sniper's bullet and lay in the open under a scorching sun when Henry, at the risk of his life, hastened to him with a pail of drinking water. Just as he reached him and as he was offering the water a sniper shot him. He clasped his brother as the latter rose to take the water and they died in each others' arms."

A third brother remains in action in France.

SECOND COLLAPSE OF QUEBEC BRIDGE

Five Thousand Ton Central Span of the Quebec Bridge Collapsed This Morning—Whole Structure Disappeared Into the Channel of the River—Loss of Life May Be Heavy—Will Be a Total Loss.

MANY NOTABLES PRESENT

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

QUEBEC, Sept. 11.—The following statement was issued at two-thirty by the St. Lawrence Bridge Co.: "The connection holding the suspended span on the south side failed, letting the span drop and dragging away the north side connection. The cause is unknown."

QUEBEC CITY, Sept. 11. — The great five thousand ton central span of the Quebec National Transcontinental Railway bridge, which was being raised into position one hundred and fifty feet above the river this morning in the presence of many notables, collapsed when it was about fifteen feet in the air and fell into the river. Ninety workmen were engaged in the operation, and it is feared the loss of life will be heavy. The great structure had been safely towed out of Sillery Cove and lifted to pontoons amidst great excitement and whistling of hundreds of river craft. The pontoons had been removed and it was being jacked up in the greatest feat in bridge building in history. Suddenly there was a ripping noise at the north end and the whole span dropped into the stream at one end. Frantic efforts were made to get a chain rope around the tottering beam, but to no avail. The remaining supports then gave way and the whole span disappeared with a mighty splash into the channel of the river.

Boats endeavoured to rescue workmen swimming about in the river.

THE FIRST COLLAPSE.

It was on August 29th, 1907, that the superstructure of this bridge collapsed with the loss of sixty lives and one million five hundred thousand dollars.

The monetary loss in to-day's collapse will be much more. Engineers say it will not be practicable to raise it from the river bed, although portions may have to be blown up to clear the channel for navigation.

It was after following this calamity that the Canadian government called on the most eminent engineers that could be secured to rebuild and complete the structure. The contractors were the St. Lawrence Bridge Co., and their contracts for completing the work was let in April, 1911.

The bridge was built for the purpose of shortening the railway journey across the continent by about two hundred miles. It was to be used by eight railways, the C.P.R., Grand Trunk, Delaware & Hudson, Intercolonial, Quebec Central, Quebec & St. John, Quebec & Saguenay and the Canadian Northern; also for street railway and vehicular traffic.

The principle dimensions of the bridge are: Length from shore to shore, 3,800 feet. The bridge has a channel span of 90 feet longer than had previously held the world's record the Forth bridge, Scotland, which in that respect. The weight of steel in the bridge was 180,000,000 pounds, and the cost $11,000,000.

TEN DOLLARS AN HOUR.

Some days ago the men demanded ten dollars an hour and a bonus of two hundred dolalrs each because the work was so dangerous. It was the most hazardous enterprise that had been conceived in Canada, they declared. The Construction Company selected their best men for the job. It is no small affair to put an enormous mass of iron weighing seven thousand tons in its place. The company consented to doubling the pay of the men

Here are a few comparisons between the Forth bridge, which is the next greatest structure of its kind, and the Quebec bridge:—

Pension For A Peterborough Widow

A pension has been declared in the case of Mrs. Annie Perry, of 459 Chamberlen Street, City, whose husband, Thomas Perry, was killed on service during June last. The pension is for $32.00 per month for herself, so long as she does not re-marry, and $6.00 per month for each of four children. A gratuity of $112.00, or equal to two months of the whole persion amount is included with the first pension payment.

Peterboro' Enjoys Seven Cent Milk

The Average Price in Twenty-five Cities in Ontario is 7.9 Cents a Quart--A Comparison of Prices

The increase in the price of milk sold at retail in various cities has given rise to some comparisons, a table of which appears in a recent issue of the Labour Gazette.

The average retail price in some sixteen cities in Canada is 8.5 cents per quart. The average price in 25 cities in Ontario is 7.9 cents. The price in Chatham has been for some time 8 cents per quart. Only six cities in Ontario show higher than 8 cents per quart. They are Toronto at 9 to 10; Windsor, Cobalt, Port Arthur and Fort William at 10 cents, and Sault Ste. Marie at 9 cents. Eight cities show a price of 8 cents. They are Ottawa, Kingston, Orillia, Niagara Falls, St. Catharines, Hamilton, Galt and Chatham. A price of 7 cents obtains in Brockville, Peterborough, Belleville, Guelph, Kitchener, Woodstock, Stratford, London, St. Thomas and Owen Sound. Only one city, Brantford, shows 6 cent milk.

The movement in some cities to raise the price of milk has been where the 7 cent price has obtained and not where the 8 cent or higher has been the rule except in Windsor, where the attempt met with immediate action on the part of Government officials, acting on the request of Mayor Jackson.

These facts are of more than ordinary local interest because of the local situation.

In Nova Scotia the average price of milk is 8 cents, in New Brunswick 8.1, in Quebec 7.8, in Manitoba 9.25, in Saskatchewan 10, in Alberta 9.6 and in British Columbia 10.5.

PRINCESS FIGHTS IN RUSSIAN RANKS

PETROGRAD, Sept. 11.—Princess Volonsky, twenty-two years of age, whose husband, father and brother were killed early in the war, cut her hair, adopted men's clothing, enlisted as a private and fought on the southern front for several months. Her sex being discovered, she was sent to Kieff to be discharged, but she eluded her guards and returned to the fighting line. Now she has just been discovered wounded in a Kharkoff hospital.

POOR ARGUMENT.

"You're another" is the strongest argument of the weakest intellects. Many Conservative organs justify charges on facts of wrong-doing of the government they support, by asserting that their political opponents when they are in office, are guilty of the same kind of things. It is claimed that the issue in the British Columbia elections is the patronage system. The Toronto News, unable to deny what the Conservative, Sir Hibbert Tupper, asserts, retorts that that was the issue in Manitoba, and when the Liberal government came into power it retained and applied the patronage system. Statesmanship and high ideals of government and administration will never be factors in our national life while great national evils are perpetrated by the folly of the tu quoque argument. The patronage system is one of the most wide-working and most corrupting influences of our political conditions. It is a tremendous wrong, no matter what party gives it effect, and it is too much to hope from human nature that one party will abandon it so long as another practises it.

We are waging a tremendous war for high ideals, but are not consistent. It is not too much, perhaps, to claim that all through Canada's participation in this war, the trail of the patronage system, like the "trail of the serpent" over "the flowrets of Eden," has been over all our war works, from the officering and equipment of our soldiers, to the provision of munitions. If we are ever to be aroused to a sense of higher duty; ever to be shaken out of the rut of prostituting public service to party advantage, one would think that the lesson of this war, its cardinal object, its great ideals, would be effective. We are fighting German methods, but what will it profit us if we beat Germany and retain her spirit—the subordination of truth and justice and right to her military advantage? The patronage system is German in spirit, in that it overrides the rights of the minority and believils the interest of the country as a whole, for party profit. "You're another" is mighty poor justification—it is not even a decent excuse—for a hoary wrong.

VISIT THE EXHIBITION.

We must not forget the date of the Industrial Exhibition—Sept. 14-15-16. It may not be as great as the National Exhibition at Toronto, but it has one superior merit—it is our own, and local patriotic fidelity to our own interests, and regard for our good name, demand that we do our part to make it a success.

If it is a success we all get the credit for it; if it is a failure, it will be the fault of the public, not of the Directors. The latter, in the face of considerable discouragement, have persisted in staging an exhibition this year, and as its financial success depends upon public patronage, as it will be worth it—its essential exhibition features being of superior order. The people, those of the country, in their own interests as well as the town's people in their intrest are under strong moral and business compulsion, to visit and help the exhibition. The townspeople—the business men and merchants especially—owe something. Last January the people, in the exercise of their judgment and rights, vetoed the proposal to purchase the exhibition grounds. While this may have been the proper thing to do, its effects were discouraging upon the Directors and the people as citizens are under obligations to their fellow citizens, whose work has been made harder, and the necessity of public cooperation greater, by public action at the polls.

In the matter of patronizing and sustaining the exhibition, a question of public spirit, as well as substantial advantage, is involved. A successful exhibition, and one worthy of Peterborough's industrial and commercial importance, will be to the credit of our enterprise and of our loyalty to our own interests. The directors and exhibitors will not get the credit in the popular mind, but the credit will go to the city as a whole, and the city will reap the chief material advantage represented by the addition to our ready money from the presence of a large number of visitors for two or three days.

It's good business; it's good local patriotism to liberally support the Industrial Exhibition. We should not let an indifferent spirit interfere with our duty. Some may justify their absence by asserting that "it is the same onl ything." It is not the same old thing; there will be many new exhibits and attractions, and there will be a new opportunity for you to do your duty by the exhibition and what it represents, and your duty as a citizens loyal in all ways to the city and every phase of its interests.

INJURIOUS ENTHUSIASM.

There is a good deal of prejudice in the matter of language and a good deal of misdirected patriotic enthusiasm over the tabooing of this language and the teaching of that. A Toronto school trustees proposes by formal resolution to forbid the teaching of German in our schools and substitute Russian. Of course, a form of patriotism is behind the proposal. We are at war with Germany now; but our war is not against the German people and the German language, but against the German militarism, which is at the bottom of the war, and without whose destruction, we cannot look for anything like permanent peace. We may, if we buckle down to the task, and use our strength of men and money, destroy the military machinery and put an end to the absolutism that has created and seeks to perpetrate it. But it is a far different thing, more difficult, if, not an impossibility, to destroy a nation, a people, to obliterate their language and destroy the spirit and fact of their nationality. No matter how severely we drub the military caste, the German people and their cosmic relations will survive.

If we don't make a thorough job of destroying militarism, its future activities will be conducted by the media of the German language, and we should know it, so that we are to know what is going on. Germany will not be eliminated as a nation. Though for the moment, and for many years, our commercial relations with Germany may be few and strained, we shall ultimately do business with her. It is as impossible to destroy the language spoken by about 70 millions, as it is to destroy their nationality. We are not fighting to destroy but to recast, the Teutonic nations; to change their viewpoint and make them fit for associaiton with the family of nations.

This war has brought us new and closer associations, with nations speaking different languages, and to maintain the friendly entente, there must be larger social and commercial intercourse. A mutual knowledge of English and these other languages is evidently necessary to the permanency and value of the entente. The French and Italians are our allies, will be our friends after the war, and, apart from the literary value of knowing these languages, the commercial advantage will be great.

In a father narrow spirit we seek to give effect to our prejudice against the French language, in Canada—a prejudice created by excesses of sentiment and utterance on both sides. The propaganda in the interests of the French language in Canada is largely produced if not justified by a long course of political and partizan assaults upon the language and ideals of our French compatriots. Bitterness on either side will not promote harmony. If we could bring about that, and the English speaking portion of our population would value French highly enough to learn it and the French speaking learn English more extensively, there would be better feeling and better relations, that would promote homogeneiety of citizenship and closer and more profitable business intercourse.

We are looking forward to readjustment of our domestic and foreign trade relations. In this language will play a large part. Germany has been helpsl to create and apply odious militarism and the schemes founded upon it by popular, or at least large, ability to speak or write other languages than her own. If knowledge of foreign languages can be made to serve an evil purpose they can be made an important agency in promoting such beneficial objects as international trade and international good will and harmony, in which the only mutual antagonism will consist in the mutual rivalry in doing good in the world.

A TRIBUTE TO BRITAIN'S STRENGTH AND HELP.

Were Great Britain's share in the war confined to the blockade of Germany, it would deserve the highest honour, but the British are not people to be satisfied with giving the minimum of help. The Germans nursed the illusion that Great Britain would be her friend. Their disappointment only heightened their hatred and thirst for revenge. Great Britain has become the pivot of the coalition against Germany, and as she has always done, she is bringing all her might to bear. What our friends are proudest of is their military effort, and with perfect justice, for it is the consummation of the British creative faculty. Great Britain can well say that nobody but she could have achieved a result. But the victory of which she has a right to be proud is still more the victory over herself by the adoption of conscription. Nothing shows more clearly than this the clear-sighted intelligence and unshakable determination which are the driving power of Great Britain in the Allies' march to victory.—Le Journal, Paris, France.

The Way New Zealand Finances Her Large War Obligations

The report of Trade Commissioner W. A. Beddoe to the Department of Trade and Commerce, under date of July 10th, contains an interesting summary of the financial statement submitted by the National Ministry of New Zealand to the House of Representatives. Additional taxation to provide only war expenditure is proposed, and the minister stated that later in the season provision far further increases may be necessary. The new proposals may be summarized as follows:

Reduce public works expenditure.

Repeal mortgage tax, and substitute an income tax on sums invested on mortgage by owners.

Abolish duplication of income tax by exempting in New Zealand income earned elsewhere withiu the British Empire which has already been taxed there.

Provide for annual bonus out of profits of public trust office to beneficiaries of estates.

Provide for war bonus during war to employees of all branches of the public service whose pay does not exceed $1,875 per annum.

Provide $10,000,000 for internal expenditure.

Provide $25,000,000 for purchase of land for soldiers.

Adjust conditions by legislation to meet the changes war has brought about in regard to banking.

Provide for acquirement of 45 per cent. of profits realized by war conditions.

Provide a proportion of moneys required in aid of war finances by issuing war bonds in New Zealand.

Provide a tax of 5 per cent. on all incomes, exclusive of those obtained from war profits, in addition to taxation provided last year.

To regulate the transfer of moneys from the Dominion except for legitimate trade purposes.

To regulate the rate of interest chargeable on deposits.

Provide for financial assistance to friendly societies.

Provide for borrowing an additional $60,000,000 for war purposes. (This has since been increased to $80,000,000.)

The most important items relating to the financial operations of the past year were as follows:—

A loan for $10,000,000 for public works successfully floated in New Zealand. This was doubly subscribed.)

The establishment of a reserve of $15,625,000 in London.

Redemptions and renewals of loans falling due in London up to March 31, 1916, amounting to $30,000,000.

Conversion of loans falling due n ew Zealand maturing up to December 1st, 1916, to the amount of $1,515,000.

Conversion of loans falling due in New Zealand maturing up to March 31st, 1914, amounting to $9,455,000 into a new currency for 25 years.

Treasury bills in New Zealand paid off $5,000,000. None have been issued.

Net surplus of year's revenue, $10,000,000.

War loans received up to the beginning of May from Imperial Government $42,800,00.—Journal of Commerce.

WAS THERE A BREMEN TO CAPTURE?

An interest which waned with queer speed into something close to forgetfulness, so far as the general American public is concerned, has been revived by the arrival here of travellers from England who declare that the recently much-discussed submarine named the Bremen was captured and taken. They remain, therefore, in the weeks ago. The tales differ as to what port it was, and give no details as to how or where the boat was taken. The remain, therefore, in the category of important if true, and not a few people still are more inclined to ask, "Was there a Bremen at all?" than to wonder where she is.

"For such incredulity there is not much ground. The arrival of a second more or less merchant submarine from Germany was prophesied with convincing sincerity in the same quarters where that of the Deutschland was confidently foretold, and elaborate and expensive preparations for her reception and that of her cargo were certainly made. The only imaginable motive for deception—that of making useless occupation for a few Allies' cruisers—does not adequately account for these demonstrations of expectation.

So there is little question that there was a Bremen, and hardly more that she has been either destroyed or captured. Whether one fate or the other has been hers, the British naval authorities would follow their established policy of suppressing the news of her end. Why they do this is not very clear. It does leave the Germans in a state of painful uncertainty, and of course that is something, from the British point of view, but it also deprive the British themselves of a justifiable joy, and that makes the account about even.

And whatever has or has not happened to the Bremen, the probabilities are that a Bremen will get here sooner or later. The first German submarine to arrive is sure to bear that name.—New York Times.

De Wet Broke Up Latest Revolt

CAPE TOWN, via London, Sept. 11.—Details of an attempt to foment another rebellion against the British in South Africa were disclosed at the trial at Bloemfontein of two Nationalists, Van Der Merwe and Schonken on a charge of high treason. The men are alleged to have approached a number of prominent Boers, including General De Wet, to whom they told that large stores of rifles were available, and that certain Boer generals were willing to lead a revolt.

General De Wet, who informed the Government of the movement, testified that he warned the men against attempting another uprieing. The hearing was adjourned.

General De Wet, commander-in-chief of the Orange Free State, forces in the Boer War, headed a rebellion against the British early in the present war. He was captured, convicted of high treason, and sentenced to six years' imprisonment and a fine of $10,000, but was released from prison on Dec. 21, 1915.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Jimmy Gardner Attacked and Robbed Of "Little Men of Iron," Diamond Ring

MONTREAL, September 11. — Jimmy Gardner, former famous hockey player, and manager of the Canadien team two seasons back, was assaulted almost on the steps of his Westmount home a few nights ago, and robbed. A sum of money was taken from his clothes as he lay unconscious, but Gardner was much more affected by the loss of a diamond ring which was wrenched off his finger. The ring was a valued souvenir of the days of the "Little Men of Iron." Each member of the famous hockey team which won the Stanley Cup from Kenora Thistles was presented with a ring, and naturally it was highly prized by all the old-time players. Gardner would give a liveral reward for the apprehension of the thieves.

The former athlete believes he was struck with a sand-bag, but remembers nothing after receiving a terrible blow on the side of the head. His face is badly swollen as a result.

TOURNAMENT WILL OPEN TO-NIGHT

MITT GAME KILLED BY WELSH-WHITE SCRAP

Colorado Springs, Colorado, September 11.—It was considered doubtful to-day whether any more championship fights will be allowed in Colorado. Disgusted, it is said, by the Welsh-White fight, and the riotous scenes that attended it, the state officials are prepared to deal the game a final blow in this state. There is general dissatisfaction over the bout, not only by the state officials, but also by the members of the Hundred Million Dollar Club, which staged the show, and prominent sportsmen generally.

Total figures on the gate were compiled to-day, showing that $30,718 was taken in. Of this Welsh received $15,359, and White $4,000 Welsh also has 51 per cent. of the moving picture rights.

MAURICE McLAUGHLIN WILL KEEP ON TRYING FOR TITLE

ALTHOUGH TWICE DEFEATED, HAS NO INTENTION OF RETIRING.

NEW YORK, September 11.—Although twice defeated in his attempts to win back the tennis championship which he lost in 1914, Maurice E. McLoughlin, of Los Angeles, has no intention of giving up the game, and hopes to play in the next national tournament.

"I am quoted every year," said the California comet, as saying that I have played my last set of tournament tennis, while as a matter of fact I have made no such statement. I shall always take a deep interest in the game, and while my business duties necessarily occupy most of my time and attention I think that I will find time enough to play a bit, even if it is not for the championship.

"Any man who has been an athlete and then enters a business careers with its confinement indoors, knows that it is impossible to keep his physical condition perfect. This has been my trouble, but if I get the opportunity I will return to the east and tournament play. Even if I knew I could not so hope to win the title back, I would play just for the love of the sport."

Recruiting Campaign Will Be Inaugurated At An Early Date

Lieut.-Col. Johnston Has Received a Number of Applications—Members of Local Battalion Leave For Kingston to Take the Course

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Things are progressing in connection with the work of recruiting the 247th Battalion. Lieut.-Col. D. W. Johnston has received several enquiries regarding the new unit. Preparations are being made for a recruiting campaign to be inaugurated at an early date.

Mr. William Hill, 621 Union street received a telegram to-day announcing that his son, Gunner Henry B. Hill of the 33rd Battery had been admitted to No. 8 Stationary Hospital at Wimereux on Monday, September 4th, with a gun shot wound in the buttock. Gunner Hill enlisted, September 1st, 1915.

Mr. Harry Latimer, who was among the first to join the 247th Battalion, left this morning for Kingston, where he will take one of the special courses.

Lance-Corp. Ernest Dummitt, a Peterborough member of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, is officially wounded. He was admitted to hospital on September 6.

E. Gus Porter, M.P., of Belleville, is interested in having North Hastings placed back in the recruiting area of Hastings county, instead of being used for Peterborough.

RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION CORPS

There is now being formed in Canada a unit for overseas service known as the 239th Overseas Railway Construction Corps with headquarters at Valcartier:

Purpose for Which Corps is Formed.

To construct, repair, and operate railways—including bridges—required to assist the troops at the front in France.

On account of the heavy traffic at the front in France, roads are cut to pieces, and are under continual repair; after heavy rain these roads become regular quagmires.

In consequence, transport of supplies, guns and ammunition, and the taking of the wounded to the base hospitals, become seriously delayed, and at times blockaded, and naturally hamfers any attack or advance, and, in fact, causes great discomfort to your fellow-men in the trenches. Much suffering is caused to wounded men by being bumped in ambulances on rough roads.

To overcome this difficulty, light railway lines are now being constructed to take the place of roads, also special broad gauge lines are being built, on which the big guns and their ammunition are being moved when an advance takes place. Railway lines and bridges that have been damaged in any way have to be repaired.

An urgent call has come from the War Office in England to form a Railway Construction Corps in Canada, and send it overseas as soon as possible to do the above work at the front. As soon as the Corps is at full strength it will proceed overseas.

Formation of Corps.

The Officer Commanding is Col. J. W. Stewart, of the railway contracting firm of Foley, Welch & Stewart. He was specially selected by the War Office for this work on account of his extensive experience in railway construction work, having in recent years constructed about 5,000 miles of railway in the West, as well as the Rogers Pass doubletrack tunnels constructed in world record time and recently opened by H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught.

As soon as the War Office called for this Corps, Col. Stewart immediately proceeded to England and the French front to learn first hand exactly what as the nature of the work the Corps would be required to do, and to arrange upon the necessary form of organization. This information was received in Canada a few days ago.

The only Railway Corps that has left Canada is the 500 men under Col. Ramsey, in 1915, and they have been doing excellent and valuable work at the front.

Men seeing service in this Corps can appreciate the fact that they are not only "doing their bit," but at the same time are working under a Commanding Officer who thoroughly knows the work required of the Corps, and also they will gain experience which will stand them in good stead and more readily enable them to find jobs in civil life after the war.

All the officers are Engineers or Railway Construction men, and especially selected for the work they will be called upon to do. The senior officers are all men of considerable railway construction experience.

There will be 175 non-commissioned officers, who will be selected from the men who join in accordance with their capability of taking charge of the work they may be appointed to do at the front. The full number of N.C.O's. will not be appointed until the Corps is recruited to full strength. Although over 500 men have at this date already joined without any advertising or recruiting, there are still about 150 vacancies for N.C.O.'s.

Special permission has been obtained from Ottawa for Americans to be enlisted in this Corps if suitable for the work, also the eyesight test has been reduced and not so strict as infantry on the principle that a man in civil life who would in all respects be suitable for railroad construction as regards eyesight should also be satisfactory for similar work at the front.

The total strength of the Corps will be 1,018 N.C.O.'s and men, and 31 officers.

The class of men required are Engineers, bridgemen, stone, iron and wood pile drivers, plate-layers, fitters carpenters, 8 completes train crews, teamsters, labourers and workmen generally.

There will be no rifles to carry.

Each company will be in itself a complete unit, capable of constructing any railway or bridges, and also after wards, if necessary, operate the line.

In addition, there will be about 150 horses, waggons, lorries, motor cars and machinery and tools.

Rates of Pay.

Field Allow'ce. Sep'tion Allow'ce.
Warrant Offiers	$2.00	.30	$80.00
Sergt's	$1.35 to $1.85	.15 to .20	$25.00
Corporals	$1.10	.10	$20.00
Privates	$1.00	.10	$20.00

Also, when absent from headquarters on duty, 60c to 75c a day.

Subsistance allowance in addition to above.

The Patriotic Fund also makes a monthly grant to all wives and children of enlisted men.

This Corps has recruiting depots at Vancouver, Calgary, Regina, Winnipeg, London, Montreal, Toronto, Lanark and Halifax, where any further information can be obtained, or from any Government Recruiting Depot in Canada.

U. S. WARNS THE BAKERS ABOUT BREAD PRICES

Views With Alarm Threat to Increase Price of the Loaf—No Economic Justification For the Increase

WASHINGTON, Sept 11.—The Administration is seriously concerned over the bread situation, and views with alarm the threat of bakers to increase the price of the loaf.

Government investigations already are in progress and it is believed here that criminal prosecutions will result if the price of bread actually is increased and two facts can be established. These are: that there is no economic justification for the increase, and that the bakers have acted in association.

An official said to-day there must be an investigation and the facts of it detailed to the public so the public by the weight of its expressed opinion may frown down any attempt to increase unjustly the price of bread. The Federal Trade Commission, through Chairman Edward N. Hurly, has been making an investigation of the economic phases of the question. He is now in Chicago authorised by the Commission to pursue the inquiry as far as he deems necessary.

CHINAMEN'S DEATH OF HIS OWN DOING

Simcoe Jury Says Dark Liquid Was Cause

SIMCOE, Sept. 11.—It was established to the satisfaction of Coroner Richardson's jury that Chu Lu Duck, the Chinaman found dead in one of the rooms of the Battersby Hotel Thursday of last week, committed suicide. The jury learned from a local Chinaman that Duck had been ill and 'had much trouble." An empty bottle found on a roof outside the window of the bedroom which the dead man had occupied, and the presence of brown stains on the bed clothes, wall, floor, and window sill were taken to explain the tragedy.

The jury found that he died "by his own action in taking a quantity of dark-coloured liquid obtained elsewhere and brought into the premises by himself."

Nothing was found in the dead man's stomach, according to the autopsy report of Dr. Bowlby. All the organs were in healthy condition except the heart, which was found to be dilated.

Compatriot Tells Story.

Sam Yuan, local laundryman, knew more of the victim than any other witness. Duck had been running a laundry at Port Dover, which he had purchased from Yuan in January for $490, and on which there was still a balance due of $75. Yuan had been in the habit of going down to help Duck with his work occasionally and to make sure of getting the money that was coming to him.

Yuan told of seeing the bottle in question at Duck's place in Port Dover on Monday, August 28. It was then full of China wine and had a label on it.

Duck was last seen alive in Simcoe Tuesday evening, August 29. He was found dead on the following Thursday. The bottle was found on the roof the next day and the label had been removed.

Yuan read a letter which he had received from Duck Monday, Aug. 28, telling where money could be found—$7 in his sleeve, $6 in a cap and about $40 in a hiding place on the premises at Port Dover. The letter said the writer "had much trouble."

The Last Meeting.

Yuan went to Port Dover Monday afternoon, August 28, on the 3 o'clock car to help his friend. He got the money in the cap and the $40 from Duck then.

Duck came to Simcoe on the 5 o'clock car. Yuan did not see him alive again. Yuan came back on the 7 o'clock car and on the next day went back to Port Dover and stayed until Friday.

The body was in an advanced state of decomposition when found and the jury concluded that the victim "came to his death between Tuesday evening, August 29, and the Thursday following, and doubtless on or near the former date.

FINGERPRINTS TELL TALE.

Circus Employe Caught in Galt Wanted in Toronto.

Galt, Sept. 11.—Because Chief of Police Gorman uses the finger-print system for identification of criminals William Venders, former circus employe convicted here the other day of theft, has been identified as William H. Endress, who escaped from custody after being sentenced to 90 days in jail at Toronto on Aug. 9th for theft. The fact that Venders was really Endress was established after finger-prints had been sent to A. P. Sherwood, Chief Commissioner of Police, Ottawa.

FOE ALLIANCE BEATEN; WAR ENDS THIS WINTER?

Well Known British Authority Gives Reasons Why the War Will End This Winter

LONDON, Sept 11.—Gen. Sir O'Moore Creagh, formerly Commander-in-chief in India, writing in The Weekly Dispatch on "Why the war will end this winter," says:

"Recent events on all theatres of war have been uniformly successful for the allies. The Austro-German armies have everywhere received severe blows, while their allies are in a precarious state. The Central Alliance has been defeated, not crushed. The only acceptable finish can be their complete crushing, so as to prevent further mischief.

"It is therefore necessary to make the German nation realize the hopeless situation before complete surrender will be brought about. Already the morale of the nation is affected. The Germans no longer talk of annexing their neighbors' property. Their General Staff bulletins are filled with bigger lies than ever. The stimulants are required to keep up the people's spirits.

"Hindenburg has no previous record to warrant the belief that he will retrieve Germany from the situation, which would be too much even for a Napoleon. His appointment is a clear sign of a despairing nation. Recent events point to the war being near its conclusion.

"I am of the opinion that the war will not last over winter. Napoleon said: 'In war moral power is to the physical power as three to one'. We have the advantage of both moral and physical power."

CHATHAM DRUGGISTS DECLINE LIQUOR TRADE

CHATHAM, Sept. 11.—With one or two exceptions local druggists have definitely decided not to handle liquor under the new prohibition law which comes into force in a week's time. The druggists expressed the opinion that the regulations are too stringent and also that the Government should appoint an official to look after the sale of liquor for medicinal purposes in the larger places.

'LUNGE WEIGHED TWENTY-ONE POUNDS

Big Fish Was Taken From the River by Percy Dunsford and Frank Montgomery

A maskinonge, weighing twenty-one pounds and measuring forty-one inches in length was taken from the river by Messrs. Percy Dunsford and Frank Montgomery. The fish which is one of the largest reported for some time was caught opposite Island Park between the two bridges. Some difficulty was experienced in landing the lunge which put up a hard fight

DEPARTING GOVERNOR LEAVES IN A FORTNIGHT

Their Royal Highnesses Will Likely Cross Incoming Governor-General.

OTTAWA, Sept. 11.—It is understood that Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and the Princess Patricia, with their suite at Government House, will leave Canada about a fortnight hense for England. The new Governor-General, the Duke of Devonshire, will, it is expected, follow the usual precedent and cross the outgoing Governor-General on the Atlantic.

A State reception for the incoming Governor-General will be arranged for his arrival at either Quebec or Halifax.

BRITISH LOST 250,000 IN THREE MONTHS

LONDON, Sept. 11.—From June 1 this year to date the British army and navy have lost more than 250,000 men. For June the casualties numbered approximately 30,000. During August 36,150 officers and men were reported killed or missing and 96,838 more wounded.

Although these lists are official, it is impossible to draw deductions from them, as they include all fronts, and cover no special period of fighting.

ALLIED TROOPS INVADE SERBIA

LONDON, Sept. 11.—A Russian-Roumanian army has begun an invasion of Serbia. Sweeping southwards from Ohsova, taking the identical course the Teutons took in their whirlwind campaign through the little kingdom, the new invaders have penetrated as far as Negotin, seven miles inside the Serbian border, occupying the town, according to an Athens despatch to The Daily News.

Thus the first blow in the long-heralded allied campaign for the isolation of the Central Empires from Bulgaria and Turkey by cutting the Berlin Constantinople-Bagdad railway has been struck. Indeed the Athens despatch adds that the Russo Roumanian troops are advancing toward the Orient Railway. To reach it they have to cover sixty more miles.

Through this new Serbian invasion the Teutonic and Bulgarian armies in Macedonia are placed between two formidable threats: a Franco-British-Serbian thrust from Saloniki and an attack from the Russo-Roumanian forces. An added menace lies in the possible thwarting of the Bulgar-Teuton campaign in Roumania, which would result in a simultaneous Russian drive for Constantinople and also a Russo-Roumanian invasion of Serbia from the east.

BIG FEATURE FOR THE PETERBORO' INDUSTRIAL FAIR

Thrilling Outdoor Aerial Attraction Has Been Secured—A Remarkable Feat

"HERO OF NIAGARA"

The management of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition have secured the services of James E. Hardy, "The High Wire Expert," who has recently been fulfilling a most important engagement at Luna Park, Coney Island, N.Y., where the celebrated aerial artist created the greatest enthusiasm.

In presenting the Hardy feature attraction, the management offer to their patrons the most interesting outdoor sensaional attraction now before the public. We have had wire walkers at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition and also rope walkers, but we have never had any wire act before that can excel that given by Hardy. And the management of the Industrial Exhibition are to be congratulated upon having secured an attraction which by reason of its exceptionally clever, sensational and novel character will elicit the admiration of all sorts and conditions of people who go to the Industrial Exhibition and witness Hardy's marvellous stunts in mid-air.

When one looks at the remarkable feats he performs it is hard to believe that Hardy performed the very same feats over and over again above the terrible waters of the great Niagara Whirlpool Rapids. And yet such is the case. Hardy's exploits at Niagara, where admittedly the most wonderful ever seen there, and it is worthy of note that he duplicated everything which the late Mons. Blondin had previously done there, but Hardy created a greater sensation by introducing a great many more feats, which had never been attempted at so hazardous a place, and earned for himself in the columns of the principal New York papers, the title "Hero of Niagara." Since that time Hardy has toured Europe and other parts of the world. His act is a good one, and is sure to attract the attention of thousands during his engagement at Peterborough.

CANADA MAY BE FACED BY 8-HOUR DAY DEMAND

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 11.—Conductors and trainmen on passenger trians in Canada are now planning action for effecting a new schedule which will increase their wages and decrease their hours of employment, according to information gathered from local railway men. About fifty representatives of the Order of Railway Conductors and Order of Railway Trainmen have already been engaged in a two-days' session here, and it was learned to-night that possibly the conference will be extended until this week-end.

S. H. Berry of Toronto, vice-president of the Order of Railway Conductors, is presiding over the conferences and among those in attendance are: W. Fugue, Paris, Ont.; R. H. Morton, Ottawa; C. J. Quartier, Vanouver; W. N. Armstrong, North Bay; A. McGovern, Toronto; C. T. McCowan, Moose Jaw; B. J. Quilty, St. John; M. Riley, London; W. C. Potts, Toronto; J. N. Garrett, Hovelock; A. McLeod, Calgary; W. F. Finn, Lethbridge; J. E. McCracken, St. John; L. R. Leversque, Medicine Hat, and A. Frannette, Que.

GEN. JOFFRE WEEPS ON SOLDIERS' GRAVES

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Visiting the scene of the battle of the Marne, the iron-nerved General Joffre for the first time gave way to his grief over the sacrifice of lives in this war. The Commander-in-Chief, wandering slowly over the scene of his memorable victory, came upon the graves of members of Manoury's army, which was rushed to the scene in taxicabs from Paris and saved the capital. Lifting his kepi, General Joffre murmured, "My poor lads," and wept silently.

Suspended Sentence For Ticket Forger

Detroiter, Who Tried to Cash Altered Racing Ticket, Gets Off Lightly.

WINDSOR, Sept. 11.—William Lepson, the Detroit man arrested during the recent race meeting at the Windsor jockey club's track, charged with attempting to obtain $1,250 by means of a "phoney" race ticket on which he had cleverly changed the number, was released on suspended sentence by Police Magistrate Leggart.

Lepson had previously pleaded guilty, and, ignorant of Canadian justice, believed he was in grave danger of a long prison term for trying to get money from "The Iron Men." After being told by the court that he was free, Lepson enthusiastically attempted to kiss his worship, but was persuaded to forego the osculation.

Second Collapse of Quebec Bridge

The prescribed test load for the Quebec is 4 1-3 times heavier than that of the Forth Bridge.

The total length of the Quebec Bridge is 3,239 feet and the cost when completed will be about $14,000,000.

THE DEATH LIST.

MONTREAL, Sept. 11.—An estimate at noon by the officials of the St. Lawrence Bridge Co. places the death list in the Quebec Bridge disaster at twenty-five.

QUEBEC, Sept. 11.—For the second time, grim disaster has cast its shadow of death over this gigantic, Transcontinental Railway bridge structure, and at an hour when the great and daring engineering project seemed destined to complete success.

At 1 p.m. the number of dead was estimated all the way from three to twenty-one. The span itself, which is a complete wreck, cost more than a million dollars. Should the catastrophe mean the abandonment of the great project it would mean from first to last, including the old bridge and the new, a loss to Canada of from twenty-five to forty million dolars.

Whether the span dropped through some defect in the steel strips up which it was creeping two feet at a time with the aid of hydraulic lifts, or whether the structure itself buckled is a question on which eye witnesses differ. Hon. J. D. Hazen says the structure, which was 640 feet long seemed to buckle in the centre, turn to one side and fall into the river with a thunderous roar. Col. McBain, on the other hand, says that the span settled silghtly on the corner, then turned and wrecked itself as it fell. The first intimation of disaster fell not long after the steamers bearing the press and parliamentary party, including Sir Wilfrid Laurier and many distinguished ministers, ex-ministers, members of parliament and the Australian delegates had left the scene, convinced that the operation was a success. Just at sunrise the fleet of passenger steamers, barges, tugs, naval patrols and private yachts, numbering about a hundred, commenced to fill the river on the way to the scene, a somewhat heavy mist hung over the river, but this vanished before the warmth of the September sunshine, and weather conditions for the engineering feat were almost ideal. The signal flags fluttering from the vessels gave colour, life and cheerfulness to the picture. Crowds on the decks gazed eagerly ahead, where powerful tugs were puffing as they pulled the scows on which rested the gigantic span. Farther ahead the clearing mist revealed the mammoth arms of what was to be longest span cantilever bridge in the world. Everything worked like clock work. At 7 o'clock, with high tide water and no current, the span was fitted into place. One story of the disaster says the accident was caused by the collapse of one of the dydraulically operated jacks at one corner of the span, through some error, it is stated, on the part of the workmen. One corner of the span was raised too high and the jack gave way. The stress thus caused the span to break in the centre, one of the steel girders giving way.

THROWN INTO THE RIVER.

When the big span was brought by scows directly below its place, the hydraulic lifts started to work hoisting two feet at a time, each lift being braced by great pins which were fitted through the bands of steel and gradually the weight of the span was taken on the bridge and the scows rose higher and higher; finally the span was clear above the scows, at 8.15. The pontoons drifted into the under-current and were guided by tugs down the river, looking up at the great arms of the bridge one could see many people gazing down at the span or the animated scene on the river below. These people were in a position of desperate danger as developments proved. One man, as it was thrown from the shore arm on the Levis side, and hurled down, disappearing in the river. He was probably drowned. On the centre span, itself, which had only about twenty feet to fall, there were about thirty men. L. S. Odell of Montreal, an eye witness, says the span buckled in the centre and then collapsed. Hon. J. D. Hazen, also an eye-witness, said that everything was working smoothly, and he had just congratulated Engineer Gray on the great success of the undertaking when some one shouted "there goes the bridge!" As he looked the span seemed to buckle in the entre, roll over with a terrible grinding roar, and sink. The scene that followed was one of pathetic confusion. The first man saved was a foreman, who was groaning with a broken leg.

It is hoped that owing to the great depth of water, 150 feet, navigation on the St. Lawrence will not be blocked. The bridge now looks just as it did before the centre span was floated in. There is a gaping vacant spot in the centre. The steel work of the lost span has disappeared entirely in two hundred feet of water.

THE CASUALTIES.

Quebec, Sept. 11.—At 2 p.m. there are nine known dead and seven saved. Engineer Herbert McMillan is the only staff man injured. He is in the hospital with a broken leg. Those killed are mostly French Canadians.

It is semiofficially announced that the work of building the new span will be commenced at once.

REPAIRING WAR'S DAMAGE BIG JOB

If any one imagines that there has been exaggeration in the estimates of the probable extent of post-war rebuilding operations, says the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, he should consider the havoc in Northern France. Poland, Belgium, Serbia and East Prussia also have suffered much devastation. But to show the magnitude of the destruction caused by the war it is sufficient to consider only what is taking place in Northern France.

The destruction of Verdun is philosophically accepted by the French as an unavoidable evil. But it is not so easy for them to view calmly the wrecking of historic and beloved towns and villages by the advancing British and French troops. The Germans report that the Allies' heavy artillery is laying waste the country on the Somme front to a depth of twelve miles behind the German lines. A large number of French villages have been wiped out. Systematically and relentlessly the Allies' guns have destroyed every German supply basin and concentration camp.

Say Blackmailers Murdered Lawyer

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Satisfied that Dwight P. Dilworth, well-to-do lawyer, of Montclair, N.J., was killed in "Lovers' Lane," in Van Cortlandt Park Sunday night by blackmailers, the police announced that their efforts will now be centred entirely upon endeavouring to find some trace of the two masked men who shot him to death.

Miss Mary McNiff, who was with Dilworth when the two men suddenly appeared from the brush and ordered him to throw up his hands, was permitted to go to Long Beach Tuesday. Miss McNiff has been eliminated in so far as learning through her who was responsible for the murder is concerned.

The plan to have her re-enact the incidents connected with the killing of her companion on the spot where Dilworth was shot, was abandoned. Miss McNiff told the police she would return to New York to lend as much aid as she could at any time, but the police have little hope of her meagre description of the highwaymen aiding them to any great extent.

MOTHER OF SIX CHILDREN ATTEMPTS TO TAKE HER LIFE

MONTREAL, Sept. 11.—Attempting suicide by swallowing carbolic acid, Mrs. Bessie Codack, 1549 Ontario Street East, was taken to the General Hospital in a serious condition, Judge Lanctot being requested to take her ante-mortem statement. Upon the arrival of the judge the woman had so far recovered that she was able to tell the physicians and detectives that she had taken carbolic acid because of trouble at her home. The woman, who is mother of six children, and a widow 40 years of age, became violent at detective headquarters, where she had to be strapped to prevent her doing harm. She said she wanted to die, and asked the detectives to go away and not interfere with her plans. Judge Lanctot took her deposition at headquarters, and she was remanded for medical examination until the 15th.

NEW DRESS GOODS NEW DRESS GOODS

Dame Fashion Presents New Fall Dress Goods Through Her Agents--- The CRESSMAN Co.

¶ The piece goods this season are indeed admirable, but lend your imagination to their beauty, see them garnished with bands of fur, quaint buttons, enticing braids, and fashioned into the smart modish lines of the season's vogue, and what a pleasing picture you will have, one that eclipses all the previous appearance of Dame Fashion.

¶ Our Dress Goods stock is complete and resplendent with materials that conform with the season's styles. The prices are extremely small when you consider the scarcity of wool materials and the soaring prices that prevail at present. We ask you to accept this invitation to inspect our stock.

Also Found The Blonde Eskimo

Saskatoon Missionary Among Strange Tribe

Saskatoon, Sask., September 11. — The Blonde Eskimos discovered by the murdered explorer Radford, on Coronation Gulf, far in the Arctic Circle, were reached by a Saskatoon man, Rev. H. Girling, of Emmanuel College, on October 10, 1915.

Mr. Girling is the first white man to live among these people, who since their discovery, have constituted an ethnological mystery, and have formed the goal of several ill fated expeditions.

In a letter received by Dr. Carpenter, the principal of Emmanuel College, the missionary tells of his travels. The missive was dated last December from "Camp Necessity," ten miles journey from the new Esquimaux. It is post marked "Nome, Alaska." On October 10, in company with a native, Mr. Girling reached the first tribe (Nulahogmufmints) ten miles east of Cockburn Point.

Speaking of the education of the new Esquimaux, Mr. Girling says that in the direction of both grammar and dictionary, a great deal has been accomplished, the new esquimaux having but a dialect difference from the MacKenzie River Esquimaux.

NAMES OF THE CITY OFFICIALS

Keeping a list of the names of all officials of cities over 5,000 inhabitants in the United States and Canada, the Wagen Brothers Company enclose to the city clerk a post card upon which the names of the officials of this city are to be filled in, together with information as to the number of aldermen in the city council and the date of the next municipal elections here. In return for this favor they are prepared at any time to furnish this city with the names of officials in any particular city or cities. If the charter of this city is in printed form they also request a copy of it for their Municipal Library.

Stops Eloping Daughter of 78

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Sept. 11.—Hoary age triumphed over young love in a pitched battle in the city clerk's office here, when Caleb Smith, aged 96, Civil War veteran under Grant, appeared with a shotgun and halted the elopment of his daughter, Miss Cynthia, aged 78 and Roman Williams, 82.

Two charges of salt from the shotgun found lodgment in the flank of Williams' position, as the war correspondents say, and then Caleb swung his right from the floor. A hot skirmish ensued, Smith having all the better of it and forcing the aged Lothario to hoist the white bag. Then he took his blushing and weeping daughter and drove home.

The elopement was a regular old-fashioned affair. Cynthia climbing out of a window into Roman's arms. They drove to the clerk's office in an old shay. Caleb, discovering Cynthia's disappearance, and smelling a rat, pursued them on an old mule.

The lovers say they will win out yet.

FRIAR ROCK IS TO BE RETIRED

NEW YORK, Sept 11.—Followers of the turf were surprised and somewhat disappointed by an announcement that Friar Rock, the famous 3-year-old, is not to be raced again. John E. Madden, who bought the Rock Sand colt from August Belmont for $50,000, declared that he will send the horse to the Hamburg Place breeding farm in Kentucky. It has been expected that Friar Rock would be entered in the Realization stakes at Belmont Park.

I.O.F. Is Not An Assessment Organization

Policies and Literature Not Labeled "With "Assessment System" Now —Had Many Visitors at Toronto Exhibition

One of the most popular resorts on the grounds, and a place much sought after, was the tent of the Independent Order of Foresters. Thousands of visitors availed themselves of the opportunity to visit this tent, seeking rest, and many times seeking information regarding the benefits of the order, and each and every visitor was loud in his praises to Mr. Ed. Fellman and Mr. Harvey Lloyd, the two able deputies who were in charge of the work, and who were ready at all times to show kindness and hospitality to all. They say that this has been the most successful year they have had since the order planted their tent on the Exhibition grounds. Some fifty applications for membership have been secured. This is a record that is worthy of praise, and the thanks is due these two brothers who so ably laid before their visitors, the many advantages that are to be obtained by becoming members of such a grand organization as the Independent Order of Foresters.

Enthusiastic Remarks.

In interviewing Mr. Fellman and Mr. Lloyd, it was most gratifying to hear their enthusiastic remarks regarding the stability of their institution. Loud were their praises for the members who some three years ago were opposed to the readjustment of rates, but who have now returned to headquarters and are thankful for such a man as Elliott G. Stevenson, their Supreme Chief Ranger, the leader who so courageously faced the unpopular problem—yet a most necessary step—in order to save the institution and allow them to continue in the grand fraternal work they are doing. They are most proud to tell you that no longer have they to label their policies and literature with "Assessment System," as their order is now working on a reserve basis, approved by the Dominion Insurance Department. They have a surplus of over two million dollars over and above this government reserve, and a reserve of $224.80 per $1,000 insurance, against reserves of 209.30 per $1,000 held by all Canadian life insurance companies, under Dominion charter. With such a splendid financial standing, no wonder they were successful in writing up fifty applications, and an organization like this should appeal to every right-thinking man and woman. The time has arrived when every organization should get themselves placed on an actuarially sound basis, in order to avoid disappointments for the membership when they reach an age when they are unable to seek insurance elsewhere.

Prospects Are Good.

It was most interesting to hear them speak in regard to the great work they are looking forward to doing during the next ten years. They predict that their membership by that time will be five hundred thousand, and with such an army, they can more energetically go into the work they are doing among the orphans—at the present time they are caring for over nine hundred — and the great work they are doing in treating their members who are afflicted with tuberculosis, as at the present time they are treating some two hundred patients in their two great sanatoriums, one located in California and one in the Adirondak mountains.

To any who did not have the privilege of visiting the tent, and therefore did not receive literature, write direct to the headquarters, I. O. F. Temple Building, Toronto. They will be glad to forward literature and information at any time.

FUNERAL OF LATE MICHAEL SWEENY

The funeral of the late Mr. Michael Sweeney took place from the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Tobias Fredenburgh, 224 Sherbrooke Street, on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, and proceeded to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery. Rev. Father Phalen officiated at the Cathedral and Rev. Father McHugh at the graveside.

FIRE ALARM BOX POLES WILL BE PAINTED RED

An Innovation That Might be Adopted in Peterboro'

BRANTFORD, Sept. 11. — There will be no chance for anyone in Brantford to miss a fire alarm box in case of a fire after the men of the Fire Department get through painting the poles to which the fire alarm boxes are attached. The work of painting the poles will begin to-morrow.

Chief Guerin's idea of painting the poles to which the boxes are attached is a new one and it is believed that as far as Canada is concerned the Kitchener Fire Department will be a leader in this new scheme. The poles are to be painted red for a distance of six feet from the ground. This will make the fire alarm boxes as discernable in the day time as they are at night, when the red light over each box guides the sender of an alarm in case of a night fire.

The red poles will be conspicuous and in case of the discovery of a fire one will need but to look for a red post to determine the situation of the nearest fire alarm box. The idea of painting the poles red is a brand new one, and the successful working out of the scheme in Brantford will doubtless lead others to copy.

BONNER-WORTH OUTING SATURDAY A SUCCESS

The Bonner-Worth Company's employees ran an excursion to Bewdley on Saturday afternoon returning at ten o'clock. It was well attended, and everyone reported an enjoyable outing. The Business Girls' League had charge of the booth.

Harbour-master Runuet has been utilizing the cinders from the boats to pack and harden the wharf roadway, and is gradually building up a durable surface. The larger clingers are sorted out and dumped on the south bank, and the small cinders are filling up the wharf roadway.

The Stoney Lake leaves for the upper lakes in the morning to handle several excursions from Bobcaygeon and other points. The excursion season locally is practically over. There may be a trip or two announced if fine weather continues.

Reports from Gore's Landing indicate that the Rice Lake house and other summer boarding houses there have had a good season.

Florence Johnstone At "The Grand"

Company Will Present the "Rosary" This Evening Saturday's Performance

A capacity house witnessed the presentation of "The Price She Paid" which was given in the Grand Opera House on Saturday evening by Florence Johnstone and her company of star performers. The play, which tells a big story, deals with a vain and extravagant woman who, despite the entreaties of her husband, drags him down to bankruptcy. Through her own indiscretion she places herself in a compromising position and subsequently leaves him. Some months later she is found living in a Harlem flat, performing the duties of governess to a number of children, whom she learns to love. A reconciliation is effected and she returns to a home less lavishly furnished than her former one, but her heart is in the right place, and she resolves to reciprocate her husband's affections. The play was well handled and the work of the participants is excellent. To-night the company will present by special request, "The Rosary."

A woman never appreciates her husband more than when he comes to her and announces that his salary has been raised.

BRITAIN TO PRESENT BIG BILL TO MEXICO

London, Eng., September 11.—That Great Britain's bill against Mexico for the murder of her nationals and the destruction of her property and trade will be a formidable one, is certain, as is also the fact that it will be presented for payment through the United States. All big Mexican interests here show a significant hesitation in discussing the matter, holding that the negotiations are at present in a most critical stage. For instance a representative of a great Anglo-Mexican concern, S. Pearson & Sons, said that the time was not opportune to discuss the matter. "Whatever claims we may have," said this man, will not be presented by us personally to the Mexican authorities but by the British government, and probably by the latter through the government of the United States. At the present stage we can say no more."

Inquiries at the Foreign Office led to the reply that nothing definite could be stated about the subject at this time.

HE FEARED WAR WITH AMERICA

Imperial Chancellor Explains Why Torpedoing Programme Was Abandoned.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—According to definite information, reaching Berne from Germany, says a despatch to the Wireless Press, Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, upon being questioned at the August meeting of the Federal Council as to why he yielded to the demands of the United States regarding the unrestricted torpedoing of ships on the high seas, replied emphatically that the value of the submarine was exaggerated by the adherents of wholesale torpedoing.

The Chancellor said insistence on an unrestricted submarine warfare would cause war between Prussia and the United States, and that the results of unlimited torpedoing would not justify such a policy.

Elaborating this point, the Chancellor is quoted as saying that Germany could not effectively blockade England nor cut off England's food supplies.

ASKS CASH HE SPENT ON GIRL

Disappointed Suitor Goes to the Police With His Troubles.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Ralph E. Bruger, 35 East Chicago Avenue, called at the Chicago Avenue Police Station for legal advice. The young man wanted to learn the proper steps to take in order to recover $76.27 which he said he spent on a young woman.

Bruger related a story of a shattered romance and presented a list of his expenditures to Acting Desk Sergeant Chester Phillips.

"She's cute and pretty," he said, "with dark hair and big brown eyes. I met her June 1, in a restaurant where she was a waitress. I proposed marriage. She said: 'Yes, next week.' On Saturday I insisted that we get a license. The office was closed. Then she asked me for $5. I told her I would not give it to her. She said: 'You're a cheap piker.'"

Bruger's list of expenditures was as follows:

One dress, $31.50.
One pair of shoes, $3.25.
One waist, $2.90.
Room rent, $1.50.
Laundry, $2.55.
Money to bail one of her friends out of jail, $25.

Bruger was sent to the legal aid society for advice.

Old Advertising Business Changes Ownership

The announcement is made that Messrs. Smith, Denne & Moore, Ltd., have taken over the advertising business in Toronto formerly conducted by the J. Walter Thompson Co., Ltd. There will be no change in the management, only a change of name and ownership. The staff, policies and ideals of service will not be changed, and in this the new company has started out well, as the service of the J. W. Thompson Co. to its clients and its business relations with the sellers of advertising have been characteristic of wise management.

The New Waists at $1.00 Are Creating Many Surprises

One woman the other day said she did not see how it was possible for any firm to sell such waists for $1.00. She said she had counted the cost of the material, lace used for trimming, buttons and other little incidentals and it figured up to more than $1.00, aside from the making.

That tells the story about the really wonderful waists we are selling at $1.00, in brand new styles.

Drags Himself Free of Cylinder Teeth at Threshing Bee

Leslie D. Whitmer Narrowly Escapes Awful Death Near Preston.

PRESTON, Sept. 11.—A threshing fatality was narrowly averted, when Leslie D. Whitmer saved his life after falling into the cylinder compartment of the machine.

The threshing outfit, which is owned by a neighbouring syndicate, was being operated on the Stevens farm, adjoining the town.

Whitmer was engaged in oiling, and in passing over the cylinder he tripped and fell into the machine. With great presence of mind he seized hold of the feed-board, and drew himself free of the fast revolving cylinder, but not until his right foot had been badly lacerated. The left foot was uninjured, but he shoe was torn from the foot.

Medical aid was summoned, and the wounds dressed, which required many stitches to close.

FRENCH LOAN ANNOUNCED.

Ribot Says War Total for 1916 is $2,000,000,000 Francs.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Alexandre F. Ribot, the French Minister of Finance, announced that the Appropriations Committee of the Chamber of Deputies would introduce a law authorizing a new national loan.

M. Ribot, explaining to the Appropriations Committee of the Chamber the requirements for the last quarter of 1916, amounting to 8,347,000,000 francs, said the totals for the different periods of the war were: Five months of 1914, 7,000,000,000 francs; 1915, 22,000,000,000 francs; 1916, 32,000,000,000 francs. The Finance Minister said there was considerable difference between the sums appropriated and payments made because of delays in the deliverance of orders.

The Finance Minister informed the committee confidentially regarding the payments which France must make abroad and the arrangements made with the British Treasury and the Bank of England to maintain sterling exchange.

Expect An Arrest In Park Mystery

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Sensational disclosures and a possible arrest were promised by District Attorney Francis Martin and the police of the Bronx Detective Bureau as the result of unexpected developments in their investigation of the slaying Sunday night of Dwight R. Dilworth, a lawyer of Montclair, N. J., in Van Cortlandt Park. With him at the time of the killing was Miss Mary McNiff, twenty-three years old, of No. 103 West Seventy-fifth street.

Detectives took to the Kingsbridge police station a man and two women, none of whom was under arrest in the shooting. Their identities were not revealed. Soon after their arrival there, with Eugene Corwin, a relative, with whom she has been making her home.

Despite police efforts to keep the inquiry secret, it was learned that District Attorney Martin received an anonymous letter yesterday from a woman whose name has not been learned. In the letter the writer is declared to have asserted that she had been told by a second wooman that the latter, accompanied by a man, was in the park and saw Mr. Dilworth killed. Detectives traced the letter to its writer and from her, it is understood, learned the name of the woman and man supposed to have witnessed the shooting.

Miss McNiff, it was understood was asked to go to Kingsbridge station so that she might be ready to identify any one the police took into custody, or otherwise aid in the police investigation.

ENGLAND TIGHTENS BARS ON ALIENS.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The Official Gazette prints an amendment to the order-in-council governing the restrictions imposed upon aliens by which after Oct. 1 the written sanction and approval of the Board of Trade must be obtained for the admission to the United Kingdom of any alien who works in any other capacity than munitions work.

A rigid application of the order, some official say, apparently would exclude from the United Kingdom foreign actors, singers, musicians, and all others who do not come to work in munition factories.

Queen Mary's Visit Cheers London Poor

LONDON,—The poor people living in some of the districts of London have invented a simple way of honoring their men folk who have gone to the war. In each street they hang a Roll of Honor on a convenient wall, and each roll is kept freshly garlanded with flowers by the women and chidren. The Roll of Honor is a scroll, framed and glazed, showing the names of men who have left their home in each street to join the fighting forces of the crown.

Queen Mary heard of this custom a few days ago, and was so delighted with it that she arranged to make a tour throough South Hackney, the district where the custom originated, in order to show her approval of what the poor people were doing. Recently she drove her motor car, filled with posies, across from Buckingham Palace, with no escort save a mounted policeman, who rode ahead to show the way. It was intended that the visit should be perfectly informal, but word of it got out, and the Queen found the streets which she proposed to visit so thronged with women and children that she stopped her car, got out, and talked and shook hands with scores of the poor people who crowded about her. To each Roll of Honor she visited she pinned one of the posies she had brought along.

"You're a mother yourself, Queen Mary," said one woman, "and you've sent boys to the war. So you know how mothers feel, and I suppose that's why you are here?"

"I know," said the Queen smiling, "and that is why I am here. How many sons have you got at the war?"

"Four, your Majesty."

"Keep a brave heart," said the Queen."

"It will be all the easier after this, your Majesty," replied the black-haired woman. And the two mothers shook hands.

Another was with an old crippled by paralysis, whom the Queen found sitting near one of the Rolls of Honor. Her Majesty walked to the old lady and took her hand tenderly. Then followed this conversation.

"I need not ask what is the matter with you," said the Queen "It's paralysis; isn't it?"

"Yes, your Majesty," replied the old lady; and she told the Queen all about it: all about her husband, hale and hearty still at 81, and an old soldier; and all about her five grandsons, who were fighting for their country. The Queen bent over and listened gravely to all this. Then she smiled and patted the woman on the shoulder. "I hope you will get better" she said.

"I feel better now, your Majesty," replied the crippled woman, with the tears running down her faded cheeks. "I saw Queen Victoria when I was younger and could get about; I saw King Edward and I saw Queen Alexandra, but I never expected to have the honor of seeing you, mum!"

"But you have, after all" replied the Queen, laughing and again patting the old lady's shoulder.

This visit of Queen Mary to poorer London is one of the many delightful ways in which on her own initiative she has come into contact during the period of the war with the lives of the humblest of King George's subjects. She takes a personal pleasure in little episodes of this description, always taking pains to recognise how great are the sacrifices which the poor are making for their country, and at the same time doing it in such a way that others may be led to follow her example.

Greece May Enter War Within Next Ten Days

Factions Admonished to Keep Quiet If Not It Will Be the End of Greece —This is Significant Statement Made By Prominent Official After Long Conference Between King Constantine and Premier—Suggestion of Former Commanding in Macedonia.

REVOLUTIONARY MOVEMENT

ATHENS, September 18.—"If the Entente and anti-Venizelist factions only can keep quiet for ten days and not embroil the situation Greece's entry into the war will be a settled fact," said a prominent Greek official. "If not," he continued, "it is the end of Greece."

King Constantine and the Premier, Mr. Alexander Zaimis, had a long conference on the situation yesterday. On the whole, the situation with regard to Greece's entry into the war on the side of Entente Allies seems favourable, notwithstanding the arrest last Sunday and Monday by Anglo-French secret police of Prussian and Austrian agents, against which Mr. Zaimis vigorously protested, and complicity by the French in the disaffection of the Eleventh Greek division at Salonika, which profoundly shocked the Greek public and seriously endangered the success of the negotiations then in progress.

The mere suggestion of the possibility of King Constantine commanding the allied armies in Macedonia, however, seems to override every hesitation.

The reported opposition of Russia and Italy to Greece's co-operation in the war is actually much less than had been believed, and the Serbs, far from objecting, are most anxious that the Greek join the Entente Allies. It is generally conceded in Entente allied circles that General Sarrail, the French commander, would be glad of the assistance of the Greek soldiers who fought against the Bulgars three years ago.

The only menace to the success of the negotiations lies in the Greek government holding out too long in the hope of obtaining the concessions offered eighteen months ago, but which no longer obtain.

Eight classes of untrained reservists between the ages of thirty-three and forty years soon will be called to the colours.

King Constantine personally has accepted the demand of the Entente Allies that the Reservists' League, of which he is honorary president, be dissolved.

Athens virtually is under martial law. Patrols of infantry and cavalry parade the streets and the Entente legations are under strong guards. Fifteen hundred marines have been added to the garrison here on account of the uncertainty in regard to the attitude of the troops. The excitement caused by many disturbances at Salonika, however, is dying out.

REVOLUTIONARY MOVEMENT IS SPREADING.

PARIS, September 18.—A despatch from Salonika says:—"The revolutionary movement is active at Verria (about forty miles southeast of Salonika), where Captain Bartzocas has announced to General Cordonnier, commanding the French troops, his intention of fighting with the Entente Allies. The battalion commander at Verrit also has announced that his battalion will participate in the movement.

"These events are parts of a rapidly extending arrangement for the formation of a Greek army of national defence. Numerous volunteers for this army are arriving here daily, coming from remote islands and regions of old Greece. The recruits are equipped immediately with khaki uniforms and are sent to a camp a few miles outside the city."

Additional details of the disturbance at the French Legation on Saturday are forwarded by the Havas correspondent at Athens. He telegraphs that while the Entente Ministers were meeting at the legation reservists forced an entrance, shouting "Long live the King! Down with the Entente!" Four shots were fired. No one was injured. The reservists fled.

The capture of Orsova by the Roumanians has stopped the progress of Austrian and Bulgarian supply ships on the Danube. The new Russo-Roumanian offensive in the Dobrudja is progressing.

Greek Premier's Resignation Has Been Accepted

Formation of a New Pro-Ally Cabinet is Under Way—Greece May Join the Allies Very Soon

CONFERENCE TO-DAY

LONDON, Sept. 13.—King Constantine to-day finally accepted the resignation of Premier Zaimis, and the formation of a new pro-ally cabinet is under way, said despatches from Athens to-day. A former member of the Venizelos cabinet has been instructed to sound M. Dimitrakopoulis relative to the formation of a new ministry. Dimitrakopoulis was to have a lengthy conference with Stratos and political leaders to-day. London correspondents at Athens profess confidence that a new war ministry will be formed and that Greece will join the allies very soon.

French Troops Capture First Line Trenches On Western Front

Fifteen Hundred Prisoners and Guns Included in Latest Gain—Gen Foch is Nearer a Striking Victory Over the Germans Than At Any Time Since the Somme Offensive Began—Combles and Peronne Threatened.

A SMASHINC BLOW

PARIS, September 13.—French troops by swift assaults under General Foch captured the entire system of German first line trenches between Combles and the Somme river, together with fifteen hundred prisoners and guns. General Foch is nearer a striking victory over the Germans than at any time since the great Somme offensive began.

Combles, the main point of support of the whole German line from Bapaume to Peronne, is under fire from two sides, and is half way surrounded as the result of yesterday's smashing blow by the French. Peronne itself has been cut off from direct communication with Combles and the French, driving eastward on a front of nearly four miles, have established themselves almost directly north of the city. The capture of both Combles and Peronne within a fortnight is expected by some military critics, if Foch continues his hammer blows north of the Somme.

A CHANGE IN COMMAND.

BERLIN, September 13.—Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria has now assumed the over-command of the German armies on the Somme front.

He is entrusted with general direction of operations against the Anglo-French offensive.

All troops assigned to this task are placed under his control, making possible the distribution of reserves and the employment of all the means of war to the best advantage under a unified plan.

A GREAT SHUFFLE.

The appointment of Prince Rupprecht was effective before the latest visit of the correspondents to Bapaume last week, but the news could not be cabled until the announcement in the official army headquarters report of Monday revealed a general re-arrangement of commands brought about by the appointment of Field Marshal von Hindenburg as chief of staff. The new order divides the western front into three sectors and assigns these to three princely commanders who regardless of reasons of policy which dictated their appointments to command of armies at the beginning of the war, have won their spurs by the successful conduct of operations. They are regarded here not as figure-heads but as generals of experience and distinction.

THREE PRINCES LEAD.

Duke Albrecht, prospective heir to the Kingdom of Wurttemberg, is in command of the northern sector. Crown Prince Rupprecht is in command of the central sector and the German Crown Prince has the over-command in the Verdun sector.

Saloniki Offensive Is The "Real Thing" Thinks London

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The news from South-east Europe is generally accepted in London as indicating that the long expected offensive from Saloniki really had begun. There had been a move some weeks ago which the German communiques described as a feint, and following that the Bulgarians had advanced to Kavala.

British students of the war, who, without pretending to be in the secrets of allied strategy, had certain sources of information open to them, rubbed their hands, as Joffre is reported to have done, when Falkenhayn, for the sake of the German Crown Prince, began the attack on Verdun. The Bulgarian advance to Kavala was regarded as an extension of thef ront which weakened the central powers from a military point of view without sensibly improving their political situation, and the prospects, similarly, of the German-Bulgarian advance on Dobrudja was welcomed as anotherer ror on the part of the German general staff, which was looking to the immediate, rather than to the decisive future.

By the operations in Dodrudja, the central powers, according to this view, are wasting efforts. Bucharest, with the mile-wide Danube intervening, is considered safe, and the prediction is made that the central powers have no more chance of reaching the Rumanian capital than they have of getting either to Paris or Petrograd.

Sarrail's offensive, it is thought here, has been taken at the psychological moment and is to be directed against one of the main arteries of the enemy's system, the famous corridor which was to maintain communicationbetween Berlin and Constantinople and the region beyond which entered into the German policy of Asian penetration.

By diversions in the direction of Kavala and Dodrudja according to this view, the defensive of the corridor is seriously weakened, and if the Saloniki offensive should succeed in blocking or cutting that corridor such momentary kndos as Kavala and Dodrudja have brought would prove to have been dearly purchased.

Crop Outlook In Western Canada

WINNIPEG, Sept. 13.—After a month of inspection the Free Press commercial editor places the estimate of the wheat crop of the three Prairie Provinces at from 170,000,000 to 200,000,000 bushels. This is, roughly, 100,000,000 bushels for Saskatchewan, 36,000,000 bushels for Manitoba, and 35,000,000 bushels upward for Alberta, thus making the yield 12 bushels to the acre for Manitoba, and fifteen bushels to the acre for Saskatchewan. In Alberta there is no doubt that the bulk of the 1,500,000 acres in wheat is south of the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and twenty-five bushels to the acre is a fairly conservative estimate for that territory; it will probably run much higher, and may reach a thirty-bushel average, adds the Free Press. No definite estimate of the yield could be made in the north, owing to the very spotted conditions, but it is safe to assume that there will be sufficient out of the north to bring the yield of the Province up to thirty-five or possibly forty million bushels.

Continuing, the Free Press says: The grade of the crop will be unsatisfactory. The percentage of No. 1 Northern in any of the Provinces will be small, with the exception of Southern Alberta, where it should be heavy. There will be a considerable quantity of No. 2, but a great deal of the wheat, which should be right of color, go No. 2 will hardly make that grade on account of lack of weight. Taking the yield at the smaller figure—170,000,000 bushels—and putting the price of the lower grades against the high; it will be worth not less than ninety cents a bushel, or $153,000,000."

Cattle Markets.

Receipts at the Toronto Union Stock Yards yesterday were 69 cars, made up of 1,066 cattle, 148 calves, 710 hogs, 978 sheep.

There were not a full load of heavy steers on the market, but prices were firm for this class, a bunch of 12 steers selling at $8.25. Choice lots of butcher steers and heifers were steady with yesterday's prices, and in good demand. Good butchers, steady, with a fair demand, but common butchers were inclined easier, with a slower market.

Stocker trade, quiet.

Cows, steady.

Bulls, steady to firm for choice.

Good demand for springers.

Magic of The Surgeon Is Making New Men Of Old

LONDON, Sept. 11.— The marvellous progress that has been made in recent times in surgical science is most impressively revealed by a journey to some of the larger military hospitals, made possible through the courtesy of Sir Alfred Keogh, Director General of the Army Medical Service.

In all the hospitals what the medical staff set above all is conservative surgery—that is to say, the saving of limbs in order that the patients may remain useful members of the community. Thus, at the Herbert Hospital, at Shooter's Hill, there have been since the beginning of the war from three to four thousand operations, and Colonel Simpson, the officer in charge, declared that he did not believe there had been in all more than twenty-five amputations.

The impression left by a tour of these hospitals upon the layman's mind is that outsiders have an utterly inadequate idea of the debt they owe to modern surgery at a time like the present. Day by day the surgeons are giving to the nation new men for old. They have embarked upon a great mission of hope among the nation's soldiers. They are doing more than would have been credible twenty years ago to rob war of its ultimate horror.

Out of the hundreds of wonderful cases brought to one's notice during these visits it is only possible to describe a few that may be regarded as typical of this trade of mending soldiers. Take first the new nerve surgery. Here is a man with a bullet hole near his collar bone which severed the nerve controlling the muscles of the wrist. The result was "wrist drop" and a hand watch until quite recently would have regarded as incurably useless. The two ends of the severed nerve have been freed from what had already become no more than a scar, they have been reunited and there is every prospect that in less than a year the hand will be almost as good as ever.

"As simple as tying up the two ends of a cut telephone wire," says the surgeon who operated.

Amazing Nerve Cure.

There are more remarkable nerve cases still. A man had part of the fleshy portion of his arm shot away, carrying with it four inches of the nerve necessary to control the hand movements. The surgeons rang up several hospitals on the telephone till he heard of what he wanted, the amputation that afternoon of a healthy limb. The limb happened to be a leg, and it was amputation to the forenoon. No sooner was it cut off than four or five inches of practically living nerve were removed from the calf, placed in a saline bath and rushed by taxi to the other hospital. Here the patient was already under an anesthetic. The wound in his arm was opened with a lancet, the ends of the indispensable nerve quickly found and the circuit reestablished, as it were, by means of the best patient's hair inches of filament. Today the man is in a fair way of regaining the full use of his hand.

Bone surgery on rather similar lines is more familiar, but hardly less surprising when you meet and talk to a man who converses with the aid of a lower jaw, part of which was only a few weeks ago part of his right leg. It was mended with two and one-half inches of one of his shin bones. The shin has quite healed, and the hole will be completely filled with new bone before long, so accommodating is nature when treated with knowledge.

Another patient is perfectly happy and prosperous with three inches of the fibula of his left leg neatly inserted in the humerus of his right arm. He, too, will finally suffer no loss of bone whatever. The variants of such operations are endless and only limited by the ingenuity and enterprise of such surgeon.

Carpentry and Legs.

Of remarkable examples of carpentry applied to broken limbs most hospitals have two or three, if not more, on hand. A young fellow was brought into the hospital with one leg shortened by five inches, owing to the ends of the broken bones overlapping. He seemed a hopeless cripple. The leg was rebroken under an anaesthetic, an eighth of an inch cut off from each side of the fracture so as to secure a smooth join, and a steel plate fastened on with six screws, precisely as one would mend the broken leg of a table. The plate and screws will remain in position as a permanent addition to the soldier's anatomy, for steel will not rust among the tissues. And the man has a leg practically as long and as straight as, and rather stronger than, it was intended to be by nature.

Some of the most cruel wounds are those in the jaw, but even here what the skill and patience of the surgeon have been able to do is wonderful. One poor fellow who had been provided with a new road to his mouth was one of the most cheerful patients. His cosmic gongs are the delight of the ward. You cease to be amazed at any height of human skill or human courage after a few hours in any of these military hospitals. You know for certain then that man is unconquerable.

Where the injury is to the supper part of the face, resulting in, say, the removal of the nose and one eye, magical results are being achieved in a southwestern district hospital by the provision of masks perfectly counterfeiting the lost section of the physiognomy. Lieutenant Dermont Wood is the inventor of the plan. With the help of photographs of what a patient was like before being wounded he will make a false noise of silvered copper, artistically painted to match the surrounding complexion, which will so far defy detection as to enable the owner to go out in the world again without shrinking and play his old part in the affairs of men.

A Remarkable Operation.

Here is another remarkable case. Not long ago a wounded Guardsman was brought into the Queen Alexandra hospital, at Millbank, suffering from a shrapnel wound. Examination under the X-rays showed that a piece of metal as large as a half-penny and much thicker had entered the breast and lodged in the region of the heart. It was, in fact, actually touching the heart and impeding its action. An operation was decided on, and the surgeon thrust his hand right into the opening and pulled out the piece of metal, which is preserved as a souvenir. There was a danger that during anaesthesia the lungs would collapse, and therefore, ether was pumped into them to keep them distended. That gallant Guardsman is now out and about, and it is declared that he will not feel the slightest ill effects from his strange experience.

In this hospital there is at present a Serbian officer who was wounded in his own country and brought to England for treatment. It was a case of severe injury to the jaw. Lieut. Sir Francis Farmer removed a piece of bone about two and a half inches long from the tibia of the patient, and, having carefully prepared a bed in which to place it, fixed it in the jaw. The leg is now healed and the patient can eat wonderfully well.

But this refitting and, as it were, rebuilding of citizens is not enough. They must first be snatched from that progressive process of destruction associated with the dreaded word sepsis, that creeping death of the tissues which is the surgeon's most remorseless enemy. And here again one encounters the marvellous.

"Gas Gangrene"

In this war the variety of sepsis that has claimed more victims than any other is that known in doctor's slang as "gas gangrene." Gas gangrene is caused by the presence in a wound of certain types of bacilli classed as "anaerobic," that is, bacilli which cannot live in air, the vital principle of which is oxygen. They exist like the tetanus bacilli—in cultivated soil, and it is because the war is being fought in France among the peasants' fields that they are introduced so constantly by ricocheting bullets or scraps of earth stained clothing into the soldiers' wounds.

Once there they set about producing tiny gas bubbles among the tissues, hence the name "gas gangrene." But the gas they cannot endure is oxygen, and the obvious way to destroy them is to introduce oxygen into the innermost recesses of the wound. This is secured by various method according to the nature of the injury. A hole right through the shoulder will be sterilized by the use of a wick drawing peroxide of hydrogen from a small tank above the bed. Another kind of wound may be sprayed with ozone and the third more conveniently dealt with by means of a perforated tube fed with oxygen gas from a cylinder.

The operations to which reference has been made would doubtless be described as severe even by the surgeons themselves; nevertheless, modern science has robbed them of most of their terrors. The improvements in anaesthetics have been such that it is no uncommon thing for an operation to last two hours and for the patient to feel no ill effects from the drug a quarter of an hour after he recovers consciousness. Some, indeed, will be smoking a cigarette within that space of time. The secret lies in the administration of oxygen with the anaesthetic.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Watchful Waiting

It Proved Effective In Time.

By OSCAR COX

Miss Imogene Danforth, believing in the equality between women and men, was one day expressing her opinions to her cousin, Jack Fearing.

"Tut!" he said. "That's all well enough for women who can't get husbands. It's no use for those who can."

"Do you mean to assert that I can't get a husband?" she demanded, bristling.

"Not at all, being well aware that I have proposed to you six times."

"And I have as many times told you that woman must choose between independence and marriage. I choose independence. I have leased an island on the New England coast, which I propose to colonize with girls of strong character. There I shall prepare them for the propaganda for woman's rights and send them forth to teach their sisters."

"I presume you will pick out the homeliest girls you can find."

Imogene was ruffled. She declared that in order to show him that the cause of woman's rights was not limited to the support of unattractive women she would select comely girls. Jack, the scamp, in this way introduced the cankerworm that was to eat into her apple.

Imogene located her colony on the 1st of June with twelve girls, all fair to look upon. She did not organize her school for those who had been converted to the cause. She expected to train them to that end. There was a house on the island large enough to contain them all, so no great preparation was needed. No man being allowed on the island, the servants were women.

One morning soon after their arrival Imogene convened her flock in a wood near the water and, arranging them in a semicircle, proceeded to lay down the causes that had rendered woman subordinate to man. She opened with woman's primeval condition as a servitor to fighting man and was proceeding to trace her career in eastern nations when she paused and looked down on a patch of water revealed between the trees. A yacht that had been luffed up into the wind was moving slowly toward the landing near by.

The girls, turning, saw the yacht and a dozen young fellows, not counting Jack Fearing, the owner, on her deck, each man made more handsome by a becoming yachting costume.

Imogene frowned; the girls looked pleased. But it must be remembered that they were novices and had not yet been trained to consider man their enemy. The fellows secured the yacht to the landing and advanced to the lecturer and her class, each man with cap in his hand and all resembling rather slaves to the women than women's masters.

"We have come," said Fearing, "not to interfere with your course of instruction, but to invite you to take a cruise with us when the present lecture is concluded."

"Thank you for your invitation," replied Imogene, "but it is declined. May I beg that you will depart?"

"Most assuredly, since you wish it," replied Fearing. "Your commands shall be obeyed."

He led his men back to the landing. They all got aboard, unloosed the painter and, raising a jib, withdrew for a few hundred yards from the shore, where they dropped anchor.

"How obedient!"

"What handsome fellows!"

"Surely, Miss Danforth, these young men seem ready to serve us instead of to oppress us."

These were some of the remarks made by the young ladies. Imogene disdained to reply. Instead she resumed her lecture. But she might as well have lectured to the trees, for it was evident that the girls' minds were on the yacht, and under the circumstances man's tyranny did not interest them. Seeing this, Imogene brought her discourse to a close and, looking down on the anchored vessel herself, wondered what the men meant by remaining where they were.

"I think," said one young lady, "that they're showing their obedience."

"Nonsense!" exclaimed Imogene.

"Perhaps," said a little miss with a soft voice, "they're going in for watchful waiting."

"You've hit the nail on the head, Susie," said Imogene.

"There are just as many of them as there are of us," remarked another young lady. "If we were to pair off there would be a fellow for each girl."

"Gwendolen!" said Imogene sternly. "If you and the others harbor such thoughts our school will be broken up!"

"How long, Miss Imogene," asked Susie, "will we have to withstand the watchful waiting?"

"I don't know. Why do you ask?"

"Because," was the meek reply, "I'm afraid I can't stand it very long."

"Girls," said Imogene, "in order to help you to get your minds off this contemptible effort to break up our school I will call your attention to the impossibility of our going on a cruise. Is there one among you who would do an improper act?"

"No!" cried every girl at once.

"Very well. We could not go with them without a chaperon, and we haven't a chaperon."

"Why wouldn't Mrs. Markham do?" asked the gentle Susie. Mrs. Markham was the housekeeper.

Imogene looked troubled. Elements of weakness were popping up among her flock, and it was beginning to appear to her as impossible to keep them down as to hold corks under water. One thing was apparent—she must get the girls away from a view of the yacht. She ordered them to the house. She was obeyed, but while on the way they were continually turning their heads for one more look.

Between 12 and 3 p. m. was the period for dinner and rest. At 3 o'clock there was a study period of an hour during which the girls were expected to prepare themselves from books that had been provided on arguments in favor of woman's emancipation, with a recitation at 4. At 5 the girls were allowed to wander about the island at will. This period till supper time was a matter of deep concern to Imogene. She could not well deprive the girls of their outing, and she feared the yachtsmen.

"Young ladies," she said after the recitation, "I shall have to ask you this afternoon to avoid going near the landing where the yacht is anchored. Indeed, it would be immodest for you to do so."

"We won't," said all the girls at once, though in a faint voice.

"Very well. I'll trust you."

The girls straightway proceeded to scatter over the island and, true to their promise, avoided that part of the shore off which the yacht was anchored. Imogene herself remained within doors. Suddenly she heard a sound that filled her with hope. The young men on the yacht were getting up the anchor. Were they going to abandon the siege? Imogene went to a cupola on the roof of the house, where she could see all over the island and the waters beyond. The sails were hoisted, there was a fair breeze, and the yacht instead of sailing away began to make the circuit of the island.

Imogene's heart sank. Her scattered flock preferred the shore, and everywhere were amusing themselves throwing stones or sticks into the water, and some of them had discarded their shoes and stockings and were wading in shallow places. Round and round sailed the boys, keeping near the shore, and every now and again Imogene saw them toss a package. These packages were picked up by the girls, the wrappers torn off, revealing pasteboard boxes, and several fair hands were at once thrust within and removed to as many pairs of rosy lips.

"Candy!" groaned Imogene. "We are lost!"

Running downstairs, she seized a trumpet that had been provided for transmitting orders and sounded a recall.

The girls came in, but very slowly, every girl munching sweets. Imogene thought it prudent to say nothing about the yachtsmen or the ammunition they had used. She kept the girls indoors till supper time, then instead of letting them out again in the long June twilight she proposed that they spend the evening dancing, for which purpose a piano had been provided.

Meanwhile the yacht had come to anchor again, and the watchful waiting was resumed. After supper the yachtsmen sat on deck and after a smoke began to sing, accompanied by a couple of mandolins and a guitar. Imogene sent one of the girls to the piano. The chorus from the yacht, rich and strong, came up in competition with the tinkling piano. Several of the girls started in to dance together.

Now, it must be admitted that a dozen girls dancing with one another to the music of a poorly tuned piano while listening to the songs of as many young men who would be glad to dance with them made but a sorry sight. There was no elasticity in the girls' steps. The musician played without heart.

Then came Jack Fearing with a mandolin in his hand and very subservientlly offered the services of the stringed instruments of the yachtsmen to furnish music for the young ladies' dancing. Imogene cast her eyes over the girls standing about and saw mutiny in every girl.

"It's no use for me, Jack," she said, "to carry on this struggle any longer. Bring up your instruments and your yachting party too. The girls are crazy for a real dance, and I suppose they must have it."

Jack poked his head out of a window and yelled, "Come up, fellows!"

The men jumped into the small boats like frogs plunging off a log, pulled to the shore and in a jiffy were in the dancing room. The musicians struck up a tango, and in another moment couples were whirling like mad. Jack went up to Imogene and asked her to dance. Pouting, she tapped him on the cheek with her fan, and they sailed away among the others.

After a couple of hours' dancing refreshments, which Jack had provided especially for such a purpose, were ordered up from the yacht, and the evening or, rather, the morning was finished with a supper. Then Jack led Imogene out on to the porch and said to her:

"Tomorrow we sail away and leave you to continue uninterrupted your instructions on the tyranny of man."

"I shall do no such thing," was the reply. "The heads of these girls have been turned by this visit, and they will not listen to me. I shall continue the camp for pleasure only, and I hope that you and your crew will remain as long as you like."

The crew accepted the invitation, and before the season was over seven of the twelve girls were engaged to as many yachtsmen. Imogene and Jack were married on the island before the party broke up.

AFTER SIX YEARS OF SUFFERING

Woman Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Columbus, Ohio.—"I had almost given up. I had been sick for six years with female troubles and nervousness. I had a pain in my right side and could not eat anything without hurting my stomach. I could not drink cold water at all nor eat any kind of raw fruit, nor fresh meat nor chicken. From 178 pounds I went to 118 and would get so weak at times that I fell over. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and ten days later I could eat and it did not hurt my stomach. I have taken the medicine ever since and I feel like a new woman. I now weigh 127 pounds so you can see what it has done for me already. My husband says he knows your medicine has saved my life."—Mrs. J. S. BARLOW, 1624 South 4th St., Columbus, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound contains just the virtues of roots and herbs needed to restore health and strength to the weakened organs of the body. That is why Mrs. Barlow, a chronic invalid, recovered so completely.

It pays for women suffering from any female ailments to insist upon having Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Worst Over Now, Says Senator of War Situation

Hon. James H. Ross, Back From Front, Optimistic of Future--Was Grand Fleet Visitor

"The Allies have the whip hand everywhere, and the war will end soon, in my judgment, perhaps sooner than some of us imagine. Austria's end is near, and the downfall of Turkey and Bulgaria cannot long be delayed. That is the opinion I have formed after a visit to Great Britain and France, where I was privileged to see some of the things going on."

This was, in brief, the statement of Hon. James H. Ross, formerly of London, who returned recently from England. He went aboard with a deputation of members of Parliament and the Senate, as representatives of the Imperial Parliamentary Association. Mr. Ross was in the trenches, visited the grand fleet, where he saw Admiral Jellicoe and Sir David Beattie, went through the enormous shipping yards on the Clyde, and at Newcastle, the munitions factories at other points, and talked war and business with England's greatest men. He reports that his son, Lieut. James H. Ross, Jun., of the Royal Aviation Corps, who was seriously wounded some time ago, is doing well, and will return to Canada in a few weeks to spend a holiday. His wound is healing, and it is expected that he will not be permanently injured.

INSPIRING VISIT TO FLEET.

"The most amazing thing to me of the whole trip was the visit to the grand fleet," said Senator Ross. "It was most inspiring, to say the least of it. One would not think that there could possibly be so many ships in the world as we saw on that occasion. We saw them manoeuvre, at gun practice, at speed trials, in fact, there was nothing we did not see. I was greatly impressed with the personnel of the men commanding the fleet. Admiral Beattie is a wonderful man, one of the most impressive I have ever met. He looks the fighter that he is. The battle of Jutland added lustre to his laurels, and he will yet accomplish great things. The fleet has done wonderful things, and is ready to do more amazing things. Admiral Jellicoe, too, is a wonderful fighter. Luck was against them at the battle of Jutland, or the whole German fleet would have been destroyed. As it was, the British covered themselves with great glory.

GLORIOUS RECORD OF ENGLISH WOMEN.

"I want to speak of the work done by the women of Great Britain in this war. We visited one munitions plant where no less than 3,000 women were employed on shells and munitions. They do their work most accurately, have speeded up to production amazingly, and have freed men to do the more serious work of the war. Probably the most inspiring chapter in the history of this war will be given to the work of the women. I am not saying this to disparage the men, not in the slightest, but the way the women have come to the rescue of the nation, the way they have worked and sacrificed is a story that is nothing short of being one of the most marvellous things of history. The women have done good work, and have done it well.

FROM 240 BOATS TO 2,000

"We have the privilege of going through the great shipyards on the Clyde. There are literaly miles of big ships in the making. How it can be done is a wonder to me. When I tell you that when the war started the fleet had 240 torpedo-boat destroyers and patrol boats, and now there are over 2,000 of them, I will give you an idea of what is being done. That is true, and I am not saying what has been done for ships of the bigger types. There is one factory at Birmingham making munitions that has added 60 acres to its plant. It was doing a small business in manufacturing cartridges, and now it is turning out 25,000,000 cartridges a week, with shells and a thousand other things. That is the whole story Lloyd George has done marvels in organizing the shell-making inddustries with the result that there is an abundance of shells of all types sufficient to last for months and months. In fact, in a very few weeks it will not be necessary to buy a dollar's worth from the United States to meet the needs of Great Britain.

WENT TO FRANCE

"We visited the front also. We went to France, and visited Paris. They showed us Paris and what the French are doing. We saw the aviation fields. The French are magnificent riders and have any number of the finest machines.

"Later we went to the British front and were taken to the Canadian contingents. We spent some time at Ypres. While there the Germans sent over a few big shells for our entertainment. One fell within a short distance of us, possibly 100 yards; another came close to our automobile. It was rather uncomfortable, to say the least of it. The shells have a most terrifying screech, and we civilians did not quite get accustomed to their noise.

"I met a large number of Canadians, particularly western men, Gen. Bing, in command; Gen. Currie of Vancouver, and a score of others, including an old friend of mine, Jim Campbell, of Vancouver, a big contractor. He has been doing great things in constructing trenches, and has saved the lives of thousands of Canadians. There was not much activity the day I was at the front, but we saw enough. Ypres is a fearfully battered city, not a single building being habitable. Nothing but walls remain.

"Later we went to Calais, where the wounded are loaded onto the hospital ships. Here everything is system and order, with no confusion. It is splendid the way the men are handled. I saw large numbers of wounded men, but I never heard one complain or groan. I do not understand it.

CANADA DOES NOT KNOW.

"We had a splendid trip, but we learned many things that should give us pause. Canada does not know the meaning of sacrifice so far as the war is concerned. We are giving up our blood, of course, but in a financial way we have not suffered. We should do much more. We should finance our own country, taking British paper, not gold for our munitions. We are not taxed to any extent, as compared with Great Britain. We will have to do more, particularly in a financial way.

"The big offensive is on its way. The worst is over, I think, and the progress should be rapid from this time on. There is confidence everywhere, and the end is coming, and that sooner possibly than we imagine. When the Germans realize, as they must, that they cannot win, they will give up, and the war will be over."

WINNING A VICTORIA CROSS IN A DARING TRENCH RAID

LONDON.—Captain D. D. Sheehan, M.P., writes for the Daily Express this account of how in a trench raid a Victoria Cross was won:

The other day I read that among the list of new V.C.'s was the following: "Lieutenant Arthur Hugh Batten-Pooll, Royal Munster Fusiliers, for most conspicuous bravery while in command of a raiding party. At the moment of entry into the enemy's lines he was severely wounded by a bomb, which broke and mutilated all the fingers of his right hand. In spite of this he continued to direct operations with unflinching courage, his voice being clearly heard cheering on and directing his men.

"He was urged, but refused, to retire. Half an hour later, during the withdrawal, while personally assisting in the rescue of other wounded men, he received two further wounds. Still refusing assistance, he walked unaided to within one hundred yards of our lines, when he fainted and was carried in by the covering party."

I well recall the incident in connection with which Lieutenant Batten-Pooll won the highest decoration that can be awarded for valor in the field. We were up somewhere in the north of France preparing those series of preliminary bombardments which paved the way for the grand offensive later, and which I imagine worried the life and soul out of the Prussian Headquarters Staff. Many will probably remember that in one of the official despatches of the time special mention was made of the successful raids made by the Munsters and the Anzacs, precedence being given to the former, and right well they deserved it.

Romance of the War.

The story of that raid will yet constitute one of the romances of the war—how carefully it had to be prepared, how thoroughly every detail had to be thought out, how well practiced the men had to become in the duties assigned to them and how perfectly the co-operation of artillery and infantry had to be arranged.

It is of the more human side of the story, however, that I would write. Though it was toward the end of June the rain was continuous, and I have seldom seen the trenches in a worse condition of slush and mud. The men cracked jokes at one another as they endeavoured to negotiate some particularly deep pool, and, as is their way, treated the worst side of life in the most good humoured manner.

We had completed our reliefs and made all our dispositions in good time, leaving some hours on our hands before the raiding party were to advance to their dangerous adventure.

Eight officers were to go out on the raid—this will give some idea of its magnitude and importance — and Lieutenant Batten-Pooll was one of these. He belonged to our company, and he looked in on us at our dugout in the casual kind of way that is the fashion out there. Very little was spoken about the prospects of the raid, Lieutenant Batten-Pooll himself being a most modest and unassuming young fellow—a most sweet and admirable gentleman, though I say it who had but very brief acquaintance with him. There is not one of his comrades who will not rejoice at the signal honour that has come his way.

Thoughts for His Men.

Some refreshments were sparingly discussed, and just before leaving Batten-Pooll remarked to his company commander, Captain Humphreys—"By the way, here is £5 which my mother sent me to be spent on the men of our company. I only got it to-day. Will you take charge of it?"

There was no pessimism about him then. He knew he was engaged on a desperate hazard, but it was not his way to talk about it. He only wanted to see that the gift intended for the men of his company should not fail in the worst event. His last thought before going over the parapet was one of consideration for the troops. Yes, Batten-Pooll deserved that Providence should be kind to him.

And what about the raid itself? Well, the Munsters once again covered themselves with glory. While our men were out in No Man's Land at the point of assembly our artillery at a given moment belched forth such a fury of shot and shell as I had never seen before. I have seen worse since, but this was the beginning of those great demonstrations of our artillery superiority which will finally, more than anything else, determine the issue in this war.

To hark back. Our men got into the enemy's trenches with irresistible dash. They met with a stout resistance. There was no stopping or stemming the dash of the men of Munster. They rushed the Prussians off their feet. They bombed and they bludgeoned them. Indeed, the most deadly instrument of destruction in this encounter was the short, heavy bludgeon in the shape of a shillelagh, the use of which, we are led to believe, is the prescriptive and hereditary right of all Irishmen.

Such a Drubbing.

There is some verse, I believe, which speaks of—

"The sprig of shillelagh and shamrock so green."

The shamrock is the special badge of the Munster Fusiliers, and it was the "sprig of shillelagh and shamrock so green" which gave the Huns such a dressing and drubbing on that night as they are not likely to have since forgotten.

Half an hour in the trenches and all was over. Dugouts and all were done for. Of the eight officers, four were casualties, two, unhappily, killed, and two severely wounded, of whom one was Lieutenant Batten-Pooll.

Next day at the little cemetery behind our lines I saw the remnant of the raiders paying their last tribute of respect to those who had died that liberty and love and all happiness may live. Could these simple, silent, tender men who stood beside the rude graves be the same fierce fighters who carried all before them in a mad and daredevil charge a few hours before?

Yes, they were, for though my countrymen are hot in war and reckless of everything never did God give to any race tenderier hearts or gentler natures.

MANY WOMEN FIGHTING IN THE ARMIES OF RUSSIA

LONDON, Sept. 8.—The news that Lida Shimky, a strongly built Russian girl of 20, who for some months fought in the Russian ranks, is now lying in one of the Riga hospitals severely wounded, reminds one that there are quite a number of girls fighting in the Russian ranks worthy prototypes of the Russian race, of female warriors in Scythia. Lida Shimsky entered the Lettish Rifle Battalion, last autumn, passing off as an attested man, and fought so valiantly that when her sex was discovered she was allowed to remain in the ranks. This is the second time she has been wounded. These women fighters are not new to Russian history. The ancient Russian "bylini" (sags) are full of stories describing the gallant deeds of young "polenitsi," the maids of prehistoric Russia, who, side by side with their fathers and brothers, defended their tribal homesteads against the savage hands of robbers operating in the northern backwoods of Russia.

In 628, when the Greeks inflicted a crushing defeat on the fleet of Russian galleys which approached ancient Constantinople (even then the possession of the "King City," as the Russians called it, was the dream of Russia's rulers), they found a number of fair-haired, blue-eyed maidens among the crews of the Russian galleys. Again in 71, after the battle of Dorsotol, the victorious Greeks were amazed to find Russian women warriors in male attire and shining armor among the dead and the wounded.

Right through Russian history we find women fighters in the Russian ranks whenever Russia is fighting a truly national war. It is a noteworthy fact that it is only such wars, when Russia is fighting for her very existence, that produces these amazons. While hundreds of Russian women fought in the Napoleonic war, in the Crimean campaign and in the present war, no such women warriors were heard of in the Russo-Japanese war of a dozen years ago.

It would thus seem that it is not a mere love of adventure that brings these women to the battlefield, but a more deeply rooted passion springing from the same source as the general patriotic upheaval of the nation.

General A. D. Nicolaey, who in time of peace is known better as a brilliant military historian, but who now commands a Russian division on the eastern front, has made, with the assistance of some of his officers, a special study of this question, namely, the active participation of Russian women in the present war, and the results of their investigations form a comprehensive volume.

There is now scarcely a regiment in the Russian army without one or two women warriors. They are mostly girls or young women of the better classes.

A certain percentage of them, although a minority, are actuated primarily by a romantic impulse, by adesire to be near their sweethearts or husbands in the firing line. Others are there to avenge their beloved dead, but the mtjority have been prompted purely by militant patriotism.

They invariably join a regiment on the march to the front, when all formalities with regard to volunteers are usually waived. They try hard to pass as men, and very often succeed in doing so. Time after time their identity has been discovered only at a hospital after they had been wounded.

A Farmer's View of The Evil of Mail Order Buying

How the Mail Order Business Helped to Depreciate the Value of Farm Property—Let People Live Where They Give Their Patronage —An Object Lesson

Editor, Farm Journal: We farmers need awakening to the fact that we have unmistakably reached the period where we must think and plan. I am one of the slow farmers that had to be shown, and I am now giving my experience that others may profit, for knowledge at the school of experience is more expensive now than ten years ago.

Twenty-nine years ago I began my farm career. I had an old team and fifty dollars. Our furniture was mostly home-made—chairs, cupboards and lounge made from drygoods boxes, neatly covered with ten-cent cretonne by my girl wife. We rented eighty acres. Being a boy of good habits I got all needed machinery and groceries of our home merchants on credit, until fall crops were sold. The first year was a wet season and I didn't make enough to pay creditors. I went to each on date of promise and explained conditions, paying as much to each as possible, and they all carried the balance over another year. They continued to accommodate me until I was able to buy a forty acre piece of my own.

As soon as I owned these few acres the mail-order houses began sending me catalogues, and gradually I began sending my loose change to them, letting my accounts stand in my home town, where I had gotten my accommodation when I needed it.

We then had one of the thriftiest little villages in the state—good line of business in all branches, merchants who were willing to help an honest fellow over a bad year, and a town full of people who came twice a week to trade and visit. Our little country town supported a library, high school, band, ball baem and we had big celebrations every year. A farm near a live town soon doubles in value. I sold my forty acres at a big advance and bought an eighty, gradually adding to it until I had two hundred acres of the best land. I then felt no need of asking favours, and found it easy to patronize mail order agents that came almost weekly to our door. I regret to say that I was the first in the country to make up a neighbourhood bill and send it to a mail order house. Though we got bit every once in a while, we got in the habit of sending away for stuff.

Gradually our merchants lessened their stock of goods for lack of patronage. Finally we began to realise that we needed a bolt quick for machinery, or clothing for sickness or death, we had to wait and send away for it, which wasn't so pleasant. One by one our merchants moved to places where they were appreciated, and men of less energy moved in. Gradually our town has gone down; our business houses are "tacky" in appearance, a number are empty, our schools, churches and walks are going down, we have no band, no library nor ball team. There is no business done in the town, and therefore no taxes to keep things up. Hotel is closed, for lack of travel. Go down to the depot when the freight pulls in and you see the sequel in mail order packages.

Nine years ago my farm was worth one hundred and ninety-five dollar an acre; to-day I'd have a hard matter to sell it at one hundred and sixty-seven dollars an acre. It is "too far from a live town"—so every farmer has said that wants to buy. He buys a place near schools and churches, where his children can have advantages I have awekened to the fact that in helping to pull the town down, it has cost me $5,600 in nine years. Like the majority of farmers, I didn't figure far enough ahead.

This sort of business means the doing away with country towns. What will it mean to farmers to have only a few large cities at a distance of five hundred to a thousand miles?

What are we going to do with our children who are demanding even better advantage than we had?

Those cities we help to build return no favours; they take our money but offer no credit in time of need. If we want high schools, etc., we must raise the money and build near our farm homes, or send our boys and girls to the cities at great expense, admist temptations of which the farm has no equal. Neither am I the only awakening farmer. These mail order agents that come to our homes ever week are becoming a nuisance and making it unsafe to leave women and children alone on the farm. With farm cordiality we take these strangers into our homes, often as one of the family, and we are sometimes paid in having them entice our girls to the city.

These are some facts that need consideration, and I have decided that the safest proposition all around, is for the country people to look after their own interests, and build up their own country towns that bring value to their farms. Let those who want to patronize the city mail order houses go there to live, getting their living where they give patronage. The reminder of my life will be given to building up the home town that I helped to pull down. Brother farmers, you can take my advice or get your knowledge the way I got mine.

REPUBLICANS WIN MAINE.

"As Maine Goes, So the Nation," Is the Republican Prophecy.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 13.—Maine is back in the Republican fold with what on the face of returns from 93 per cent. of her voting precincts showed a Republican majority of about 12,000 in the election. The Republications were apparently completely victorious in Governatorial, Senatorial and Congressional. But whether or not Maine's vote can be taken as "pointing the way" to what will happen in November was a disputed point among politicians — because the Republican majority wasn't nearly what it used to be in the old days of Frye and Hale, and this despite the fact that the total vote will probably be the largest ever recorded in the Pine Tree State. The Republicans were jubilant because the issues of the campaign were almost exclusively national, and because Senator Charles F. Johnson, running on his record as a Wilson Democrat and supported by the entire strength of the Democratic Administration, was defeated by a Progressive prodigal who returned to the G.O.P. fold, Frederick Hale, son of former Senator Eugene Hale.

For All Complexion Ills

If the skin is colorless, sallow, muddy, over-red, blotchy, or freckled, nothing will so surely overcome the condition as ordinary mercolised wax. It literally takes off a bad complexion—absorbs the dead and near-dead particles of surface skin, gently, gradually, causing no inconvenience at all. A new complexion is then in evidence, clear, spotless, delicately soft and beautiful. One ounce of this wax, procurable at any drugstore, will rejuvenate even the worst complexion. It is used like cold cream.

SOCIETY GIRL BECOMES COAL SALESWOMAN

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 12.—Originality in all things had been the distinguishing feature of Miss Emilie Maffitt Cabanne, one of the most popular and attractive of last season's debutantes, and when she chose to enter the commercial world, three weeks ago, her friends chuckled over her occupation.

She became a coal saleswoman!

Miss Cabanne is the youngest of the eleven children of the late Sarpy Carr Cabanne, scion of one of St. Louis' first families, and herself the fifth direct descendant of Pierre Laclede, one of the city's founders.

As a saleswoman of coal for the Edward Devoy Coal Company for the last three weeks, she has succeeded remarkably well.

The idea of being a purveyor of coal for public consumption was her own. Making pin money in original ways is a popular pursuit among the younger society set, but all her friends agree that Miss Cabanne struck on the most remunerative and the most unique method yet divulged.

After she discussed her plan with friends she called on Devoy and he agreed to pay her 25 cents a ton commission on all the coal she sold. Miss Cabanne made a list from the blue book and started out, on the telephone and in person, to solicit orders.

One banker who received the card, "Miss Cabanne," and met in the ante-room a stylishly clad, charming young woman whom he had seen before at evening parties and country club dances, was astunded when she said to him:

"I'm not here to ask you a favour, but to do something for you, if you'll let me. I want to sell you your winter's supply of coal!"

Miss Cabanne is a graduate of the Sacred Heart Convent, of Montreal. She has spent much time with her brother, W. Christy Cabanne, a motion picture director, Los Angeles, Cal., and with her sister, Mrs. Austin Allen Parker, wife of Captain Parker, at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

HOT WATER THE BEST LIVER AND BOWEL MEDICINE

Says Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast Washes Poisons From System.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard to health and appearance.

THE GERMAN THIRD LINE OF DEFENCE CAPTURED

THE ITALIANS JOIN THE BALKAN OFFENSIVE

The New French Drive Results In the Capture of Bouchavesnes

Great Attack Which Began Yesterday Afternoon Has Achieved Gains of the Greatest Importance--.German Third Line of Defences Between Combles and Peronne is All in the Hands of the French--Allied Offensive in Balkans is Continuing Successfully.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

PARIS (French Official), September 13.—Continuing their great drive on the front of Combles and Peronne, the French last night captured the whole of the Village of Bouchavesnes, midway between Combles and Peronne, despite the Germans' most desperate resistance, it was officially announced to-day. Early this morning the French pushed further eastward, capturing the Bois Labe Farm near the Peronne-Bapaume-Bethune highway, by a brilliant bayonet charge.

The French gains in the great attack that began yesterday afternoon are of the greatest importance. The positions carried are the last of the strongly fortified German third line of defense between Combles and Peronne. All the positions now held by the Germans back of this line have been built under the unceasing fire of the French artillery and consequently are not nearly so strong as the old lines.

Italians Are Now Fighting In Balkans

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, September 13.—Italian troops have joined in the general Allied offensive in Greece and are fighting near Butkovodruma, it was officially announced to-day.

Despite heavy Bulgarian resistance, the Serbians are continuing their advance. They have occupied an important position north of Covil and are advancing toward Kaitmatchalad. South of Ostrovo Lake the French made an important advance. The Allied artillery is bombarding enemy positions on both sides of the Vardar.

Enemy Attempts Were Unsuccessful

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, September 13.—The Austro-Germans made unsuccessful attempts yesterday to take the offensive on the Halitz front by crossing the Bistritza River near Jerupol, it was officially announced to-day. In the Carpathians, the enemy made several vain attacks on heights recently captured by the Russians in the upper course of the Czarny-Czeremosz River. The Russian fleet successfully bombarded enemy trawlers in Irben Straits.

French Capture Town From Bulgarians

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, September 13.—French troops have captured the Town of Sorovish from the Bulgarians, said an Athens despatch to the Evening News to-day.

Berlin Admits The Success of French

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, September 13.—War Office admits the French troops penetrated the Village of Bouchavesnes, between Combles and Peronne, in heavy fighting last night, but says they were repulsed in attacks near Thiaumont and Souville.

Here Is A Nice Boast From Berlin Sources

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, September 13.—The combined "grand offensive" of the Allies will be met by combined "grand defensive" of the Central Powers, who will swing to the attack when the proper time comes.

The great war council being held at the Kaiser's headquarters on the eastern front is for the purpose of unifying the direction of all military movements by the armies of the Central Powers. Since early in the war the Central Powers have acted completely in accord in their military movements, making it possible to beat off vastly superior enemy forces. That scheme of unified offense and defence will be made even more effective as the result of the present conference attended by war chiefs of the four empires waging on the Allies.

Most favourable reports were brought to the war council from the different fronts.

New Turn In The Grecian Crisis

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, September 13.—The Greek Cabinet crisis took a new turn to-day after King Constantine had accepted the resignation of Premier Zaimis, said a Central News despatch from Athens to-night. Zaimis finally yielded to the persuasions of his friends and withdrew the resignation with the King's consent. He will reform the Cabinet with new Ministers of War and Interior, supposedly of pro-Ally sympathies.

Russians Score in the Carpathians

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, September 12.—While a complete lull marks the situation on the whole Russian front from the Baltic to Southern Galicia, the Russians are vigorously pushing their offensive in the Carpathians. They occupied during the last 24 hours a ridge north of Kapul mountain, taking 913 prisoners, including 13 officers, according to the Russian War Office statement. Several heights near the Bisly Esbermosh River also fell to the Moscovites.

MRS. JOHN TROMBLEY CLAIMS $10,000 FROM CITY IN HIGH COURT

Fell on Simcoe Street Last February and Attributes Accident to Negligence of the City

HEARD ON TUESDAY

Ten thousand dollars damages, with costs, is the claim of Mrs. John Trombley against the city of Peterborough, in a civil action which will be heard on Tuesday next, by Mr. Justice Latchford, in the Jury Sessions of the High Court.

On February 8th last plaintiff fell on Simcoe street, in front of Haskill's barber shop, and in her statement of claim avers that she tripped on an iron pipe that projected above the sidewalk. In the resulting fall she broke her left hip. The pipe is said to have been part of a water works system.

The city replies that Mrs. Trombley fell on an icy part of the sidewalk, that at the time she was wearing neither rubbers or overshoes and that the accident was due to her own and not the city's negligence. Mr. John R. Corkery is counsel for the plaintiff, and City Solicitor Gordon is defending.

Report On The Water Supply

Dr. Amys, Medical Officer of Health Is Still of the Opinion That the Water Should Be Boiled

Dr. C. H. Amys, Medical Officer of Health, is still of the opinion that the water should be boiled before using. At a meeting of the Board of Health held yesterday afternoon in the committee room of the City Hall, Dr. Amys submitted a report relative to the city's water supply. The report indicated the presence in the water of bacilli in varying quantities. At the intake one hundred and eighty colonies of bacilli were found in the water. After the water had passed through the pumping station and been treated to chlorine the number of bacilli was reduced to eight, whereas samples taken from the main downtown showed that the bacilli had increased to thirty-four colonies indicating that the effects of the chlorine had been somewhat dissipated by the passage of this water through the a report aroundour battalion that he more favourable, according to the Medial Officer of Health than the previous one.

"What would the consequences of drinking the water without boiling it be?" inquired Mayor Duffus, who was at the meeting.

"You would run a danger of getting typhoid fever," replied Dr. Amys.

Will Study Law In Peterborough

Miss Enid Grace Gordon, Sister of Mr. G. N. Gordon, of This City, Will Enter the Legal Profession

TORONTO, Sept. 13.— Miss Enid Grace Gordon is the Toronto member of the quartet of women to enter Osgoode Hall this year to begin their first year at law. Miss Gordon is the daughter of Mr. J. W. Gordon, 412 Markham street, Toronto, a retired barrister. She is a former student of Victoria College and will spend this year in the office of her brother, G. N. Gordon, city solicitor of Peterborough. In answer to the question, "Why are you going o take up law?" Miss Gordon says: "It is a wonderful profession. It seems so fine that it is at last open to women, that I couldn't resist the opportunity to take it up."

The Y. M. C. A. And The Boys At The Front

The illustration shows a Y. M. C. A. depot at the front. It contains games and plenty of conveniences for writing letters. Major Harry Frost of Peterborough, speaking recently in Trinity Church, told how deeply the soldiers at the front appreciate the chances to gather in centres like this and how earnestly they join in the songs and services that are held. A large proportion of the senior membership of the Y. M. C. A. of Peterborough is now at the front. Letters sent home from many of them show how they appreciate these conveniences. Major Frost and Captain Allan Pearson of Peterborough are to speak on the work of the Y. M. C. A. is doing at the front, next Sunday afternoon at a public meeting to be held at 4:15 in the Grand Opera House.

LINDSAY, Sept. 13.—Capt. J. J. Glass has received a telegram from the Militia Department at Ottawa, notifying him that the new battalion had been authorized for Victoria and Haliburton and that he had been appointed its commander. Captain Glass is in Kingston to-day in connection with the new organization.

Further information is expected as to whether the new battalion is to be confined to Victoria and Haliburton counties solely, or whether the recruiting area is to be extended. It will be remembered that Captain Glass was given six months' leave of absence without pay some time ago, as local Customs officer, in order that he might assist in recruiting for the 109th Battalion. A further leave of absence for an indefinite period under the same conditions for military service has now been obtained and this will enable Captain Glass to devote his whole time to raising the new battalion and going overseas with same.

Captain Glass is well and favourably known throughout the two counties, and his selection as chief officer in connection with the recruiting of the new battalion is a most popular one.

Pte. Willie McKinlay, a Peterborough members of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, in recent letters to his mother, gives some interesting information about Peterborough soldiers:

In one letter he says:

I forgot to tell you that I regret to say that Dick Lindsey was killed in action last week, August 17th. He was out fixing a barb wire when a bullet entered his chest. I believe it went into his heart. I don't know much about his death as he was away from the battalion. He was with the brigade wirers. Dick was well liked by all the boys. His death is felt by them all, and I am sorry for his dear mother. Kindly extend my heartfelt sympathy to her. She is to be pitied for the blow she has sustained by such a loss. It was the talk of the whole battalion among all the old boys. He was a good soldier and died doing his duty. I will try and find out more about his death for his dear mother's sake. It makes me feel sad to write about it.

In another letter, Pte. McKinley writes:

"I was so pleased to hear that the Peterborough boys were turning up. About Lieut. Harry Rogers, there was a report around our battalion that he was found in an old trench after the fight. Most of our battalion believed it and words cannot explain how pleased I was to hear he was safe. I trust it will be true. He was a fine man, one of the boys always. At first I heard he was wounded, then told he was carried out safe passed through the dressing station, then he was missing. I know the Germans came over and took the strong point he was holding. Some of the boys who got out wounded, said he was a great officer, going up and down the trench to see if they were all safe and to keep them in good cheer. All the boys loved him and would have done anything for him.

A cable from England to-day announces that Capts. J. H. Eastwood, J. M. Bygott and W. C. Thompson, and Lieuts. N. C. Hatton and A. R. Stevenson of the 93rd Battalion, have been successful in passing field officers' examination in England.

Capt. J. M. Thomson, the newly appointed paymaster of the 247th Battalion, has arrived in the city and is now on duty at the Armouries. Capt. Thomson was a resident of Peterborough some ten years ago.

The 247th are making arrangements for a recruiting campaign during the Peterborough Exhibition.

EVERYTHING IS READY FOR THE EXHIBITION

FIRST PETERBORO' DOCTOR TO APPEAR ON CASUALTY LIST

Capt. Burritt E. Kelly Officially Reported Wounded on September 7th But Cable Says That He Is Remaining on Duty

WITH MEDICAL SERVICES

A cable has been received to the effect that Capt. Burritt Kelly, of the medical service, was wounded in France on September 7th, but remaining at duty, so that it is evident that his injuries are not serious. Capt. Kelly is the first Peterborough physician to appear on the casualty list. He has been overseas since early last year. Dr. Kelly's many friends will be glad to learn that he was not seriously hurt.

Company Takes Responsibility

No Investigation Necessary in Quebec Bridge Case

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 13.—The Government here has received a communication from the St. Lawrence Bridge Co., stating that the company takes full responsibility for the failure of the work of connecting the two cantilevers of the Quebec bridge with the central span and for the loss of the big span. The company states that it will bear all the loss, and that it will recommence the new span at an early date. It will thus be unnecessary for the Government to hold an investigation.

LINDSAY DRUGGISTS AND PROHIBITION

LINDSAY, Sept. 12.—A meeting of the Lindsay retail druggists was held on Monday to consider the new regulations, affecting their business in connection with the dispensing of liquor after Sept. 16th.

The situation was discussed at all angles, and the druggists decided to conform with the provisions with a view to testing their efficiency.

Bulgarians Were Remanded Until Thursday Morning

Nick Jamieson, a Greek; Elic Knetsorff, V. Koopoof, M. Restoof, and Christy Christoof, Bulgarians, who are being held at the jail, charged with a breach of the Alien Enemy Act, were remanded by Magistrate D. A. Langley until to-morrow morning. They departed from Montreal without reporting to the authorities, came to Havelock for several days, and were leaving that place when they were arrested.

Ingersoll Collected Poll Tax From Strikers

INGERSOLL, Sept. 13.—Foreigners who had been engaged in street construction here, and who went on strike on Saturday, found the Chief of Police equal to the emergency. Chief Rutherford had previously given attention to the matter of poll tax, and, with the aid of garnishees, he collected from a number of the strikers the $5 poll tax and $1.80 costs in each case. When the men had made payment they were told to leave the town, which they did, part of them going to Toronto and Hamilton.

Entries Are Splendid and Midway Attractions Greater Than Ever--A Wealth of Amusement Features For Peterboro's Big Fair.

HARDY'S GREAT ACT

Peterborough's big Exhibition gets under way to-morrow ,athough for the pubic it does not begin until Friday. Directors and officials however, have been busy for the past few days in getting everything in shape for the opening and the Exhibition Grounds is the scene of great activity to-day. Already many tents have been erected and from present indications all previous exhibitions will be surpassed. Entries are good, while the midway will be bigger than ever. Among the big attractions along the Midway will be Hadji, the horse with the human brain. This wonderful animal has been with Ringling Bros., Barnum and Bailey's, and Hagenback's circuses, and no doubt will attract a great deal of attention.

THE KING OF THE WIRE.

As already announced by the management of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, a contract has been secured with James E. Hardy, the "High Wire Expert," who has attained world-wide fame by his extraordinary performances on a tight-wire stretched over the Niagara Whirlpool Rapids. He has been secured under special arrangements, and will give his performances in front of the grand stand at the Exhibition grounds, this week.

Hardy not only won fame at Niagara, but he has performed over the most famous gorges in America and Europe. There are very few people who have not heard of James E. Hardy. He has been entertaining the public in all parts of the world for over twenty years, during which time he has gained an enviable reputation as the most wonderful aerial performer the world has yet produced. This is not merely because the numerous feats which compose his act are of an exceptionally daring and sensational character, but also because of the remarkable gracefulness which he displays in their execution — a characteristic which commends his act to the most fastidious spectator.

Hardy's feats are full of originality and his performance must be seen to be fully realized. No other aerial performer has ever approached Hardy, in his daring and amusing antics in mid-air. Just as the trapese performer who stands on the top rung of his professional ladder has out-climbed the performer of thirty years ago, in a matter of artistic grace and skill, so has Hardy made his work more graceful and artistic, bringing it into the category of a scientific performance.

Hardy's act is one of which the public never tire no matter how often they go to see it, because of the introduction of something new at almost every performance. No other aerial attraction presented to the public is so full of original stunts, and possibly no other mid-air performance can be witnessed which arouses greater interest than the one which James E. Hardy puts on. It really is an artistic display of skillful, graceful and sensational achievements, agreeably relieved by a plentiful supply of funny and amusing features which commend it to old and young alike.

Poultry Exhibit Large.

Secretary Hall stated this morning that the poultry exhibit promises to be a record one. Mr. Harry Rush already has the largest individual exhibit in the history of the Fair, and the Bottrells of Bowmanville, who are always prominent exhibitors of poultry, have a larger entry than before. Mr. George Buller has a quite entry although not so numerous as the other two.

The Flower Display.

The flower tent is filling up fast, and it is believed that this feature will show an advance over last year's excellent exhibit. Jordan Bros. are arranging a beautiful display, the Peterborough Floral Company will have a special exhibit and Mr. Callander is considering a grand display of ferns.

New Exhibitors.

A gratifying feature of the entries received up to the present is the presence of many new exhibitors. This gives a promise of more numerous exhibits and keener competition for the prize money.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 13, 1916

THE MAINE ELECTION.

The elections in Maine have gone Republican, and this is regarded as a hint to President Wilson to step down and out :that is if there is any real significance in the saying that "as Maine goes so goes the union." Last presidential election Wilson carried this nominally Republican state for the Democrats owing to the split in the Republican party. But in that election Wilson would have been down a good many thousand votes if the Republican vote had gone solid, as evidently did in the recent Maine elections, the real significant portent of the coming result. If the Republican and Progressive vote go as solidly together all over the United States as they have done in Maine, President Wilson will be ex-president; for the joint vote of these two parts of the Republican party in the last presidential election, was about a million and a half ahead of the total vote polled for Wilson. Whether the vote of the women will help Wilson or not is to be considered. It is said that the number of women in the United States, with votes, is about 4 million. If the present president captures these or only half of them he may stand a chance. He has declared in favour of woman suffrage. The fact of Candidate Hughes taking to kissing babies may, however, offset the promise of votes for women. This may seem frivolous, but when the effect of one of the smaller states going to one side or other influences, or is held to influence, the general result, the fact of a diplomatic distribution of osculation is not to be despised as a vote winning factor.

THE QUEBEC BRIDGE.

The collapse of the completing section of the great Quebec bridge is a calamity, especially in the attendant loss of life, which is the real essence of the disaster. But the collapse is only an incident, not an insuperable obstacle. It is not yet settled as to what was the real cause of the collapse. If it was structural defect it is not surprising in a onstruction of such immense weight as 5,200 tons, more than a hundred thousand pounds. It would be surprising that with the multiplicity of parts there should not be some defective member. Its own dead weight, without central support, one would think would be enough to cause the collapse. But the disaster will not prevent the completion of the bridge, and its lessons will doubtless serve well in the rebuilding of the centre span, as the lessons of the first fall ---of the first fall of the cantilever--led to reconstruction that has proven, under the severest test, to have been done on the right principle. The immense cantilever arms thrust out from the shore and overhanging the river, have stood the strain of a test infinitey more tremendous than any possible strain that could be put upon them as a part of the completed bridge. There is no doubt that the central span was elevated some distance (about ten feet some say) from the water, and that for an hour the whole dead weight of 5,200 tons rested upon the cantilever arms, and each arm stood rigid and intact under the strain, each arm carrying safely over 2,000 tons. If engineering and construction skill can devise and build cantilever arms to stand such a test, then they should both be equal to the lesser task of devising and building a central connecting span that will bear its own weight and devise better means of hoisting it into position. It is to be remembered that the construction of a bridge of the immense length and character of this bridge is an unprecedented undertaking, and that, without experience to guide the builders it would be natural to expect trouble and mistake and failure. But there has, so far, been shown no failure of the principle; the failure consists in a mere detail—putting the work together. It is certain that the work will go on. The cantilever arms are there to stay, and the rebuilding of the central span is a comparatively easy matter, the one that went down being built in about three months. Meantime great minds can be busy in correcting faults of construction, if there were any, and devising effective means of placing the central span, such means to include provision for safeguarding the life of the warkmen, and preventing repetition of, or addition to, the deplorable loss of life that the bridge, so far, has cost. Canada has done many large things in construction, and her credit is bound up in completing the Quebec bridge, which, when it is completed, as it surely will be, will be an unique monument of its kind to the courage, skill and enterprise of the people of Canada.

OUR DEBT TO THE WHITE ENSIGN

Had it not been for "the impregnable wall of triple steel," the war would have been over before this. Germany would have triumphed; humiliating terms of peace would have been signed. We and the Dominions, and, indeed, our Allied and the neutral world, owe much to British seapower. Whatever may be Germany's naval policy now that Grand Admiral von Tirpitz, the chief pirate, has gone, the debt of the civilized peoples in both hemispheres to the officers and men who serve under the White Ensign will not be lessened as the months pass which separate us from our inevitable victory.—London Telegraph.

DE WET REDEEMED.

By coming into court at Bloemfontein and giving evidence against two South African Nationalists, charged with high treason, Gen. De Wet has proved himself a loyal Britisher at last, and has amply justified the leniency shown him by the British Government when he was convicted of a similar crime to that for which these two men are on trial.

Gen. De Wet was sentenced to pay a fine of $10,000, and spend six years in prison, but was freed after a comparatively short time. This treatment, probably coupled with the fact that he now sees how wrong is Germany's cause and how mistaken was his effort to assist it, has apparently had its desired effect in bringing him into the fold to join the other Boers who are proud to-day to be fighting under the Union Jack.

The two accused men, Van der Merwe and Schonken, are said to have approached a number of Boer leaders, including De Wet, with a scheme to foment another uprising. The General says they told him that large stores of rifles were available, and that certain other generals would lead the revolt.

It is altogether likely that there are large stores of munitions hidden in the country, by German agents, and that trouble could be caused were it not for the loyalty of the majority of Boers. This loyalty has emerged from hatred and distrust because of the treatment accorded them by Britain, and is of the kind that no German persuasion will affect.

The African war is drawing to a close, and there are said to be plenty of men on the ground to strike the finishing blow at the Germans. Had this not been the case, the world might easily have witnessed the striking spectacle of Gen De Wet offering his service to the British to help capture Germany's last colony —London Advertiser.

THE POSITION OF HOLLAND IN THIS WAR

A foreign diplomat, probably a German, is reported as complaining irritably that "the Dutch are pro-Dutch." This is a frame of mind that no German could understand. He expects every German on earth to be pro-German also. The Dutch do not love the Germans and naturally do not trust them, but they have no objection to making money out of them. They were reaping a great harvest in the early days of the war by serving as a back door to Germany, and in that way were seriously weakening the effectiveness of the British blockade. In March, 1915, the British Government declared that the Declaration of London was rescinded and declared that no commodities of any kind from overseas were to be allowed to enter Germany.

The Dutchman seldom gets angry. He can fight, and will fight when it suits him, but he will kill his enemy courteously and good-naturedly. For many years Germany has been his principal market, 44 per cent. of his exports going to Prussia and 22 per cent. to Great Britain. Of his imports 27 per cent. come from Prussia and 8 per cent. from Great Britain. The Netherlands is a Free Trade country, and it imported and exported great quantities of iron, steel, copper, zinc, cereals, flour, textiles and other things of which Germany stood in great need through the blockade. The temptation to sell to the Germans at war prices must have been very great. The country was overrun with German buyers, who did a great business until the British Order-in-Council was passed forbidding re-exportation to Germany.

Naturally, the result was a great boom in the smuggling industry, and naturally the effect of this boom was to force the British Government to draw the strings so tight that the Netherlands itself was practically blockaded. Fortunately the Dutch had a commission known as the Netherlands Oversea Trust, in the honour and integrity of which the British and French Governments had complete confidence. This Trust undertook to be responsible for imported goods not going into Germany, and Holland produces so little in the way of raw material that practically its products are not sufficient for its own requirements. No doubt there is some smuggling going on, but the Dutch Government has a very substantial reason for preventing it as far as possible. The loss of the German market is made up for to some extent by an increased trade with England in butter, meat, eggs, vegetables and fruit.—Montreal Herald.

Dry Weather Caused Loss To U.S. Crops

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Hot and dry weather during August caused a loss of 67,000,000 bushels in the prospective production of corn; 43,000,000 bushels in the spring wheat crop; 43,000,000 bushels in oats, and 46,000,000 bushels in potatoes. Tobacco production prospects increased 27,000,000 pounds.

The condition of the corn crop September 1, was 71.3 per cent. normal, as against 78.8 on September 1, 1915. This condition forecasts a yield per acre of 24.9 bushels against 28.2 in 1915. A total production of 2,710,000,000 bushels is forecasted against an August forecast of 2,777,000,000 and a 1915 production of 3,055,000,000 bushels.

Price per bushel on September 1st was 83.6 cents, against 77.3 last year.

The condition of the oat crop on September 1 was 78 per cent of normal, as against 81.5 on August 1. This condition forecast a yield per acre, 30.8 bushels, as against 37.8 in 1915. A total production of 1,231,000,000 of bushels is forecast, against an August forecast of 1,274,000,000 and a 1915 production of 1,540,000,000 bushels. Price of oats September 1st was 43.1 cents per bushel, against 38.5 September 1, 1915.

Barley Crop.

The condition of the barley crop was 74.6 per cent of normal, against 94.2 September 1, 1915. This forecasts a total production of 194,000,000 bushels, against 237,000,000 in 1915. The price was 72.9 cents per bushel, against 51.9 cents September 1st, 1915.

The condition of the tobacco crop was 85.5 per cent of normal, against 80.7 September 1, 1915. This forecasts a total production of 1,224,000,000 pounds, against 1,061,000,000 pounds in 1915.

A preliminary estimate on the total prodution of hay (tame) is 86,200,000 tons, against 85,200,000 tons in 1915. Price of hay on September 1, was $10.42 per ton, against $10.80 September 1, 1915.

The condition of the cotton crop August 25, was 61.2 per cent normal, against 69.2, August 25, 1915. This forecasts a total production of 11,800,000 bales, against 11,200,000 bales in 1915. Price of cotton on September 1, was 14.6 cents per pound, against 8.5 cents September 1.

MUST REMAIN SOBER FOR FIVE YEARS TO SHARE IN ESTATE

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 12.—Vincent Kerens, son of the late Richard C. Kerens, capitalist and former ambassador to Austria-Hungary, who died last Monday in Merion, Pa., must stay sober five consecutive years and prove it if he is to obtain control of his share of his father's estate. This is provided in the will of the elder Kerens filed in the Probate Court here. The value of the estate has been estimated at $5,000,000.

Under the will another son, Richard C. Kerens, jr., is to receive $6,000 a year from the income of a $200,000 trust fund established for his benefit. For six grandchildren trust fund of $50,000 is set aside for each.

In speaking of Vincent the will says:

"If at any time during the lifetime of my said soon he shall of his own free will and desire have passed five consecutive years of continued sobriety and good behavior, and shall have established such fact by proof to the satisfaction of the trustee, then said trustee shall pay over to him all of the trust property and the trust shall be terminated."

The will also provides that Vincent shall pay $450 a month to his wife, which leaves him $50 a month of the $500 a month given him under the will. If he fails to pay the required amount to his wife the trustee is directed to pay it from the trust fund, it being understood that the wife is to receive her payments before any money is paid to her husband.

If he does not fulfil the sobriety requirements of the will his share of the estate will revert at his death to his two sisters.

RAILS GOING TO ALLIES.

Berwindale, Twice Attacked by U-Boats, to take First Contingent.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 12.—Part of an order for 200,000 tons of steel rails for State roads in France and army railways for the Allies on European battlefields, will leave Baltimore on Thursday for England on board the British steamship Berwindale, now loading at Sparrow's Point. The rails were made by the Bethlehem Steel Company.

The Berwindale's cargo will be about 8,000 tons, and her master, Captain Williams, will put to sea with full knowledge of the fact that the ship's weight will be a great handicap in dodging German submarines. On the trip to Baltimore from Liverpool only the fact that she had no cargo and was able to attain great speed on a zigzag course enabled her to get away from pursuing U-boats. That craft and possibly others will be waiting off the Irish Coast for her return.

She has not always escaped submarine attacks. In her sides now are the scars of a torpedo that tore through her hull last March when she was bound for Liverpool from America with 8,000 tons of grain. Her nearness to port and her air-tight compartments saved her.

WAR LOAN

DOMINION OF CANADA

As with the previous Loan, we predict a great success for this issue. During this period of stress our Government needs our help and counts upon our patriotism. But a chance is given investors of placing their money in securities of the highest grade, upon terms the liberality of which will, perhaps, not be fully realized until the return of normal times.

If this Loan were issued to yield 4½%, instead of about 5 1/3 %, the price would be 105.41, instead of 97.50. A 4% yield (the basis on which Dominion Government bonds sold so recently as 1914) would mean a price of 111 for the present issue.

Highway Accidents and How Best to Avoid Them

(By Francis M. Hugo)

The subject of accidents upon the public highway, always an interesting one, has for some time past been receiving much attention. Of course, any kind of locomotion, whether by land or sea or in the air, has its peculiar dangers, but as the public highway is so intimately and continuously connected with everyone's life, accidents upon it receive the largest share of attention.

To begin with, every good driver upon the road, whether of horses or motor cars, should thoroughly grasp the fundamental fact that the pedestrian has in some places greater rights, in others an equal, and in still others an inferior right on the roads in relation to wheeled traffic, and he is supposed to take reasonable care of himself and to see that he does not recklessly endanger himself and others.

There are dangers which the motor car driver incurs every time he travels along a highway which are not in the nature of common ones. As generally understood, common dangers, for instance, include the chance of collision with other vehicles at cross roads, of skidding on a slippery pavement, and many other well-known risks, which vary according to the traffic, the condition of the road and weather, and many other circumstances which need not be considered here.

The driver of a motor car, however, who aspires to a clean record in the matter of accidents has to be more than ordinarily alert. He has to exercise in a special degree the quality of forethought and train himself to calculate before hand what is likely to happen under certain circum tances which may, at first sight, appear unlikely.

When Overtaking Vehicles.

A danger to which vehicles meeting and overtaking are especially liable occurs when small children are holding the rear end of wagons. Talking at the top of their voices, these young folks often lose sight of the fact that other vehicles may be overs taking and passing them. A boy, perhaps, drops his cap and suddeny relinquishes his hold to recover it. At that moment, perhaps, another vehicle is passing, and before anything can be done, or without any blame being attributable to the driver, the lad is knocked down and injured.

Of course, in such a case the fault lies primarily with the child. But motorists must treat children in all cases as irresponsible and careless. When children's feet are seen underneath a vehicle to which they are clinging caution should be exercised and either an extra wide space allowed when passing or the motor car slow down to such an extent that an instant stop can be made.

Accidents are reported from time to time as happening to deaf, old and infirm people, who, while out walking probably in the middle of the road, have not been able to hear the warning of horses' hoofs or the motor horns; in such cases they are often run over and perhaps killed. These are accidents hard to avoid because one cannot presume that every pedestrian is deaf. Those whose hearing or eyesight is impaired are always in incalculable danger on the highways, not only to themselves, but to others. More lives may be endangered in trying to avoid an accident at the last moment than would be involved if the risk of collision with the one deaf person was incurred.

The fact is that in these days of rapid and constant locomotion the highway has become a very dangerous place for those not in possession of their full faculties in every sense. For nearly sixty years past, that is from about 1890 to 1900, the main highways were more and more deserted, the railways taking the whole of the long and a great portion of the short distance traffic. Now, however, the use of the road is being revived, and it is just as dangerous to allow infirm and deaf people to stray about upon the highways as it would be to allow them to walk about in the vicinity of the railroad tracks.

Horses a Danger Source.

Another form of risk on the highways, which is not sufficiently appreciated by many motorists, is that which is always present when ridden or led horses are concerned. Such animals nearly always display unaccountable tendencies to turn sideways toward passing vehicles, blocking up the greater part of the road, and it is safer when the driver of a motor car, observing a nervous or a high-spirited animal, to stop altogether so that in case of accident no blame may rest upon the motorist.

It is foolish, of course, to imagine that the dangers of the road can be entirely eliminated or that any form of locomotion can become absolutely safe as regards other users of the highways, but mental alertness while driving a motor car upon the public roads has become more and more essential if the driver would be a true master of his craft; and the maxim that it is "The unexpected that often happens" should always be present in the minds of the drivers. Foresight and caution are in the case of many well-known and good drivers natural gifts, but the stupidest motorist can acquire the habits of cultivating these two features by setting his mind to do so.

As regards the general public, the widespread ignorance and apathy as to the rules of the road is one of the most unsatisfactory features manifested on our highways to-day. When one motorist encounters, as he will inevitably do, nearly one-third of the vehicular traffic upon the wrong side of the road, he must not allow himself to become irritated at the apparent deliberate perversity of the average driver of slow vehicles.

A remedy for this almost universal breaking of the rules of the road, which is not only a desirable, but practical reform, would seem to lie in the teaching of the rules of the road and the dangers of the traffic in every elementary school. A dozen or so simple rules, illustrated by diagrams, would in a very few lessons teach the best way of avoiding the undoubtedly increasing dangers of the highways. While the pedestrian has certain special rights, there is no reason to believe that the majority of those who walk are so intolerant and selfish as to wish to cause unnecessary danger to vehicular traffic. It is true, therefore, that if schools of every description taught their pupils the ordinary rules of the road, many accidents would be thereby averted and much of the chaos, risk and disorder in our traffic would be cured.

SLAIN AT 68, A LIEUTENANT

HENRY WEBBER'S THREE SONS OUTRANKED HIM IN THE BRITISH ARMY.

London, Sept. 12.—One of the British officers who fell in the advance on the Somme was Lieut. Henry Webber of the South Lancashire Regiment, aged 68 years. But despite his years he was the youngest subaltern of them all in spirits. He was a Tonbridge school boy half a century ago, and a fortnight before he was killed he write this letter to the only assistant master left on the staff who knew him as a boy:

I know that the doing of old Tonbridgians are sometimes interesting to the present generation, so it occurs to me to write you a line.

Fifty one years ago I got my colors in the eleven, and last week fifty one years ago I was bowling against the Old Boys, and looking on some of them as "sitters," and in the "sere and yellow leaf," and here am I a Lieutenant in His Majesty's army, and having to salute three sons if I meet them out here, a Colonel and two Majors.

I am first line transport officer to this battalion, and we have been plumb in the centre of the picture during the last ten days and gained no end of kudos, and also a very severe mauling. We have been resting for a week and refitting and are at them again to-morrow.

I am so far extraordinarily fit and well, and though when I tell you that for four consecutive days I was either on my feet or in the saddle for 21 hours out of the 24, you will see that there is a bit of work attached to it.

Our boys were simply splendid and now after a rest, they are as keen as—well as a schoolboy to be put on to bowl.

WAR LOAN

DOMINION OF CANADA

Issue of $100,000,000 5% Bonds Maturing 1st October, 1931.

PAYABLE AT PAR AT

INTEREST PAYABLE HALF-YEARLY, 1st APRIL, 1st OCTOBER.
PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST PAYABLE IN GOLD.

ISSUE PRICE 97½

A FULL HALF-YEAR'S INTEREST WILL BE PAID ON 1st APRIL, 1917.

THE PROCEEDS OF THE LOAN WILL BE USED FOR WAR PURPOSES ONLY.

THE MINISTER OF FINANCE offers herewith, on behalf of the Government, the above named Bonds for subscription at 97½, payable as follows:—

10 per cent on application;
30 " " 16th October, 1916;
30 " " 15th November, 1916;
27½ " " 15th December, 1916.

The total allotment of bonds of this issue will be limited to one hundred million dollars exclusive of the amount (if any) paid for by the surrender of bonds as the equivalent of cash under the terms of the War Loan prospectus of 22nd November, 1915.

The instalments may be paid in full on the 16th day of October, 1916, or on any instalment due date thereafter, under discount at the rate of four per cent per annum. All payments are to be made to a chartered bank for the credit of the Minister of Finance. Failure to pay any instalment when due will render previous payments liable to forfeiture and the allotment to cancellation.

Subscriptions, accompanied by a deposit of ten per cent of the amount subscribed, must be forwarded through the medium of a chartered bank. Any branch in Canada of any chartered bank will receive subscriptions and issue provisional receipts.

This loan is authorized under Act of the Parliament of Canada, and both principal and interest will be a charge upon the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

Forms of application may be obtained from any branch in Canada of any chartered bank and at the office of any Assistant Receiver General in Canada.

Subscriptions must be for even hundreds of dollars.

In case of partial allotments the surplus deposit will be applied towards payment of the amount due on the October instalment.

Scrip certificates, non-negotiable or payable to bearer in accordance with the choice of the applicant for registered or bearer bonds, will be issued, after allotment, in exchange for the provisional receipts.

When the scrip certificates have been paid in full and payment endorsed thereon by the bank receiving the money, they may be exchanged for bonds, when prepared, with coupons attached, payable to bearer or registered as to principal, or for fully registered bonds, when prepared, without coupons, in accordance with the application.

Delivery of scrip certificates and of bonds will be made through the chartered banks.

The issue will be exempt from taxes—including any income tax—imposed in pursuance of legislation enacted by the Parliament of Canada.

The bonds with coupons will be issued in denominations of $100, $500, $1,000. Fully registered bonds without coupons will be issued in denominations of $1,000, $5,000 or any authorized multiple of $5,000.

The bonds will be paid at maturity at par at the office of the Minister of Finance and Receiver General at Ottawa, or at the office of the Assistant Receiver General at Halifax, St. John, Charlottetown, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary, or Victoria.

The interest on the fully registered bonds will be paid by cheque, which will be remitted by post. Interest on bonds with coupons will be paid on surrender of coupons. Both cheques and coupons will be payable free of exchange at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank.

Subject to the payment of twenty-five cents for each new bond issued, holders of fully registered bonds without coupons will have the right to convert into bonds of the denomination of $1,000 with coupons, and holders of bonds with coupons will have the right to convert into fully registered bonds of authorized denominations without coupons at any time on application to the Minister of Finance.

The books of the loan will be kept at the Department of Finance, Ottawa.

Application will be made in due course for the listing of the issue on the Montreal and Toronto Stock Exchanges.

Recognised bond and stock brokers will be allowed a commission of one-quarter of one per cent on allotments made in respect of applications bearing their stamp, provided, however, that no commission will be allowed in respect of the amount of any allotment paid for by the surrender of bonds issued under the War Loan prospectus of 22nd November, 1915. No commission will be allowed in respect of applications on forms which have not been printed by the King's Printer.

Subscription Lists will close on or before 23rd September, 1916.

Keep Bars Open Saturday Evening

Hotelkeepers Are Said to Be Planning Quick Change in Beverages

LICENSE BOARD OPPOSED

Chairman Flavelle Says Those Who Keep Bars Open Will be Ill-Advised.

TORONTO, Sept. 12.—Reports that hotelkeeprs in Toronto are preparing to do a quick shift on Saturday evening, and keep their bars open selling temperance beers, etc., after prohibition goes into force at 7 o'clock, have been brought to the attention of the Ontario License Board. That the hotelmen, if they go ahead with the plan will do so in defiance of the approval of the License Board, was indicated by Chairman Flavelle's reference to the scheme.

"While there may be nothing in the statutes to make it illegal, providing only 'temperance' liquors are sold, the hotelkeeper who keeps his bar open next Saturday evening will be exceedingly ill-advised," said Mr. Flavelle. "After Saturday the question of hours in regard to the sale of soft drinks, etc., is not important, but for obvious reasons the bars should not be kept open on the evening of the 16th. The hotelmen who values his standard hotel license at all will stay closed."

The desire of the board that the bars be not opened on Saturday evening even for the sale of soft drinks is connected with the measures being taken to guard against any "blow-out" as prohibition becomes effective. It is recognized that with temperance beer being sold over the bar it would be a difficult task to prevent illegal selling.

One weapon in the hands of the board, apart from its power to cancel standard hotel licenses, will be the section of the Ontario Temperance Act making it an offence for a hotelkeeper to keep liquor on his premises after 7 o'clock on Saturday evening. Although no assurance has come from the board it is understood that it is disposed to enforce this with judgment in order to give hotelmen a fair chance to get rid of their surplus stock outside the province. The licensee who insists on keeping open Saturday evening will have to make very sure of the fact that all intoxicating liquor is away from his place by 7 o'clock.

A Successful Liberal Convention At Norwood

Re-organization Effected---Officers Elected---Measures of Preparation Taken For Elections When They Come --Some Short, Pointed Speeches.

The annual convention of the Liberal Association of East Peterborough was held in the Village Hall, Norwood, yesterday afternoon, with an attendance, only fairly large, but representative of every part of the riding. The spirit of the meeting was one of onfidence in the outcome of an election contest and of determination to justify this confidence.

Dr. Munro, President, of Warsaw, occupied the chair.

Officers were elected as follows:

President---Dr. Munro, Warsaw, (re-elected).

Vice-President---John Hall, Lakefield, and Wm. Buck, Asphodel.

Secretary---W. A. Richardson, (re-elected), Norwood.

The following presidents for the several municipalities were appointed:

Lakefield, J. E. Richardson; Asphodel, John Sergeant; Otonabee, Messrs. Anderson and Easson; Dummer, Mr. E. Hawthorne; Burleigh, Duncan Brown; Chandos, D. S. Campbell; Douro, Michael Walsh; Belmont, Jno. Johnson; Havelock, Wm. Matheson; Norwood, Charles O'Reilly.

It was decided, after discussion, that the Executive, in cooperation with the Township Presidents, be entrusted with the duty of considering the names of possible candidates for both Dominion and Provincial Houses, such names to be submitted to a nominating convention to be held on a date to be fixed by the Executive.

A Few Speeches.

After the formal business was concluded and the question of thorough organization discussed, short addresses were made.

Mr. J. E. Atkinson of Toronto emphasized the fact that there never was a time when the prospects of the Liberal party, for success in both the Provincial and Dominion fields of parliamentary representation were brighter. Ineffective leadership and other causes had disorganized the government party; in the Dominion the party was led on a policy or practice of "passive resistance," with the result that the management of this whole war had been marked by inefficiency, extravagance and an indiffrence to the success of the war, due perhaps to the malign influence of Nationalism in the Cabinet Councils. The disastrous handling of our industries by the Government in the matter of munitions supply had resulted in a condition that was a source of grave concern to the Imperial Government, whose strategy in the field, was based on the regular supply of munitions corresponding to the tabulated anticipation. The evils of the patronage system were tellingly pointed out.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., congratulated the convention upon its militant spirit and pledged his cooperation in a joint endeavour to carry East Peterborough and hold West Peterborough in the coming elections.

Mr. F. D. Kerr brought out the fact that in the war Canadians had, in spite of the discredit brought upon their name by war graft and official indiffrence and inefficiency, brought their names, and that of their country, to a high place in the esteem of the Empire and the world. That they had had to do this in the face of government inefficiency was a sad thing, but what saddened him most was the loss of lives---the lives of those near and dear to our friends and neighbours.

Mr. D. O'Connell pointed out that this war was the one great opportunity to a government of statesmen to perform a magnificent service for the country and Empire, but that their mis-management had brought disappointment and disgust to many of their own political friends. In the face of great sacrifices the people were making---spending their money and giving their sons to fight and die---the Government has permitted graft, extravagance and inefficiency, to mar the splendid record achieved and being achieved by Canadian soldiers in the field. Referring to the local political situation, he suggested and offered to exchange efforts with East Peterborough, to help bring success in both ridings.

Mr. R. R. Hall pointed out that the Government had not kept faith with the offer of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who, at the beginning of the war, had pledged himself and followers, apart from party considerations, to hearty cooperation with the government in handling the responsibility of the war. The Government had even contemplated taking advantage of the occasion to extract party profit for a general election. It had gone so far as to have the ballots printed, when Canadians in the thick of the fight in Europe, and the big casualty lists that brought mourning to thousands of Canadian homes, brought them to their senses and a realization that there was a limit to what the people would stand, in the way of playing partizan interests against the duty of Canada doing its full duty to the country, the Empire, and the cause of human freedom.

Mr. W. A. Anderson spoke of local conditions and of the necessity of getting candidates at once in the field and effecting complete organization.

Resolutions of confidence in Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. N. W. Rowell; a renewed pledge of allegiance to King George; of confidence and admiration and congratulation to the armies of Canada, at home, on the way, and at the front, and of sympathy with those who have lost relatives in the war, were passed.

The convention closed with the singing of "God Save the King" and cheers for the King and the Liberal leaders.

New Industry Is Progressing

Next Spring Hogs to the Number of Two Hundred and Fifty Will Be Established On a Farm Four Miles East of Peterboro'

The formation of a local company to raise hogs on alfalfa is progressing. Mr. Hanlon, 450 Rogers street, who is financially interested in the movement states that a one hundred acre farm has been secured four miles east of Peterborough. Thirty acres of this farm should be suitable for the growing of alfalfa while the remainder of the farm can be used for pasture. The initial cost is about six thousand dollars. Another thousand dollars will be required to place the company on a financial footing. Shares are being issued at ten dollars each to the number of seven hundred. One hundred shares have already been disposed of. The company proposes to start in the spring with two hundred and fifty hogs and increase this number the following year to five hundred and then to one thousand.

Mr. Hanlon estimates the cost of raising a hog to a one hundred and seventy-five or two hundred pound limit at from four to five dollars. This should be an outside limit, said Mr. Hanlon. A competent man will be secured to manage the farm. It will take about six months to prepare a hog for the market.

FUNERAL TOOK PLACE THIS AFTERNOON

The funeral of the late Mr. Gordon McKee, who passed away at the home of his son, Mr. Walter McKee, in the township of North Monaghan, took place this afternoon to Little Lake cemetery. Deceased who was in his eighty-ninth year has resided in Peterborough practically all his life, where he was well known and highly respected. The service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Mitchell of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

Music & Drama

SILENT SUE.

Dainty Mollie McIntyre, well remembered as the charming Bunty in the title role of 'Bunty Pulls the Strings' paid a visit to Peterborough last night in a new vehicle, with a part unduly different from that of the little Scotch lass. In 'Silent Sue' the late star of Bunty scored heavily and last night's production was thoroughly enjoyed. "Silent Sue" is a play with some unexpected twists and climaxes and proved altogether delightful. Miss McIntyre had a splendid part as Sue, the little Cockney girl brought up as a crook who afterwards is taken into society and makes a hit there. She has the assistance of a very capable company. Ben Nathan's characterization of "Uncle Ben" leader of the crook was a fine piece of work. Algernon Greig, although his part was not a long one, made a fine impression. The other roles were in good hands.

Trees To Be Removed To Open Approaches To New Garages

Alderman McIntyre was the only absentee from last night's meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council.

Alderman Saunders moved, seconded by Alderman Duncan, that Dr. M. A. Morrison be granted permission to remove two trees from in front of his property on Park street to provide an approach to a new garage. He desired the removal of only one, but stated that both were decaying. Dr. Morrison will replace them with one young tree.

Alderman Edgar put in a similar plea in behalf of Mr. Alva Wilson, who also seeks an entry to his "jitney roost" on Wescott street.

Alderman Edgar moved, seconded by Alderman Duncan, that this tree be taken out under the supervision of the City Engineer.

Mr. Parsons remarked that this was a splendid tree.

Alderman Stratton reported that the trees were set too close together around the property of Mr. L. D. W. Magie, corner of Simcoe and Reid streets. He moved, seconded by Alderman Weir, that the Engineer report on the trees that may be removed here.

The Council felt that ratepayers who request these removals should pay for them.

Alderman Duncan—There should be a rule that the people who want trees taken out should pay the cost of the work.

Rifles for Cadets.

Mayor Duffus reported that Mr. Jamieson of the Collegiate Institute staff had asked for the loan of three of the Home Guard Ross cadet rifles for instructional purposes.

Alderman Weir—They're going to be there till they're junk.

The Mayor's eye to business saw the possibility of turning the rifles into money. He suggested that Alderman Saunders see that they were kept in good condition, and that an effort be made to sell them.

Alderman Saunders stated that Caretaker Wilson had been instructed to keep them well oiled and free from rust.

Alderman Edgar moved, seconded by Alderman Evans, that Mr. Jamieson be granted three cadet rifles owned by the city for instructional purposes and that they be returned in good condition at any time the Council asked for them. Carried.

Alderman Stratton suggested that the rifles be distributed among the members of the Council, Board of Education and Utilities Commission, for drill three nights a week on the Market Square with the Mayor as captain.

Office Hours For Inspector Cooper

Will Be In His Office Two Hours Each Day—Meeting of the Board of Health

At a meeting of the Board of Health held yesterday afternoon, it was decided to fix the hours during which Sanitary Inspector Cooper may be found in his office at from eleven o'clock until noon, and in the afternoon from four until five o'clock. This means that the visiting public will have some assurance of meeting the Inspector at least during two hours of each day.

Accounts to Be Paid.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid: Douro Fruit Co. $6.20, G. J. Jopling and Sons $14.58, Mrs. R. Hosken $1.85, Peterborough Fuel and Transfer Co., $253.77, F. R. J. Macpherson Co. $4.20, C. S. Curran, $12.23, G. N. W. Telegraph So. 27c, Peterborough Hardware Co. 35c, Dr. E. A. Hammond $60.00.

Mr. G. H. Duncan, chairman of the Board, and Dr. C. H. Amys, Medical Officer of Health, was intrusted to investigate and report as to the examination of milk and where the appliances should be kept, and also as to the cost of sending water to Toronto for examination.

A Scotch minister in need of funds thus conveyed his intention to his congregation:

"Well, friends, the kirk is urgently in need of silver; as we have failed to get money honestly we will have to see what a bazaar can do for us."

To Form Branch Of The Royal Humane Society

A number of gentlemen met last evening, including Dr. Fortune, W. H. Lytle, Horace Walkey, Roland Denne and R. J. Soden, with the object of forming a branch of the Royal Humane Society in the city. It was mentioned at the meeting that there is already a branch of the Society here, but that it has been dormant for some time. Mr. Walkey was instructed to write to the Secretary, in Toronto, and ascertain the facts about the matter before proceeding further in connection with organization.

The meeting adjourned until Monday evening next.

COMB LONDON STATION FOR SERVICE SHIRKERS

Police March Suspected Slackers to Headquarters—Some Later Released

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The dragnet of military authorities to catch men attempting to evade military service was extended to Marylebone Station, one of the great London terminals. As the passengers poured out from incoming trains military and civil police sorted the crowds, and passing men obviously over military age marched the suspects into a corral. When batches of thirty were collected in the corral they were marched through the streets guarded by constables to the police station. Top-hatted city men they were for the most part and many were able to satisfy the authorities at once as to their right to be at large. These were allowed to go to their offices. Others who were not carrying their papers were allowed to telephone their offices and homes, and during the morning relief parties with the necessary papers arrived at the police station. At noon there were still about fifty men detained, some in the policemen's canteen, others in the waiting rooms, and one by one these were released as they satisfied the authorities by their names and addresses. Others were taken and the local police communicated with. If the particulars were found correct these were also released pending inquiries.

The morning trains to Marylebone bring many city men to work and many protests were raised against the delays caused. Several newspapers publish articles declaring against these methods, which The Star and Daily News liken to German Zabernism.

THE GLORY OF FRANCE

BY CANADIAN OVERSEAS

On July 19, 1915, M. Barres led a pilgrimage of patriots to the statue of Strassburg, on the Place de la Concorde. "This is the last time," said he, "that we come here; we meet next year at the Kleber Statue in liberated Strassburg." A year has passed, and what we all prayed for still remains a hope, certain, though deferred. The league of Patriots will not assemble in Strassburg for another year at least. But when the day comes Englishmen, as well as Frenchmen, will gather at the ultimate goal to celebrate with due reverence, a glorious victory.

Never was the national festival of France held under nobler auspices; the glory of this year will never be forgotten, though all will rejoice, when peace once more smiles upon the world. To France, this battle of Verdun, which dragged many weary weeks, is an achieved victory. The Germans hoped to forestall the united attack of the Allies by a sudden stroke. Men, in thousands, were thrown in vain against the impregnable defences of France.

The Germans taunted the French, that the English refused to go to the help of Verdun. But to this no attention was paid, for wise and deliberate plans had been laid ond the French and English carried these out to the letter, doing nothing to hasten them by even a day.

Verdun held firm, making possible the general advance on the Western and Eastern front, and giving the initiative to the Allies which greatly decided the progress of the campaign. Hitherto the Germans directed the attack; henceforth the Allies dictate.

We have always marvelled at the French soldier, the vim and spirit with which he enters into the fight. But this heroic resistance gives us another characteristic.

It was the dogged determination of the French which converted the furious assault into a bitter defeat of the hopes and ambitions of Germany. The battle was fought without rest, and without haste. Plans had been settled and arranged long ago, and nothing was done to anticipate the reasoned attack.

This quiet confidence and determination has made Verdun the immortal glory of France.

It is history repeating; there is no proof of new spirit. France is to-day what she has always been—calm and resolute in the face of danger.

The Germans, always unable to read human character, considered France in decay. They thought the life they saw on the boulevards, a life which they did not understand, was the life of France; they knew nothing of the thrift and industry of the provinces; of the careful toil of thousands on the land. They knew not of the unconquerable soul of France; of the quiet tranquil mind which has always been inspired to great deeds by lofty hopes and high ideals. How could they know, knowing no history except what they got from the State-fed professors.

At a most opportune time did M. Barres sing the praise of his country on the eve of "France's Day." He has every right to utter the cry 'Vive la France," for he spent endless energy in reviving the ancient spirit of the Crusader, which is still in every Frenchman, and he has taught the nation that energy lives in the provinces as well as in the capital. He instilled patriotism in the French, and taught them what it means to defend their homes against invasion. Consequently, when the hour came, France was not a degenerate nation, as the Germans imagined, but was ready to defend herself.

Strange as it may seem, the French still piously to the past. They have a passionate love for new ideas, but these never efface the honoured traditions of their race. They live under a republic, but they still cherish the rules of chivalry.

In defending France they defend their beliefs, their hopes, their arts. They know all the horribleness of what the Germans call "Kultur" and are determined that it shall never take root in French soil. When they have won they shall have saved their country from a deadly peril, and when they die, they die the martyr's death, serenely and calmly meeting their fate.

"Princess Pat's" Regiment Is The Glory of Canada

Montreal, Que. — The gentlemen adventurers of olden times have their modern counterpart in a famous Canadian regiment which to-day is enlisting only "gentleman recruits." This regiment, which alone of all Britain's famous corps, is able to enlist to full strength under this limitation, is the Princess Patricia's, which gained undying glory at St. Eloi and Ypres, and of which very few of the original corps enlisted under Colonel Farquhar, remain.

America has always provided her quota of gentlemen adventurers and the Princess Patricia's contains many Americans who have distinguished themselves. The "Pat's" is recruited and kept up to strength by a succession of universities companies enlisted at the headquarters, Molson Hall, McGill University, Montreal, and these companies from now on are supplying drafts of 50 men direct to France every month. The sixth university company is recruiting now and has already a number of Americans in its ranks, including Private Barry, who came on from the Plattsburg camp after having already served in France with the Foreign Legion; Pte. Peterson, a westerner, and Corporal Wynne, the senior N.C.O.. Inquiries are received almost daily from men at the Plattsburg camp anxious to join, and also from university men all over the States. Among the latest requests for information is one from the son of the president of a national bank in New York City.

RAISED BY MAJOR GAULT

The Princess Patricia regiment was raised and equipped at the beginning of the war by Major Arthur Hamilton Gault, a wealthy Montreal man, who defrayed all its expenses. Princess Patricia graciously adopted it, and the regiment has done honour on many fields to its fair patron. Major Gault, the founder and second in command, has been twice wounded and unfortunately has had to undergo the amputation of one leg.

The Patricias were first in action at St. Eloi in March, 1915, and were the first troops from any of the overseas dominions to be engaged. Two days later Colonel Farquhar, their first colonel, was killed. Their most famous stand was made at Ypres from May 4 to May 8 of the same year when they achieved undying fame by a feat that parallels that of the famous Light Brigade. They went into action 700 strong, and for four days held their own against a tremendous bombardment and repulsed the flower of the German army, the famous Prussian Guard. When they retired with their work accomplished only 175 men of the 700 remained.

The regiment was again brought up to strength and was busily engaged on the Somme, and from Christmas, 1915, until the last news of them a few weeks ago they played their part in the defence of the Ypres salient. On June 3 they held the second line in front of Sanctuary Wood. On that day their second colonel, Colonel Buller, was killed in an engagement in which the unit on their right was forced to retire, leaving the Patricias' flank open. As far as is known the regiment is still in the Somme region.

STILL RECRUITING.

The Overseas Universities Companies, from which the reinforcing drafts are sent, were started on April 1, 1915. The first company was recruited to strength in two months and was then sent to England, and after six weeks, training there crossed to France. The second company reached France exactly a year ago, and one of its distinguished young officers, Lieut. Rexford, is now in Montreal superintending the raising of the sixth company. The third and fifth were recruited in similar time, and the sixth is under way now.

In spite of the fact that recruiting generally has slackened down through dearth of material the Universities Company is doing well and is a favourite with all the university men, bank clerks, lawyers, architects and go-ahead young business men, including Americans. From that class alone it is recruited, and it is the regiment's proud boast that it selects all its officers from the ranks and that the surest way to obtain a commission is to join the "Pats". This is accounted for by the fact that the high standard of intelligence of the men enables them to receive the regular officers' training courses.

Lieut. Rexford informed your correspondent that ten of the officers of the "Pats" at present were promoted from the ranks, and that of the men who went over with him in the second company no fewer than twenty-seven received commissions in one regiment or another.

The regiment is naturally proud of the sacrifices made by its men, several of whom have given up good positions to join as privates. Notable among these is Mr. Sherman, general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, who went overseas as a private with the first company.

WORK WILL NOT BE SUSPENDED

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 13.—Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, denies the story that work will be suspended on the Welland Canal or any other public works to provide men for war work.

SCHOOL TEACHERS ARE PLENTIFUL

The supply of school teachers in Ontario is not likely to run short for a year or two to come. The provincial Normal Schools open on Tuesday next and, according to the officials of the department of education, about 1,300 students will commence their training for the teaching profession.

Farmer Offered Good Defence

Recently a merchant of Natchez happened to see a farmer receive a box at the depot and noticed that it was from a mail order house. He also noticed that the goods were right in his line and the same that he had carried for years. He immediately approached the farmer and said:

"I could have sold you the goods you have here for less money than the Chicago house and saved you the freight."

"Then why don't you do so?" said the farmer. "I have taken the local paper for a year and have not seen a line about you selling these or any other goods. This mail order house sends advertising matter to me asking for my trade, and they get it. If you have any bargains why don't you put them in the paper, so we can see what they are?"

Boys Lungs Protruded Through Hole In Chest

ST. THOMAS, Sept. 13. — While playing on a L. and P. S. electric locomotive which was standing on the side track in the company's yards, directly behind the Salvation Army, little Claude Boxall, son of C. A. Boxall, 29 St. Catharines street, came in contact with 1,500 volts of electricity and was severely injured.

A gap was burned in his chest, causing a portion of the boy's lungs to protrude. The poor lad's father rushed to the scene and carried him home. He was immediately taken to the Anna Wood Hospital, where he is in a precarious condition.

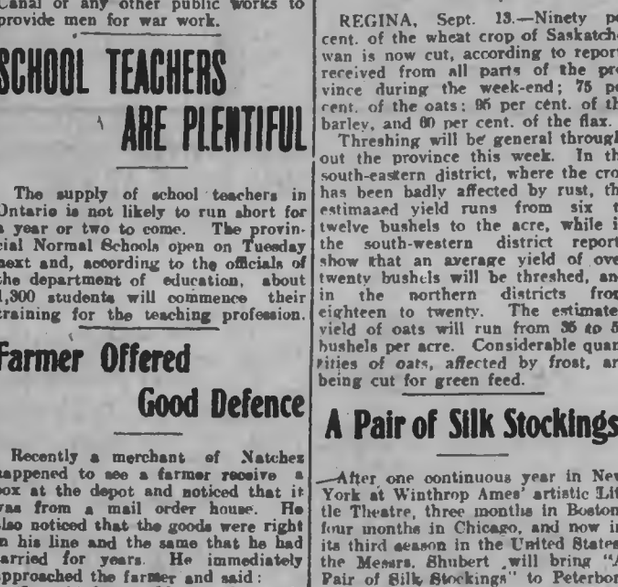
Saskatchewan Crops Are Nearly All Cut

REGINA, Sept. 13.—Ninety per cent. of the wheat crop of Saskatchewan is now cut, according to reports received from all parts of the province during the week-end; 75 per cent. of the oats; 95 per cent. of the barley, and 60 per cent. of the flax.

Threshing will be general throughout the province this week. In the south-eastern district, where the crop has been badly affected by rust, the estimaaed yield runs from six to twelve bushels to the acre, while in the south-western district reports show that an average yield of over twenty bushels will be threshed, and in the northern districts from eighteen to twenty. The estimated yield of oats will run from 35 to 50 bushels per acre. Considerable quantities of oats, affected by frost, are being cut for green feed.

A Pair of Silk Stockings

After one continuous year in New York at Winthrop Ames' artistic Little Theatre, three months in Boston, four months in Chicago, and now in its third season in the United States, the Messrs. Shubert will bring "A Pair of Silk Stockings" to Peterborough, where it will be presented on Saturday, September 16th, at the Grand Opera House, with an exception company, headed by Langdon Bruce. "A Pair of Silk Stockngs" is termed as the best comedy of the day. Matinee and night. Reserved seat sale at box office.



President Lincoln immediately after signing the call for Volunteers, a scene from "The Birth of a Nation," at the Grand Opera House Thursday and Friday, September 14th and 15th, matinee and night. Reserved seats on sale at the box office.

Golden Rule Works Well In Case of "the Worst Girl in Michigan"

WINDSOR, Sept. 13.—Believing that Margaret Crews, the "worst girl in Michigan," who had a reputation for beating up matrons and deputy sheriffs at the county jail in Detroit, is not so bad as she is reputed to be Governor-Harmon of Sandwich jail tried a new way of handling her.

She has been allowed to go out to work with private families near the jail, where she is serving a sentence. She was placed on her honour. That was three weeks ago. She is still on her honour and so long as she remains true to her promise to be good, will be allowed to continue her freedom.

It is taken for an admitted fact in police circles that Mrs. Harmon is the only matron that has been able to handle Margaret.

When baking meats the oven should be very hot at first and then the heat should be slowly lowered to allow the cooking to be done slowly. Keep a piece of asbestos on hand to interpose between a dish and the hottest part of the oven when there is danger of burning.

FRUIT BULLETIN

Niagara District Crawford Peaches are now in, and the best varieties of pears and plums are ready for preserving or table purposes. Musings of The Gentle Cynic

Some of us aim so high we will never hit anything on earth.

Ever stop to consider that there would not be so much scandal in the world if more people stuttered?

A man never realizes how much furniture he owns until he comes home late at night and tries to get to bed without turning on the light.

One way to remove weeds is to marry a widow.

Love is never so blind that it can not see an engagement ring.

Pleasure soon palls on those who are in a position to do just as they please.

Some men play the game of life as though it was solitaire.

The Welsh rabbit, unlike its timid namesake, does its most desperate fighting after it is down.

The man who wants the earth may have the satisfaction of knowing that some day he will be right in it.

All the men who are serving life sentences at hard labour are not in jail.

Some people are just about as important to the world as the holes in a Swiss cheese.

Perhaps it is just as well to take things as they come, provided you are satisfied with very little.

It is true that bliss rhymes with kiss, but don't lose sight of the fact that blister also rhymes with kissed her.

When you hear a man boast that he has no enemies it's a pretty safe bet that he is a nonentity.

A man cannot serve two masters; but the one who has a wife and a baby comes close to it.

Some men are always sure they are right, and then go ahead and do the wrong thing.

Bad habits breed bad luck.

A woman's happiness depends a lot on her photographer.

Nor is it altogether comfortable to jump from the fire into the frying pan.

There seem to be more ways of reaching a man's heart than of reaching his pocket.

MR. DOBBIN RETURNS FROM QUEBEC

Witnessed the Collapse of the Ill-fated Quebec Bridge

Mr. R. L. Dobbin, superintendent of the Waterworks Department, has returned from Quebec where he witnessed the collapse of the ill-fated Quebec bridge. Mr. Dobbin was out in the river at the time of the disaster. Mr. Dobbin concurs in the opinion of the company to the effect that the collapse of the bridge was due to a defect in one of the castings connecting with the lifting chains. The bridge sagged at one corner and suddenly toppled over. "We were just about to return to Quebec," said Mr. Dobbin, when we heard a smash and upon looking around were horrified to see the bridge topple over and disappear below the water which is estimated at one hundred and fifty feet at that point." Later in the day, Mr. Dobbin's boat passed between the two arms and directly over the spot where the structure sank.

Council Checking The Year's Expenses

At last night's meeting of the committee of the whole Council, Mayor Duffus moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that the chairmen of the various committees bring in a report of their expenditures thus far and their prospective expenditure during the remainder of the year and the amount of appropriations left for the work.

The tradition that the Council should close the year's work without an overdraft promises to be maintained. It was referred to last night when Mr. Archibald, of the Warren Bithuminous Company, pointed out to the company that interest at 5 per cent. on their contract price of $41,000 should be allowed for five or at least four months and not on the two months to which the Council had previously acceded. The Council had offered $250.

Ald. Saunders moved, seconded by Ald. Dobbin, that copies of the minutes of committee meetings be forwarded to the City Engineer.

Ald. Stratton moved, seconded by Ald. Edgar, that Chief Thompson be requested to press charges against persons who place glass or glass bottles in front of street cars and on the roadway, where they are broken.

GRANT POTTER IS WOUNDED

The name of another old Peterborough boy appears on the casualty list in the person of Lance-Corp. Grant Potter, son of Rev. J. G. Potter, of Montreal, and formerly pastor of St. Andrew's Church. Lance-Corp. Potter was educated here, and has a host of friends, who will wish him a speedy recovery. His name appears on the official list to-day as wounded.

New York Stock Market

Summary of To-day's Activities on the New York Stock Exchange

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The price changes on the Stock Exchange in the early trading to-day were irregular processes of readjustment after yesterday's boom. U. S. Steel sold at 104 7-8, Reading at 110 1-2, Bethlehem Steel at 525, and Republic Steel at 67 1-4.

Disappointment For Pte. Arthur Lewis

It was Private A. J. Lewis, of the Queen's Field Ambulance Corps, who suggested the idea that a squad of the corps give an exhibition of their work at the Peterborough Fair, but unfortunately he had to undergo an operation for strangulated hernia at Kingston on Monday, and will be prevented from accompanying the squad. This is a very regrettable feature of his illness that his Peterborough pals will be enjoying the Fair outing which his thoughtfulness had proposed. His father, Mr. James Lewis, the Hunter Street barber, received further word to-day that he was making good progress.

Hogs Cannot Be Kept In The City

Dr. C. H. Amys, Medical Officer of Health, has been instructed by the local Board of Health to see that the by-law relating to the keeping of hogs within the city limits is enforced.

Complaint was made that hogs are kept at one or two places on Romaine Street West.

Dr. Amys informed the Board that he was investigating the matter, and proper steps would be taken to have conditions remedied. Steps will be taken to see that property owners connect their premises with the sewer whenever necessity demands.

GRAND CHAPTER OF ROYAL ARCH MASONS MET IN TORONTO

Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons met in emergent convocation in the Temple Building, Toronto, yesterday, and formally approved of the formation of the Grand Chapter of Alberta.

The Alberta Grand Chapter was formed two years ago, and considerable difficulty arose with the Grand Chapter of Canada, the governing body in Canada. Grand Z. W. S. R. Murch, of Kingston, recently went West to make an enquiry, with the result that he returned with the basis of agreement, which was ratified at the meeting yesterday. The Grand Z. was in the chair, and about eighty of the most prominent Royal Arch Masons in Canada were present.

Mr. E. L. Goodwill attended the convocation of the Grand Chapter.

Peterboro' Speakers At Best's Station

The ladies of Best Station held a very successful lawn social last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McGhee, in the interests of the Red Cross Society. Peterborough was represented by Mr. Wm. J. Young, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Gillespie, Mr. Joseph Wearing, and the Misses Georgie and Willa Cuffe. The chair was occupied by Rev. Mr. James of Omemee, who in a brief and succinct address showed that it was one thing to beat the German, but quite another thing to convince them that they are beaten. Mr. Gillespie spoke of the great work done by Canadian women and the need for continued work along the same lines. Mr. Wearing emphasized the need of a continued stream of men, munitions, money and Red Cross materials to help in the "big push." "Ontario," he said, "has proved her proud claim to be the banner province of the Dominion. The total enlistment of men and Canadians for overseas service up to the 16th of August, 1916, was 358,105, and of this number Ontario contributed 138,316, or nearly one-half. The same was true with regard to money for Red Cross work and subscriptions for the Patriotic Fund. Ontario not only led the province, but gave nearly as much as the rest of the provinces together." He made a strong appeal to the young men present to come to Peterborough and join the new battalion.

Miss Georgie Cuffe sang a number of patriotic selections which were enthusiastically received.

After refreshments were served a collection was taken for Red Cross needs and the sum of $20 was contributed.

Lieut. Stewart and Lieut. Dunsford were present representing the 57th Battalion.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

First Break In Big Four Rugby Alliance Since Birth In 1907

Nine Successful Seasons Have Marked Canada's Premier Sporting Organization—Tigers and Argonauts Have Shared Most Titles—Major Portions of Players Now in Khaki.

After a stretch of nine successful seasons, the Interprovincial Football Union, more familiarly known as the Big Four, will suspend till the end of European hostilities. The union was formed in September, 1907, and from its outset marked the strongest and best organized sporting in question the country has ever witnessed. Each of the four cities were representative, and while some had temporary trials, there never was the slightest intimation of any wanting to toss up the sponge. Up till the first year of the war the union was as strong financially, and as an attraction as it ever was. It met with considerable competition in Toronto and Montreal from the Inter-collegiate, in 1912, '13 and '14, but the two leagues in reality stimulated interest in the great fall sport.

The Big Four has always provided an exciting season right up till the final game. The years where two clubs were tied and a playoff necessary, have been numerous. Hamilton Tigers and Argonauts have divided the major portion of the championships. Ottawa and Montreal have won the title but once each. Montreal's big red team of the first year of the union winning the championship, with Hamilton runners-up.

Ottawa Won in 1909.

Ottawa's claim to the Inter-provincial title came in 1909, when, after being tied with Tigers at the end of the schedule, they vanquished the famous Junglemen at Rosedale field, Toronto, in a saw-off. The red, white and black, however, went down one week later to ignominious defeat when they hooked up with the young Toronto Varsity fourteen for Dominion honours.

Sawed-Off at Kingston.

Tigers corralled their first championship in 1908, after a saw-off game with Ottawa at Kingston. In 1910, the maize and black again led the other three teams, but were badly worsted on their own field by Varsity in the Canadian final.

Oarsmen in 1911.

Argonauts were never able to show much of a team till the season 1911, when they came through with flying colours. But they also bowed to the redoubtable squad of "Red" Griffith, on Varsity Stadium, Toronto. This sequence of victories of the Intercollegiate champs over the Big Four leaders, cost the Interprovincial a lot of prestige and brought the rah rah league into great prominence.

Argonauts won again in 1912, but no inter-league post series was played as the McGill fourteen which won the college championship disbanded immediately after their saw-off in Ottawa with Varsity and declined the defi of the oarsmen. Tigers came back for the 1913 crown but no post season game was played as McGill again declined to fraternize with the Big Four winners.

An Exciting Season.

In 1914, Hamilton and Argonauts sawed-off for the premier honours, the game ending in a tie at Hamilton. The next week they replayed the contest in Toronto and Argonauts won. The double blue then met Varsity, the college champs, and brought the Interprovincial back in good graces by giving the rah rah boys a most unmerciful lacing.

Last year Hamilton Tigers won the Big Four flag and will retain the championship till peace and tranquility sweep the world.

Hats Off to the Rugbymen.

Of all sportsmen, rugby footballers stand out in bold relief in the cry to arms. Both the Big Four and Intercollegiate have sent enough men to the defence of the flag to form the most formidable gridiron circuit Canada has ever seen. Many of them have already given up their lives for the more serious game, the others are now fighting on the battlefields of France or training here or in England for service.

CHAMPION WEIGHT THROWER IS HURT

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—"Matt" McGrath, champion weight thrower and a member of the police force, lies in the Volunteer Hospital in a critical condition. While trying doors on Spruce Street, he fell from a shipping platform at No. 38, only a foot and a half high, and suffered a possible fracture of the spine, a sprained back and contusions of the right leg.

As an athlete McGrath has an enviable record. First for the New York Athletic Club and then for the Irish-American Athletic Club he won metropolitan and national championships, and he was a member of the Olympic teams that went to Athens and London.

OXFORD STAR KILLED IN WAR.

Lieut. O. N. Gausson, who was a member of the winning Oxford four-mile relay team which defeated Philadelphia's quartet in the Penn relay races at Philadelphia in 1914, was recently killed in the war.

OLD DOC TIME SOAPING CHUTES FOR BALL STARS

Chicago, September 11.—The personnel of major league baseball is in for a tremendous shaking up next season. The star of many a leader is slowly sinking beneath the horizon and new faces and young blood are at hand to replace them.

Among the most prominent of the old heads who seem certain to fall by the wayside is Larry Lajoie. The veteran infielder, while he has been playing a great fielding game with the Athletics this season, has forestalled possible managerial action with the announcement that he will retire at the end of the season. Sam Crawford, though still dangerous as a batter, is slowing up, and several incidents of late would indicate that Jennings is getting ready to place the skids under "Wahoo" Sam. Oscar Stanage is another of the Tigers whose days with the big shows are numbered.

The benching of John Collins and the suspension of Jim Scott of the White Sox, indicates to those who know the inside workings of the south side team that both are slated for the minors. Scott has enjoyed his last fall from grace, and Collins should never have been kept on the Sox as long as he has. Clyde Milan has been slipping with the Senators, and while he may stay in the American league yet for a while, he is sure to be cast adrift by Griffith.

Larry Gardner of the Red Sox, and Gandi of the Indians, are on the list while it is better than an even money bet that Evers will be missing from the Braves' line up next season.

Japan, Too, Has Its Noisy Fans

Enthusiasm for baseball in Japan has become a national characteristic with the Mikado's people, according to the Japanese writer, Saito Man, who recently attracted national attention there by deprecating the activities of Japanese fandom. He has assumed the lofty standard of "bushido" in his article, a translation if which was issued here recently by the East and West News bureau. Mr. Man says:

"Now, these noisy fans — the name is very appositely chosen — mass themselves in a great crowd, and brandish over their heads improvised paper banners and lanterns of various shapes, shake sticks and poles, bellow with horns, cry forth at the top of their lungs all kinds of ejaculations. What do they mean? What is the use and purpose of all this crazy disturbance?

ABUSE ENEMY TERRIBLY.

"They are not content with fanning their own team; they must abuse and down their enemy terribly. Witness some of the cries heard on the Tokio High school ground recently, when the High school fought with the Keio team. The High school cried: 'Driveling idiots!' The Keio retorted: 'Suicide House!'

"'We are gakushi in three years' time,' the former boasted.

"'Then don't come borrowing money,' jeered the latter. And so on. They would often come to fists. When the game was over the fans of the winning side went stark mad.

LIKE DRUNKEN STUDENTS.

"They would cry themselves hoarse, singing, 'We have won—we have won,' and other idiotic songs, and they brandish their flags and other big things, throwing very abusive and contemptuous epithets in the face of the defeated team. Then they would probably spend the remainder of the day in riotous feeding or drinking, like German students, while the crestfallen fans of the defeated team would disperse, nursing a dangerous grudge in their minds, and seek spirituous consolation somewhere."

ATHLETES OF '16 FAR SUPERIOR TO THOSE OF '96

Arthur Duffey one of the world's greatest sprinters has followed the athletes of to-day closely and analyses and compares the work of the present day stars with the winners twenty years ago.

"Are the college athletes to-day faster than they were twenty years ago?" asks Duffey. "This question is being hashed and rehashed all along the line in the amateur athletic game. Ever since Ted Meredith, Bob Simpson, Arlie Mucks, and a few more of the leading modern stars have put up such sensational performances the query will not down. But in looking through the feats of the college athletes of to-day as compared with those of twenty years ago it is an easy matter to decide. In fact, there is hardly any chance for comparison.

"Back twenty years ago in the inter-collegiates of 1896 it was thought at that time that the college athletes were about the fastest performers that ever happened. I was believed that the limit of human speed and endurance had about been reached, but since that year, one by one, have the records in the different events been broken, while it was up to this year to produce the most remarkable performers of all.

WEFERS STAR IN SPRINTS

"Back in the old days Bernie Wefers, running under the colours of Georgetown, was the king bee among the short distance men. He occupied the same position among the sprinters that Ted Meredith does among the middle distance runners of to-day Wefers was the most consistent performer over the 100 and furlong distances that we ever had. Every time that he started in a race the contest was considered as good as settled.

"True, Billy Moore did not run any 21 1-5 for the distance in the intercollegiates this year, but it was not his fault. There was no one in the race who could give him a battle. If there had been the Tiger crack would have equaled Wefers' time. However with both men fit there is but little question that the former champion would have beaten Moore in such a race.

BURKE CRACK IN QUARTER

"Tom Burke of Boston university, won the quarter mile championship in 1896. In the intercollegiates at that time Tom ran the distance in :50 2-5. Not such a wonderful performance when compared with Ted Meredith's run of :47 2-5 for the distance this year. But, forget all about Burke's time in that race. He was a runner to be classed with Ted Meredith or any other double furlong runner.

"In the half mile run the present day champion, Ted Meredith, again shows to the front. The Quaker champion will have to be awarded the palm over Evan Hollister, who was running for Harvard and won the event in the old days. Nevertheless, Hollister was a remarkable performer. In 1896 Hollister won the event almost as he liked in the time of 1:56 4-5. He could have done faster time than this and has got down to the 1:53 4-5.

MEREDITH FAR SUPERIOR

"In fact, he held the record for having run the fastest half at Cambridge until Billy Bingham came along this year and ran one-fifth of a second faster. But great runner as was Hollister, Meredith by his recent all round consistency and his recent record performance, is by far the better athlete.

"Vere Windnagle of Cornell won the mile intercollegiate this year in 4:15. It was one of the fastest miles not only in college games but anywhere else. Back in 1906 there was a poor crop of milers. In fact, in those days 4:20 for the distance was almost an unheard of performance. G. O. Jarvis of Wesleyan was the winner of the mile that year, and the best that he could do was 4:28 4-5. Of course, against Windnagle's run of 4:15 there is no question about the respective abilities of the two.

WINDSOR ASKS FOR AN INVESTIGATION

WINDSOR, Sept. 11.—At its regular meeting last night the Windsor City Council, by unanimous vote, adopted a resolution requesting the Dominion Government to send investigators to this city to make a thorough enquiry into the recent advances in the prices of foodstuffs, which it is charged, have now reached a higher level than in any other city in the province, if not in Canada.

It is suggested that a combine exists between milk and bread dealers which the Government is asked to investigate.

Mayor Jackson told the Council he had taken up the question of the high milk prices with Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labour, and that the latter had promised action, but so far nothing has been done.

Speaking against the resolution, Alderman Webber, formerly a baker himself, declared the high price of wheat justified the rise in bread prices, and he scoffed the suggestion of a combine. After a long controversy, in which practically every member of the Council participated, the resolution was adopted and will go to Sir Robert Borden in the form of a memorial.

Milk at present is selling in Windsor at 12 cents a quart as against 9 cents in Detroit, while the standard size loaf of white bread brings 8 cents.

FIRST ROUND THIS AFTERNOON

Second Round of Primaries in Bowling Contest Will be Played To-night

In the big jumble tournament, the first round will be completed this afternoon.

The result between the following rinks was as follows:

McCusker	Wyllie
R. Elliot	Gould
T. C. Elliot	Dayman
Mayneord	Cairns
Skip 11	Skip 9

Every rink is requested to be on hand to-night. The second round of the primaries and the first round of the consolation will be played off to-night and the winners will play off each succeeding night, so that the whole tournament will be completed this week.

WELSHMEN SET DAY FOR RAILWAY STRIKE

3,000 Meet at Cardiff and Aggree to Walk Out Unless Wages are Increased

ASK FOOD REGULATION, TOO

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The railway situation arising out of the demands of the men for an increase in wages of 10 shillings ($2.50) a week has become increasingly serious. At a meeting of 3,000 railway workers at Cardiff to-day a resolution was adopted providing that unless the demand for the increase was conceded by Sept. 16 all railway work would be stopped in South Wales at midnight the 17th. The resolution also stated that the advance in wages should date from July 1, and that the Government should give a definite guarantee that in the future it would control the supply of food and regulate prices. The resolution was carried without a dissenting vote.

Judging from the Government's attitude hitherto regarding the question of the control of food, its distribution and prices, there is little likelihood that it will yield to such a demand, and should the railway workers in the other parts of the country indorse the action of the South Wales men, there is danger of a general railway strike.

The labor leaders are working hard to obtain an agreement without calling a strike, which would be regarded as taking an unfair advantage of the nation in a time of adversity. The argument of the men is that it is as much the business of the Government to see that railway workers are as properly fed and clothed as the soldiers in the field, since the railway workers are doing equally important work for victory, and that high prices of commodities this is impossible.

James Henry Thomas, Labor member of Parliament and Secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, speaking at a meeting in London to-day announced that a meeting between the railway managers and the leaders of the men had been arranged for the coming week. Mr. Thomas, while admitting that the railway men were in a stronger position for "presenting a pistol at the Government's head than any other workers, again appealed to them to take no precipitate action.

Mr. Bellamy, President of the National Railway Men's Union, speaking at Doncaster to-night, expressed the willingness of the men to withdraw their demand for an increase of wages if the Government would see that provisions were reduced to something like their prices before the war.

Woman Was Dismembered In Vancouver Explosion

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 13.—Mrs. A. H. Gravonor was blown to pieces and her husband badly injured in an explosion which destroyed their residence on Cobble Hill, Vancouver Island. Gravonor had stored six cases of dynamite at his home. The building caught fire, and before the couple realized the danger the powder blew up.

Lad's Ante-Mortem Statement Excuses Man He Accuses

Russian is Remanded Eight Days in Stratford Court - A Terrible Death

STRATFORD, Sept. 13.—Joseph Farmer died in the hospital here, the result of his body being blown up by compressed air, for which deed Alex. Gurlick, a Russian workman in the boiler department of the G. T. R. shops, is accused.

Farmer was only 14 years old, and was employed as a heater of rivets. While in terrible agony the lad stated that the Russian had forced compressed air into his bowels with a tube conveying 150 pounds pressure. An operation was performed, but from the first the doctors had no hope of saving his life. He remained delirious all day, and was so when death came.

Gurlick appeared in police court, and was remanded for eight days.

He was charged with assault, occasing actual bodily harm, but was warned by the magistrate that the charge would probably be more serious. Gurlick, who is about 23 years of age, does not seem to appreciate the seriousness of his position.

Ante-mortem statements have been made by the lad, and although the text is not given out, they are understood to be, in effect, the same as he told the doctors.

In accusing Gurlick of causing his injury, the lad added that the Russion had not intended any harm, as they had always been good friend. They had been fooling at the time, he said.

Gurlick is a married man and his wife and one child reside here. He is spoken of as a capital workman.

THE ANNUAL PLOUGHING MATCH

Will Be Held in Peterboro' County on Tuesday, October 24th

A meeting of the Ploughmen's' Association was held, and Tuesday, October 24th, fixed as the date for the annual ploughing match. A committee, comprising Messrs. John Gillespie, C. E. Moore, and John McIntosh, was appointed to select a field somewhere near the city. The Provincial ploughing match will be held on Mr. R. J. Fleming's farm on November 2nd. Thirty ploughs have already been entered, and about two hundred and fifty acres of land will be turned over during the three days of the competition.

NEW LOAN WILL BE A SUCCESS

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Sept. 13.—Bankers and brokers here report that the new Government Loan bonds being taken up rapidly and response already indicates complete success and early oversubscription to this issue.

Licenses In Some Cases Were Refused

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Sept. 13.—It was announced to-day by the Provinial Licensce Commission that not all of Ontario's present licensed hotels had been granted standard licenses by the Commission. This means that those who are refused standard licenses may operate as boarding houses, but are denied the privilege of selling cigars, cigarettes and soft drinks. Chairman Flavelle said the reason some applicants were refused was because they had not properaly observed the law in the past. In Toronto alone twenty nine applicants are refused licenses. The commission declined to give the names of those refused, but all successful applicants throughout the Province will be notified in a day or two.

MONEY STOLEN THIRTEEN YEARS AGO RETURNED

Wolcott Woman Receives More Than Twenty Dollars from Unknown Person Who Adds Interest.

WOLCOTT, Sept. 12. — Thirteen years ago Mrs. George Luffman, of this village, went into the local post office and laid her purse aside while she mailed a postal card. When she returned, the pocket-book and its contents, amounting to more than $20 was missing.

She advertised for its return, but nothing more was heard from it until a few days ago when she received a letter with a roll of bills wrapped up in a large sheet of paper, on which was written: "Money you lost some years ago." The amount enclosed was considerably larger than the sum lost, the person returning the money adding liberal interest on the original amount.

Mrs. Luffman has no idea who returned the money, but thinks it must be some one who was converted at a recent revival held here, and whose conscience stirred him to return the amount stolen thirteen years ago.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. Will Ryan is visiting at his uncle's Edmund Foley's, Rice Lake.

Dr. Greer has returned from his vacation and has resumed practice.

Alderman Galbraith is home from Guelph to-day, and will spend at holiday at Stoney Lake.

Mrs. Jewitt leaves the city to-day for Buffalo, N.Y., to visit her son, who has been injured in that city.

Rev. Father Foley, editor of the Catholic Record, London, and mayor Kylie, of Lindsay, were the guests of Edmund Foley, Rice Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Fairley returned to the city yesterday after holidaying for two weeks with friends in Guelph and Toronto.

MILLION DOLLAR FILM

The Royal Theatre presents to-day a second episode of the celebrated million dollar feature picture in which a thousand people act. In this the star actress, Miss Gale, wears $15,000 gowns. Mr. Louis Tracey, the distinguished English author, who wrote the dramatized version, says this story is the best depicted and strongest argument ever shown on a screen to show a nation's need for preparedness against a foreign enemy. Don't miss the Yellow Menace.

WEDDING BELLS

BLAKE—BRADY.

The marriage of Reta, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Brady, 124 Park Street, and Mr. J. C. Blake of Peterborough, took place on Aug. 28th, at 2 o'clock, at All Saints' Church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Cornish of St. John's Church. The couple were attended by Miss Dorothy Jones of Marmora. Miss Hazel Blake, sister of the bridegroom, and Mr. E. Pemberton of this city. After the ceremony the couple returned to the home of the bride, where a happy gathering sat down to lunch. The couple left on the afternoon C.P.R. train for their honeymoon. On their return they will reside in the city. The couple were the recipients of many handsome and useful presents.

ANDREWS—HOOPER.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hooper, Pontypool, was the scene of a very pretty event on Tuesday, September 5th, when their only daughter, Erma Isabel, was united in marriage to Rev. T. W. Ferguson Gee Andrew, of Norwood. At exactly 5 o'clock as the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Miss Florence McIndoo, were wafted on the air, the groom took his place under an evergreen arch with Union Jack background, which had been erected on the lawn, with two little fairies in blue and pink respectively, Helen Argue as ring bearer and Helen Spencer as flower girl, one on each side, and was quickly followed by the bride, leaning on the arm of her father. She looked very lovely in her bridal gown of white taffeta and crepe, with train of delicate shell pink, wearing a silk embroidered Brussels net wedding veil and wreath of orange blossoms and carrying a shower bouquet of white roses. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. G. Lewis, B.A. The couple were unattended. During the signing of the register, Mrs. (Rev.) J. E. Glover sang "Our Castle of Dreams."

After the congratulations of the numerous relatives and friends who were present a delightful repast was served in a marque on the lawn by Hoopers' of Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrews left on the 7.38 train for the east amid showers of confetti and the hearty good wishes of their friends, who accompanied them to the station. Their wedding trip includes visits to Queenston, Niagara and Toronto and return visits to their respective homes at Norwood and Pontypool, before leaving for their new home at St. Joseph's Island.

The bride's going away gown was of grey diagonal velvet with hat of black velvet. The presents were numerous and valuable, which testified to the popularity of the bride. Among them was a cabinet of pearl-handled knives and forks from the choir of the Methodist church, where she has served for some time as organist, so efficiently, being a piano graduate of Toronto Conservatory. She will be greatly missed in choir and social circles.

New Brunswick Potatoes Lower Prices in Ottawa

Ottawa, September 14.—The arrival of several car loads of New Brunswick potatoes to Ottawa has been a godsend to the housekeepers. It broke the price of that important foodstuff. Last week the dealers refused $2.50 per bag, but now they were glad to sell at $2. More New Brunswick potatoes are expected in the next week or two, and no doubt they will have the effect of making the local price more reasonable.

The quality of the eastern potatoes is first class and they were brought in owing to the heavy price charged by the producers in this vicinity.

Kaiser's Second Son Missed Death By Feet

Paris, September 14.—Prince Eitel Frits, the Kaiser's second son, came with a few feet of death in the Somme battle, according to Le Journal. The French upon learning that he was quartered in the chateau in the village of Temple la Fosse, 12 miles from the French lines, trained a 16-inch naval gun upon the chateau and blew it to pieces with 65 shells. Prisoners taken stated that the first shell struck the side wing of the chateau a few feet from the map room, where the Kaiser's son was working with his staff.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE.

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles, and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Hiss, Brodhagen, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

War Changes Funeral Fashions in England

London, September 14.—War economy has changed the fashion in English funerals. They have become simpler. Protests are made against plumes, hearses, expensive coffins and other ornaments of the conventional burial.

The late Major Walton of Brighton ordered in his will that no gloves, hat bands, scarves and cloaks, "or other disgusting paraphernalia of the undertaker," were to be worn at his funeral, and the horses were to be brown, bay, grey or chestnut.

An army colonel, writing to the newspapers, says: "A hearse is an abomination of stamped tin and tinsel."

London undertakers interviewed agreed that the people are ordering less expensive funerals but predicted a return to the old order after the war.

A New Blood-Food Called Ferrozone Sure to Restore You Quickly.

Every day comes the good news of wonderful cures with Ferrozone.

"About three years ago," says Mr. Meehan, "I had the Grippe which left me in a very run-down condition that finally developed into Dyspepsia. I was unable to eat but a few things and had a craving for acid. I gave up treating with the doctors because they did not help me and on the advice of a friend used Ferrozone. It not only cured me of Dyspepsia and Biliousness, but has built up my strength to what it was before I had the Grippe. I can recommend Ferrozone as an ideal restorative."

Ferrozone gives you force, energy, vim.

It strengthens the stomach, cures indigestion, prevents headaches — guarantees good health.

Thousands use Ferrozone—they all feel better; try it yourself — sold in 50c. boxes, six for $2.50, at all dealers or direct from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Greeks If They Join Allies Would Like To Conduct Own Campaign Against Bulgars

Barely Escaping An Alliance With the Central Powers Through a Bribe of $200,000,000 Offered by Baron Schenck, Agent of Prussia, Leaders Now Turn to Entente For Way Out of Their Dilemma--King Upsets the Scheme--Balkan Line May Be Divided Into Three Distinct Fronts.

WAR IN FORTY-EIGHT HOURS

ROME, September 14.—King Constantine will order active participation in the war within forty-eight hours, is is semi-officially announced. This is confirmed by the latest Cabinet changes. M .Dimitrakopoulos, the new Premier of Greece, is a strong friend of the Entente Allies, and it is expected Greece will be in the war in two days.

A proposal that the Greek Army, with the Serbian forces subservient to it, will undertake to handle alone the offensive in the southeast against the Bulgarian and Austro-Prussian armies is declared to have been put forward as a way oue of the dilemma in which Greece now finds herself and as a means of restoring the prestige of King Constantine.

The calculation is made by the Patris, of Athens, that the forces lined up on the Austrian side in the Balkans is only slightly more than 200,000. The Greek army, supplied with munitions by the Allies, would be able to cope with these forces, it is affirmed.

Mr. Venizelos, whose return to power is believed to be imminent, has emphasized in a series of articles in the Athens Herald the necessity of governmental action to regain the lost prestige of the nation. He intimates that the continuance of the Greek dynasty at the head of the nation is comprised in his party's plans for a rapid modification of the previously existing conditions.

The role of King Constantine in the long period of oscillation of the Greek government between the belligerent parties is being shown to better advantage now that the censors in the allied countries are allowing the details sent by correspondents in Greece to be published. Among the statements made in the Rome tribuna in this connection is one to the effect that it was the King himself who upset a scheme by leading Ministers for throwing Greece into the arms of the Central Empires.

HUGE SUM FOR PROPAGANDA.

The leaders of this movement, the Italian newspaper says, were the Prussian agent, Baron Schenk, and Mr.. Gounaris and Mr. Skouloudis, both of whom were Premiers after the ousting of Mr. Venizelos, and General Dusmanis, who was chief of staff until August 27. The sum of 1,000,000,000 drachme ($200,000,000) is said to have been at the disposal of Baron Schenk for the purposes of the campaign of propaganda in Greece in behalf of the Prussian cause.

The occasion first suggested by those working for Prussia to force Greece out of her neutrality was the presentation of the note of the Entente Powers which demanded demobilization and a return to the Greek constitution by the holding of a free general election under threat of a landing of allied troops at the Piraeus. It will be remembered that the Berlin official news agency sent out a statement at the time that the allied troops had actually been disembarked.

Mr. Skouloudis, then Premier, and Mr. Gounaris, his adviser, after consultation with the King, proposed to the Cabinet council that the note be rejected, the Tribuna says. This meant a declaration of war against the Allies. The proposal was rejected on the suggestion of Mr. Rhallis.

Then the determination to commit an overt act against the Allies was decided and the Minister of Marine was charged to order the Greek fleet to fire on the allied ships if they did not obey the injunction to retire immediately from the Piraeus and the other ports near the capital. The firing of a shot would have meant war and would have placed Greece by the side of the Central Powers.

KING UPSETS SCHEME.

"Mr. Skouloudis and Mr. Gounaris," the Tribuna adds, "went to the summer residence at Tatoi to obtain the King's signature to the authorization to use force, but on their arrival there they found that the King had already chosen a successor to the Premier and that Mr. Zaimis, of a more prudent disposition, was to have charge of the government. The court party who were associated with General Dusmanis in the agitation in favour of the Central Empires included Princes Nicholas and Andrew."

Crown Prince George had always acted correctly, in the view of the Allies. To the King alone, however, according to this version, must be accorded the credit for preventing the country from being thrown into war against the Allies.

The Patris in calculating the strength of the forces in the Balkans as compared with those of Greece alone says:—

"The Balkan line may be divided into three distinct fronts:—

"1.—The Albanian front, extending from Avlona to Lake Ochrida.

"2.—The Korytza-Florina-Vodena front, from Korytza to Pahovo, north of Vodena.

"3.—The Guevgheli-Doiran front, from Rahovo to Fort Rupel.

"On the Albanian front the Italians have before them a few thousands of Austrians and some groups of Albanians, commanded by Austrian officers. At Elbasan there is a small Bulgarian force.

"The Bulgarian forces of the Korytza-Florina-Vodena front amount to twelve regiments of infantry, supported by three Prussian regiments of artillery and engineers, a total of 60,000 men. The line which they occupy begins at Bogradetch, on Lake Ochrida, passes the KorytzaMonastir high road, reaches Nacoletch and ends in the mountains at Morihovo. On the other side of the mountains it descends to Bahovo. The fortified parts of this line are the Peristeri Slopes, looking toward the Florina-Monastir road and the heights dominating the Errigone passes toward Morihovo.

COMITADJIS ON EASTERN FRONT.

"On the third front the Bulgarians occupy a line passing above Tousfani and Monastir and on to Guexgheli, Doiran and Rupel and inclining toward Demir-Hissar. This line is continued onward on the Tsunghedi and Sarliga Mountains and this last part is intrusted to 10,000 comitadjis. The Bulgarian forces on this front amount to 180,000 men, supported by 12,000 Prussians. Bulgaria cannot increase this number, the remainder of her army being indispensable for operations on the Roumanian front."

The Greek army, operating on interior lines and supplied freely from the sea, could take successful action aginst this entire force, the Greek advocates of the suggestion of handling the campaign over to the care of King Constantine maintain. Particularly would this be the case if the Serbian army were put at the disposal of the Greek monarch.

King Constantine, although he has suffered during the summer from the after effects of his operation of last year, is said now to be in condition to take the field in person, and it is known that his capacity for inspiring the Greek troops to deeds of valor is recognized by the leaders of the allied forces now on Greek soil.. As King Albert is left in control of the Belgian army in his own territory, it is contended that the Greek King, if that nation joins the side of the Allies, also should be allowed control of the forces operating in Greece. It is observed that the Prussian Great General Staff follows the etiquette of warfare of bygone days in this regard by allotting at least nominal authority to Princes representing allied armies.

French Capture Enemy's Third Line Trenches

Twenty-three Hundred Prisoners Taken Together With Ten Guns and Several Machine Guns—Combles and Peronne Are Both Encircled By Allies' Troops—French Guns Dominate All Roads From Peronne—Germans Counter-Attacked Desperately in Vain Attempts to Turn Back the French Forces.

TRANSFERRING TROOPS FROM VERDUN

PARIS, September 14.—French troops have carried the German's third line of trenches between Combles and Peronne, which are both now encircled by Allied troops. Twenty-three hundred German prisoners were taken in the last two days, also ten guns and several machine guns.

French artillery is today drawing the ring of fire tighter around Peronne, which is almost entirely cut off from communication with the rest of the German front.

FRENCH GUNS DOMINATE POSITION.

Despatches from the Somme to-day said the great eastward push of General Foch's men in the last forty-eight hours has placed all roads from Peronne within range of French guns. Supplies can be brought into the city only under cover of night along the roads entering from the east. The Germans counter-attacked desperately yesterday afternoon in vain attempts to throw back the French from the new positions northwest of Peronne. At no one single point in the present fighting have the German losses been so severe as in yesterday's counter-attacks southeast of Bouchaveses. The Germans have shifted more troops from Verdun to the Somme front in an effort to check General Foch's forces closing in upon Peronne.

The War Office announced to-day that yesterday's ineffective counter-attack against the southern extremity of Hill 76, northwest of Peronne, was led by a fresh German division hastily transferred from Verdun. The Germans made several more attacks at the same point last night, but were completely repulsed.

GERMAN COUNTER-ATTACKS FAIL.

With the French line far advanced by the blow yesterday and to-day, the next step in the process rests with the British. When Haig resumes his offensive he will press eastward from Ginchyand Guillemont until the Combles position is turned.. Once this obstacle is thrust from their path the allied forces can move toward control of the whole Bapaume-Peronne road.

The Germans are making strenuous efforts to stop the allied progress definitely. In this endeavour Hindenburg's hand is seen plainly. The German staff has divided the west front into three sectors—one comprising the district from the sea to Picardy, the second the Somme region, and the third the Verdun front.

A definite change in the German strategy on the west front is expected to result from these changes. Conceivably the often-reported withdrawal from a large port of France may now be carried out, or the shift may be the signal for a heavy counter-attack, probably against the British line.

Haig's troops were inactive yesterday. The bombardment continued, but with less than its accustomed intensity. Presumably the British are once more breaking the road for a new drive eastward. The operations on the northern front, where Thiepval is the emmediate goal, apparently have been subordinated to this effort.

Cattle Markets.

Receipts at the Toronto Union Stock Yards yesterday were 110 cars, made up of 1,288 cattle, 160 calves, 2,300 hogs, 2,019 sheep.

It was a fairly strong and active cattle market with prices steady to 10 cents firmer on the choice butcher steers and heifers. A couple of loads of choice heavy steers topped the market at $9.10, and several other loads of heavy steers went well over $8.25. The demand was again strong for the best quality butcher steers and heifers in the market, while the poorer qualities were neglected.

There is a slightly improved demand for stockers and feeders.

Sheep and lambs strong and 10 to 15 cents higher.

Calves, choice veal, 25 cents higher.

Hogs 25 cents higher.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Atkinson Will Be Missed By Hastings Citizens

HASTINGS, Sept. 12.—Our local juvenile lacrosse team went to Aurora on Wednesday to play the return game, but were defeated, not feeling at home on the grounds. However, everyone speaks highly of the play put up by the Aurora team.

We were very sorry to lose as citizens Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Atkinson, who left during the past week to take up residence in Peterborough. As citizens, they will be greatly missed, particularly as active members of the Methodist Church, ever ready and willing to assist in any movement for the benefit of the church. The best wishes of a large circle of friends will follow them to their new home, and feel that Peterborough will be the better for their citizenship.

Rev. and Mrs. Snell have returned from their vacation, and taken up active church work.

The schools re-opened during the week with Mr. J. Staples, as principal, and Miss McCutcheon as assistant. Miss McMurty is in charge of the Separate School.

Mr. Jas. Stevenson left on Monday for Toronto with a car of live cattle for the markets.

A very severe electrical storm passed over this district on Thursday afternoon. A barn belonging to Mr. Charlie Peters, who resides in Percy, was struck by lightning, but did not take fire.

The I.O.D.E. met in their rooms on Monday afternoon and discussed a number of important matters relative to a successful carrying on of patriotic activities.

Mr. Isaac Brooks, of Winnipeg, is in town visiting friends, the guest of his brother, Mr. Albert Brooks.

Mr. Nasmith, of Toronto, was in town for a few days in his official capacity as bank inspector.

Mrs. Reuben Faulkner, of Moorefield, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. H. Collins.

A large party of excursionists from Peterborough passed through here last week, en route for Healy Falls, to spend the day. They were accompanied by some of our citizens, who very much enjoyed the company.

Mr. Allan Greenley is home from St. Catharines, recuperating from an attack of typhoid fever.

Mr. Boyes of the Union Bank staff, is off for a two weeks' vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fleming motored to Toronto during the week.

Mr. Everett Greenley is in Peterborough attending the Collegiate.

Mrs. Jas. Buck is on an extended visit to Kerrobert, Sask., with her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Breckenridge.

Mr. Jim Stewart, of Warkworth, was in town last week.

Mrs. Stenson, of Peterborough, is the guest of her son, Mr. James Stenson.

Miss Stewart, of Peterborough, is with her sister, Mrs. Cruickshanks.

Mrs. Malcolm Baker and son returned during the week from North Bay, where they were visiting friends.

Mrs. Brown, of Trenton, has been holidaying in and around Hastings.

Mrs. Purdy, of Huntsville, is with her mother, Mrs. Dodd.

A number of auto loads motored to Toronto during the week, and report an excellent time, although the crowd was very large.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Tate visited last week with friends in Morganston.

The farmers inform us that rain is much needed, ploughing being almost impossible.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Ecarlate

A Man's Dream Materialized.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

When Dacre married his friends said of him that any woman who allied herself to him would not be able to hold him. He was a man about town, a clubman, a man who was always welcome behind the scenes at the theaters and was very often found there, especially when the chorus and ballet girls were pretty. Some declared that the girl he married was one of a thousand; just the woman, in fact, to hold such a man as Dacre. One who was familiar with his makeup replied that if she did hold him she would have to do it in gauze and tights.

Dacre before the wedding made all sorts of promises to his fiancee. He would eschew theaters—that is, he would never go behind the scenes. He would cut all his old friends who were "fast." In short, he would make a model husband, devoted to his wife alone. That he loved her she did not doubt. What she feared was that some one would steal him away from her through his senses.

To every one's surprise, Dacre kept his promises. For a year he never went to the theater except with his wife. Then when the baby came and she had a new being to look after he was left occasionally alone of an evening. One night to pass the time he sought amusement in what for him was a dangerous place. The queen of the ballet captured him, and from that time forward he was devoted to a succession of dancers. At last the predictions of those who knew him best had come true. His wife's life was changed from happiness to misery.

Then came the peerless Ecarlate. Shortly before her coming Mrs. Dacre had exacted a promise from her husband that he would abstain from an acquaintance with any more women of the stage. He kept his promise, but every night that Ecarlate danced he was in his accustomed seat in the theater. He had been captivated by the poetry of motion and could not look upon the dancer except with a mad temptation to break his word to the woman he really loved.

One night when Dacre was at the theater just before the dancer came on the stage the lights were lowered and the orchestra softly played a dream waltz. Then came a change.

The violins suddenly swept into a legato movement, and as if treading lightly on the delicate measure a small scarlet clad form swayed on to the darkened stage and fluttered there until the cold circle of the spot light searched and found her.

It held her there, a quivering creature of tantalizing mystery, a baffling airy thing of midnight hair, glorious eyes and unknown features, for Ecarlate was always masked.

Above the black velvet mask showed a white forehead, with the soft black hair banded with jewels. Below it there were rose red lips, curved in tender smiles, and a dimpled white chin. Through the slits in the mask her eyes worked disaster.

The mystery of her unknown features only added to her charm in the eyes of men, especially Jack Dacre.

Dacre leaned with his elbows on the railing of the box, and quite oblivious to significant glances he watched the dancer. He stared at her until his heart ached with longing that the mask might be lifted so that he could feast his eyes on the loveliness which he had never yet seen.

His eyes never left her while she danced. Occasionally she flashed a melting glance toward the box where he always sat when she danced, and then her head was turned aside so that he might see that she wore his nightly offering, a scarlet cactus flower tucked in the duskiness of her wonderful hair.

"My scarlet beauty!" he muttered restlessly as she swayed in the dizzy mazes of her famous butterfly dance.

Scarlet she was from the flower in her hair to the tips of her tiny satin slippers.

With snowy arms she lifted the scarlet chiffon wings of her filmy skirts, her head fell back, and she melted into the rhythm of one of her character dances.

When it was over she withdrew, her arms loaded with flowers, her eyes smiling at Dacre's frowning face.

With her departure Jack Dacre went away. For him the performance had ended with the vanishing of Ecarlate.

For an hour he sat on the lounge of his club, drinking a little, thinking all the time of the strange woman whom he madly loved, although her face was unknown to him. Even her home was an impenetrable mystery. She came and went like a bright meteor flashing across the midnight sky. Her managers were dumb on the subject. It was whispered that she was of royal birth.

It was nearly midnight when Dacre let himself into his own house and gave his hat and overcoat to a sleepy servant.

"Is Mrs. Dacre out this evening?" he asked, with a foot on the stair.

"Mrs. Dacre returned an hour ago. I believe she is in her boudoir, sir."

Dacre went on up the stairs and turned into his own room. For a moment he hesitated; then he crossed to the door of his wife's dressing room and laid his hand on the glass knob.

Would it respond to his pressure? His hand gripped the knob. It turned, and he entered his wife's apartments.

Eve Dacre sat in her boudoir under the glow of pink shaded lamps. She wore a negligee of rose colored silk, and her dark, piquant face seemed to reflect the tender glow.

She looked up as he entered, and a cold little smile curved her lips and drifted away.

"Ah, you are home!" she said. "Did you enjoy the play?"

"I went to the Venus," he said frigidly.

Now Mrs. Dacre laughed softly. "The Venus, of course! I, too, was there."

"You?" he stammered.

"Yes. It was all rather stupid, was it not? Always excepting Ecarlate!"

He was silent. His mouth was white, and his gray eyes looked cold and impenetrable.

Eve arose and crossed to the phonograph. She slipped in a record, set it in motion and returned to lean over the back of her chair, looking at her husband with grave, dark eyes, while the tender strains of Ecarlate's dance rose and fell.

"What are you doing that for?" he demanded fiercely.

"Jack," she said in a voice suddenly weary, "let us be frank with each other. You want your freedom. Am I right?"

"You are dead wrong!" he retorted doggedly.

"But Ecarlate?" Her voice dropped to a whisper.

"We will not talk of her."

"And those that came before Ecarlate," she went on, while the haunting music made a background for her passionate words. "I have overlooked, I have forgiven, and now it is Ecarlate. You love her. You dare not deny it!"

Again he was silent. He looked at her, noting, with a shock of surprise, that there were silver threads in Eve's dark hair and lines about her mouth and eyes—lines that he had graven there. Eve was only twenty-five, and he was killing her youth.

Suddenly she drew a long breath.

"What is it about these women that attracts you? What charm do they possess that is not mine?"

Still he did not answer.

She swayed a little and turned away.

"Ecarlate is here! I am sending her to you!"

"Ecarlate here? You are mad!" he exclaimed. But the gentle closing of the door sent him quivering to a chair.

The music played steadily on—that eternal butterfly dance. He began to hate it. What was Ecarlate doing here in his house? It was like a jealous woman to take revenge, but he had believed Eve above such trickery.

Ecarlate!

The repetition of her name, the familiar music, and again the old enchantment fell upon him. He watched the door for her appearance. What would she look like? Beautiful, of course! He forgot that Eve would accompany the dancer.

He jumped up when the door slowly opened to admit Ecarlate's scarlet clad form. She was alone.

The door closed and left her leaning against the white paneled surface, panting a little, as if afraid.

Dacre laughed triumphantly. Ecarlate afraid of him, her adorer!

He made one step toward her, but in that instant she left the door and swayed like a butterfly in the mazes of her dance. Delicately she poised before him, and then, before his outstretched hand could touch her, she had melted away beyond his reach.

Her tiny scarlet shoes seemed to barely touch the floor; she floated; her chiffon wings beat the air; the jeweled band above her forehead blazed with myriad lights; the cactus flower flamed like a burning heart.

Suddenly the music ceased, and the dancer was once more leaning against the white door of Eve's dressing room. Through her black mask her eyes gleamed strangely.

Dacre clinched his hands. Ecarlate, standing there with outstretched scarlet winged arms, appeared like a scarlet angel barring him from his wife's room.

He stared at her smiling lips, at the alluring sparkle of her eyes peering oddly at him through the mask, at her black hair with its dazzling band of brilliants.

Suddenly he remembered that his wife's hair was black, but it was threaded with silver. He had placed the silver threads there.

He laid his hand on Ecarlate's arm. His voice was hoarse with resolve.

"Allow me to pass," he said.

She laughed, a merry, trickling, mocking laugh that ended suddenly in a sob of pain.

His hand had closed on her tender flesh.

"Will you let me pass?" he asked through clinched teeth.

"You love me!" she whispered tensely.

He was silent.

"Say you love me!" she repeated.

He lifted his hand and deliberately tore aside the mask.

For several minutes he stared at Ecarlate's face. How many times had he yearned to tear away the mask and feast his eyes on her unknown loveliness!

It was a face such as he had never imagined in his wildest dreams of her.

Suddenly she covered it with little jeweled hands.

Then he spoke.

"I love you!" he cried vehemently. "I have always loved you! It was because you were behind the mask that I loved you, and you alone!"

She melted into his arms, and he held her there.

Ecarlate no longer barred the door to his wife's room. She was in his arms. His wife was in his arms.

His wife was Ecarlate. Ecarlate was his wife.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N. B., writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat troubles and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

NO SOCKS IN GERMAN ARMY.

The German soldier does not wear socks, but fusslappen, says the Outlook. These are strips of cloth soaked in tallow and wound about the feet. They are supposed to be preferable to socks in that they wear more evenly, are more easily cleaned and, when properly worn, are not so likely to wrinkle and cause blisters.

Military authorities disagree, however, as to the relative value of socks and tallow-soaked strips. Either covering, though, is considered preferable to the custom of wearing no socks, which has prevailed in the French, Spanish and the Italian armies.

Market Has Held Firmly During The Past Week

A new cheese record was made this week when 21 1-4 cents was paid on the St. Hyacinthe board, Quebec. This is practically 7 cents higher than the high price of a year ago. There is every indication that the price will remain firm until the end of the season.

POTATOES continue to sell at high prices. Last Saturday $2.50 was the predominant local price, but Ottawa reports that New Brunswick car arrivals have reduced the price there to $2. Maine has been clamoring for a high tariff against Canadian potatoes (especially New Brunswick's) and if anything should materialize to that end it would settle the high prices in this country for the present year.

BUTTER is easily a market feature and every prospect indicates its future prominence.

The price has remained steady during the past two weeks, ranging from 35c to 36c for dairy and creamery respectively.

Export demand is bolstering the Canadian prices just now and the home business continues very active.

GRAINS.

The local grain prices are:
Wheat, per bush., $1.20.
Oats, per bush., 55c.
Barley, per bush., 90c.
Rye, per bush., 90c.
Loose hay, per ton, $10.

OTHER PRICES.

Live hogs, per cwt., $11.25.
Eggs, per doz., 28c to 30c.
Strained honey, per lb., 15c.
Lamb, per lb., 21 to 23c.

60 PER CENT. APPLE CROP.

"The Ontario apple crop will not be over 60 per cent. that of last year in volume and we will not have half the quantity of Nos. 1 and 2 fruit that we had in 1915," said Don. J. Johnson, the Dominion Fruit Commissioner.

"On the other hand the northwestern states will have double the tonnage of a year ago, and the quality there is good.

"In the Annapolis valley, volume of production will be about the same as a year ago with quality better. Taking the continent over production will be practically the same as in 1915.

"Transportation facilities to the British market will be somewhat better than last season, but the rates will be high, $2 per barrel. The total cost of handling and selling in Britain may be put at twelve shillings per barrel. But the market over the water is correspondingly high."

200,000,000 BUSH. WHEAT CROP.

Winnipeg, September 13.—The Free Press expert after a month's inspection, publishes the following figures relative to the crops. The wheat crop in the three prairie provinces is estimated at from 170,000,000 to 200,000,000 bushels. This is roughly 100,000,000 bushels for Saskatchewan, 36,000,000 bushels for Manitoba, and 35,000,000 bushels upwards for Alberta, thus making the yield 12 bushels to the acre for Manitoba and 15 bushels to the acre for Saskatchewan.

In Alberta there is no doubt that the bulk of the 1,500,000 acres in wheat is south of the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and 25 bushels to the acre is a fairly conservative estimate for that territory; it will probably run much higher, and may reach a thirty bushel average, adds the Free Press. No definite estimate of the yield could be made in the north owing to the very spotted conditions, but it is safe to assume that there will be sufficient out of the north to bring the yield of the province up to thirty five or possibly forty million bushels.

Continuing the Free Press says: "The grade of the crop will be unsatisfactory. The percentage of No. 1 Northern in any of the provinces will be small, with the exception of Southern Alberta, where it should be very heavy. There will be a considerable quantity of No. 2, but a great deal of the wheat which should by right of color, go No. 2, will hardly make that grade on account of lack of weight. Taking the yield at the smaller figure—170,000,000 bushels—and putting the price of the lower grades against the high, it will not be worth less than 90c a bushel, or $15,000,000.

OATS FAIR, HAY ABUNDANT.

"The oat crop is pretty fair in all of the three of the prairie provinces, the depreciation by frost in some districts being more a matter of quality than of quantity. According to the government statistics there are in the three provinces 6,476,246 acres in oats and it is fairly safe to assume a yield for this whole area of 40 bushels to the acre, which would give a total of 259,049,840 bushels.

"Barley is a very disappointing crop in most sections. Manitoba is the largest producer of barley and while her early barley is good the late sown suffered much from rust; and in northern Alberta which is perhaps the second largest barley producing district, it suffered considerably from frost. But even with these drawbacks there is a very fair amount of barley and while possibly a very small percentage will be fit for export it is all good for feed.

"The total area in flax for the three prairie provinces is small and practically all the flax territory north of the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway is pretty late, and its reaching maturity is more or less doubtful, but south of the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway the flax is pretty good. Almost everywhere the straw is short but where the flax has matured it is a good plump seed and will yield well. Probably nine bushels to the acre for the area seeded would be a fair estimate.

"In all of the three provinces there is a great abundance of good hay. There is absolutely no shortage of feed anywhere so that while the outlook is disappointing in view of the great promise in the early part of the season there is not disaster as to crop in the Canadian west and the outlook is distinctly good and business brisk in practically every western town."

Ltitle Boy Nine Months Old HAD DYSENTERY

Dysentery is one of the worst forms of bowel complaint. The pains in the bowels become intense, the discharges occur with great rapidity, and are very often accompanied by blood, and the sufferer becomes very weak and languid.

Unless these discharges are checked, death may ensue in a very short time.

There is only one remedy to use in all cases of dysentery, and that is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. It will cure when all other remedies fail.

Mrs. J. Leslie McKee, Redvers, Sask., writes: "I used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for my little boy when he was about nine months old. He was awfully bad with dysentery. I had not laid him down for three days and nights, only when his father took him for a few minutes. He had both the diarrhoea and vomiting. I had tried everything until my husband got "Dr. Fowler's, and three doses cured him."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is the remedy you want. Don't take any other when you ask for it.

FAILURE OF GIRDER CASTING CAUSED LOSS OF BRIDGE SPAN

OTTAWA, Sept. 13.—The financial loss involved in the collapse of the centre span of the Quebec bridge must be borne by the contracting company. It became known definitely today that this the the position taken by the Dominion Government, and so far as is known here there is no disposition on the part of the St. Lawrence Bridge Company to evade liability. The Government holds a deposit of a million dollars put up by the company as security for the full performance of the contract. There will be no change of contractors, and there will be no change in the engineering board. Both have done all that they possibly could, and there is no suggestion that anything but the best material went into the bridge.

Members of the Government who saw the disaster are back in Ottawa to-day, and their statements support the theory that the centre span buckled. This, however, may have happened after the span turned over when the end connections parted.

The chance of salvaging the lost span is said to be a small one although an attempt may be made for the sake of the steel that is there. Steel of this kind is now very scarce, and the difficulty of securing a new supply may put the completion back for a year.

The government is still without information as to the cause of the collapse. An investigation by the contractors and the engineers will likely throw light on this point. It is not likely that the government will order an investigation as the responsibility is with with the constructing company.

The following expression of sympathy from His Majesty the King in regard to the Quebec bridge disaster, was received to-day by H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, dated from Windsor Castle:

"I am deeply concerned to hear of the Quebec bridge disaster and sincerely trust that the loss of life is not heavy."

A reply was at once forwarded by the Governor-General thanking the King for his message and giving what information is available as to the loss of life.

The following message was received by Sir Robert Borden from Mr. Alfred W. Smithers, the chairman of the Grand Trunk:

"On behalf of the board and myself I beg to express great regret at the Quebec bridge disaster and deep sympathy at the loss of life."

Sir Robert Borden replied: "Deeply appreciate your kind message: please convey my thanks to your board.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S APRON

By Anabel Worthington

Style is well represented in this apron, which has the body and sleeve sections in one. Any garment cut in one piece can be made up in the shortest time and without any lessons in dressmaking except as the pattern guides.

Wash braid is chosen to trim the garment in the picture, but solid color contrasting goods may just as well be used to trim the round neck, which is cut quite low, and to mark a cuff on the short sleeve. The same trimming is repeated down the front where the closing is made. A braid trimmed belt fits loosely around the waist, buttoning in front, and there is a good sized pocket in each front made with a gathered top and braid bound all around.

Flowered and figured wash goods stand in the front ranks for aprons and house dresses and may be bought late in the season as now for half cost. To take advantage means to save money, and when you make your own garment for utility or other wear you can measure the care that goes into the making and finish of it—in "ready mades" you measure what is left out.

The pattern of No. 7896 is cut in sizes 36-40 and 44 bust measure. To make in size 36 will require 3¾ yards of 36 inch material and 2¼ yards braid.

You may obtain the pattern by sending ——— to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Address—The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

Beware of dangerous substitutes offered under misleading names for genuine Catarrhozone which is sold everywhere, large size containing two months treatment costs $1.00, small size 50c; trial size 25c.

Another Effort To Unite Bridge Arms

First See If There Was Defect in Work, Then If the System Itself Is Feasible.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 13. — Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways, who returned yesterday from Quebec, said it had not been decided as to what form the inquiry into the Quebec bridge disaster will take. He will attend a meeting of the Cabinet Council this afternoon at which the matter will be discussed. The first thing to be done is to send divers down to inspect the sunken span with the object of ascertaining, if possible, the cause of the accident.

Officials of the Marine Department announce that the St. Lawrence River under the bridge has been swept to a depth of fifty feet at low tide without touching the obstruction. The river at this point is almost 200 feet deep.

Examine Work and Plans.

The appointment of a commission to conduct a more comprehensive investigation will depend upon developments. If the experts should decide that the danger was due to a weakness in the span itself which caused it to buckle, it is altogether likely that a commission will be named to conduct a thorough investigation into the details of the construction plans.

It is recalled that during the last session of parliament Hon. Geo. P. Graham, who was Minister of Railways at the time of the first disaster, stated that many prominent engineers claimed that it would be impossible to put the central span into position in the way proposed. Mr. Graham added that he hoped they were wrong, but that he would feel nervous until the feat was successfully accomplished.

Where Loss Will Fall.

Under the terms of the contract the loss undoubtedly falls upon the St. Lawrence Bridge Company, but whether or not the company will be called upon to bear the whole burden depends upon the future developments and the placing of the responsibility for the failure of the company and its engineering staff to put the central span in position. It is absolutely certain that a third attempt will be made to complete the bridge, and the probability of the span being lifted from the bottom of the St. Lawrence by the hydraulic jacks installed on the bridge to place the span in position is being discussed.

The marine department has been advised that navigation of the St. Lawrence River in the vicinity of the bridge has not been obstructed by the collapse of the central span. Immediately upon the return of the Minister of Railways and his colleagues to the capital, conferences will be held with the engineers of the department and the St. Lawrence Bridge Company, and a course of action decided upon.

CANADA GETS $3,000,000 MEAT ORDER

LONDON, Sept. 12. —Three million dollars worth of cured meats, hams and pork for the French army, to be delivered from November to March next, is the nice order just won by the Canadian packers, Pat Burns & Company of Calgary, in competition with the largest Chicago firms. There is also a large chilled beef order for the same firm.

Although particulars cannot be disclosed yet, it is estimated that it will take 250,000 hogs to fill the first contract. According to a representative of the packers, there has been no difficulty about getting freight room.

There is keen competition at present in France between Canadian and American firms in other lines and they note the warning sounded that Americans are hard after French orders, an influential commission from the States having just arrived in France. On its recent visit the Canadian Trade Commission did immense good; Americans found a fine display of various Dominion commodties when they arrived at the Trade Exhibtion now being held at Bordeaux.

Fancy Drinks Are Scarce

IT IS MIGHTY HARD TO GET THEM WITH CLOSING PERIOD VERY NEAR.

It's hard to get your favorite fancy drink at any of the thirst emporiums just now, and there is a reason.

With the time drawing near when John Barleycorn and his kin must disappear from all hotels, the proprietors feel that they should not purchase any more stock and in many of the hotels there is nothing to be had but the regular lines, and in some cases they are missing. At seven o'clock on Saturday night every hotel must be cleared of intoxicating liquors, as after that hour they can keep open but must sell local option beer and unfermented wines only.

Many of the hotels have already arranged to store it with the hope that they will be able to secure a license after the war and the stock will be more valuable than ever then. At any rate there are but a few days more to purchase a high one over the polished mahogany, so that it is up to all concerned to do their shopping early and avoid the great rush when the last call for refreshments comes at 6.45 on Saturday evening.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

MACKENSON BURNS ORDERS FROM KAISER

FIELD MARSHALL TELLS TEUTON ALLIES CAMPAIGN MUST BE FOR GERMANY'S PROTECTION.

London.—An interesting story regarding Field Marshall von Mackensen, who is understood to be in control of all the Central Powers' armies in Southeastern Europe, is told by Petroff, a well known war correspondent of the Russkoe Slovo:

German prisoners, he says, speak of Mackensen as the "Archangel Michael with a flaming sword, who put the enemy to rout in the Carpathians."

When he assumed the command of the Austrian armies in the Carpathians he began by proclaiming the whole Carpathian district in a state of siege. Next he requisitioned all horses from the neighboring villages, registered all the old men, women, and children over 12 years of age, and organised them into working squads. New roads were built, and narrow-gauge railways were constructed in all the passes. The number of troops was doubled. German engineering troops were transported in great numbers and set to working night and day. The number of machine guns available is said to be something appalling. Von Mackensen boasts, according to Petroff, that he is going to strengthen the Carpathians so they will be as red-hot iron stairs to the advancing Russians.

Petroff quotes statements made by prisoners of war concerning two recent war councils held by Mackensen. The first took place at Kovel, nineteen Austrian generals of the highest rank being present.

"At the opening of the sitting," says Petroff, "Prince Leopold of Bavaria, especially sent by the Kaiser, handed to von Mackensen a letter from the Kaiser. Von Mackensen rose to his feet and began to read the important document. Prince Leopold also stood up. Von Mackensen read in silence, becoming pensive, often frowning. It was evident that the letter contained numerous questions, and that Prince Leopold knew their order and character. While von Mackensen was reading Prince Leopold was actually as it were counting every expression on the face of the Carpathian archangel. As he read von Mackensen sometimes paused to think over the question dealt with in the letter, replying with determination and resolution, 'Yes.' At other points he uttered a resolute 'No.' Prince Leopold marked these down.

"Having finished reading, von Mackensen again became pensive, closed his eyes and shook his head. Then he rolled the letter up and lighted it as a gas burner used for the purpose of lighting cigars, holding the paper in his hands until it burnt to ashes. Then he raised his eyes to Prince Leopold, who evidently had been waiting for some statement. But Mackensen remained silent.

"'You did not answer the last question of the Emperor,' remarked the Prince at last.

"'I did not,' slowly retorted Mackensen, frowning.

"It seems that the Austrian Generals present knew what the question was for they all became anxiously attentive and regarded each other with an air of distress. At last, pausing at each syllable, the Field Marshal replied:

"'Because I am too old, and because I have my reputation as a soldier, I am not going to answer anything.'

"All sat quiet and depressed. Prince Leopold grasped his throat as if it was difficult to breathe. One of the Generals, after a pause, asked with what powers the Field Marshal had been invested.

"'General von Hindenburg and myself,' answered Mackensen, 'are the two hands of Emperor Wilhelm, and our action is dictated solely by the head of the kaiser. We are not limited in any other way.'

"At the conclusion of the official deliberations Mackensen frankly told the Austrian generals it was in their interests to obey the German General Staff.

"'If you have failed to defend your country from invasion ,'said he, 'you should at least obey those who have already saved you.'

"When the Austrians had left, Mackensen remarked of the Austrian commanders:

"'In the discussion of plans every one of them is a Machiavelli, but when it comes to the execution they have but straw minds and hands of clay.

"At the second council of war Mackensen acted as the complete master. He frankly said that a number of the higher Austrian generals would be removed from active service, as they were not capable enough. Some of the Austrian commanders asked if there was any hope of clearing the Russians from Austrian territory, as had previously been done.

"'Our Emperor,' answered Mackensen, 'is not carrying on war merely for military glory. Neither is war being waged for gaining pieces of territory, but solely for the defence of our Fatherland. You must leave it to us to decide what must and can be done.'"

Says Spain Next To Enter The War

FORMER PREMIER SAYS THAT THE COUNTRY MUST JOIN ONE SIDE OR THE OTHER.

PARIS, September 14.—Spain must decide in favor of one or other of the belligerents, is the opinion of Antonio Maura, the former premier and the leader of the Conservative party, according to the news despatches from Madrid, quoting and address delivered by Senor Maura.

The address was delivered at Bofanga, near Bilbao, at a meeting attended by 6,000 Mayristas.

The former premier declared that Spain could not abandon her neutrality but that the conditions of the war made her isolation henceforth impossible. He is quoted as saying that it was moreover essential that France and England should not be hostile towards Spain.

The majority of his followers are supposed to be pro-German in their sympathies.

Dr. Cassell's Instant Relief
LIVER TONICS ANTACIDS CARMINATIVES LAXATIVES
Dr. Cassell's Instant Relief is the composition prescription of Dr. Cassell's Tablets.

Liver Troubles, Sick Headache, and Habitual Constipation.

Liver troubles and habitual constipation can be cured—but not by cathartic or purgative medicines. The only possible way is to help your system to cure itself; and that is what Dr. Cassell's Instant Relief so surely does. It is not cathartic, it is not violent, it is quite different to the coarse purgative preparations in common use. These only irritate and weaken; Dr. Cassell's Instant Relief tones and strengthens the liver and bowels, and so restores their power to do nature's work in nature's way.

Ask your Druggist for Dr. Cassell's Instant Relief and take no substitute.

NEW GAINS BY THE BRITISH FORCES
SERBIANS AGAIN SCORE IN BALKAN FIGHTING

THE BRITISH TROOPS MAKE FRESH PROGRESS TO THE NORTH OF GINCHY

General Haig Announces Further Successes in the Movement to Encircle Combles---German Counter Attacks on Verdun Front Are Easily Repulsed--Serbs Carry Bulgarian Trenches at Several Points.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

LONDON, September 14.—The British last night made further progress north of Ginchy, thus co-operating with the French in the movement to encircle Combles, the principal point of support of the German line between Peronne and Bapaume.

General Haig this afternoon announced this new gain and also a successful raid near Souches, where the British took some prisoners.

German Attacks At Verdun Are Repulsed

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, September 14. — West of Chaulnes one German company was caught under French fire and practically annihilated.

On the northeastern front of Verdun, the French easily repulsed several attacks against new French positions on the Vaux Chapitre front.

SERBIANS CONTINUE SUCCESSFUL ADVANCE

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, September 14.—Continuing the advance west of the Vardar, the Serbians carried Bulgarian trenches beween Kovil and Vetrepik, making progress also in the direction of Kaitmatchalon, it was officially announced to-day.

Northwest of Ostrovo Lake the Serbians carried important heights after violent fighting, the advance guards reaching Solkes Malkanidi. The Bulgarians suffered heavily.

On the Allies' right wing from the Vardar to the Struma intermittent cannonading continued yesterday, but there were no infantry actions except patrol engagements.

BULGARS WANT A BALKAN OFFENSIVE

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

ROME, September 14.—A great Balkan offensive by the Teutonic powers is being planned at a conference now going on at the Kaiser's headquarters. The Bulgarians insisted on this it is said.

The tentative plans call for Germany sending 200,000 and Austria 100,000 men to the Balkans.

ATHENS, September 14.—M. Dimitracopoulos has asked King Constantine to allow him forty-eight hours in which to consult friends before deciding as to whether he will undertake the formation of a new Cabinet.

MESOPOTAMIAN ARMY IS AGAIN ACTIVE

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, September 14.—The British army in Mesopotamia, which has been inactive for several months on account of the intense heat, has engaged in a few minor operations recently which resulted successfully for the British.

Lasting Peace Has Been Made Possible

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

Allied victory, has been ensured by the establishment of complete unity among the Allies, which has put the Teutonic powers entirely on the defensive, Premier Briand declared to-day before the Chamber of Deputies. "The intervention of Roumania, and Italy's declaration of war against Germany, have completed the solidarity of the action of the Allies," said the Prime Minister. "The Allies have intervened in Greece for the double purpose of protecting their expeditionary corps and conserving Greece's own interests."

Roumanians Repulse Series of Attacks

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, September 14.—Roumanian troops repulsed a series of attacks by the Germans and Bulgarians in Dobrudja, and have taken eight Bulgarian light guns.

Government Was Warned of Risk

OTTAWA, Sept. 14.—It is recalled that during the last session of Parliament, the Hon. G. P. Graham, who was Minister of Railways at the time of the first Quebec bridge disaster, stated that many prominent engineers claimed that it would be impossible to put the central span of the bridge into position in the way proposed. The Hon. Mr. Graham added that he hoped they would be wrong, but that he would feel nervus until the feat was successfully accomplished.

SOLDIERS ARE VOTING TO-DAY AT CAMP BORDEN

About Fifty of the Boys in Khaki are Eligible to Register Their Vote in the British Columbia Elections

LITTLE INTEREST SHOWN

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

CAMP BORDEN, Ont., Sept. 14.—Voting in British Columbia provincial election, and on questions of woman suffrage and prohibition, for British Columbia residents serving with units in camp, opened this morning. Captain Lou E. Marsh, of the 180th Battalion, was D.R.O. At least fifty here are eligible, but till noon the voting had been exceedingly light, only nine votes having been cast. The general feeling among the men seemed to be strongly against the Bowser Government, but little was heard concerning the prohibition question and woman suffrage, although a few were inclined against prohibition.

The Closing Of Mill and Murray Streets

Committee of the Whole Council Visit the Location

A Committee of the Whole Council met yesterday afternoon for the purpose of visiting the site of the Quaker Oats plant with a view of determining the exact location of the streets that the Company would like to have the city close up in order to facilitate the expansion of their plant. A number of the Aldermen are not in favour of closing Mill street and a part of Murray street, unless concessions of equal value are made by the Company to the City. Some of the Aldermen believe that the time is now at hand when the city should press for a right-of-way across the London street dam, and the permanent erection of a suitable traffic bridge. In consideration of this concession the Council might consider the advisability of closing the streets named. The majority of the Aldermen visited the locality and the matter will be taken up at a later date.

George Street Methodist Church

The Women's Missionary Society of the George street Methodist church met in the church parlour on Tuesday afternoon to re-open after being disbanded for two months. Owing to the departure of Mrs. Campbell and (Rev.) Mrs. Lewis to new fields of labour, several offices were left vacant. These were filled by the following ladies being appointed: First vice-president, Mrs. Stinson; organist, Mrs. Cunningham; superintendent of systematic giving, Mrs. Hanbridge; Mission Band leaders, Mrs. Throop and Mrs. Helson.

The next meeting, which will take the form of a rally, will be held in October.

PAYMENTS TO BELGIAN FUND SATISFACTORY

A meeting of the Belgian Relief committee was held in the Patriotic committee's office on Monday afternoon when the reports of twenty collectors who are working under the supervision of Mrs. W. E. Morris, reported that the pledges are being fulfilled with very few exceptions. This was only an interim report and for that reason a detailed statement will not be forthcoming until the year is terminated. However, it is worthy of note that the payments to this fund have been most satisfactory up to the present.

A Group of Local Y.M.C.A. Boys in England

The above group form a part of the large number of men and older boys of the local Association who have enlisted and are now in the trenches or in England. One hundred and seventy-four men and fifty-nine older boys are on the honour roll of the local Y.M.C.A., many of whom have made the supreme sacrifice. Different Commanding Officers have praised the conduct and the discipline of the Y.M.C.A. recruits, whose Association training has been helpful in their military experience.

The meeting on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock is open to the general public, the ladies as wel las men are welcome. Captain Pearson, Senior Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. work in France, and Major Frost, will be the speakers.

MAJOR McLAUGHLIN OF MOUNTED RIFLES DIES OF WOUNDS

Well Known Officer of 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons Gives Life For Empire---Peterboro' Boys in 4th Pioneer Battalion Say Good-bye to Their Friends--Letters From the Front---To-day's General Military News.

It was with great regret that local militia authorities and hundreds of his friends here heard this morning of the death in France from wounds of Major Arthur E. McLaughlin of the Canadian Mounted Rifles. Major McLaughlin who, in civil life, was a lawyer in Bowmanville, was an officer in the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, with headquarters in Peterborough, and was therefore well known in this city. For a number of years he was adjutant of the 3rd Dragoons, and afterwards acted as Brigade Major of the 3rd Cavalry Brigade. He went overseas as Second in Command of the 8th C.M.R., in which Corps were so many Peterborough boys. Major McLaughlin was very popular. Lt.-Col. Johnston of the 247th Battalion heard the sad news with deep regret. He had been associated with Major McLaughlin in militia life for a long period.

The following letter is self explanatory:

Digby, Nova Scotia, Sept. 11, '16.
Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,— We would like you to state in your paper that the boys who transferred from the 93rd Batt. to the 4th Pioneer Batt., St. Andrews, N. B., are sailing overseas at once. All of the boys have passed the medical exam. They wish to bid the citizens of Peterborough a farewell through your paper. The names of the boys are: Corp. Latchford, Stanley Hartley, Harry Stocker, Robert Emory, Percy Brew, Richard Lewis, Harold Coones, Robert Allan, Patrick Allan, G. McMurray, Melville Parsons, George Digby, James Morris, Jack Geary, Elwood Hilier, Vernon Ellis.

And oblige the boys.

Mrs. D. H. Kerneghan has received the following letter from her son, Driver Stan Kerneghan, who is now in England with the Mechanical Transport, C.A.S.C.:

Shorncliffe, London, Eng., Aug. 28.

Dear Mother and Dad and Max,— Here I am sitting on the back of my truck answering your letters and also letters from the boys of 180th Batt. in Camp Borden.

I am feeling fine. There are ten boys in our tent and last night we went to town and had some fun.

When we arrived home we found an air raid on, so we went to sleep last night, but we should worry as we enjoy ourselves and have lots of fun.

Mother dear, I am longing to have a good meal; the meals are plain but substantial over here. We are the happiest crew of the Canadian army; every boy would lay down his life for his pal in our bunch.

The Peterborough boys are all here and we have named Folkestone Peterborough, as we see so many of the Peterborough boys. Things look good for the Allies across the way, but we must go on and win.

I saw four submarines in the channel Sunday and also a monster last evening. It is flat bottomed and carries numerous guns, and shells the shores. I saw the searchlight in France and also aeroplanes up in the moonlight. It was a grand sight. There mus thave been twenty-five thousand people on the Leas last night and they sure do have some time. Band concert every night and it is grand.

They sure have the enemy on the run, so we will get hi msoon. I am on active service at the base and we are under the same orders as France. B.O. D. C.A.S.C., so we sure do work.

It is fine here to-night. Lovely sunset but cool and we sleep like tops. The boys are shooting pennies and they are having some fun.

Moved twenty tons of blankets the other afternoon; some work just the same. Moved twenty ton of flour today and drove about fifty miles—one day's work. I saw Maurice Park last night and Percy Borland and they are all O.K. I am very tired to-night, so I think I will go away home and go to bed and sleep like a log in my mansion with the feather bed and fancy bedroom. My tent, No. 8, Sec. 1, I rubber sheet and 4 blankets and the ground for my bed.

Love to all from soldier boy Stan.

TORONTO, Sept. 13.— One of the last excuses for men not joining the colours has been removed in a recent order received by the local recruiting depot of the 242nd Foresty Battalion, 55 Queen street west, which order considerably eases up the eye test for men wishing to join this unit. In other words, any man who is turned down by any other recruiting depot in the province can yet find an opporunity to serve his country by joining this Forestry division. According to the latest instructions received from headquarters, the eye-test is so simple that a man who can read letters several inches high at a distance of twenty feet, without glasses, becomes eligible for overseas service with the Foresters.

The easing up of the eye test is due to the fact that the call of the Foresters is for men who can use an axe and saw rather than a rifle, so slight physical defects which make a man ineligible for service with fight-

Good Weather Is All That Is Needed

Everything Else is Rosy For the Peterboro' Industrial Exhibition —Record Entries and Exhibits Are Expected.

A GREAT PROGRAMME

1.15—Official opening by the President, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P.

1.15 - 1.30—Patriotic Address at the Torpedo Stand by representatives of Speaers' Patriotic League, and Mayor Duffus and Mr. R. J. Soden.

1.30.—Baby Judging commences.

2.00—Opening of an extensive programme of events in front of the Grand Stand.

EVENING PEFORMANCE.

8 p.m.—Don't overlook the evening performance, including a grand display of fireworks.

Nothing but bad weather can prevent the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition from smashing all records this year. A visit to the grounds this morning revealed the fact that prospects for a big exhibition were never brighter. Entries in all classes have been simply pouring in and the accommodation provided will be severely taxed.

All is in readiness for the opening which will take place at 1.15 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. There will be short speeches by President Geo. A. Gillespie, Mayor Duffus, Mr. R. J. Soden and a representative of the Speakers' Patriotic League. These addresses will be given near the exhibit of the Whitehead torpedo, just to the south-west of the poultry tent.

The programme in front of the grand stand will commence at 2 o'clock. There will be a long and interesting list of events, including horse racing, exhibitions of stretcher drill, first aid work, etc., by the Queen's Field Ambulance from Barrietield, Capt. Hardy the king of the high wire, the La Tow Sisters, the sensational Arab seven, acrobats, and a number of other equally interesting events. The band of the 57th Regiment will provide music and there will be something doing all afternoon.

In the evening for the benefit of thousands of Peterborough people who are unable to be present in the afternoon the big features of the grand stand performance will be given at night. The Queen's Field Ambulance squad will be there as well as all the other features, while an added attraction will be the big display of fireworks, with a number of unusually brilliant patriotic features. In addition to the 57th Band, the band of the Salvation Army will also be present in the evening.

The Whitehead Torpedo.

One of the most interesting exhibits on the grounds is the Whitehead torpedo loaned to the Exhibition by the Admiralty and in charge of Instructor Miller, torpedo expert. The "tin fish" as the British Jacks term the deadly torpedo, promises to be a centre of attraction. Instructor Miller will be on hand to explain the mechanism of the torpedo and the manner in which it is used. The realisation that it was a missile of this type that sank the great "Lusitania" adds to the interest taken in the district. No visitor to the Exhibition should miss seeing the torpedo, which is to be found a short distance away from the Lock street entrance.

Queen's Field Ambulance.

The chief military feature of the Peterborough exhibition will be the visit of the detachment from Queen's Field Ambulance who arrive this evening from Barriefield camp. Six stretcher sections, in all twenty-four men, in charge of Sergt. Major Beesley, are coming, and the demonstration by the squad promises to be full of interest. Six local cadets will act the part of wounded soldiers to assist the ambulance squad in their work. There are fifteen Peterborough

TEMPERANCE ACT WILL BE PROTECTED SAYS DINGMAN

Committee of One Hundred To Be on Guard Against Any Possible Evasion of the Spirit of the New Measure

STORES ARE CLOSING

TORONTO, Sept. 14.—Evasions and attempts to take refuge behind technical interpretations of the Ontario Temperance Act on the part of liquor dealers will not be allowed to go unchallenged by the Committee of One Hundred and other temperance organisations in Ontario. This was made clear by Mr. James Hales, Vice President of the Committee of One Hundred, when spoken to to-day, with regard to the report that liquor dealers will endeavour to make direct deliveries to their customers from bonded stores within the confines of the Province. Asked if the Board of License Commissioners intended at the first opportunity to make a test case, Vice Chairman Dingman replied: "We intend to protect the Act." Beyond that he would make no further statement.

Already liquor dealers here are preparing to put up their shutters. Some have stopped all deliveries, but will continue to supply customers up till Friday night. It is rumoured that many of the hotels of the city will close on Friday night to prevent the possiblity of any trouble on Satur-

"The Birth Of A Nation"

Wonderful Production Will Be Shown This Evening at the Grand Opera House, Also To-morrow Evening

This presentation of "The Birth of a Nation" is given this afternoon and evening, also to-morrow evening, at The Grand Opera House by special arrangement with the management of The Grand. It will be shown in a few of the most important cities in Canada this season and it will positively. The whole production is the Griffith masterpiece in its entirely. The whole production is brought here exactly as it was played in Massey Hall, Toronto, where it ran for 110 performances to crowded houses:—The same big symphony orchestra, comprising forty pieces, carpenters, electricians, property men and effect men; altogether a company of fifty and two car-loads of effects are skillfully presented to lend enchantment to this the most stupendous spectacle ever conceived by the mind of man.

In two and one-half hours one sees the happenings of fifteen years of the most critical period of United States existence. To watch "The Birth of a Nation," seems as if very history herself rose up as out of some magic cauldron and was visualized before your very eyes.

A wonderful score of operatic researches accompanies the narrative. It is all done upon a most stupendous scale.

DEATH OF FORMER PETERBORO' WOMAN

BUFFALO, Sept. 14.—Mrs. Susan Clayton, aged seventy-nine, mother of Frank Clayton, of Peterborough, died last night following a brief illness at her home here, 462 Fourteenth street. She leaves two other sons and seven daughters. Her husband, Joseph Clayton, died several years ago. The body is to be shipped to-night to Canton, Durham County, for burial.

Pasteboard boxes with sanitary, insect-proof openings have been invented for containing sugar and other food in similar form.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 14, 1916

PROHIBITION.

When the clock strikes seven on Saturday night, September 16th, the bars of Ontario and Peterborough will close to the sale of strong drinks—if not forever, at least for three years. The permanency of prohibition will depend mainly upon enforcement and narrowing the openings to the inflow of imported strong drink for private consumption. It will avail little if lax enforcement introduces a worse form of drinking than the open bar or if facility of importation develops the bottle habit. The argument, strongly urged against Mr. Rowell's prohibition policy, in 1914 was that it did not eliminate the shop. To what extent does this argument apply to importation facilities as a practical substitute for the shop evil? Prohibition will be submitted to severe tests, enough without the measure, itself containing this, or any other element of weakness. But even with these, and with other attempts to discredit it, it is well worth while, and its advocates must be thankful that so much progress has been made.

The present prohibition act will possibly at first not realize the objects aimed at. The drinking habit is so deeply confirmed in so many of our people that extraordinary means will be widely practiced to circumvent the law and obtain a supply of strong drink. But these extraordinary means will become increasingly difficult, with better measures of enforcement, dependent upon fuller knowledge of "ways that are dark"; and as fuller acceptance of prohibition conditions become easier, with increasing difficulty of successfully combatting it. The moderate drinker when he finds his bar supply shut off, will find in his private store of imported liquor, an unsatisfactory substitute, for the social feature of drinking, associated with the bar, and the cause of nine-tenths of the drinking done over the bar and the father of the treating system, the fruitful source of so much drunkenness, if not of all drunkenness, except that of the confirmed sot.

In Peterborough on Saturday we may reasonably expect there will be a large amount of valedictory drinking—a deoch and doris, a stirrup cup—before taking the long journey into the arid regions of perpetual drought. This will be a painful sight to many but it should be encouraging to them. It will represent the "red-fire" effects that accompany the fall of the curtain upon the played-out drama or tragedy, of strong drink.

IS THERE ANY REMEDY?

A great deal of stress is being placed upon the fact that Canada's exports are far exceeding her imports and this is considered a mark of prosperity. But is it real popular prosperity? It doubtless places a heavy burden upon the consumer in Canada, by creating the scarcity that normally increases prices. Never before in this country has the cost of living been so high, and the prospects of reduction are very poor. We are constantly increasing our exports, and while we are creating a home scarcity by large exports, we get no relief from imports. The high tariff adds to their cost. Added to this are many forms of taxation, and there may be more. We do not complain when they are necessary to the discharge of our national and imperial duty; but they certainly add their little to the burden of living. We are assured of a good harvest, but in face of this assurance and fact we are confronted with increase in prices of wheat and bread, and a forecast of greater increase is made. Have we or not, come to the point where we should ask the government to control the exports of commodities and regulate domestic supply so as to moderate prices? If not, if the burden continues to grow greater, something will have to be done. The consuming masses must have consideration, for in this country they are the great producing masses, and though wages are high and employment plentiful, what do they avail if their benefits are neutralized by exorbitant cost of living. The government issues bulletins showing how the cost of living has increased. This is a superfluous; we know that without statistics. If the government can do anything to modify living conditions, there is no indication of any attempt or even disposition to do it. Is there any remedy for the epidemic disease, of the high cost of living?

A DIET OF LIES.

There may be scarcity of food supplies for the people of Germany and the Central Powers, but there still remains abundance of supplies to feed the people with lies to maintain the delusions which the militaristic caste has imposed upon the people. They have so long and so strenuously been taught that Germany is invincible in war that the belief has sunk deep into their minds, and it is difficult to uproot, what has become a more deeply seated and more ineradicable belief, because it is a case of the wish being the father of it. This explains why the people, after being two years deeply deceived with broken German promises of victory, are still clinging to their faith, though in a questioning way, in German power and German prospects of victory. Characteristic German thoroughness applies especially to the policy of deceit and lying, and it is no surprise that there is a new moonshine promise of a tremendous submarine raid, to take effect in January, and aimed to fatally blockade Britain and starve her into impotency. On the face of this statement its falsity is evident. If Germany really contemplated such a movement, its prospects of success would not be weakened by premature disclosure, permitting preparations to meet and destroy its effectiveness. One military commander does not send a polite note to his adversary intimating that, at a certain day and certain hour, he will launch a smashing attack on his right flank. Not only in this, but in other ways, the German people are being fed up with the hope of some miracle intervening to save them; and, as if this were not enough, there is launched a new boast, that the Central powers are planning a tremendous blow, to fall "when the proper time comes"; and this, in face of the fact that for months, on every front, the Central powers have been losing ground; and the prospects of losing more are excellent. The Entente Allies are working together like clockwork, and the Huns are given, and are to be given, no rest. If the Allies are confident they have cause for their confidence, in a steady stream of success, backed by possession of ability to make it continuous. But we must guard against over confidence. Our ability to win consists in perpetual preparedness. We must keep up the strength of our armies, and keep up the flow of munitions. The question Canadians are asking is, is Canada doing her best in either way? Is the Government taking the keen interest in enlistment and in speeding up munitions supply the occasion and circumstances demand? Is not too much left to individual initiative and individual patriotism, whose activities should be made effective by the backing of Government interest, initiative and cooperation?

SOLDIER LIKE KNIGHT OF OLD

Clanking Armour to Protect from Shrapnel Planned for U.S.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept. 14. — Will the American soldier of the twentieth century before the armoured, clanking knight of old; the King Arthuresque, holy grail hunting fighting man? A peek around the corners at the war department's ordnance bureau doesn't make that seem impossible.

Profiting from the experience of the European armies, military men of the bureau are experimenting with numerous types of shrapnel protection—breastplates, helmets, and even suits of mail and individual shields surprisingly similar to the types of armour worn before the introduction of powder and ball.

Invented by American.

The bureau has before it a working model of a coat of armor invented by an American. Its pattern was adapted from a type favored by the ancient Samurai of Japan. The breastplate is formed of a V shape shell of steel a quarter of an inch thick, with a padded lining. A mask of similar design with openings for the eyes accompanies the outfit.

Shoulder plates and epaulets of the same material complete the equipment. Were it not that the unit is designed for use in trench warfare only its weight would at once disqualify it.

The department seems to favour just a protective shield, however. Some experts prefer a long shield for the front of a whole squad of advancing men. They agree that whatever is adopted must be mobile.

The bureau also is working on a new hand grenade for trench warfare.

A Canvas Street.

The north side of the Exhibition grounds from Lock street to the grand stand is a canvas street just now, more tents being in sight today than ever before at the Exhibition. Just inside the Lock street entrance is the poultry tent and immediately west the big tent containing the Horticultural exhibit, one of the finest ever shown here. An exhibit by the De Laval and refreshment booths extend all the way to the George street gate. Among the organizations represented are the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club, the Kitchener League, St. James' church, St. George's church and the Salvation Army Sunday school. Further west is the midway, which promises to be unusually big Haoji the horse with the human brains, occupies a prominent position.

MUSIC.

The Heintzman Co. have a piano exhibit in the main building, as well as J. W. Stuart. The 57th Band will be on the grounds throughout and the Army Band tomorrow evening.

THE BABY CONTEST.

The baby contest will start at 1.30 o'clock, sharp, to-morrow. The first class will be baby girls, up to one year of age. At 2 o'clock baby girls, from 1 to 2 years of age will be judged. The judges to-morrow are Jos. Wearing, Ald. Stratton, and Adjt. McElheney.

There is no entrance fee to the baby contest other than entrance to the grounds. Mothers are asked to have the babies on hand at the advertised hour, as the judging will not be delayed.

THE WHITEHEAD TORPEDO.

Instructor Mills, in charge of the Whitehead torpedo, which is one of the most interesting exhibits at the fair, will give demonstrations every hour from 9 o'clock until 10 in the evening. No one should miss seeing the torpedo. Peterborough is the only city outside of Toronto where it is being shown.

Fight In Sing Sing Follows "Movies"

Sing Sing, N.Y., September 14. — Thomas Mott Osborne, warden of Sing Sing Prison learned the details of a fight which took place last night among six convicts in the cell block. The fight, which followed the efforts of three officers of the Mutual Welfare League to induce three convicts to live up to the principles of the league, was of short duration and resulted in a victory for the officers.

Trouble started during the motion picture performance last night in the chapel. Three convicts insisted on sitting in seats reserved for persons from the prison hospital. They became abusive when they were asked to vacate the seats.

After the performance George Hodson, sergeant at arms of the Mutual Welfare League, and one of the most popular convicts in the prison, upbraided the three men as they were going to their cells. They answered Hodson with abusive language and threats. Hodson noticing their ugly temper, promptly knocked one of them down. The others then jumped on him, and aided by the third man who had regained his feet, tried to subdue the sergeant at arms. Two of Hodson's deputies, who like him are loyal members of the league, came to his assistance and aided in beating the recalcitrant convicts into submission. Then the three men were locked in their cells.

Members of the league, fearing that Warden Osborne would be discouraged by such outbreaks, appointed a committee which waited on him this morning to express regret over the conduct of the three convicts. They also presented an embossed poem to the warden in which he is referred to as the "Prince of Chivalry."

It's as hard to impose on some men a second time as it was easy the first.

If you see one young man laughing at the old jokes of another, the other has a pretty sister.

Many Estates of Old English Land Sold By Auction

A recent issue of the Times contains the announcement of Messrs. Knight, Frank & Rutley, in which are found descriptions of some of the old landed estates and holdings offered for sale. Scores of farms and even whole villages are included in some of these vast tracts of land now to be sold to the highest bidder.

By direction of Colonel Guy P. Dawnay, D.S.O., the historical residential and agricultural estate, "Beningbrough," has been placed on the market. The property comprising in all about 6,100 acres, includes numerous well equipped farms and small holdings and cottages in the villages of Shipton and Newton on Ouse, and produces an annual rental amounting to 7,500 pounds.

OTHER ESTATES.

This is only one of many such estates listed in the announcement. The Leiston Estate, extending to an area of about 2,400 acres, and owned by the Right Hon. Lord Huntingfield, is situated close to the coast in Suffolk. Besides an attractive country residence, "The Cupola," two picturesque Tudor houses are to be found. Here also are situated the historic ruins of Leiston Abbey.

The Ashridge Estate, situated in Bedfordshire, and comprising 1,633 acres is to be sold by the direction of the Right Hon. Earl Brownlow. The Llwyn Harried Estate in Central Wales extends to over 1,600 acres and includes 18 farms and small holdings and 116 acres of valuable woodland. It is to be sold by the direction of the trustees of the Middleton Evans Estate.

The Chesterford Park Estate, on the Essex and Cambridge borders, comprises 3,250 acres of sporting and agricultural property.

The Tehidy Estate in Cornwall includes the historical Carn Brae Hill, with its Druidical remains and comprises 1,800 acres.

By direction of the Earl of Cottenham, Elvendon Priory, an historical Freehold residence, forming a portion of the Augustinian priory erected in the twelfth century, will be sold by auction.

The greater number of these old estates include vast tracts of hunting land, trout streams, and shooting parks. All have the latest modern improvements, motor garages, etc.

WAR LOAN

DOMINION OF CANADA

As with the previous Loan, we predict a great success for this issue. During this period of stress our Government needs our help and counts upon our patriotism. But a chance is given investors of placing their money in securities of the highest grade, upon terms the liberality of which will, perhaps, not be fully realized until the return of normal times.

If this Loan were issued to yield 4½%, instead of about 5 1/3 %, the price would be 105.41; instead of 97.50. A 4% yield (the basis on which Dominion Government bonds sold so recently as 1914) would mean a price of 111 for the present issue.

We will forward your application, procure your allotment and render other services free of charge to you.

FOOD CONDITIONS IN GERMANY WORSE UNDER "ORGANIZATION"

Berlin, September 14. — The German people are becoming more and more dissatisfied with the new government department. The optimistic statements of Herr Von Batocki, the new "food indicator" about the good outlook, led the people to believe that by fall conditions would be greatly improved. But instead of becoming more plentiful food supplies are becoming more and more organized until within a short time, if the distribution of cards is continued, food will be on an absolute ration basis.

"Though the crops are good this year, there will probably be so much 'organization' that food will spoil," said one critical German.

INCREASE OF CARDS.

At present each family is entitled to eight different kinds of food cards. They are for bread, potatoes, sugar, fats, milk, meat, eggs, and one for certain dried vegetables, saccharine, and oatmeal. Because of the growing shortage of marmalade and cheese, two more cards may be added to the list.

The lack of sugar, tin and rubber, have prevented many families from doing their own canning and have had a big effect on the canning factories. The factories are using saccharine and a syrup made from carrots for sweetening. Because of the shortage of tins, many factories are drying food heretofore canned. Families that forgot to save the rubber bands from last year's fruit jars discovered that their fruit was doomed to spoil this year.

HARVEST IS BETTER.

This year's harvest was about 25 per cent. better than last year's, making it a normal peace time harvest. But because of the necessity of creating a surplus in case next year's harvest is not so good, no more wheat and oats will be available for present consumption than in the past few months, according to present plans.

The Socialists and some of the newspapers are beginning to criticise the food department.

Because of the growing shortage of milk new regulations have been posted whereby milk is to be delivered to families with children under ten and to sick people. Special milk cards are given to families showing birth certificates of their children, each child receiving one liter (a little over a one liter (a little over a quart) a day.

How You Can Remove Every Trace of Hair

(Toilet Talks.)

A stiff paste made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on a hairy surface about 2 minutes will, when removed, take every trace of hair with it. The skin should then be washed to free it from the remaining delatone. No harm can result from this treatment, but be sure it is delatone you get and you will not be disappointed.

It has been estimated that 90 per cent. of industrial accidents can be eliminated, 60 per cent. by safety devices, and 30 per cent. by proper training of workers.

War Trebles Export of Meat To Europe

Drain on American Supply Felt the More Because of Falling Off in the Number of Cattle.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The enormous increase in American exports of meat due to the European war was set forth recently in a statement issued by the Foreign Trade Department of the National City Bank. Foreign demand for meat is making a great inroad upon the available supply in the United States. The bank's statement notes that despite the marked decrease in the number of food animals of the country, the export of meats has trebled since the beginning of the war, and of beef alone is ten times as much as before hostilities.

The compilation shows that the exports of meats of all kinds, which aggregated 455,000,000 pounds in the fiscal year 1914, the year immediately preceding the war, were 885,000,000 pounds in 1915 and 1,389,000,000 pounds in 1916.

This increase of nearly 100 per cent. in the total meat exports in the first year of the war and 200 per cent. in the second year, when compared with the exports of the year immediately preceding hostilities is, however, trifling when compared with the increase in exports of beef alone. The quantity of fresh beef exported jumped from 6,400,000 pounds in the fiscal year 1914 to 170,000,000 pounds in 1915 and 231,000,000 pounds in 1916. The fresh beef shipments of 1915 were thirty-six times as much as in 1914. In the two years of the war the fresh beef exports have been twenty-nine times as much as in the two years immediately preceding the war.

Of beef of all kinds the exports of 1916 were practically ten times as much as those of 1914, having been for 1916 320,000,000 pounds, against 33,000,000 pounds in 1914. In the two years of war the exports of beef of all kinds have been 597,000,000 pounds, against 78,500,000 pounds in the two years preceding, or eight times as much in the two years of war as in the preceding two years of peace. It was pointed out by the bank that this large demand upon the beef supply of the country was most striking in view of the fact that the supply of beef cattle in the United States was now only about two-thirds as much per capita of population as a decade ago. Before the war this decline in the number of domestic beef cattle led to a big falling off in exports.

Notwithstanding the record exports the last two years, ther was a pronounced falling off in imports of beef, the 1916 fiscal year's entries amounting to only 71,008,000 pounds, against 160,000,000 pounds in 1914.

The increase in exports of meats occurred almost exclusively in the movements to the countries at war. Great Britain, in the fiscal year 1916, took 317,000,000 pounds of beef; France, 49,000,000 pounds, and Italy, for the second half of the year, 48,000,000 pounds. Pork exports also showed a marked increase, although not as great as those of beef, having been in 1916 998,000,000 pounds, against 397,000,000 pounds in 1915 and 411,000,000 pounds in 1914.

The significant statement is made that in the year preceding the war there were no exports of fresh beef to Great Britain, France or Italy. The value of all meats exported in the fiscal year 1916 was $181,940,000, against $62,782,000 in 1914, these figures being of meat only, and not including lard, tallow, oleo oil, and other meat products of this character. Exports of salmon, of which the supply is just now reported as showing a great fall, were 152,952,000 pounds in 1916, against 87,751,000 pounds in 1914, the movements to Great Britain alone being in 1916 110,107,000 pounds.

The report showed that the unusual demand of Europe for meats was not confined to the United States. Canada's exports of beef in her fiscal year 1916 were about five times as great as in 1914, while those of Argentina and Australia also showed large increases.

WAR LOAN

DOMINION OF CANADA

Issue of $100,000,000 5% Bonds Maturing 1st October, 1931.

PAYABLE AT PAR AT

INTEREST PAYABLE HALF-YEARLY, 1st APRIL, 1st OCTOBER.

PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST PAYABLE IN GOLD.

ISSUE PRICE 97½

A FULL HALF-YEAR'S INTEREST WILL BE PAID ON 1st APRIL, 1917.

THE PROCEEDS OF THE LOAN WILL BE USED FOR WAR PURPOSES ONLY.

THE MINISTER OF FINANCE offers herewith, on behalf of the Government, the above named Bonds for subscription at 97½, payable as follows:—

10 per cent on application;
30 " " 16th October, 1916;
30 " " 15th November, 1916;
27½ " " 15th December, 1916.

The total allotment of bonds of this issue will be limited to one hundred million dollars exclusive of the amount (if any) paid for by the surrender of bonds as the equivalent of cash under the terms of the War Loan prospectus of 22nd November, 1915.

The instalments may be paid in full on the 16th day of October, 1916, or on any instalment due date thereafter, under discount at the rate of four per cent per annum. All payments are to be made to a chartered bank for the credit of the Minister of Finance. Failure to pay any instalment when due will render previous payments liable to forfeiture and the allotment to cancellation.

Subscriptions, accompanied by a deposit of ten per cent of the amount subscribed, must be forwarded through the medium of a chartered bank. Any branch in Canada of any chartered bank will receive subscriptions and issue provisional receipts.

This loan is authorized under Act of the Parliament of Canada, and both principal and interest will be a charge upon the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

Forms of application may be obtained from any branch in Canada of any chartered bank and at the office of any Assistant Receiver General in Canada.

Subscriptions must be for even hundreds of dollars.

In case of partial allotments the surplus deposit will be applied towards payment of the amount due on the October instalment.

Scrip certificates, non-negotiable or payable to bearer in accordance with the choice of the applicant for registered or bearer bonds, will be issued, after allotment, in exchange for the provisional receipts.

When the scrip certificates have been paid in full and payment endorsed thereon by the bank receiving the money, they may be exchanged for bonds, when prepared, with coupons attached, payable to bearer or registered as to principal, or for fully registered bonds, when prepared, without coupons, in accordance with the application.

Delivery of scrip certificates and of bonds will be made through the chartered banks.

The issue will be exempt from taxes—including any income tax—imposed in pursuance of legislation enacted by the Parliament of Canada.

The bonds with coupons will be issued in denominations of $100, $500, $1,000. Fully registered bonds without coupons will be issued in denominations of $1,000, $5,000 or any authorized multiple of $5,000.

The bonds will be paid at maturity at par at the office of the Minister of Finance and Receiver General at Ottawa, or at the office of the Assistant Receiver General at Halifax, St. John, Charlottetown, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary, or Victoria.

The interest on the fully registered bonds will be paid by cheque, which will be remitted by post. Interest on bonds with coupons will be paid on surrender of coupons. Both cheques and coupons will be payable free of exchange at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank.

Subject to the payment of twenty-five cents for each new bond issued, holders of fully registered bonds without coupons will have the right to convert into bonds of the denomination of $1,000 with coupons, and holders of bonds with coupons will have the right to convert into fully registered bonds of authorized denominations without coupons at any time on application to the Minister of Finance.

The books of the loan will be kept at the Department of Finance, Ottawa.

Application will be made in due course for the listing of the issue on the Montreal and Toronto Stock Exchanges.

Recognized bond and stock brokers will be allowed a commission of one-quarter of one per cent on allotments made in respect of applications bearing their stamp, provided, however, that no commission will be allowed in respect of the amount of any allotment paid for by the surrender of bonds issued under the War Loan prospectus of 22nd November, 1915. No commission will be allowed in respect of applications on forms which have not been printed by the King's Printer.

Subscription Lists will close on or before 23rd September, 1916.

HAIG AN ALERT, TERSE MAN WHO WASTES NO TIME

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Americans who read the terse, sparingly worded British official communiques from northern France are unconsciously reading the character of the man who writes them.

He is Sir Douglas Haig, commander in chief of all the six British armies opposed to the Germans on the western front.

Haig's communiques waste no words. Neither does Haig. He is known from one end of the British line to the other as a potent factor.

In a modest looking French dwelling house still occupied in part by the family who own it, the British commander in chief and his staff make those brief British communiques by persistent hard work.

From County of Fife.

The head of the British armies in France is a Scotchman. He hails from the county of Fife, where, like men of other British counties, the inhabitants are possessed of certain characteristics.

Fifers' characteristics, according to best tradition, are frankness and patience, imperturbability to the extent of being oblivious to external pressure, and a persistence that lends supreme concentration on the object in view. Fifeshire is the home of golf and no ordinary golfer can beat a Fifer.

Sir Douglas Haig has taken to northern France all the characteristics of the Fifer and applied them to war, according to those around him.

After breakfast, accompanied by one or two officers, he is off for a bridle jaunt, and then settlers down in a little private room to real hard work.

Guns and Playing Children.

To the distant rumble of the guns and the chatter of playing children in the yard below, the British commander spends hours over maps, sticking pins here and there, placing the positions as he would have them altered. Telephones in an anteroom ceaselessly jingle with reports from the various divisional commanders and staff officers.

Every detail of the day's position is studied thoroughly in characteristic Fifer fashion. Then when he is ready he issues his brief communique.

A man may wake up his first baby just to see it laugh, but he never disturbs the peaceful slumbers of the second.

A POOR ROOT CROP.

TORONTO, Sept. 12—Roots and bean crops in Ontario are reported to be likely a poor yield, due to dry weather.

With a view to improving the quality of Philippine tobacco, the insular government has put into force a law requiring the inspection of all that is exported.

It's a physical impossibility for hearts to break, but there are lots of cracked brains.

The Story Of Ben Blair

Can Be Seen in Pictures at the Empire Theatre To-night

Ben Blair, the boy, a quivering, terror-stricken mite of humanity, alone on the prairie, cringing with fear of a brutal father, while overhead the sky glowing red in reflection of his home, fast crumbling to ashes— another mark of his father's cruelty, and the grave of his only friend—his mother. Then

Ben Blair the man, strong, determined and resourceful, as only Dustin Farnum can depict him, a wonderful illustration of the man who fights life's battles alone, and who has the courage of his convictions.

"Ben Blair" is a play, unusual in its skillful contrasts of life on the prairie and on Broadway. It possesses action aplenty, a theme that will hold and thrill. The "Ben Blairs" of real life will find a marvelous counterpart in the "Ben Blair" which Dustin Farnum has created for the screen.

Empire Theatre, Sept. 14, 15 and 16, 1916.

ALIEN ENEMIES WERE DISCHARGED PAYING $24 COSTS FOR TROUBLE

The Greek and four Bulgarians who have been held here charged with a breach of the Order in Council passed under the provisions of the War Measures Act, were discharged by Magistrate Langley in the County Court this morning. His Worship insisted that the township should not bear any of the expense of rounding up these errant aliens, and ordered that they pay the costs of detaining them amounting to $24. Those who were flush paid the proportion of their less fortunate pals, and they were turned over to Chief Thompson, who is registrar of alien enemies in this district. The Chief escorted them to the station and saw them depart for Toronto where, Magistrate Langley warned them, they must report regularly to the authorities. The party consisted of Nick Jamieson, a Greek, and Elie Knetsoff, V. Koopoff, M. Restoff, Christ Christoff, Bulgarians of the same "off" family as Makaroff, he of the bristling beard in "The Chocolate Soldier," and of whom the comely chorus sang—

"They are, they are barbarians,
When they fight are all Bulgarians."

Their "visiting cards" were marked correctly from Montreal to Havelock, but they were apprehended trying to leave the latter place without notifying the police.

LADY'S BACK BROKEN; TRIPPED BY SHOELACE

Mrs. Louis Kreiss, of Fullarton Tp., Dies of Simple Accident.

STRATFORD, Sept. 14—On Wednesday the funeral took place in Fullarton Township of Mrs. Louis Kreiss, a well-known resident of Fullarton Township, who met death in a tragic manner.

On Saturday Mrs. Kreiss put on her shoes, but did not tie the laces. While passing from the dining-room to the kitchen the door slammed. One of the laces caught, throwing Mrs. Kreiss to the floor and breaking her back. She lived until Sunday.

She was nearly fifty years of age and besides her husband, two sons, John and Albert, survive. Three brothers and two sisters also survive, namely: John, Rechl, Logan; William of Ellice; James of Sebringville, Mrs. William Bode of Logan and Mrs. Angus Detmen of Stratford.

YOUNG MEN OF SAINT ANDREW'S FORM A SOCIETY

Will Attempt the Solutions of Municipal Problems

An organization known as the "Calebites" was formed last evening by the young men of St. Andrew's Church. Just as Caleb long ago took for his task the conquest of the Anakin of Hebron, so the boys of St. Andrew's have taken as their aim the application of the principles of Christianity to the solution of municipal problems. Meetings will be held the first and third Tuesdays of each month.

Conservative Nationalist To Resign

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, Sept. 14.—Paul Lamarche, Conservative Nationalist M. P. for Nicolet, has announced he will resign his seat on September 21st, on conscientious reasons, stating that as his electors returned him in 1911 for a five-year term, he cannot remain in office without a fresh election, notwithstanding the extension of parliament act, which he voted against.

$1,530 IS PAID BACK TO EASE CONSCIENCE

GUELPH, Sept. 14.—On Tuesday there arrived in Guelph addressed to the Wellington Mutual Fire Insurance Co., of this city, a registered expres parcel, which on being opened was found to contain the sum of $1,530 in Canadian bank bills. Some time ago a letter was received from a priest in Buffalo saying that a certain man there had approached him stating that he had at some previous time obtained a considerable sum of money from the Wellington Mutual Insurance Co., of Guelph, and that it was his desire now to make restitution. The priest addressed the Guelph office asking if they had an agent in Buffalo to whom the money could be turned over or if the amount should be sent direct to Guelph. A reply was sent from Guelph by the manager of the Wellington Mutual advising the priest that the head office of the company was here in Guelph.

The only stipulation in connection with the return of the money was that the company was not to suspect any present employee, or any person who had been in their employ in the past, the company being given to understand that the money was not received or secured in this way.

The Wellington Mutual has been in business here for over seventy years, and the officials have no recollection at having been defrauded by an unknown person. They are somewhat mystified, but nevertheless, highly gratified by the affair.

A New Corset For The Fall Garment---

THERE is one thing to remember in selecting a Corset—and a most important point, too---the same corset will not fit every figure, by any means. In choosing a Corset, a woman should choose the model, individually right for "her"--- not appropriate her friend's model, which may be, though perfect in itself, not at all correct for "her" particular requirements.

We have Corsets in an almost unlimited range of styles—in front lace and back lace designs—among them there is one or more models which will be perfect for "your" needs. Prices range

SOMETHING ABOUT DUGOUTS

BY CANADIAN OVERSEAS

Not long ago I paid a visit to Princess skating rink in London to see the exhibition of trenches and dug-outs. These, of course, were in a state of perfection and were typical of what trenches and dug-outs should be, not of what many are. Soon after this visit I was writing to one of our boys at the front, asking him to tell me about his experience in dug-outs and just what life in them is like, and this is the reply I got to my letter:

"In the beginning men made trenches, and having found that they afforded but little facility for playing ha' penny nap and pitch and toss undisturbed and but little cover from worrying N.C.O.s, they hit on the idea of digging themselves yet farther in, and because they had to dig in, they, in the best army fashion called their caves "dug-outs." The advantages were obvious.

The N.C.O's have them to hide in from the officers, and the officers from C.O.s, and brigadier-generals. And the men made them all.

Dug-outs are so valuable that everybody asks when taking over or preparing to enter trenches "Are there any dug-outs? How many and how big? I think it is safe to say that one can spend twice as long in trenches having a good dug-out as one can without one. They are of the very first importance. One sleeps in them, eats in them, reads in them, plays cards in them, smokes in them, and talks in them.

They are one's refuge in case of bombardment; they are one's recreation-room when the afternoon is quiet They have been made at all times, in the day-light, in the darkness, under shell fire, under an undisturbed sky. They are of all shapes and sizes, from the little hole picked out of the back of the trench that will hold you up to your waist (with your legs trailing in the trench), to the well-made 20-feet-deep room that will comfortably house 20 men. Naturally enough the first ones were rough—holes of all designs, hewn in all sorts of places. very often unsupported inside, so that they constantly fell in, and unprotected outside, so that a whizz-bang was sufficient to smash it to pieces. The most recent ones are of considered design with turns on the stairs, well supported by timber, high enough to stand up in, airy and safe enough against most shells.

It is remarkable into how small a dug-out one can wiggle, if there are enough shells or hail and snow about, or one is tired enough.

The first night in the trenches I slept with a friend in a small, box-like hole, six feet long and a yard square, we were wearing great coats and full equipment minus pack and haversack. Our method of entrance was, for me to crawl in first and for my friend to wiggle over me pulling himself along by my belt, my equipment and my face. We lay squashing each other, and breathing on each other, more uncomfortable than ever in our lives. But we were tired and we slept. They pulled us out by one feet. The next night was something similar only a little more so. This time it was a tiny hole that held one's head and shoulders. I got in first and was awakened by the wet great coat of a comrade rubbing gently over my face.

He had gone to sleep on a firing slip and had been awakened by snow and sleet when he was wet through. He had then come to join me in my hole. How bitterly I cursed him! And I remember I insisted on his crawling out to divest himself of his great coat before allowing him to settle down. Poor lad! One alone could curl up in the hole, but with two one had to lie stretched out. My legs from the knees downward were in the slush outside, and everyone who passed by—and it seemed as if half the British army passed that hole that night—trod on me.

In our next spell in trenches we had no dug-outs at all. We made one. We called it a dug-out, really it was merely a shelter. It was three feet high, two deep and six long. The top was corrugated iron the sides of water-proof sheets, the seat (for we could only sit in it with our feet and legs dangling in the trench) of earth(and the supports were sticks. In it four of us lived when off duty.

My next home in the trenches was a wooden box, rectangular, 4 feet high, 6 feet wide and 12 feet long. Ten of us lived there. The only way we could occupy it was by all sitting on our haunches with our knees to our chins.

From this time on my fortune in dugouts improved. I found one a little high inside, better protected by sand bags and that boasted a brazier. Four of us lived there. One was a director of a building firm with a talent for making things. He constructed a chimney and an oven out of biscuit and jam tins. We rigged up a shelf too. This was our luckiest dug-outs for one of our four contracted German measles and we were isolated and forbidden to do any work. We became skilled in auction bridge.

I had been at the front three months before I occupied a real dug-out. One entered it backwards in a sliding fashion—for the steps were merging into each other and we found it deep and cool—and dark and fortunately for us; able to stand minenwerfers (trunk Mortars), shell, rifle, grenades and whizz-bangs.

My stove on which I was boiling water was put out three times by concussion. Alas a lump of shell weighing about three pounds came down the steps. It was an excellent dug-out. Fourteen of us lived there. The man opposite to me sat on a red plush, ornamented, decrepit drawing-room chair—where it came from I cannot imagine unless it was from some ruined and deserted house near by, long since destroyed. I sat and slept on a petrol tin.

I have occupied very many dug-outs since then. One hunts for one immediately the sentries are posted, and the battalion being relieved has gone out. This hunt is in many ways the most exciting time in the trenches. On one's success depends one's comfort. Everybody hurries about the line, laughingly jubilant or cursingly despondent, as one is lucky or otherwise. One "bags" a place by depositing part of one's gear there and then—for this is dug-out etiquette—that spot is sacred to you.

Not every soldier likes dug-outs. I have a friend who hates them. Always since a boy he has been obsessed with dreams of walls closing in upon him. One night he dreamt that the dug-out he was in had collapsed and crushed him. In the morning he examined the supports, and partly because he concluded he was not altogether safe, and partly because of the vivid nature of the dream, he removed his kit and persuaded his comrades to do likewise. Not an hour afterwards the dug-out slid forward and fell in.

But for my part my best hours in trenches are those spent in dug-outs."

WILL DISTRIBUTE FLOWERS TO SICK

Everything is in Readiness for a Big Season at the 'Y'

Saturday morning, September 16th at 11.00 a.m. the members of the boys' department will distribute boquets of flowers to the sick of the city.

This is the one day in the year that the boys enjoy and look forward to, as they are able to do something to make those who are not as fortunate as themselves happy.

The boys will leave the buliding at eleven o'clock and distribute flowers to the sick in the hospitals, and any private residence where there are sick that they receive names of.

The boys would like the citizens to co-operate with them, and help them by sending them flowers to the Y.M.C.A. not later than 10.00 a.m. Saturday morning, or flowers may be sent in Friday evening.

Everything is in readiness at the "Y" for a big seasons work. Next week will see the opening up of the boys classes in the Bible study and gymnasium departments.

Sunday, September 24th will be the boys Bible study rally day. A strong speaker from the National Council of the Young Men's Christian Association will visit Peterborough on that day and give the boys an address on the "Importance of Bible study".

The boys are requested to have everything ready for the opening of the classes next week.

SHIP BUILT OF STONE IN NORWEGIAN PORT

CHRISTIANIA, Sept. 14.— A new type of ship has arrived here from the shipyards of Christiannia-Fjord. The ship, which resembles a large barge, is constructed entirely of concrete, except for the ribs, which are steel, and is the first stone vessel ever floated. It is said that the hull will resist damage better than steel or wood and that the ship is therefore safer.

Brilliant Actor Has Amusing Role

Albert Brown Seen at Grand in "The Black Feather," a Timely Drama - Tuesday, Sept. 19th —Written By Canadian

It is a common lament of our literary men that we have not yet produced any Canadian dramatists. That is true if we mean by the term dramatists who have pictured and interpreted Canada on the stage. On the other hand, there are a number of Canadians who have written very successful plays, and among them is W. A. Tremayne, of Montreal. Several years ago, when costume plays were popular, Mr. Tremayne wrote a series of successes produced by Robert Mantell, of which "The Dagger and the Cross" and "The Secret Warrant" enjoyed the longest runs, but these are, of course unknown to the rising generation. Mr. Tremayne has just emerged after several years of retirement from the work of a dramatist to write a play to fit Mr. Albert Brown, who made such a hit throughout Canada last season in 'The White Feather."

"The Black Feather" was very aptly described by the chief actor as timely, consistent and entertaining." It is all those things and holds the interest all the way. The action takes place before the war, when the Teutonic Powers were wondering what England would do in case of war. A young man is entrusted with papers to carry to the British Ambassador at Vienna, but Austrian spies succeed in robbing him. How Dick Kent recovered the papers and carried them to their proper destination, though himself suspected of being a spy, forms the thread of the tale. The incidents are of a conventional nature, with drugs and stupid Britishers playing a part, but Mr. Tremayne has secured a crescendo of interest, maintaining it well up to the end. The premiere production of the play given at the Grand Opera House last night undoubtedly met with the approval of the large audience. There is a good company surrounding Mr. Brown, the two who are possibly most worthy of note being Mr. F. Gatenby Bell and Mr. Henry Sherwood as the two male spies, and the play has been well staged. "The Black Feather" will undoubtedly be welcomed throughout Canada because it has a good British flavour and supplies Mr. Brown with a part and bright lines that he knows well how to use. The reviewer had the misfortune to sit in front of three persons whose dialogue was as continuous as that on the stage, though not nearly so witty, and under these trying circumstances the drama provided a thoroughly enjoyable evening. That alone should indicate that "The Black Feather" proves a thoroughly acceptable vehicle for gifted Albert Brown.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—New Yorkers eat 900,000,000 5 cent loaves of bread yearly, or nearly 2,500,000 daily, and spread their bread with about 140,000,000 pounds of butter.

SYNOD COMMITTEE INDORSES MEASURE FOR PROHIBITION

Re-elected Prolocutor of the Lower House at Session in Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Sept. 14. — "The world has before its eyes to-day the sad spectacle of a great branch of the historic church shrinking from the condemnation of atrocities defying description because it is so footbound in the fetters of political expediency."

These were the words of Archbishop Thorneloe of Algoma, in the course of his opening address at the third annual session of the Anglican Synod of the Province of Ontario, which opened its proceedings in the Church of the Ascension.

His grace called upon the synod to earnestly consider the after-the-war problems.

The report of the committee on moral and social reform praises the Government for its temperance measure, looks confidently to the synod to sustain the hands of the Government, and urges those who favoured the measure to do all in their power to secure proper hotel accommodation, and to provide recreation rooms.

Canon Tucker of London was re-elected prolocutor of the lower house.

A resolution was adopted at the evening session to request the House of Bishops to consider the subdivision of the missionary diocese of Algoma, and that the ecclesiastical district of Ontario be extended to be coterminous with the civil boundaries of the province.

A message of loyalty to the King was passed by acclamation.

QUEBEC BRIDGE VICTIMS HAVE INCREASED TO 13

QUEBEC, Sept. 14.— Another victim has been added to the list of killed in the Quebec bridge tragedy on Monday, bringing the list of dead up to 13.

The latest victim is J. Thiffault, of St. Adolphe, Champlain County, Que. He was first reported rescued, but enquiries at his boarding house proved that he had not been seen since the collapse of the span.

Scene from "The Birth of a Nation" at the Grand Opera House, Peterborough, to-day and to-morrow, Thursday and Friday, September 14th and 15th. Reserved seats now on sale at the box office.

CATHOLIC PARADE IS NOT TO BE ALLOWED

TORONTO, Sept. 14.—Orange and green riots of years ago in the city of Toronto were held before the Board of Control yesterday by Chief of Police Grasett as a warning against allowing the thin end of the wedge of religious processions and ceremonials to be introduced in this city.

Having been refused permission by the chief to hold a procession, carrying images, etc., on William street next Sunday, four members of the Italian Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, led by Rev. Father Vigilanti, waited on the Board of Control to plead for a permit.

They urged that a similar event had been held here three weeks ago without interference. There were two sections in the church from different parts of Italy, and one had already held their celebrations. The deputation represented the other.

The Italian churchmen told the controllers that Chief Grasett had told them it would be all right for them to hold such ceremonies in Quebec, but not in Toronto. Then the controllers sent a polite invitation to the chief to appear before them. He said:

"These people have gone from pillar to post, using politicians and others to get what I have refused them. Inspector Geedes, in charge of the division, recommended strongly against giving the permit, and Mr. Michael Basso, the Italian Interpreter, also advised us to the same effect."

The Chief went on to point out that it was jealousy in the church because of certain members having prominent parts in the ceremony, that led to the idea of having a second affair.

"They may do as they like in their church, and they may march to and from the church, but we cannot allow any ceremonies like this on the street. They have strung colored lights on the street, and if we would allow this, it would be the beginning of a bad policy. I don't want to revive old animosities, but I want you to remember that the worst scenes we ever had on the streets of Toronto were in the Pilgrim riots of years ago over similar celebrations. We don't want anything more of that kind."

"Did you give a permit for the other?" asked the Mayor.

"No; they held it without authority."

"Well, it is a matter for the Police board, not us," said the Mayor.

"The Birth Of A Nation"

It is impossible to witness the film drama, "The Birth of a Nation" and not want to say something about it. Everyone who has seen it is saying something about it. The tension of the performance is but a single feature of it, but it is that which one feels most poignantly after three straight hours.

"The Birth of a Nation" will be shown to-day and to-morrow, Thursday and Friday, September 14th and 15th at the Grand Opera House, Peterborough. Don't miss seeing it.

Torpedo Is A Big Attraction At The Fair

Deadly Weapon is Similar in Size to That Which Sank the Lusitania—Lectures Every Half Hour By Instructor Miller

Chief among the many features at the Peterborough Industrial Fair is the torpedo which is here under the auspices of the Admiralty. Instructor Miller, who is instructor to the Canadian Navy, with over twenty years' service to his credit, is in charge of the weapon which has so much significance during the present conflict. Instructor Miller states that the torpedo which is being shown at the Fair is of the same size as the torpedo which sank the Lusitania. It is over sixteen feet in length and eighteen inches in diameter and weighs 1,800 pounds. When loaded is contains two hundred and twenty pounds of wet gun cotton and two ounces of dry gun cotton. The latter is used as a detonator. This deadly weapon will penetrate twenty-eight inches of armour plate and is driven through the water by compressed air. The pressure in the air chamber is equal to fourteen hundred pounds to the square inch. Instructor Miller proposes to have an air compressor on the grounds so that he can operate the torpedo and show the people how it is propelled through the water at any given range or depth by means of propellers at the rear. Lectures will be given every half hour by Instructor Miller.

This was one of the features of the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto. It attracted a large share of attention and was a source of never failing interest.

LADY EGLANTINE PRIZE HEN, DEAD

GREENSBORO, Md., Sept. 14 — Lady Eglantine, the wonder of the poultry world and the pride of the Eglantine Farms, at this place, is dead.

Lady Eglantine for many years has been the most famous hen in the world. Her supremacy goes back to the time that she laid 315 eggs during her pullet year. She easily won every prize for which she has competed in poultry shows. At one of the shows here a room was reserved for her at the Imperial Hotel.

This hen, which was of the single comb white leghorn breed, left only nine cockerels and three pullets as her descendants at the Eglantine Farms. Her owners sold only seventeen of her eggs and these brought the record price of $10 each. They are now trying to locate the persons to whom these eggs were sold, in an effort to determine if Lady Eglantine left any descendants other than those now at the farms.

New York Stock Market

Summary of To-day's Activities on the New York Stock Exchange

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The Stock Market bull movement which has sent prices climbing for more than a week was continued at the opening day with initial advances of more than a point in many "war brides."

U. S. Steel sold at 105⅝, just ⅛ under its record. At the opening Allis Chalmes was up 1, American Locomotive 1¼, Baldwin 1¼, Mexican Petroleum 1⅝, and Studebaker 1¾. Reading set a new high record soon after the opening of the Stock Exchange, selling at 113 1-4, up 1 3-4. Activity in Rails.

Bethlehem Steel took another jump, selling up 15½, at 57, thirty dollars under its high record. Lackawanna Steel responded to yesterday's dividend action by advancing 1⅝ to 85⅛.

Records were smashed again to-day in a wave of public buying on the New York Stock Exchange. U. S. Steel Common swung into market leadership again and shortly before noon established another new high record price of 106⅛. The previous high was 105¾.

The bull crowd behind General Motors bowled a new leader of the 'war brides" along 53 points farther to $750 share, up $160 in three days. Bethlehem Steel continued the advance which started yesterday by selling at 679, up 24 1-8, and but 32 under its record.

Autointoxication Is a Form of Blood Poisoning

Autointoxication means that you allow your system to become poisoned from the refuse matter and gases that are absorbed by the blood.

Nature makes provisions to guard against this. An active, vigorous out-door life tends to keep the bowels and kidneys working well, the pores of the skin open and the poison is excreted daily from the body.

In our modern method of living the great majority of adult people take little or no exercise with the result that the kidneys are overworked and irritated in their efforts to free the blood from these poisonous gases. Constipation, Indigestion and disturbed Stomach and more or less Nervousness is caused by the absorption of this poison into the blood, and you have little or no energy to do any work. Autointoxication is the main cause of Eczema and it keeps the whole system in an unhealthy condition by constant absorption of this refuse matter. There is one sure method of treating this dangerous and serious ailment which is so prevalent. Keep the bowels regular with a little Cascara or some good Stomach and Tonic Tablet such as Dr. Norvall's, and pay attention to the kidneys at once, by procuring a box of Dr. Banta's Kidney Pills, the best and most reliable remedy for these ailments. Dr. Banta devoted his entire life to a study of kidney troubles, and we have the formula of his Kidney Pills. Dr. Banta's Kidney Pills are now being placed on the Canadian Market and they are sold at only one Drug Store in each city. Go to Lynch's Drug Store, 168 Hunter street, and get a 50c. box to-day. If they do not help you, return the box and your money will be refunded.

Anxious For Welfare Of Sons of Soldiers

Only two of six Byersville youths appeared before Magistrate Langley in the County Police Court this morning, and it was only Constable Bullock's wish that prevented the issuing of warrants after the absentees. The authorities want these and other boys to understand that leniency on a first complaint is but a warning, in order that the boys may realize that law and order must be respected. The two boys who did appear received a severe lecture from the Magistrate. Any further trouble will not be so lightly considered as the first offence. It may be said that the authorities are anxious about these boys, most of whom are the sons of soldiers and in the absence of their fathers it is desired that the boys should be guided in right lines.

NO PROSECUTION OF BOY WHO SHOT GIRL IN SARNIA GALLERY

SARNIA, Sept. 14.—Howard Barclay, aged 15 years, was brought before the court on a charge of wounding Hildred Hartley, aged 16, on August 12, in a shooting affray on North Christina street, in which young Barclay was employed. The girl in company with Barclay's sister, had entered the shooting gallery and Barclay had playfully pointed a 22-calibre rifle at her and pulled the trigger. A bullet entered the shoulder and lodged in the back of the neck, where it still remains. The attending doctor stated that no complication will set in. Barclay pleaded guilty to the charges, but stated that he did not know the rifle was loaded.

In view of his youth, sentence was suspended upon payment of the costs of the prosecution, but the boy is liable to be called to court again, should the wound develop complications.

Take No Prisoners Is Order To Germans

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—From official British source The New York Times received Tuesday the translation of a letter found on a German prisoner captured in the battle of the Somme. The prisoner, writing to his family in Stuttgart, and that the Germans had received orders "to take no prisoners, but to despatch them with the bayonet." With the translation came a photograph of the original letter, which was addressed to "Karl Koch and family, Kaltenal, near Stuttgart."

A part of the letter, as officially translated, follows:

"And now we had thre days' rest, and I could get nothing at all to drink except costly wine. It is very disagreeable to use that we are obliged to go through it once again; you cannot conceive it. So many of our comrades are missing, who have fallen or were wounded during the week, and now we are obliged to go through it once more. Oh dear! Here we have proper Englishmen against us, and have orders to take no prisoners, but to despatch them all with the bayonet, which I would not be sorry to do. But they are always getting more prisoners from us, and what do they do with them?"

MILITARY NEWS

ing units do not debar him from service with the 242nd. The 242nd has also received word that it is to be an active Forestry unit, and that its duties will be identical with those of the 238th, which left for England a few days ago. The 242nd will be called upon to turn the forests of England into lumber, so that special mill machinery now going out for men who are experienced in bush work or in lumber mills. There is at present a great opening for expert bushmen to become non-commissioned officers, as it is felt that on a unit like the Foresters a man who knows his bushwork is of more value than is the man well up in the military line.

It is to be noted that the age limit for the Foresters has also been extended to 48 years, so men who have been turned down by other units, owing to age, may still have a chance of serving their country in the highest capacity. Depots are being opened all over the western section of the province, at London, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, St. Thomas, etc., and Sgt.-Major O. S. Lewis, who is in charge of recruiting, will shortly make a tour of the northern section of Ontario to impress upon men the need for joining up. Once the public realizes the aim of the 242nd, men join rapidly, as three men came in from Owen Sound following a visit of Sgt.-Major Lewis to that point last week. The 242nd is a non-fighting unit, and it is the only battalion of its kind recruiting in the whole Dominion. Ontario has been asked to furnish 250 men, and already 180 have answered the call. The battalion expects to leave for overseas about the end of September, which means that there is but a short time left for men to catch a place on a non-combatant battalion in this province.

My Dear Brother,—I received your welcome letter yesterday morning, and was glad to hear from you. I have been into the trenches on night work, and it is all right, at times. Once we were carrying out a piece of armament and a star shell went up and showed us up, and Fritzy threw about 500 machine gun bullets at us in about two minutes. Luckily the first few shots flew past ahead of us and we had time to hit old mother earth, and lie close while the remainder of the shots whistled over where we had been standing just before. If we had remained standing they would have hit us about the waist and just perforated us. Another time we were working close to our front line, overland, —and a whistle flew over our heads and about twenty yards to our right a dull thud was heard. "A dud," one of the fellows said. Just as he spoke, "bang" it exploded and scattered dirt and mud, and water splashed all over us. Two more followed in quick succession. The sergeant got us out of there pretty quick, and carried the thing we went up for without taking it to pieces. We got into a shell-hole and darned if another didn't burst close to us and only being in the hole saved us. I was on the sloping side of the trench, about twelve feet from the bottom, and the concussion made me take a beautiful toboggan slide into the trench. Another night we were taking stuff up and one of our trench mortars fired twice and the concussion then was something fierce. When they fire them they have to do so with a lanyard, and they get just as far back as they can from it before they fire. On the whole, though, it was rather exciting.

I guess they will have some time getting that new battalion together. If any fellows I know enlist in it let me know. And I want you to let me now, every Sunday, how the American, National and International Leagues stand. I know that up to July 28th the New York Americans were about 5 points ahead, and the Giants were tied for fifth place. As for Toronto, I don't know about her, except that Shocker won 13 out of 15 for her.

Give my love to Boheaygeon, and tell her you've got a brother who'd like her picture and who is in France, spending an indefinite holiday.

Well, good-bye for now.

Votre frere,
HAROLD.

CLOTHING TORN FROM HIS BODY

LINDSAY, Sept. 14. — Few men have been placed in a more serious predicament than was Mr. Irvine Sanderson, the well known thresher, on Tuesday, and his escape from fatal injuries was indeed providential.

Mr. Sanderson was engaged in threshing operations on the farm of Mr. Alex Mitchell, Ops township, and while in the act of oiling the machine, while standing on a wheel, his clothing caught in the drive wheel and quickly wound around the shaft. Every stitch of clothing save the collar band was torn from his body and when this was accomplished, Mr. Sanderson fell to the floor, and thereby escaped more serious injuries.

The machine was quickly stopped by the threshers, who afterwards attended the injured man. It was found that he was rather severely bruised and cut about the head and body. A physician was summoned, and Mr. Sanderson is reating easier to-day, although still fooling the effects of the injuries received. It was indeed a narrow escape, and the injured man is to-day thankful that he is alive.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Once Best Minor League Now Struggling For Life

International League Closes Season This Week After Poorest Season in Its Existence—Magnates Have Only Themselves to Blame

The International Baseball League season will end this week, and the club owners will start to count up their losses. The present season has been one of the worst the league has encountered, and the magnates have only themselves to blame. They announced a cheap policy in the spring, and then wondered why the fans refused to come and patronize the game. The recall of several star players in mid-season by big league clubs also hurt the teams.

Needs Live Men at Head.

The International League, from one of the biggest minor organizations in the country and regarded as fully on a par with the major leagues in the class of ball played, has steadily declined during the past three or four years until it is now struggling hard for existence. The game is pretty near done in Rochester, Baltimore, Richmond, Newark and Montreal, and unless some real live baseball men get hold of it, the league may have a hard time getting through the season of 1917.

May Bench Sam Now.

The showin gof Heilman in yesterday's game at Cleveland may result in the benching of Sam Crawford for the balance of the season. All year, Detroit fans have called upon Jennings to bench Crawford for Heilman, as the latter was much faster and has been doing better hitting. Hughie has been loath to bench the noted slugger as his hitting kept Detroit near the top of the league all last season, and at times this year he has shown flashes of his old-time form. However, it now looks as if the Detroit club can ill afford to have Heilman on the bench.

A BRAND NEW BOXING WRINKLE

A brand new trick was uncorked during recent bouts in the Commercial A. C. Boston. Two boxers named Johnny Downes and Charley Sheppard were mixing it merrily when suddenly a spectator who had a seat close to the ring reached through the ropes and grasped Sheppard by the ankle.

This brought the bout to a stop, and when the referee had interviewed the meddler and reached the conclusion that the act was done in the interest of Downes, the official disqualified the latter.

The leg grabber gave as an excuse that he feared Sheppard was about to hit Downes a foul blow, an excuse that was altogether too flimsy.

This trick opened the door to the schemers, for all a boxer who is losing will have to do to turn impending defeat into victory will be to have somebody reach through the ropes and grab him by the leg. While the referee under the Queensberry rules had authority to disqualify Downes still the commonsense method would have been to summarily eject the meddler from the clubhouse and order the boxers to proceed.

THREE TEAMS IN GREAT FIGHT BASEBALL RACE CLOSEST EVER

Here they come! The big drive is on. Down through the stretch to the finish line the boys who hold the reins over the real pennant contenders in both big leagues are urging their mounts forward, whether by lash and spur or handride, to the last ounce of grit and determination. And it's going to be some finish in both circuits.

In the National League three entries are up there fighting neck and neck for the lead. Your Uncle Wilbert Robinson, of the transpontine brigade, is battling his way against the best that Pat Moran, from the City of Brotherly Love, and George Stallings, from the learned and erudite city of Boston, can muster. Just now none can tell where the three will string when they sweep over the finish line less than a month hence.

Without doubt the Tener circuit is drawing one of the finest seasons from a sportive standpoint the organization has ever known. 'Tis but seldom that three clubs swing into the final dash with as near equal chances as those which these three clubs, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Boston, are facing now.

Experts will tell you that pitching will decide the issue. Still other learned followers of the great national pastime are ready to assure you that rare courage and grit, manifested in fighting every inch of the way from now on to the finish, will prove the determining factor. Others may have still different theories as to the winning factor in the great free-for-all.

There are certain conditions peculiar to the race as it now stands that are bound to prove prime factors. Among these are conditions of the opposing forces in a physical way, schedules and club morale. Of all who have considered closely the chances of the three clubs, none have figured more closely the conditions to be faced and the obstacles to be met than the managers of the clubs themselves. There is real interest in the way these pilots figure their chances.

To-morrow's Journal will carry the views on the pennant race of P. Moran of the Phillies, Geo. Stallings of the Braves, and Wilbert Robinson of the Dodgers.

WHAT'S IN A GOLF SCORE?

In the recent Shawnee open tournament Gil Nicholls of Great Neck took 306 strokes, and in a trade golf association event at the Hackensack links a golfer who shall be mercifully nameless used up only 298 strokes. The difference between the score of the professional and the amateur might be explained by the fact that the Hackensack links is very much easier than the Shawnee course, and consequently it is little wonder that the trade golfer required seven strokes less than the former metropolitan open champion. It might also be pertinent to state that Nicholls made his strokes cover four rounds of the links and last over two days' play, while the amateur in question used up all his strokes in a single round of the links on a very hot afternoon.

This brings up the question "What's in a score?" The 298 score was amassed by very hard work in some four hours, but the possessor, although not intensely proud of his handiwork, was at least vastly amused by his own performance on the links. He was playing a game, and he enjoyed it. It can be definitely stated that the eminent Mr. Nicholls did not enjoy getting that score of 306. His glances when he missed short putt after short putt were incendiary, and if looks could wither, the Shawnee fair green would now be as brown as a pancake. Certainly Nicholls did not enjoy himself, yet he was playing the same game that the duffer was at, only in a much more successful manner.

No doubt the score is of importance in golf, but there are other things to be taken into consideration, including the man who made it and the course over which it was gathered. Three hundred and five is not a worse score than 298, for the best professional in the country might have taken it in four rounds over a stiff course, and 298 strokes is not always a cause for weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth, for the worst player in the world may have enjoyed himself hugely in compiling it in a single round over the easiest course at his disposal.

In the recent invitation tournament of the National Golf Links of America there were two former national amateur gold champions over the hundred mark in the sixth sixteen in company with Howard F. Whitney, Secretary of the U.S.G.A., and a low-handicap man on every other course in the country. These men were not particularly disgruntled, for they were playing over the National links, the hardest test of golf that this country affords. What, then, is the millenium toward which golf is ever progressing? Shall it be when the national open champion takes a round of 134 over a stiff course with the utmost enjoyment, or when the duffer who reports a 78 shall not shrink back in horror at the question: "On which holes?" but shall step forward smilingly and answer: "On the short fifth?"

CAMPBELLFORD GAME IS OFF

Cannot Go to Toronto to Play Lacrosse With Orangeville.

President Hosking, of the O.A.L.A., has been notified by the Campbellford Lacrosse Club that they will be unable to come to Toronto for the intermediate final ordered to be played with the Orangeville team. They are willing to go as far as Port Hope or Cobourg, but not as far as Toronto. Orangeville has drawn a bye all season, so there is not likely to be any settlement of the intermediate championship this season.

CRACK ATHLETES GOING TO SWEDEN

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Officials of the Amateur Athletic Union consider the team of four men selected to represent the United States in the track and field games at Stockholm, Copenhagen and Christiania, in October, among the best all-round athletes in the United States. The team will be composed of Robert Simpson, of the University of Missouri; Fred Murray, of San Francisco; Ted Meredith, and J. G. Loomis. Both Simpson and Murray, the two late additions to the team, are holders of world's records. The athletes will leave for Europe, September 28, and expect to return November 18.

Frederick W. Rubien, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, believes that Simpson will find no hurdlers in the Scandinavian countries fast enough to compel him to extend himself.

Murray, the inter-collegiate champion, is a crack sprinter and shot-putter and is expected to win the 100-yard dash and the high jump and to score points in the running broad jump and low hurdles.

Meredith is picked for the quarter and half mile runs, and the four together are regarded as almost unbeatable in a half mile relay.

What Billy Did With His Money

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 14.—Billy Sunday did not carry away the $6,000 thank offering he received for his ten-day evangelistic campaign in Ocean Grove. Instead, he left the money at the resort. "Billy" invested his thank offering in a home for a poor clergyman of Ocean Grove, making him comfortable for life. The Rev. Dr. Groves W. Drew, pastor of the Third Baptist church told the story of Sunday's philanthropy, at a meeting of the Baptist ministers' conference in the First Baptist church, Seventeen and Sansom streets.

"Many people criticize Billy, for receiving large thank offerings," said Dr. Drew. "They ask: 'What does he do with his money?' Well, this case is authentic. I have all the facts straight."

Dr. Drew said the Ocean Grove Association discovered that 'Billy' Sunday preaching the gospel message was a better asset financially than the grand opera artists who have been singing in the Ocean Grove auditorium.

MR. CARUSO TO EARN $6,666 A NIGHT IN OPERA

Signs Contract to Sing Thirty Performances in Buenos Ayres, for Which He Will Receive $200,000.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—At the close of the next opera season Enrico Caruso will not return to his native Italy, as in other years. Instead he will go to Buenos Ayres for the summer. No doubt he will miss his three villas near Florence, where he passes the summers, but he will be amply repaid. He has just signed a contract to sing thirty performances at the Colon Opera House, for which he will receive $200,000. This is $6,666 a performance, or more than twice his salary at the Metropolitan. Probably this is the largest amount ever paid to an opera singer for a full season's work.

Mr. Caruso recently left Florence. In a letter to a New York friend he said there had been no rain for three months and that there was lack of water and great discomfort. Because of that he has gone to Monte Cantani for the curative waters there. Thence he will go to Naples before coming to New York.

A patent has been granted for a twisted wire support with which an incandescent lamp can be hung on the head of a bed or upon almost any piece of furniture.

Only Two Slackers At Races, Both Irish And Not Liable

LONDON, September 14.—Military police carried out an extensive raid for shirkers from military service yesterday at the Newmarket racecourse, just before the race for the classic St. Leger was started.

Racing has been in abeyance for over a month, and thousands of men attended. Everyone apparently of military age, including reporters, jockeys, bookmakers, bettors, racecourse officials and grooms, was compelled to give an account of himself as he entered, and the soldier-policemen demanded the production of either an attestation or registration card, or in the absence of this a birth or exemption certificate.

In the principal enclosure the first hour's proceedings were almost fruitless, producing only two slackers, who both declared themselves Irishmen, and not liable to registration.

NEW YORK IS SWAMPED WITH THE ALLIES' GOLD.

New York, September 13. — The United States Assay Office and the sub-treasury where the gold receipts are deposited are literally swamped by the steady influx. Sometime ago the vaults of the assay office were filled to capacity and since then the over-flow has been taken care of at the sub-treasury.

Officials here estimated that the vaults contained $600,000,000. Of this amount $300,000,000 is in bars, and is carried in the account of the assay office. The latter institution has an additional $200,000,000 in its own vaults so that the combined gold treasure in the vaults of the two government buildings totals $800,000,000. This is probably more gold than was ever before stored in one place.

OBITUARY

MRS. WALTER SQUIRES.

After a lingering illness extending through the summer months, Mrs. Walter Squires, 529 Albert street, passed away this morning at Nicholls Hospital. The deceased was born in Kent county, England, 66 years ago where she was married. Coming to Canada 45 years ago, Mrs. Squires had been a continuous resident of Peterborough during all those years, almost half a century. She is survived by her husband and three sons, Walter J., of Toronto, Edward W. of Hamilton and James T. of Buffalo, N.Y. The funeral will leave the family residence at 529 Albert street, on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, proceeding to the Little Lake cemetery.

The late Mrs. Squires, who was a member of the Church of England, had during her lifetime, endeared herself to many friends, who will regard her demise as a personal loss.

WEDDING BELLS

SMITH—BILLINGS.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at Dale Presbyterian church, Toronto, on Tuesday evening, September 12, when Daisy Mabel, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Billings of 708 Dufferin street, and formerly of Peterborough, was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Rev. Oswald J. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Smith of this city, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. D. Morrow, assisted by Rev. J. McNicol. The bride was prettily attired in a cream serge suit with blue silk trimmings, and hat to match, and wore a corsage bouquet of roses. The bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of Wagner's wedding march played by Miss Lorna Hughes. During the signing of the register, Mr. McBretney sang "All Joy Be Thine" in good voice. Messrs. John Porter and Fred Rutherford were the ushers. Mr. and Mrs. Smith later left for Quebec and other Eastern points, and on their return will reside at 58 Garden avenue.

Strikers Parade New York Streets

Special to Examiner.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—While reports were coming in of five street cars, operated by strike breakers being piled up at the bottom of a grade, injuring nine persons, and Traction officials stolidly reiterated their refusal to arbitrate their differences with the Union, several thousand strikers paraded through the streets here, to-day, seeking support in their fight for the existence of their organizations.

Eight Dollar Beans Before Winter Is Over

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Sept. 14.—Although bean conditions have improved twenty-five per cent. within the last three weeks, Michigan will not have more than one-half a normal crop, according to members of the Michigan Bean Growers' Association, who met here to make a scale of prices.

The association voted in favour of $5 per bushel, beginning October 1, with an increase of from ten to fifteen cents a month thereafter to cover storage and transportation. These prices may be increased later.

There will be less than 9,000,000 bushels of beans available in the United States this year, as against 12,000,000 last year, and $8 beans may be a possibility before winter is over. Michigan bean men will have no competition, because of short crops in California, Colorado and New York.

ALL BRUSSELS MUST GO TO BED BEFORE DARK

LONDON, Sept. 14.—Because it is alleged the people of Brussels signalled to a British aviator who flew over the city last week, says the Exchange Telegraph's Amsterdam correspondent, the German authorities have ordered all the inhabitants to be in their homes before seven o'clock in the evening, and all cafes within a certain area closed.

CANADIAN NEWS LACKING.

English Authorities Object to Its Publication in Britain.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—At a private dinner of Canadians comment was made upon the lack of news from Canada in English papers.

Seeing that Canada's army has brought so many Canadian civilians to this side it is rather surprising that some big English newspapers does not attempt to remedy the deficiency. The admittedly admirable daily bulletin of Canadian news sent for the benefit of soldiers at the front does not find its way to the English papers owing, it is understood, to the English authorities having some objection to its being so published. A similar bulletin sent for the benefit of Australian soldiers, is however, published regularly and appreciated by English readers.

Big Demand For Liquors

Wholesalers Are Prepared For "Eleventh" Hour Demands Expected on Last Few Days—Hotel Rates May Be Increased

Liquor and still more liquor is being stored away by individuals who believe in "preparedness" and want to be ready for the "dry spell" after September 16.

More liquor has been bought from the retail dealers during the past week than at any other similar period in the city's history, according to the statement of one dealer.

The wholesalers all expect that next week will eclipse all previous sales and are making provisions in advance to meet the "eleventh" hour demand. None expect any stock left on hand, and even anticipate that their stocks will be depleted before Saturday.

The hotels of the city are prepared for the last and final rush, and have an ample supply of thirst quenchers of all kinds on hand.

Not a hotel in the city will close after prohibition becomes effective, and many will make especial arrangements to serve lunches and operate their bars by handling soft drinks and "local option" beers.

Should the experiment prove unprofitable, then some of the hotels will undoubtedly close. It is stated that some of them will advance their rates after September 16, the advance to be decided at a meeting of the hotelmen to be held next week.

500,000 ARMENIANS MURDERED BY TURKS

New York, September 13.—It was learned in New York yesterday from a source which is authentic but which cannot be divulged, because of war conditions, that the number of Armenians murdered by the Turks since the persecutions of Armenians began some months ago, will reach 500,000, and that the number of Armenians forced out of their homes and country will not be fewer than 1,000,000.

It is further to be stated on the same authority, that the Turks mean that deportation shall result in death. Sights witnessed by persons who can be relied on of processions of women and children being forced from their country, prove that deportation results in death from starvation.

In the Lebanon region of Palestine it has been published that the number of persons starved and murdered by the Turks will reach 60,000 to 80,000. It is known here, from the same source, and is not to be questioned, that these figures are correct but they do not tell all of the terrible truth. The number is known easily to exceed these figures and unless there be relief the Lebanon region of Palestine deaths from starvation, murder, hanging, etc., will reach 200,000. It is known that unless the war ends soon relief is impossible for the Turkish government has, it was learned here yesterday, absolutely prohibited all relief, even such relief as is afforded by the Red Cross.

The basis for these and other details is a report to be presented to the British Parliament as soon as it reassembles by a commission of which Lord Bryce is the chairman. The data concerning contents of the British parliament report and other given does not rest upon written reports coming from the Holy Land but upon eye-witnesses who write of what they know. For the same reasons that names and places are not given in many of the war reports, names and sources of information cannot now be given.

When a poor girl who is long and lanky suddenly acquires wealth she immediately becomes tall and graceful.

The Allied Forces Smash The Bulgarian Positions

LIBERALS HAVE BEEN RETURNED IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

Celerity And Precision Marked The Capture Of Important Enemy Positions

Operation Might Have Been the Smooth Performance of Manoeuvres Long Rehearsed—Attacking Battalions Swarmed Over the Ruins of Guillemont Driving the Germans Eastward in Dire Confusion —Men Joke as They Fight.

BULGARIANS WILL REPENT

LONDON, September 15. — A correspondent at the British front in France describing the capture of Guillemont by British infantry, says the town was cleared of Germans and fortified by the British with such celerity and precision that the operation might have been the smooth performance of manoeuvres long rehearsed.

"The attacking battalions," the correspondent says, "swarmed over the rubbish heap which once was the village of Guillemont, driving the Germans eastward in dire confusion. Between noon and mid-afternoon 2,000 Prussians who had been ordered to hold this ground at all costs were dispersed, captured or killed.

"The attacking battalions went through the business with characteristic coolness; indeed, they were almost stolid. The hapless fugitives hugging the insecure shelter of some shallow hole suddenly would find themselves confronted by imperturbable men in khaki, hung about with bombs and smoking leisurely as they lobbed their infernal gifts into these stray hiding places. The very composure of their foes disconcerted the Prussians.

MEN JOKE AS THEY FIGHT.

"It was no headlong bayonet charge of men rushing from one line upon another, but deliberate, step-bystep progress. The men had time to laugh and joke among themselves as they borrowed cigarettes or loaned matches at intervals between bags of prisoners.

"It was no walkover, however. In the first phase of the assault the sunken road leading southwest from Guillemont behind the German front line and the quarry immediately north of it gave considerable trouble to the British troops.

"At least 150 dead Germans were found in the sunken road when it finally passed into the possession of the British. One dugout contained nearly thirty Germans. There, as well as in the sunken road, the Germans fought tenaciously with rifles and grenades until the British were practically at arms' length, their empty hands would be lifted with the inevitable whine of 'Kamerad!' and usually an additional cry for mercy.

"THEY RUN WELL."

"While one body of troops pressed through the ruins of Guillemont other detachments north and south were systematically sweeping around it until the village and its environs were completely enveloped. The general attack was not held up; indeed it was hardly delayed by the heavy machine gun fire.

"When the first counter-attack was attempted it was three hours after the British were well established in Guillemont and the whole position was well consolidated. It simply withered before the concentrated fire of the British machine guns that had been rushed forward.

"The headlong flight of some Hahoverians who helped garrison Guillemont was the subject of bitter comment from a captured Prussian officer who saw them bolting. 'They run well,' he said in English. 'They will be in Berlin before I am in England.'"

A UNITED FRONT.

PARIS, September 15.—Premier Briand yesterday delivered before the French Chamber of Deputies his speech reviewing the war, and declared that the complete unity in the allies' aims and operations had assured a final Teutonic defeat and a lasting peace.

Considerable time was devoted to a discussion of the Balkan situation, after he had referred to the intervention of Roumania in the war and Italy's declaration of war, saying:

"Thus again confirmation is given of the determination to practise more intimately each day unity of action along the united front. The allies, putting their efforts in common, combining and co-ordinating them in close collaboration, have determined upon an evolution of the war along these lines. The Germanic empires find themselves reduced to the defensive. The initiative of the operations has escaped them."

BULGARIA WILL REPENT.

"Bulgaria will realize that it is dangerous for a country to desert her traditional friendships in order to subordinate herself to the selfish schemes of an unscrupulous nation," said the Premier. "The invasion of Greek Macedonia encountered no serious resistance from Greece. The behaviour in Greece of agents of German corruption and espionage led the allies to take or demand measures indispensable to the security of their troops.

MUST NOT NEGLECT.

After expressing his indignation over the deportation and alleged inhuman treatment of civilans in northern France, the Premier continued: "However confident we may be of the final issue of the war, we must not neglect anything to defeat the enemy. Germany is still powerful and will defend itself. It will succumb only under repeated blows."

BULGARIAN TREACHERY.

"Roumania," continued Mr. Briand, "had long aspired to release her oppressed people (in Transylvania). Bulgaria's treacherous attack against her may increase her difficulties, but in her own strength and that of her allies she will find means to overcome them and with the allies march toward victory that will make her the great nation she has a legitimate ambition to become.

"The Salonika armies will fulfil the mission entrusted to them. Already on this front, as on the others, the action is developing according to the staff's plan. In this theatre the operations of the allies thwarting the Central Empires' eastern dreams will develop in accordance with the situation, and events will follow the inexorable course in the Balkan Peninsula."

ENEMY PREPARES FOR THE DEFENCE OF NEW FRONT

Attempt Will Be Made to Check the New Onslaughts of the Allies—French Troops Smash Bulgarian Positions, Taking Many Prisoners

BALKAN CAMPAIGN

LONDON, Sept. 15.—Field Marshall Mackensen, in supreme command of the Teutonic operations in the Balkans, has arrived on the German-Bulgar front, to direct the defence against the new onslaughts of the Allies. A Salonica despatch to-day reported that the German-Bulgar commanders are hastily re-grouping their forces in Macedonia. Large bodies of troops are being concentrated in the Vardar Valley to meet an expected Anglo-French offensive.

SMASH ENEMY POSITIONS.

PARIS, Sept. 15.—The British and French troops again smash Bulgarian positions, taking many prisoners and munitions.

SALIENT CAPTURED.

ATHENS, Sept. 15.—British troops in Macedonia have captured Bulgarian salient near Mucukova, with a number of Bulgarian and German prisoners.

CONFERENCE CLOSED.

BERLIN, Sept. 15.—Emperor William has returned to Berlin after a Bulgar-Austro conference.

BALKAN CAMPAIGN.

BERLIN, Sept. 15.—Three hundred thousand Teutons will go to the Balkans to stem the Allies' advance there.

LIBERALS ELECTED BY LARGE MAJORITY IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

The Bowser Government is a Thing of the Past—Brewster Will Lead the Liberal Party

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 15.—Yesterday's provincial election resulted in a complete turnover in the government. Thirty-three Liberals were returned to power as against fourteen Conservatives. Prohibition and women suffrage played a prominent part in the contest. The soldier vote which will not be available until October 10th may change the result in some places. The issue marks the winding up of a political campaign which was the most keenly contested in the history of British Columbia. It also marks the defeat of Premier Bowser and the Conservative party which he represented. Brewster will head the Liberal party in the new Liberal Government.

CITY CLERK IS INDICTED

Joseph Lewis Accused of Misappropriating Money in Water Supply Department.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Accused in two indictments of the appropriation of money from the cashier's office of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, Joseph Lewis, 39 years old, a clerk in that department, was arrested at his office.

Owen W. Bohan, Assistant District Attorney, says that during the last two years there has been a decrease of between $40,000 and $50,000 in the department's receipts. The indictments charge specifically that on November 18, 1915, Mr. Lewis misappropriated $205 paid by the Roseff Realty Company, and on April 26, last, $180 paid by the New York Railways Company.

Arraigned before Judge Wadhams in the Court of General Sessions, Mr. Lewis was released in $2,000 bail.

American Ambassador Is Subject of Much Criticism

James W. Gerard Under Fire For Remarks Laid to Him Despite His Denial—Called Pro-British in Art and Manner—The Enjoy Retorts That His Attitude on the Undersea Question Is On Pro-American Basis—Food Problem Up.

BERLIN, September 15.—The American Ambassador, Mr. James W. Gerard, is again under fire in a section of the German press, this time for a remark attributed to him regarding a speech made recently by Dr. Gustax Stresemann, national liberal member of the Reichstag, advocating, among other things, a resumption of the submarine warfare.

Mr. Gerard is quoted as saying he did not understand how the representatives of districts for which export to America was a vital question could advocate ruthless submarine warfare. The National Liberal Press Agency in a communication to the newspapers takes the Ambassador to task for what is termed "unwarranted intervention in a purely German question," and says the Ambassador's remark is characterized by "that naive presumptiousness which believes that the decision affecting Germany's political future will be dictated by Germany's American export interests."

The agency declares that Mr. Gerard would do better to leave to the responsible German authorities the decision of what use is to be made of the means at their command against England, and adds:—

"The art and manner in which Ambassador Gerard—and not for the first time—looks after British interests are extremely charcteristic of his general attitude."

DENIED BY MR. GERARD.

The American Ambassador, in reply, says he never heard of Dr. Stresemann's speech and certainly never made any public utterance of the nature attributed to him. But so far as his attitude on the submarine issue is concerned, he declares, it is based on pro-American, not pro-British, motives.

The weeks which have passed since the appointment of Field Marshal von Hindenburg as chief of the general staff have been marked by almost complete cessation of the discussion in regard to resumption of submarine warfare on the old or a more vigorous basis. Non-partisan newspaper observers who are in touch with leading statesmen and politicians express the opinion that for the present at least there will arise no question of a change in submarine policy.

The administration of Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg now feels itself fully in control of the situation in this respect. The controversy over the methods employed in connection with the food dictatorship has now supplanted the submarine issue in the conservative and other newspapers which are opposed to the Chancellor.

FOOD PROBLEM UP.

These newspapers are engaged in arguing with Herr Adolph von Batocki, head of the Food Regulation Board, the pros and cons of compulsory production as opposed to an increase or abolition of maximum prices as the method of enlarging the production of foodstuffs.

Herr von Batocki has declared himself a convinced opponent of the theory that the food problem could best be solved by compulsory methods; that is, by prescribing what farmers should plant. But he also has little sympathy with the demand of the agrarians for increase or removal of maximum prices to encourage production. Accordingly the present system will continue.

Mr. Gerard is arranging for a trip to the United States, as he feels the need of a vacation. The Ambassador hopes that he will witness a completion of the prolonged, difficult and delicate negotiations which he is conducting for relief of interned civilians in Germany and England. As a result of his efforts two proposals are under consideration. One calls for a general exchange of civilians under parole not to serve during the war. The alternative is the release of all men above forty-five years and others unfit for military service. There are now before the British government, and the acceptance of either would mean the success of a difficult task of humanitarian diplomacy.

Mlle. Verlet

of the Paris Opera, famed Belgian Coloratura-Soprano, is but one of many great artists who have proved by direct comparison that Edison's new art re-creates all forms of music so exactly that the Re-Creation cannot be detected from the original.

Hear Edison's Re-Creation of the voice of Alice Verlet; then hear the great Belgian Artist herself when she is on tour.

No! Your neighbors could not tell which is the real voice of Mlle. Verlet.

If Alice Verlet, of the Paris Opera, stood on your verandah, or near an open window, and sang in direct comparison with Edison's Re-Creation of her voice, your neighbors could not distinguish one from the other — nor could you, unless you watched Mlle. Verlet's lips.

This is no empty assertion. It can be proven by the music critics of leading American newspapers who have heard the test made. A booklet containing their critiques will be furnished on request.

The NEW EDISON

is not a talking machine. It embodies a new art whereby all forms of music are actually re-created. It is not alone Alice Verlet's voice which is so re-created. No voice is beyond this new art.

Come to us and hear Edison's Re-Creation of the work of the world's great singers and instrumentalists.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags," and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of lime stone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds, and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

WEDDING BELLS.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. Wesley and Miss Susan Wilson, Emily on September 6th, when their sister Victoria Maye was united in marriage to Mr. Sydney G. Bloxom, florist, 95 Seaton street, Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. W. Doan of Omemee, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

The bride wore a dress of white silk embroidered lace over Duchess satin, with bodice and wore a bridal wreath of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of bride's roses, and maiden hair fern. Miss Ala Kennedy of Dunsford the bridesmaid was dressed in a white silk marquisette with lace trimmings and carried a huge bouquet of shore roses. Mr. Wesley Wilson, brother of the bride ably performed the duties of groomsman. The little flour girl, Bessie Bradburn of Janetville, the bride's niece, was attired in white voil with rosebud trimmings and carried a bouquet of shore roses and ferns. Miss Valetta B. Shea of Janetville, a relative of the bride played Lohingrin's wedding chorus. She wore a white voile with rosebud trimmings.

The table decorations were of cream and pink roses.

Mr. R. W. Wilson, Reeve of Emily, and brother of the bride, acted as director of ceremonies.

The happy young couple took the 6 o'clock train for Toronto, where they will reside.

The brides travelling dress was a tailored suit of navy blue ladies cloth with silk waist and white felt hat. The bride received many handsome and useful presents. The groom's gift to the bride being a gold necklace with amethyst and pearl setting; to the bridesmaid a gold brooch, with amethyst and pearl setting; to the grooms man, a monogram gold ring with ruby settings, and the the pianist a gold pendant with pearl and brilliant settings.

Mr. Bloxom is an old Omemee boy who has made good, and the bride is one of Emily's most highly respected young ladies.

CHILDREN'S AID

Rev. T. D. McCullough of Port Hope, was in town on Monday in the interests of the Children's Aid Society. Mr. McCullough states that he had placed twenty-five boys in good homes and one extremely unruly lad was placed in the Reformatory.

A PRESENTATION.

On Tuesday a very delightful gathering was held in the home of Dr. Beattie, Garden Hill, learning that his daughter Beatrice, organist of St. Enoch's church was about to leave for the Macdonald College, Guelph. A large number of her friends in the church, to the number of over fifty took possession of her home last evening. Dr. Lee opened the proceedings and subsequently read the appended address and Mr. Dugon Gray presented Miss Beatrice with a beautiful kodak camera in case complete. She was completely surprised at the unexpected gift but, nevertheless, responded in a fitting manner. During the evening Mrs. Dunbar and the Misses Hocken's furnished appropriate music and dainty refreshments were served. In reasonable time all returned to their homes, having spent a most enjoyable evening. In every way the party was very pleasant and successful.

THE ADDRESS.

The address reads as follows:

Dear Miss Beatrice,—It having come to our knowledge that you are about to leave us (temporarily only we hope) to pursue your studies in Guelph, we feel we cannot allow you to depart without giving to you in some tangible manner and assurance of our appreciation of your services as organist in St. Enoch's church.

Your duties permit us frankly to say, have been performed faithfully and efficiently, with every regard for the importance of the duty and privilege entrusted to you and thereby the service of praise has been an inspiring and delightful part of our worship.

We shall miss you at the organ and in the work of the church generally and hope you will resume your former place and sphere of service on your return, wishing you meanwhile every success in your studies as a preparation for greater usefulness and efficiency in the years to come. As a slight token of our esteem and regard we ask you to accept with our very best wishes this kodak, trusting it may give you much pleasure and ever be a token of our friendship and interest in your welfare—Signed on behalf of the subscribers. William D. Lee, D.D., Minister, Carrie Liggett, Mrs. T. Little, W. Hornie.

A NEW BIBLE.

Through the good offices of the ladies of Grace Presbyterian church, Millbrook, a beautiful new Bible was used for the first time on Sunday last.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

A very interesting meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society, Millbrook Branch was held on Wednesday afternoon of last week on Mr. D. Hampton's beautiful lawn. A splendid programme was given. The meeting opened and closed with singing. Miss Ella Elson sang a solo in her usual good style, and excellent voice. Miss E. J. H. McGuffin, associate Editor of the Missionary Outlook gave an eloquent address. Her subject was "Missions" which she interspersed with an interesting account of her trip through Europe. Miss McGuffin is very fluent, and all present were delighted with her educative discourse, and the Society hope to have her with them again at a future meeting. A hearty vote of thanks was moved by Miss Bram, the excellent president of the W.M.S. and seconded by Miss Burnham, the efficient Cor. Sec. in favour of Miss McGuffin and unanimously carried. Refreshments were served. Rev. Wm. Huggs of the Methodist church was Chairman.

The many friends of Mr. A. Leach will be pleased to learn that he was able to take a short drive last week and he is steadily gaining strength.

THE TAX RATE.

Millbrook council met on Monday evening and among other business struck the rate for 1916, which is 31 mills on the dollar, 4 mills more than 1915. They also passed Mrs. D. Henry's account for damages to automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. Weldon of Oakwood, accompanied by Mrs. Vetherton and daughter of Lindsay, motored to town on Sunday last and spent the day with Mr. H. Williams.

Mr. John Williams spent several days in Toronto and at the Exhibition last week.

Mrs. A. L. Williamson has returned home after a pleasant visit with Toronto friends. She attended the Canadian National Exhibition while there.

HELP FOR WORKING WOMEN

Some Have to Keep on Until They Almost Drop. How Mrs. Conley Got Help.

Here is a letter from a woman who had to work, but was too weak and suffered too much to continue. How she regained health:—

Frankfort, Ky.—"I suffered so much with female weakness that I could not do my own work, had to hire it done. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I tried it. I took three bottles and I found it to be all you claim. Now I feel as well as ever I did and am able to do all my own work again. I recommend it to any woman suffering from female weakness. You may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. JAMES CONLEY, 516 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice,—it will be confidential.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

A prisoner in the castle.—Acts 22.

Golden text—He is my refuge and my fortress: my God, in whom I trust.—Ps. 91: 2.

1. Verses 1, 2. How much hope is there of winning a case, no matter how strong your arguments, before a prejudiced body of men?

2. Verse 3. What are the five, if not more, points made by Paul in this sentence which show him to be a skilful debater?

3. What would naturally be the influence upon the crowd when they learned that Paul was a Jew, and old Jerusalem boy, educated by a distinguished scholar, was learned in their rabbinical law and had been zealous in propagating their own faith?

4. Verse 4. What is the natural inference as to a man's sincerity in adopting the Christian faith, when he had been one of its foremost opponents?

5. Verse 5. What is a man's relation to God, when his heart is full of hatred to those of another faith, and he takes full advantage of a cruel law to secure their punishment?

6. Verses 6-9. In another place Paul states that the light he saw was "above the brightness of the sun"; what would you say such a light was produced from?

7. Seeing those who were with Saul did not hear the voice which was so clear to him, what sort of a voice would you say Jesus spoke with?

8. When God speaks direct to our inward ears, is it possible for us to understand what he says, as Saul did? Why?

9. Verses 6-9. Saul and Jesus questioned and answered each other; to what extent is it our privilege today, to hold similar conversation with Jesus?

10. Verses 10, 11. When a man asks God in life's emergencies, "what shall I do Lord?" to what extent may he be sure of a clear answer?

11. Why would you say, or not, that Saul's blindness was a natural result of the exceeding bright light?

12. Verse 12. Would such a devout man as Ananias be a saved man before he came in contact with Jesus? Why?

13. Verses 13-16. Why did God choose to give Paul detailed instructions through Ananias, and not direct?

14. What was the special work for which God had chosen Paul, and would you say or not, and why, that God selects a work for every Christian in advance?

15. Why is it both the duty and the privilege of each Christian to know that God has actually appointed him to the work in which he is engaged?

16. Verses 13-16. Why is it the duty of every Christian to be baptized?

17. Verses 17-21. What do you know, either directly or indirectly, about the Christian experience called here "a trance?"

18. Verses 22, 23. Upon what phychological, spiritual, or moral grounds can you explain this violent outburst against Paul after such a fair and straightforward talk? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club).

19. Verses 24-30. In those days they scourged, or tortured a prisoner so as to drag from him information about himself: what resemblance is there between that and the so-called modern "third degree police method?"

20. To what extent can you trace God's hand in preventing Paul's torture?

21. What kind of suffering is essential in these days if we would be true to God in witnessing for him?

WINSTON CHURCHILL DESCRIBES THE PREPARATIONS THAT WERE MADE FOR THE WAR

Ultimatum Expired at Eleven O'clock by German Time When the War Telegram Which Means "Commerce Hostilities" Was Flashed to the Ships and Establishments Under the White Ensign All Over the World—Two Years After.

Mr. Winston Churchill, in a recent article in an English newspaper, speaks of Great Britain as "The Great Amphibian." He shows how the Grand Fleet was ready on August the 4th.

"It was eleven o'clock at night — twelve by German time—when the ultimatum expired," writes Mr. Churchill. "The windows of the Admiralty were thrown wide open in the warm night air. Under the roof from which Nelson had received his orders were gathered a small group of admirals and captains and a cluster of clerks, pencil in hand, writing:

"Along the Mall from the direction of the Palace the sound of an immense concourse singing 'God Save the King' floated in; and on this deep wave there broke the chimes of Big Ben, and, as the first stroke of the hour boomed out, a rustle of movement swept across the room.

COMMENCE!

"The war telegram, which means 'Commence hostilities' was flashed to the ships and establishments under the White Ensign all over the world.

"Aye! commence hostilities at once against Germany; urge them; persevere in them; concentrate upon them; repent not of them; pursue them to the very end."

These were the steps preceding that historic act on August 4th:

"On the afternoon of July 26, 1914, orders were issued to prevent the ships of the First Fleet from dispersing, as they would otherwise have done at daylight on the 27th, or to recall such as had started. At midnight the ships of the Second Fleet were ordered to remain at their home ports in close proximity to their balance crews. On the 27th all naval aircraft moved to the vulnerable points on the East Coast, the Second Fleet was completed, and informal 'stand by' telegram was sent to the admirals abroad, and far away on the China Station the battleship Triumph began to mobilize.

"During the 27th and 28th the protecting flotillas along the East Coast were raised to full strength. On the night of the 29th the whole of the First Fleet, with its auxiliary cruiser squadrons and flotillas, passed the Straits of Dover and gained their war station in northern waters.

"That same day the official 'warning telegram' of approaching danger was issued. On the 30th the 'Precautionary Period' began, the naval harbors were cleared and a modified examination service instituted. On the 31st the Immediate Reserve mobilised, and various reserve cruiser squadrons came in to being.

"On August 1, shortly before midnight the general mobilization of the Navy was ordered and the Third Fleet began to come on to a war basis. This step was approved by the Cabinet on Sunday, the 2nd, and regularized by Royal Proclamation on the next day. All reservists had, however, responded to the Admiralty summons, and on August 3rd, when the ultimatum was sent requiring Germany to evacuate Belgium, the whole process by which the naval power of Britian is placed in readiness for war was completed in all respects.

"At the great War Council held on the afternoon of August 4, attended by the principal naval and military personages as well as the Cabinet Ministers directly concerned, the Admiralty were able to agree to the immediate despatch of the whole regular army, not four but six divisions, if necessary, to the continent, to undertake the transportation and the security of the island in their absence. This considerable undertaking has been made good by the Royal Navy.

ONCE MORE!

"Once more now in the march of the centuries Old England was to stand forth in battle against the mightiest thrones and dominations. Once more in defence of the liberties of Europe and the common right must she enter upon the voyage of great toil and hazard across waters uncharted towards coasts unknown, guided only by the stars. Once more 'the far-off line of storm beaten ships' was to stand between the Continental Tyrant and the dominion of the world."

TWO YEARS AFTER.

Now look two years after that historic night at the Admiralty of which Mr. Churchill speaks.

"The first year passed and darkness lay on the earth," says the Observer on July 23—two years after Austria's insolent note to Serbia.

"There was a stretched ordeal; a year and more seemed like one long night of trial. The forces of iniquity were very strong. Faith in the sequel might well have been shaken more than once in all but the souls of firmest staunchness amongst those who had cherished the brighter hope for the future of civilization.

"Twelve months ago the confidence of the Central Empires was near its zenith. They thought that Russia was on the point of ruin; that the Allies' offensive in the West would be foiled to the end in bloody repulses; that France must sink in exhaustion, that Britain was not (and never would be) fully aroused.

THE DARKNESS.

"Then Bulgaria was gained; Serbia was crushed like Belgium; the British were expelled from Gallipoli, and brought to surrender at Kut. The attack on Verdun was followed by the Austrian blow which forced the gates of the Alps and threatened the Venetian plains. Even seven weeks ago it might have been thought at Berlin and Vienna that, despite the failure of all efforts to break Britain's seablockade, the spirit of the ultimatum of July 23, 1914, recognising no law but force, would win the most fateful and terrible struggle which has ever convulsed civilization.

"The second year has passed and no longer is it darkness with the Allies but light.

"Seven wonderful weeks have at last brought the aggressors to account and transformed the whole situation in Europe—stubborn and protracted as the Prussian creed of Might is beaten to the earth and the cause of the Allies, great and small, comes finally to its own. Again, we say that there is no short cut to victory. The way is like a Roman road—long, straight, tiresome. We are sure of the issue. The price to pay will test us to the utmost. Not now nor for many a day dare we relax a single fibre.

"But once again history appears visibly unto men as Justice marching. And it is an uplifting thought for all who bear the British name to-day, whether gloriously at the front or honorably at home throughout the Empire, that but for the fleets and new armies, and the workers and the free citizenship of Britain and her dominions, the mighty aggression of two years ago would have triumphed over Europe to-day, and more than Europe. We have stood in the way. History will never know a nobler vindication of the better ideals of mankind, nor a more saving proof of the mysterious brute-quelling power breathed out in manifold ways by 'the prophetic soul of the wide world dreaming on things to come.'

"These are the thoughts we must keep before us if we would follow with a right understanding the deeds of our men in France and realise what purposes are being wrought out so largely through them in common with all the Allies. As we extend our view from the Somme to the Styr and from the southward streams of the Alps to the headwaters of the Euphrates, we shall still see more clearly how all German calculations are breaking down and how alarm and foreboding are spreading throughout the Central Empires, and even more through Turkey and Bulgaria. Nemesis is sternest when it turns the very purposes and methods of guilt against the authors of it. That is what we see.

WHAT WE SEE.

"If the Allies had designed the conditions of the final struggle they could hardly have ordered it more to their advantage as respects the extent of the enemy's lines. Stretched to the uttermost they must yield the sooner. Every day's struggle, whether ground is gained or not, thins the defence at some points, and brings the Allies nearer the day when they will rupture the enemy's dispositions, break up by degrees his continuous fronts, and roll up his sections"—Public Opinion.

Escape By Tunnel From Prison Camp

SYDNEY, Australia.—By burrowing for forty feet through rock, sandstone and soil, seven men escaped from "Sing Sing" at the German concentration camp at Holdworthy, near Liverpool, not far from here, on the night of July 20. "Sing Sing" is one of the compounds in which bad characters among the Germans who are interned in this State are confined.

Their absence was not discovered by the guards until the following morning, but all but one of them were recaptured within a few days. The names of the seven were: Frederick E. Gross, Frederick Reidel, Wenzel Finghoust, Nicholas de Orloff, Hans R. von Dehler, George Schmidt and Fritz Georgi. Georgi is the only one now at large.

For some time prior to the escape the inmates of "Sing Sing" had been passing their time constructing a large garden plot within the barbed-wire enclosure. As the work was being done on sloping ground, the ends of the flower-bed required raising, and it was by means of this grading that the surplus dirt from the tunnel was concealed. The earth was spread about at the end of the garden, some of it having been put into ration bags, and with every day's output the size of the plot grew — but not suspiciously so.

Inside one of the tents used by the prisoners as a living room the wooden flooring was lifted and a hole about four feet deep was dug. From here a tunnel was started toward the rear of the camp, the idea apparently being that although sentries closely watched the inside of "Sing Sing," not much attention was paid to the outside. The tunnel was not quite two feet in height, and it was 18 inches broad. The men cut through rock strata, when they encountered them, with knives. When they had penetrated some yards outside the lines of barb wire an egress was made. Before escaping the men seemingly stole the clothes of fellow-prisoners.

When the escape became known to the authorities the police at Liverpool were notified and those of all the other railway stations from there to Sydney. On the following morning a plainclothes man noticed two respectable dressed men at the station at Cabramatta and asked them several questions. They did not reply, and when he asked them what they were doing there one of them, who turned out to be Schmidt, demanded the reasons for the officer's interrogations. At the same moment the other suspect, de Orloff, tried to kick the policeman. The policeman whipped out his revolver, covered the pair, and, with the help of bystanders, arrested them.

SHOT BY WOUNDED GERMAN

Canadian Officer Says Foe's Gratitude for Aid Was a Bullet.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Miss Harriet D. Hallock of Jamaica, a member of the Faculty of the Normal and City Training School for Teachers of Jamaica, who returned recently from Canada, related to some friends recently what a Canadian officer had told her.

"This officer," said Miss Hallock, "said the following personal experience was typical of German battlefield practices. Here are the officer's words as nearly as I can recollect them:

"'Citizens do not always know the causes which lead to the killing of wounded soldiers. Another soldier and I were assisting a wounded man of my company from the field. We happened to pass two wounded Germans.

"'"Wasser! Gott in Himmel, wasser!" they both cried. Common humanity demanded that we respond. We set our comrade on the ground and gave the wounded men a swig apiece from our canteens. Then, their thanks sounding in our ears, we hurried to our comrade to hear him to the rear. Two shots sounded from the immediate rear, and the soldier with me dropped dead, shot in the back. What would you have done? I returned and bayoneted the Germans whose gratitude took the form of murder.'"

The railways of the United States consumed 198,200,000 tons of coal last year, or about 24 per cent. of the total production.

Aged Serbians At Corfu Mourn Their Lost Land

ISLAND OF CORFU, Aug. 10.—The Serbian army has long since gone from Corfu—but not all the Serbs. Besides those who rest for eternity in alien soil on the sunlit slopes of the island of Vido some six hundred living Serbs remain here. The war goes on without them. They are the "third ban" men, too old or too badly maimed ever to fight again.

Many of them are ill even now, and the two hospitals tents at Potamo under the supervision of Miss Emily Simmons, of New York, an English trained nurse sent out by the American Red Cross, are generally full. Out of the six hundred third ban men in camp there are 115 in the hospital. The remainder are in charge of two English Quakers, acting for the British Serbian Relief Committee.

Those who are well enough work at trivial tasks to fill their empty days—they who have been heroes. They carve canes of white olive-wood or weave baskets to sell to tourists—anything to keep the fingers busy and dull the dreams of what is passing over there, behind the Albanian hills, in what was once, Serbia. Save what has come to them from the American Red Cross or the British Serbian relief they have nothing. They staggered through Albania, leaving by the roadside all their meagre possessions—even at the last their useless guns, for which there was no more ammunition. Here and there one or two have kept their torn and mud-stained blankets. One, through all the vicissitudes of that hideous retreat, clung to a deep, long handled saucepan, a mountain hairloom of other ages.

And now the saucepan has come into its own. A miraculous metamorphosis is in progress. Over the oval bowl bends the gray head of what seems an old, old man. He is fifty-six, but he looks seventy. His two sons are dead; his brother and his brother's three sons; his sister's husband and her sons—all are dead, somewhere between the Danube and the Adriatic, on the road from Kragujevats to Durazzo. He also remains—a third ban man, his fighting done, his family come to an end—and of what was once his home only an antique saucepan. He is stringing a cord of twisted horse hair across the hollow bowl to the far end of the wooden handle. On the ground beside him lies an olive wand bent in the shape of an arc, its tips connected by another string of woven horse-hair.

The old man's task is completed. Mumbling to himself, he picks up the saucepan and balances it on his knee. In his right hand the improvised bow sweeps across the solitary string with a tone, vibrant and low. The fingers of his left hand grip the handle and pressing the cord, vary the tone in a scale of half a dozen tones.

Gently the old man draws his bow, experimenting with his new made instrument. Around him gather the others in the tent, one by one drawing near to the unaccustomed sound. "A gusla! A gusla!" they cry, delighted, pressing closer.

"Aye!" he replies, proudly fondling the transformed saucepan. 'A gusla" And in half voice he begins to sing, accompanying the words which the few primeval notes of his saucepan gusla. At first it is the chant, five centuries old, of the fugitive Serbs after their defeat on the plants of Kossovo—the chant that is called "The Bloody Night":—

"Beloved, my beloved!

Will it end at last, this tragic night.

At dawn of which you must go to battle."

But there have been so many such nights since then; so much that is now to be added to the ancient legend. The old man abandons the song of centuries old and, raising his voice he begins the narrative or another defeat, a more recent and more poignant trial of the soul of Serbia.

"Heroes, do you remember," he he-hing monotonously, and step by step he traces across the mountains of Albania the blood-stained pathway of retreat. He names each pass, each bridge, each brook and height. He recalls the names of those who died fighting, and of those who fell of hunger and exhaustion by the way. And those who listen as the narrative proceeds remind the singer of an incident forgotten. At once it is incorporated in the improvisation.

Hour upon hour the chant continues, and the gusla moans its hummed accompaniment.

Sometimes at twlight, at the edge of the crowd that surrounds the bard, bending over his transformed saucepan, a short, wiry youth stands, half lost in the shadows. His dark eyes gleam in the candle light, his eager, mobile face reflects the exaltation of sombre harmonies and sublime words. Silent, he, too, listens to the heroic story of his race! his nervous hands opening and shutting, his countenance glorified by a strange inner flush. Unobtrusively he slips from the circle at last, unmarked and strides off into the dusk.

It is Prince Alexander of Serbia—the last of the Karageorgevitches or "Black Georges."

CORKY'S SON COMIN TO U. S.

Lieutenant Pechkoff Lost an Arm In the Capture of Carency.

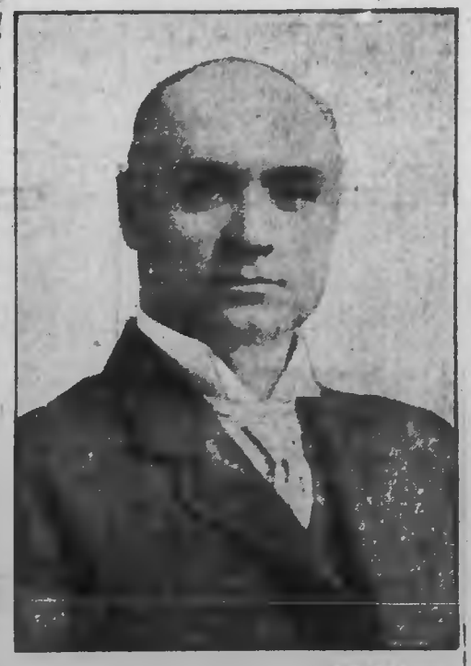
PARIS, Sept. 12.—Lieutenant Zinvoi Pechkoff, son of Maxim Gorky, sailed yesterday for New York on the Lafayette to lecture in the United States on the war.

Pechkoff was in Italy at the outbreak of hostilities. He found he couldn't reach Russia for six weeks to join his own regiment and rather than weight too long he came to France and enlisted in the Foreign Legion. He was decorated with the medaille militaire for bravery in the battle of Labyrinth. Wounded at the taking of Carency, where he lost his right arm, he was made an officer on the battlefield.

He is on leave till the end of the year and he will spend the entire period in the United States.

One of the newer devices to aid the deaf to hear is entirely enclosed in a small cylinder, which is held by a handle like that of a lorgnette.

Mr. John McMillan



MR. J. McMILLAN, who has initiated many notable improvements since he became General Manager of the C.P.R. Telegraphs eighteen months ago, has just decided to inaugurate an important service entirely new to Canada over the hundred and ten thousand miles of wire under his immediate control, namely, the day letter which may now be sent between points in Canada on the Canadian Pacific system at a rate very much reduced as compared with the usual commercial rush telegram. Mr. McMillan is convinced that many of those who send telegrams would be quite satisfied if these arrived on the same day, whereas a proportion of the cost of the rush telegram is due to the cost of speedy delivery. The day letter of fifty words will be rated at one and a half times the cost of a regular rush message of ten words and can still bring an answer the same day, which is as quick as many people desire. There are sixteen hundred C.P.R. telegraph offices throughout Canada, at each of which the new service will be in force, so that this will be a Dominion-wide service stretching from Louisburg, Nova Scotia, to Victoria, B.C. Messages will be taken in either French or English, code words not being permissible.

Mr. John McMillan owes his success to a genial and tactful disposition, which made him one of the most popular C.P.R. officials in the West, where his work centred until he was called to the head office in Montreal last year. Although less than fifty years of age, he joined the C.P.R. at its inception, working on construction in 1882. After acting for a number of years as operator at Donald, B.C., he became Inspector of Telegraphs at Winnipeg in 1902, Assistant Superintendent in 1906, Superintendent at Calgary in 1907, General Superintendent at Winnipeg in 1913, and finally Manager of the whole telegraph system in March, 1915.

ANGELS UNAWARES

(1) Women Car Cleaners at Work in Observation Car, Glen Yards. (2) Women Workers at Grain Elevator, Port McNicoll, Sewing Up Grain Bags. (3) At Port McNicoll. (4) Glen Yards.

BEFORE the war there were five million, five hundred women wage earners in Great Britain; to-day there are said to be over ten million. Five million men have enlisted for active service, and a woman has taken the place of every able-bodied man who might have been engaged in peaceful occupations. England has never been so busy a manufacturing and industrial country as she is in 1916, but this would never have been possible if women had not stepped into the breach.

In Canada there is not the same supply of surplus available women, so that in this respect Canada has not experienced so great a revolution in industrial life, but many new occupations are being opened to Canadian women, and the demand for women workers in factories and in the great industrial life of the railways is steadily on the increase. If Sir Robert Borden is to secure his 500,000 Canadian soldiers, 100,000 women must temporarily step into the shoes of men, so that the latter may be released for service, as the limit of available men seems almost to be reached. Women are already working alongside of men in sacking and hauling of grain at the Great Lakes elevators, in the Canadian Pacific yards and shops where they are cleaning cars, in the telegraph services and in many clerical positions hitherto held by men. They are acting in some places as Station Agents with satisfaction to their employers. But Canadians who visit England are surprised to find women ticket inspectors and guards, women as elevator attendants, women as chauffeurs, and train conductors, women as red caps, porters and ticket clerks, women as locomotive cleaners and track greasers.

HOW SWEDISH NAVY GUARDS NEUTRALITY

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 13.—The fear expressed in Government circles here that belligerent naval operations in the Baltic this summer would place a heavy burden upon the neutrality of Sweden seems to have been amply justified by the events of the last few weeks. The Swedish Navy, small but efficient, has worked night and day to keep the territorial waters free of infringement, but despite this vigilance submarines and destroyers of the warring powers have slipped into the three-mile limit and stolen away with a prize.

Germany has been the chief offender of late, but the Russians were guilty of poaching earlier in the summer, and still hold two German steamers taken within the three-mile limit despite the protests of the Swedish Government.

The Germans seem to have adopted the pratice of capturing a ship, taking off such supplies as they need, and then releasing the vessel with a polite apology. Recently a Swedish ship, the Oscar II., not the ark of peace, but tidy little white steamer belonging to the Sven Line, was captured by a German destroyer and taken to a German Baltic port. There every bit of lubricating oil was removed from the steamer and she was allowed to proceed. The Germans naturally expressed their willingness to pay for the oil. They would pay a fortune to any one who would run a cargo of oil past the British blockade.

The incidents of sunken or captured ships have been many, but there have been far more unheralded instances where raids have been prevented by the presence of Swedish cruisers, destroyers, and torpedo boats. It is no easy task to patrol a coast line which stretches from the northern crescent of the Gulf of Bothnia down through the entire length of the Baltic and out into the Cattegat, nor is it always possible to "chaperon" all the merchant ships flying belligerent flags and seeking the neutral shelter of the three-mile limit. It is no strange sight along the coast to see a German and a Russian "tugger" churning the waters side by side, or to see a German and an English ship pass in the night without the slightest sign of recognition. And it is always safe to assume that somewhere along this jagged, rocky coast there is lurking a spider-like destroyer of the "enemy," ready to pounce upon the steamer the moment it may stray "outside," or, sometimes through overeagerness, to step inside the limit and "persuade" the richly-laden tramp to steer "a little wide" of the dangerous coast.

OFTEN ON POINT OF FIGHTING

There have been numerous incidents of late wherein the Swedish naval vessels have been stripped for action against billigerent destroyers and submarines, and some of the naval officers here in Stockholm say they have rather regretted it has never come to "blows", for they have had all the drudgery of war, with none of the glory.

One of the newest Swedish torpedo boats, the Castor, is commanded by Prince William, second son of the King, and a very popular young man. The Prince is a great favorite in Stockholm, but the duties of the coast patrol have kept him away for a long time, and his slim little gray vessel has been one of the chief defenders of Swedish neutrality.

An English steamer recently was making her way out of the Baltic when accosted by a German destroyer. Knowing he was within the protection of territorial waters, the English Captain at first paid no heed. Then the destroyer slipped to the inside of the cargo vessel and in perfectly good English the German commander directed the Englishman to steer south. The order was not answered, but soon the destroyer began to crowd the merchantman so it was necessary for him to alter his course, and he was gradually approaching the open and unprotected waters of the Baltic when the Castor with Prince William on the bridge hove in sight. The Castor came dashing to the scene, white spray flying from her clean-cut bows.

"What is the matter here?" called out the Prince in even better English than the German had employed.

The English Captain megaphoned the reply that he was being ordered by the German to steer to the south so that he could be legally captured and taken as a prize to Swinnunde.

"You take orders from no one but me," directed the Prince. "Keep your original course and I will protect you."

The German slunk away and the English ship escorted by the Castor proceeded in safety.

Within the past week the greatest concern has been caused here by the sinking of several Swedish ships by German submarines. This practice has followed the declaration of the Berlin Government that foodstuffs shall be considered contraband as well as certain classes of timber, principally pit props cut for use in the English coal mines. Other Swedish ships have been captured as prizes. A somewhat amusing incident recently was that of the Themis, which the Germans were trying to take to a home port in charge of a prize crew when they discovered there was not sufficient coal aboard. They put into Swedish port on Gothland Island and were greatly surprised when the Swedish Government politely but firmly refused to recognize the Themis as a prize, and unceremoniously hustled the prize crew off. Meantime outside the harbor two German destroyers stood glaring at three Swedish vessels of similar type, but just a little more powerful.

The more recent outbreak of trouble for Sweden in the Baltic began several weeks ago, when two Russian submarines slipped inside the three-mile limit and carried away the German steamers Lissabon and Worms. Two Swedish pilots were captured, but released after a week or so. The Russians claimed the Germans were just outside the territorial waters, but Sweden maintains they were not and is demanding their restoration.

This incident was scarce two days old when a German destroyer came into the southern territorial waters and captured the English steamer Adam. The Adam was lying at anchor—some say not more than 200 yards from shore. Several days later, in response to a Swedish protest, the Adam was released and escorted back to the point of capture. She was short some hundred of gallons of oil. Two other English ships, on their way out of the Baltic in the very teeth of the enemy were captured, robbed of oil and released.

RUSSIAN WARSHIPS BALKED

Next came an incident in the Bothnic Gulf, near Lulea, when two Russian destroyers attempted to raid four German traders — the Malaga, Gretchen Muller, Friedrich Carl, and Kette. It is claimed these ships were only a mile and a half from shore when the oncoming Russians signalled them to stop. The four Germans did not obey the order. Again it was flashed from signal pennants, but the Germans only steered a little closer inshore. The two Russians bore down upon the vessels with all speed, but when they reached hailing distance the Germans stopped, and in their very midst appeared a Swedish destroyer, the Virgo, cleared for action. The destroyer had been steaming inside the vessels all the way up the coast. A few hot words were exchanged, and the Russians, making off as rapidly as they had come, were soon hull down on the horizon.

As a further means of stopping the raids in territorial waters the Swedish authorities are placing many new mines and the international game of "hide-and-go-seek" which has been played so freely this summer will hereafter be fraught with the gravest danger to the offending craft. The Swedish naval authorities are determined to put an end to the poaching, and every available ship has been ordered to keep incessant watch. Some of the pro-German newspapers have warned Germany against territorial infringements, and have reminded that Government of the recent experience of the commercial U-boat Deutschland in American waters. They say if Germany is to seek the constant protection of American territorial waters the Government should be careful to respect the waters of the smaller neutrals.

Some of the Swedish papers recognize how difficult it is for a German or a Russian destroyer to lie outside the three-mile limit and watch a rich prize sail safely by with an enemy flag flying at the masthead. They say it is but human for these craft occasionally to "break over" and fall upon the prey.

In relating some of his experiences at sea a Swedish naval officer of distinguished rank said to the Correspondent of The Associated Press:

"You see, we think it is quite easy for the United States to be neutral. The neutrality of the United States is theoretical. Here in Sweden we have a very practical neutrality, a very difficult and expensive neutrality. We are in the midst of the war, but not of it. We are a small nation, but so far as firm determination and steamfast principle will carry us, we intend to remain neutral, even to the point of fighting for our neutrality."

FIANCEES "WAR WIDOWS."

Though Unwed, They Wear Mourning for German Soldiers.

GENEVA, Sept. 12.—Many young women in the Duchy of Baden, betrothed to officers and soldiers killed in the war, have taken advantage of a recent decree of the Minister of Justice that gives them practically the status of widows. They have adopted the names of their dead fiances, and call themselves "Mrs." (Frau). They wear mourning and wedding rings, and are known as war widows. They wear headdresses distinguishing them from real widows.

It is expected that this system will be extended to other German States. Marriage ceremonies are performed in many cases at Baden at the Registrary Office in the usual way, with witnesses.

Provisions of Temperance Act That Takes Effect To-morrow

Saturday night at seven o'clock the last sand in the hour glass of Ontario's saloons will have run out. Time will then begin to measure the new order of liquid affairs under the Ontario Temperance Act. The new Act provides that licenses shall be issued to wholesale and retail druggists under the absolute discretion of the Board of Police Commissioners.

Must Have Affidavit.

In regard to wholesale licenses it is provided that no sale shall be made except on the production of an affidavit by the applicant, setting forth that the alcohol is required for mechanical or scientific purposes alone, and is not to be used as a beverage, or to be mixed with any other liquid for use as a beverage, and is for the applicant's own use, and that the applicant is twenty-one years of age. No more than one sale and one delivery shall be made on one affidavit. The licensee shall keep all such affidavits open to public inspection.

Hours of Sale.

Wholesalers must keep a record of each sale, and they shall make no sales from 7 o'clock Saturday night to Monday morning at 8, or from 8 o'clock at night to 8 o'clock the following morning.

Retailers shall sell only for medicinal purposes, and only upon a medical prescription. Dentists are allowed to have not more than a pint on hand and veterinaries two gallons.

Sacramental Wine.

The sale of wine for sacramental purposes is permitted.

Every prescription by a druggist must be retained for a period of at least one year.

Every druggist must keep a record of sales and to whom liquor is sold.

Affidavits showing these sales must be sent to the inspector on the first of September and the first of March.

No liquor may be consumed on the premises except in cases of accident or emergency.

No internal communication may exist between the premises of distillers, brewers, druggists or other licensees and any other premises, except by telephone and telegraph.

No person shall expose or keep for sale any liquor without first having obtained a license.

Liquor is not to be kept in any unlicensed premises other than private dwelling houses.

May Have Ten Gallons.

Ten gallons of alcohol is allowed persons engaged in mechanical, business or scientific pursuits.

Clergymen may have wine in their possession for sacramental purposes, but any so kept must not be consumed as a beverage.

Private or public hospitals or sanitariums for consumptives may keep liquor for use of patients only, on the prescription of physicians.

Sheriffs' sales of liquor stocks are permitted, and the transportation of those stocks to lawful places, providing that the stocks are not broken.

Native Wine.

Manufacturers of native wines for grapes grown and produced in Ontario may sell the same in Ontario in wholesale quantities, subject to future regulations and restrictions.

Druggists are permitted to sell patent or proprietary medicines, provided that these medicines contain sufficient medication to prevent them being used as a beverage. They must, however, be sold in the unbroken original package.

Standard alcoholic tinctures, essences, fluid extracts, perfumes, etc., may be sold.

Brewers, distillers, etc., are permitted to sell their products in other provinces and countries.

Warehouses shall be so constructed as to permit easy enforcement of the Act.

Records of sales in Ontario must be kept by brewers, distillers or liquor exporters for the purpose of evidence.

Sales of liquor for the purpose of re-sale may not be made to persons not entitled to sell liquor.

Consumption on Premises.

The consumption of liquor on licensed premises is forbidden, except ing as provided in the case of drug stores.

Physicians may give printed or written orders for liquor where such are needed by their patients, or may administor it themselves, but no physician may have more than two quarts in his possession at any time.

No prescription shall authorize the sale or delivery to any person by a druggist licensee of more than six ounces of liquor. Penalties are provided for physicians who offend.

Dentists may keep in their possession no more than one pint of liquor.

Liquor shall not be given to minors by anyone, excepting where it is prescribed for medicinal purposes, or given for this purpose by parents or guardians.

Cash must be paid in all liquor sales.

Can't Treat the Cops.

Licensees are prohibited from treating or harboring police constables.

Drunkenness, gambling or riotous conduct shall not be permitted by any person on his premises where liquor is being consumed by his guests.

Intoxicated persons must not be served with liquor.

No sale of liquir in clubs shall be permitted.

The presence of liquor in clubs shall be taken as proof of the sale.

Suspected premises may be searched at any time.

Liquor in transit may be seized at any time on the suspicion that it is to be used for illegal purposes.

Recovery of Damages.

Damages may be recovered from persons who have supplied liquor to persons resulting in accidental death or damage to property.

Police officers may seize liquor on the suspicion that it is being kept for unlawful purposes; fake the names of the inmates and anybody refusing his name will be liable to fine or imprisonment.

Druggists must, upon request, permit inspectors to take away samples of patent medicines for analysis.

Discovery of a beer pump or other appliances usually found in hotels or shops where liquor is sold, shall, in any unlicensed premises, be prima facie evidence that it is a place in which liquors are kept for sale in contravention of the act. In proving sale it shall be necessary to prove that money passed or that any liquor was consumed, providing the judge or magistrate hearing the case is satisfied that such a transaction was about to take place.

Onus on Defendants.

If prosecution shows that the person prosecuted had in his possession or charge any liquor concerning which he is being prosecuted, he shall be obliged to prove that he did not commit the offence with which he is charged.

A second conviction of any person licensed under the act shall, ipso facto, operate as a forfeiture of his license and disqualify him from obtaining a license for three years thereafter.

The act provides for the setting aside of moneys for law enforcement, and authorizes the Provincial Board of License Commissioners to issue licenses for "standard hotels" for the accommodation of the travelling public and other guests.

SAW 30,000 ARMENIANS WELCOMING DEATH

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions gave out yesterday a statement, concerning conditions in Northern Arabia. The statement includes portions of a letter from a missionary, whose name the censor would not permit to be transmitted, telling of sights witnessed by him in a scope of villages among the Armenians.

"At Meskene" said this missionary "I saw women and children throw themselves into grave trenches and beg gravediggers to bury them. The Government furnishes no bread or tents, and people this Summer have lived and died under a broiling sun.

"In Hama, out of 7,000 deportees, 3,000 were naked, their garments having literally worn to shreds. They gathered locusts, and ate them raw or cooked, according as they could get fire. Some caught dogs in the streets and ate them uncooked.

"In Rekka there are 15,000 deported people living in tents. The camp on both sides of the River Euphrates, but the people are not allowed to enter the city. Everywhere the terrible pictures present themselves—nakedness, hunger, death, and those in authority, doing nothing. Some in despair throw themselves into the river.

"Everywhere we met caravans of Armenians being carried from their homes. We often see a whole row of ghastly forms, rising suddenly out of graves and asking for bread and water. All have dug their graves and are waiting for death. The number is not fewer than 30,000 as I write. Some, who cannot beg lie on their cots or on the ground till death releases them. No one looks to them, dead or alive. At the Government investigation it was shown that there had been cannibalism, and that the dying had been fought over in order to obtain their flesh for food.

"It is to be remembered that these people, thousands of them, have done no wrong, and that they have been driven from comfortable homes by exigencies of war. It was desired by the Turkish Government that they be gotten rid of."

ESTATE FOR SOLDIERS.

A estate of 12,000 acres on which soldiers and sailors can settle after the war has been given to Scotland. The donor is the Duke of Sutherland, who owns large tracts of land in northern Scotland. It is the first practical step in the United Kingdom in a movement to provide small farms for the veterans of the great war. The estate is situated to the west of the River Naver, in the county of Sutherland, in the extreme north of Scotland.

In making the announcement the Duke said there would be absolute conveyance to the state, he reserving to himself and his successors only certain fishing rights on lochs and rivers. A provision is that the land is to be settled by soldiers and sailors who have been on foreign service, have enlisted voluntarily, and have good records.

B. C. BANK ROBBERY MAY BE CLEARED UP

TORONTO, Sept. 14.—With the apprehension of Michael B. Shortall, 6,639 Perry avenue, Chicago, who was arrested yesterday afternoon when he attempted to withdraw a large sum of money from a downtown deposit vault, the Toronto police say they have finally solved the mystery which for five years has surrounded the robbery of the New Westminster B.C. branch of the Bank of Montreal.

About two years ago one Martin H. Flannagan, whose address is now 164 West 61st street, Chicago, was arrested here, charged with bringing into Canada notes of the Bank of Montreal knowing them to have been stolen, and also with changing the numbers on the notes. The reason for the laying of the charge was that the police suspected the notes were identical with the ones stolen three years before, although the numbers did not lack of incriminating evidence the case against Flannagan was dismissed.

MONEY LAY IN TORONTO.

Since that time and until yesterday the money, which amounts to $1,925, has lain in a safety deposit vault in the city, where it had been deposited by Flannagan. Yesterday afternoon Shortall, who claims to have been sent to the city as an agent for Flannagan attempted to withdraw the sum, and while doing so he was apprehended by Detective Cronin and Mitchell, who had been notified by the bank authorities of the man's attempt.

Shortall, who is aged about thirty, is a marble worker by trade, but it at present out of work. His story he told the police was that he had been commissioned by Flannagan in Chicago to fetch the money from Toronto, and that he knew nothing about the notes.

An Old English Handbill

advertised a warning about coffee in its early days as a beverage in England. It said:

"You are not to drink it after supper unless you intend to be watchful, for it will hinder sleep for three or four hours."

That was 250 years ago. To-day it is a well-known fact that sleeplessness, brought on by coffee drinking, is due to the presence of the drug, caffeine, in coffee. It is also known that coffee drinking is a common cause of various other ills.

POSTUM

was devised especially for people who should not use coffee, but who like a hot beverage with meals. It resembles mild Java coffee in its snappy taste, but contains no coffee, caffeine, nor any harmful element.

Postum is good for old and young, and can be drunk freely at any time of the day with pleasure and comfort.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Student of Languages

For the Purpose of a Sojourn Abroad

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS

"Lizette," said Mrs. Carrington to her maid, who was dressing her hair, "I expect to go abroad in the autumn. I shall go first to Italy, then to Switzerland, then to France. I shall get on very well in France, because I have learned to speak the language in talking with you. I have been studying Italian, but in order to converse in that language I need practice in it such as I have had with you in French. I am thinking of getting another maid for that purpose. Not to interfere with you, she will have the care of my wardrobe and wait upon me when you are otherwise engaged."

"Will you give her the care of your jewels, madame?"

"Not at all. You will remain in charge of them. I have perfect confidence in you and would not think of intrusting them to the care of any one else."

This announcement was to prepare Lizette for the coming of one she might otherwise think was intended to take her place. Mrs. Carrington applied to her Italian teacher to furnish her with a woman who would accept a maid's place, but who could speak Italian more correctly than one usually occupying a menial position. He promised Mrs. Carrington to interest himself in the matter.

In due time a young woman appeared with a note from Signor Speretti, the Italian teacher, introducing her and vouching for the correctness with which she spoke the Italian language. Her name was Bianca Morelli. She seemed rather younger than the age she gave, which was twenty-two, not appearing to be more than eighteen. Instead of having the black hair and eyes usual to Italians, she was a blond. Since Mrs. Carrington needed her to converse with and Signor Speretti vouched for her pronunciation and general knowledge of the Italian language she was engaged.

Indeed, Bianca was found not to be of much use for any purpose except that for which she was especially needed. She had nothing to do with her mistress' toilet; that was attended to by Lizette, but when called upon to bring some article of clothing she manifested a singular obtuseness. On one occasion when told to bring a tea gown she brought a bath robe. On another, when the Italian was called upon for a brassiere, she handed in a brush and comb.

Lizette laughed at the girl for her stupidity, but her mistress believed that Bianca had not been brought up with well to do women. She had doubtless associated with those who wore only the plainest clothing. But Mrs. Carrington could not understand. If this had been her condition, how she could speak the language of a well bred person. Bianca explained by saying that she had never had a sister; that her parents, though they had been well to do persons, during their childhood and youth could not give her the variety of dress enjoyed by other girls of her class.

Bianca had not been long in the house before her mistress began to notice that the relations between her two maids had changed. Lizette had at first rather patronized Bianca, sympathizing with her stupidity as to her duties and instructing her in them. All of a sudden her manner toward her fellow servant changed. The freedom with which she had treated her disappeared and was replaced by a reserve. Then, too, she was at times inclined to speak harshly to the Italian, while at other times she would seem singularly complacent.

Mrs. Carrington one day spoke to Lizette about this change.

"Lizette," she said, "I know the difficulties of servants constantly under the same roof getting on with each other, but I do hope that you and Bianca will not disagree. I am rapidly becoming able to give her orders and understand what she says to me in Italian. Now, if you and Bianca quarrel I shall have to send her away, and that will be the end of my practice in Italian. Try to get on with her for the few months that remain before we go abroad."

This brought no explanation of the status between the two maids. Lizette did not admit that there was any ill feeling on her part for Bianca, and she did not deny that there was. She was "doing" her mistress' hair when the subject was broached and went on brushing the glossy locks without a word. But Mrs. Carrington saw by a reflection in a mirror before her that her maid was perturbed by what she had said and was evidently concealing something.

Mrs. Carrington was more interested in keeping her two maids on amicable terms than in ferreting out the cause of this singular change that had come between them. Nevertheless she noticed that Bianca seemed to have an influence over Lizette. On one occasion, when the mistress had called Lizette without getting a reply, she went to the servants' quarters to see what was the matter. Opening a door without warning, she came upon the two maids in earnest conversation. The French girl was talking rapidly and gesticulating; the Italian was unruffled and listening to what the other was saying.

"Lizette," said the mistress, "I have been calling you for some time."

"Yes, madame. I didn't hear you madame."

Mrs. Carrington returned to her room, followed by Lizette. As soon as they were alone together the mistress said:

"Lizette, of course what goes on between you and Bianca does not necessarily concern me, but I don't want any mystery in my house. Though I want Bianca for practice in speaking Italian, I will send her away at once if she is interfering in any way with my domestic arrangements."

"She does not interfere, madame," was the almost inaudible reply.

Mrs. Carrington was puzzled. She said no more, but kept up a good deal of thinking about this strange status between the two maids. Had it been between Lizette and the butler she would not have been surprised, for a concealed love is a common mystery. But the lady could not understand any relationship between two girls that needed to be kept secret.

One evening when Mrs. Carrington was dressing for a function calling for her most resplendent adornments she sent Lizette for her jewels. They were kept in a safe set into the wall. Mrs. Carrington and Lizette were the only two persons who knew this combination. Lizette went to the safe, opened it, but when she looked in the box containing the jewels they were not there.

Mrs. Carrington, hearing something fall and Lizette not returning with the jewels, went into the hallway and saw the girl lying in a heap before the safe. Running to her, she picked up Lizette, who at the same time came to herself and looked with terrible distress at the empty jewel box lying on the floor beside her. Mrs. Carrington took in the situation at once.

The lady on this occasion exhibited great presence of mind. She closed the safe door and turned the combination to lock it. Then she raised Lizette and supported her, taking the jewel box with her, to her own room and, locking the door, placed her on a lounge. No suspicion of Lizette was entertained, for she had evidently met with a surprise. She said that she had never given the combination of the safe to any one.

Mrs. Carrington went to a telephone booth and rang up a detective agency, giving the chief a brief statement of the case. He advised that the loss of the jewels be kept a secret, and it was arranged that Mrs. Carrington should add to her staff of language instructors a German, who should really be a detective.

Mrs. Carrington gave out to the household that she had become suddenly indisposed and kept her room Lizette remaining with her. The next morning the mistress was relieved to learn that none of her servants had disappeared. After breakfast Professor Sweitzer appeared, and it was announced that he would remain a short time in the house to ground Mrs. Carrington in the rudiments of the German language.

He had a private conversation with Lizette, and after it was finished told her mistress that she knew who had taken the jewels, but would not peach. The next item of news he gave his employer was that Bianca was a man.

Mrs. Carrington, as soon as she had recovered from her astonishment, saw through the strange status between her two maids. The man had doubtless revealed himself to Lizette and had very likely made love to her. Both she and the detective felt sure that the so called Bianca had stolen the jewels, and the question was how to prevent his knowing that the theft had been discovered and his slipping away before he could be secured. He showed apprehension on the introduction of Professor Sweitzer into the household, but no sign of intended flight.

The practiced eye of the detective was not deceived in the Italian's make up, though it had deceived every one in the house. Of course, this fact being known, no other evidence was required that he was the thief. The professor not only kept his knowledge from the household, but disarmed any suspicion the rascal might have that his sex was suspected. This he did because he wished to recover the stolen jewels as well as the criminal.

However, no time was lost. Calling for a couple of assistants the detective arrested Bianca. Of course the Italian knew that his game was discovered, and it was all up with him. Without putting his accusers to the trouble of making an examination he confessed that he was a man; that he had learned of Mrs. Carrington's desire for an Italian maid and had disguised himself for the purpose of securing the situation and plunder. He had got Lizette under his influence and concealed himself behind her when she opened the safe, thus learning the combination. He had taken the jewels during the night before the loss was discovered and was watching for an opportunity to get away with them. They were concealed where they would not be easily found, and Mrs. Carrington decided not to prosecute him if he would give them up. This he did, and, so far as she was concerned, he was not troubled.

When Mrs. Carrington went abroad she took Lizette, with her, having forgiven her for having been captivated by the Italian, which was her only sin, for she was not suspected of any complicity with his dishonesty. Her mistress was enabled to call for what she wanted in Italy and understand, in a measure, what was said to her. She prized the little Italian she had learned from "Bianca," inasmuch as it had nearly cost her her jewels.

SALIENT, POPULAR WAR TERM, IS NEW AS A NOUN

LONDON, Sept. 14.—In reports and records of the war there are few words more frequently met with than salient. Yet as a noun it is quite modern, and it is only to be found in the most modern dictionaries, but as an adjective it was in use centuries ago in its original sense of "leaping."

Now that which leaps is prominent and so this became the secondary meaning. Then as that which projects is also prominent, a projecting angle was called a salient angle, and the expression passed into use by military authorities.

Short as it is, however, they found it too long, and, dropping the angle, gave us the new term with which we are all familiar.

THE FLY ON THE PANE.

It Will Crawl to the Top, But Will Fly Back to the Bottom.

A fly on the window pane will crawl to the top, fly back to the bottom and crawl up again. This order is seldom reversed—why, no one knows. It is on record that a fly crawled up a window pane 32 times, returning each time a-wing.

Hens scratch for food with the sun behind them, the reason being that the rays reflect on the minute particles. A blind hen will pick grain and not miss a kernel.

Cats seldom lie with their feet to the fire. Usually they lie on the left side. Dogs lie with their fore paws to the fire.

A mouse will ignore a food supply sufficient for a meal, and run great risk to nibble at a wholesale supply. It will hide at the source of food supply and not depart therefrom until actually disturbed. It isn't true that a house runs to its hole at the first alarm.

Goldfish usually swim around a globe to the right. They can be taught to take a fly out of the hand in six weeks' time. The presence of other fish in the globe is generally ignored by goldfish. Drop a piece of chip on the surface of the water and it will frighten a fish.

Sheep spend more time grazing than do cattle and horses. Sheep will eat for twelve hours out of twenty-four.

Soldiers of 186th Roughly Manhandle Blenheim's Chief

Tie Him in Sack and Put Him Under Pump

BLENHEIM, Sept. 14.—A most exciting time occurred on the main street, when some eight of ten soldiers who were home from Camp Borden belonging to the 186th, and whose homes are in town or just outside, under the command of one of their number, the whole thing having evidently been arranged beforehand, seized Chief of Police Solomon Fagan, slipped a sack over his head, tied his hands and feet, and carried him from in front of Faust's shop to the pump outside the Sheldon House, put under the pump and soaked him from head to feet by pumping water on him.

After they had done this to their hearts' content they left him to get free. He managed to get a knife from his pocket and cut the rope which bound his feet and got up and got to his home, where he got dry clothes.

RESULT OF A GRUDGE

The chief claims to know the perpetrators. The leader, with an oath, said at the time they seized him, "we'll teach you to write a letter to Hodgins at Camp Borden that we were not working."

It would appear that when the boys were home on farm leave a letter reached Capt. Hodgins stating that the boys were not working. The chief states that he never wrote any such letters to anyone nor did he receive inquiry from any of the head officers in regard to the matter.

It is true, however, that one or more of the soldiers on a former occasion had been "pulled" for being under the influence of liquor and it is intimated that liquor had to do with the affair of last night, as some of them had been to "wet" territory during the day.

AN UNFAIR ADVANTAGE

At the time the chief was seized he was standing talking to a farmer, and had one hand in a pocket, so when seized was not free to act quickly. He does not feel to-day any serious bodily injury, although he is a man well up in years, but considers that unfair means were taken in the affair, as he feels quite able to handle them one at a time.

There is no doubt that he will take the matter before the proper authorities, as he considers that these fellows should not be allowed to do as they please with officers when on duty.

Many citizens are much disappointed with the conduct of the boys, and look upon the affair as a sample of rowdyism which should not be tolerated, while a few who have "an ax to grind" with the officer think it a great joke.

There was a general clearing out of the soldiers early for Camp Borden.

A LUMBER AN'S OPINION.

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Wm. Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

MISS'S AND SMALL WOMAN'S SPORT DRESS

By Anabel Worthington

No one has tired of "sport clothes" yet, and if we give credit where it is due we must admit that the designers have been working like beavers to vary the styles.

In the illustration we have a dress that displays very good taste and shows the continued prominence of stripes. The belted blouse is very full and flaring in its line below the waist; the serviceable and attractive sailor collar is in contrasting note, and a tie gives a more "sport look." The plain, full sleeves are about three-quarter length, finishing with a deep roll cuff of material to match the collar. Lengthwise straps of the same color fabric at either side below the belt suggest where pockets may be found; they are pretty with a button decoration.

The one piece gathered skirt is nobby with a four inch band of the material in the blouse to face the lower edge. One need not spend much time in making a dress like this one; its beauty is in the attractiveness of the materials, harmony of colors and the touch to the pockets; much of the dressmaking of to-day's styles is like cooking a simple meal and garnishing the dish prettily.

The pattern of No. 7,907 is cut in sizes 14-20 years. To make in size 16 will require 3 yards 36 inch material in blouse and 3 yards 44 inch for the skirt and "trim"—6¾ yards, all one material.

You may obtain the pattern by sending [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Mexicans Die Of Starvation By Thousands

MONTEREY, Mexico, Sept. 14. — Hundreds of people are dying of starvation each day in Mexico. In the city of Zacatecas alone the death rate from this cause has averaged more than 200 persons daily for more than a month, and there is no prospect of the distressing situation being relieved in the near future.

The situation in San Luis Potosi, Aguas Calientes, Durango, and many smaller towns is no better than in Zacthecas, it is claimed by arrivals here from these different places.

In Torreon, which in former times was the prosperous trade and industrial centre of the rich Laguna district, the average daily death rate from starvation has been about fifty people for the last month.

Peons Beg For Food.

All along the railways the hunger-stricken peons are gathered, and they present pitiful pictures to the passing travellers. At the different stations the half clad men, women, and children crowd around the trains and beg for food of the passengers.

An armed guard accompanies each carload shipment of corn or other food product in order to prevent it from being taken by the starving peons.

The abandonment of many plantations and ranches by their owners, the continual raiding and robbing of the homes and settlements by brigands, and the circulation of worthless war currency have all contributed to reduce the peon element to the lowest possible stage of poverty.

Relief Without System.

In some of the cities the state and municipal authorities are doing what they can to relieve the suffering, but there is such a lack of system in extending these charitable efforts that little good is accomplished.

The plan of the government in buying corn and reselling it to the poor people is in effect in San Luis Potosi, but it has not served to relieve the hunger of the starving thousands in that city, for the reason that most of the peons are without money with which to buy the grain.

Surrounding the corn depots in San Luis Potosi all day long are thousands of famishing people who beg a few grains from those who are able to make purchases.

In the city of Zacatecas the state government established five stations at which corn meal is daily distributed to the poor people. In order to augment the supply, the meal is boiled before it is doled out. The authorities are so hardened to the appeals of the suffering multitudes that surround the stations day and night that they keep the places closed for hours at a stretch, despite the appeals for food that are made by the waiting crowd.

Often the boiled meal is kept in storage until it sours. So hungry are the people that they eagerly eat it in the spoiled state, and many deaths have occurred from this cause, it is stated.

In Monterey and other cities where thousands of labourers were kept constantly employed, there is now little, if any work for them to do. Nearly all industries are at a standstill.

Mexicans Want Work.

What the masses of natives of this country want is work, and there can be little employment given them until a material reform of improvement is made in the existing financial system. No one wants to do business in Mexico under existing conditions.

The war currency is generally looked upon as worthless, despite the fact that its acceptance as a medium of exchange is made compulsory by the de facto government. Farmers and planters are not growing any crops, because they have no assurance that the products will not be confiscated by the government or taken from them by bandits.

Skeleton of Man Where a Woman Killed Another

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The unearthing of the skeleton of a man, whose skull had been broken with an axe, at Cararsie, recalled a romance and a tragedy of four years ago when a woman shot and killed a man. The discovery started the police on a new murder mystery. A row of tenement houses is to be erected at Powell street and Hegeman Avenue, and labourers who are excavating uncovered the skeleton about three feet below the surface, where had stood the old farm house of Joseph Verdone.

The police knew this was not Verdone's body, because he had been killed the night of July 7, 1912, by Mrs. Jennie Seeley, and relatives had interred his body in a cemetery. The skeleton uncovered yesterday was that of a man about five feet seven inches in height, who had bron hair and two gold teeth on his lower jaw. Fragments of blue serge suit remained, with a leather belt, bearing the initial "S."

Going over their records, the police recalled that Mrs. Seeley, an attractive young woman, left her husband in 1912, to live in the house of Joseph Verdone, whose truck farm was believed to have made him wealthy.

Seeley called at the Verdone house many times to induce his wife to return to him, but each time he and the farmer engaged in a fight, and each time the police were called to take the scorned husband away.

It was not known when Seeley called the last time but he disappeared about a week before Mrs. Seeley shot and killed Verdone. She was acquitted, her defence being that Verdone had attacked her.

Efforts were made to find Mrs. Seeley's husband, but she said she did not now where he was, that he had not been near the Verdone place for weeks. Following her acquittal, Mrs. Seeley disappeared from Canarsie, and acquaintances said she had gone to live with relatives in New Jersey.

Captain Carey, commanding the Seventh Branch Detective Bureau, sent detectives last night to find Mrs. Seeley. Several persons who had known Seeley and the policeman who had removed him from the Verdone place several times following fights, said he had two gold teeth on his lower jaw and that his bedt buckle bore the initial "S."

EMOTION KILLED SPEAKER.

Col. Bobb Dies on Platform While Describing Parting from Mother.

CARLISLE, Penn., Sept. 10.—Lieut. Col. John G. Bobb, National Guard and civil war veteran, died here today while addressing a Sunday school association in the First Lutheran church.

Colonel Bobb took as his theme the parting of the Apostle Paul from his friends, which he said was typical of the parting which comes to all friends. Recalling his absence leaves in the civil war, he spoke with evident emotion of his farewell to his aged mother to whom his last words were "Good-bye." As these words fell from the Colonel's lips his head sank on his breast. But for timely aid he would have fallen. He died instantly, apparently, death being ascribed to heart disease aggravated by emotion. Col. Bobb was 72 years old.

The government maintains 27,340 miles of road in Spain and has more than 3,000 miles under construction at the present time.

COAL $50 A TON IN ITALY.

High Price Due to Lack of Steamers from England and America.

ROME, Sept. 12.—The price of coal has already reached $50 a ton, which is $10 more than last year, notwithstanding the Anglo-Italian agreement made with a view toward lowering its price. Many people here see a good opportunity for America to increase her coal exportation to Italy which last year was about 250,000 tons, against 750,000 tons received here from England. The greatest difficulty is the lack of transportation. England did all possible to help the situation, providing more than half the steamers necessary, also giving Italy almost one-third of the German steamers requisitioned by Portugal, and turned over to England for repairs.

The Japanese declare that under normal conditions they expect to sell coal in European markets at $4 a ton. The high price of coal, and consequently of gas, is proving under certain aspects a blessing in disguise, as Italians everywhere are hurriedly developing their abundant hydraulic power, producing electricity, which substitutes for steam power and heat.

GOOD NEWS FROM THE TWO WAR FRONTS

Allies Win Big Victories in the West and in the Balkans

BRITISH SMASH THROUGH ON SOMME ALLIES' BIG VICTORY IN THE BALKANS

General Haig Announces British Have Advanced Over a Mile On Wide Front Northwest of Combles---Allies in the Balkans Score a Great Success--Serbs Drive Bulgarians Back Ten Miles---British Capture Villages and Several Heights and French Also Capture Bulgarian Trenches

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

LONDON, September 15.—The British troops resumed their great offensive this morning wiah a powerful blow against the German lines north of the Somme, General Haig announced this afternoon, that the British advanced two thousand yards on the wide front from Boulaux Wood, northwest of Combles to a point north of the Olbert-Bapaume road. The attack is continuing and many prisoners already have been taken. Southeast of Thiepval, the British last night captured German trenches on a front of 1,000 yards, including the strong "wunderwerk position."

The British used a new type of heavy armoured car for the first time in this morning's great smash and with remarkable success, General Haig reported. Four German aeroplanes were shot down in flames and four others damaged. On no single day on any front since the beginning of the war have so many aeroplanes been put out of commission. British airmen attacked the German headquarters at Bapaume and the enemy railway station, bombarding the rolling stock and damaging one train.

LONDON, September 15.—Reuter's this evening reports that continuing their progress along the Somme River the British have broken through the German third line of defenses and have taken the village of Flers, two miles north of Ginchy, and have also taken the outskirts of the village of Martinpuich, each of Pozieres.

German Lines Penetrated For a Mile and a Half

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, September 15.—(Special Cable)—The British advance north of the Somme River announced this morning, means that the Germans have been swept back and their positions taken on a six-mile front to a penetration at most points of nearly a mile and a half. This is regarded here as a tremendous victory, and although not yet reported, it is believed that a large number of German prisoners and guns were taken. It is evident that the British swept forward in a smashing advance from the top of the ridge which they captured during the offensive a few days ago. A number of important positions within the German lines are now under fire by the British.

French Also Share in Day's Successes

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, September 15.—French troops last night captured a series of German trenches south of Rancourt, by a spirited attack, advancing their lines to the edge of the village, two miles east, southeast of Combles. All German counter-attacks, both north and south of the Somme, were repulsed.

Brilliant Allied Victory In Balkans

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS (French Official), September 15. — The Allied troops have scored the greatest victories against the Germans and Bulgarians since the Balkan offensive began, it was officially announced to-day. The Serbs drove the Bulgarians back ten miles at some points in hasty retreat on the Allied left wing, capturing Garnitchevo by a brilliant bayonet charge, and the major part of the crest of Markanidge. The Serbian cavalry pursued the retreating Bulgarians and captured the village of Okeseu. The British troops have captured Matchoukevo and two heights north of the village. On the right bank of the Vardar, the French captured Bulgarian trenches to a depth of six hundred yards on a front of 1,500 yards, nearly a mile. A French war plane, one of four air raiders that bombarded the Bulgarian capital of Sofia, flew clear across Bulgaria from the Allied lines in Greece, landing in Bucharest, capital of Roumania, it was officially announced to-day.

The Serbians captured 25 cannon and a large number of prisoners. The Bulgarians are still in retreat and fighting is continuing. The exact number of prisoners and amount of booty taken has not bee reported to the Allied base at Salonika.

The Serbians won their greatest victory northwest of Lake Ostrovo, where the Serbian successes were reported yesterday. After smashing the Bulgarian trenches in the hilly region, the Serbs evidently poured through the breach in the Bulgarian line in force and threw back the defenders in disorderly retreat toward the Greek frontier.

The Anglo-French gains in the Vardar Valley were made in the face of the most determined Bulgarian resistance.

9,000 Bus. of Wheat Carried By Boats

Record grain shipments up the river have been made during the past two days. Yesterday, the Geneva arrived with a scow load of 6,000 bushels of wheat, and this morning the 'Rainbow' carried 3,000 bushels. This is exceptionally heavy hauling on the river and seems to indicate what may be expected when the complete usefulness of the canal becomes effective.

House in Auburn Easy Prey of Fire

A frame house belonging to Mr. T. Hurley, was totally destroyed by fire this morning at 1.20 o'clock. It was untenanted and the cause of the fire is unknown. The Fire Department answered the call, but the Auburn district is without fire protection, hence the firemen were scarcely more useful than spectators. The loss is estimated at $400.

BIG SWEEP FOR THE LIBERALS

British Columbia Goes Liberal By Large Majority, the Autocratic Rule of the Bowser Government Being Emphatically Repudiated by the Electors

PROHIBITION CARRIES

VANCOUVER, Sept. 14.—At a late hour to-night, and with returns still incomplete but indicating larger majorities for the Liberal candidates, the electorate of British Columbia has expressed itself as emphatically opposed to the autocratic rule of the Bowser Government. Giving the Conservatives the benefit of all doubts, the present returns promise them only ten to thirteen seats out of a total representation in the Province of forty-seven. At present the actual count is thirty-seven Liberals to ten Conservatives.

Bowser in Danger.

Victoria and Vancouver have gone overwhelmingly Liberal. The four seats in the city of Victoria, including that of S. C. Brewster, the Liberal leader, will be a complete Liberal victory. In Vancouver, where six seats are being contested, five are indisputably Liberal, and the sixth is yet in doubt. Premier Bowser is defeated, occupying seventh place. M. A. Macdonald, against whom Mr. Bowser has directed a campaign of personal abuse, heads the polls in this city.

Ralph Smith, J. W. Farris, J. S. Cowper and Dr. McIntosh promise to follow closely behind Mr. Macdonald in the Liberal triumph in Vancouver. W. Sloan, Liberal, has been elected by a majority of 500 in Nanaimo.

David Whitesides, Liberal, has been elected by 318 majority in New Westminster, while G. G. McGeer, Liberal, has been elected over W. J. Baird, Conservative, in the suburban constituency of Richmond.

Hon W. R. Ross, Minister of Mines in the Bowser Government, will likely be elected in Prince George.

Hon. T. Taylor, Minister of Works, was defeated at Revelstoke by Dr. Sutherland, Liberal.

Prohibition a Likely Win.

Prohibition and woman suffrage have also carried the day, judging from the ballots so far counted. There are forty-seven seats in the Legislature, and for these the contestants number 116. Complete returns will not be in until the morning, but it is believed that Mr. H. C. Brewster, Liberal leader, will be the next Premier of British Columbia.

The soldier vote, which is said to number about 30,000, it is held, may change the result in some places. This vote will not be counted until October 10. This view finds little support among shrewd politicians, however, as the Liberal victory is seemingly too sweeping for that.

Victoria.

Brewster, (Liberal Leader), 1,260; Hon. Alex. Stewart (Con.), 733. John Hart (Lib.), 964; R. Hayward (Con.), 711; George Ball (Lib.), 932; John Dilworth (Con.), 633. H. C. Hall (Lib.), 870; L. Tait (Con.), 656.

Vancouver.

Vancouver city results are: MacDonald (Lib.), 782; McIntosh, (Lib.) 710; Farris (Lib.), 693; Smith (Lib.), 664; Cowper (Lib.), 641; Donnelly (Lib.), 622; Bowser, (Con.), 594; Leek (Con.), 548; Duke (Con.), 532; Tisdall, (Con.), 514; McGuire, (Con.), 507; Trotter, (Labor), 486; MacGoae (Con.), 479; Cassidy, (Con.), 276; White (Independent), 184; Harrington (Socialist), 172; Appleby, (Independent), 78; Fawcett (Independent), 53. The vote for suffrage was 1,178 for and 338 against.

In Vancouver and Victoria the cumulative system of voting applied; that is to say, in Vancouver the six candidates and in Victoria the four

A., which is known in every corner of the world. 1,800,000 sheets in one month were needed to meet the demand of the Canadian boys. Captain Pearson, who directed this big work for twenty months in France, will speak on Sunday at the Grand Opera House at 4 o'clock. He will have a great message. Major Frost will speak on the conditions and experiences of the Egyptian and Dardanelles campaigns. The meeting is for ladies as well as the men. The Salvation Army Band will play.

TO-NIGHT'S PERFORMANCE

TO-NIGHT'S PROGRAMME.

Professor Hardy, King of the High Wire.

The Slayman Ali Arab Troupe.—This large troupe comes direct from the New York Hippodrome, where their seemingly impossible feats instantly captivated vast audiences. Their acts include 'Whiling Dervish' Dances and Human Pyramids.

The Beautiful La Tow Sisters present three entirely different acts, including new graceful and astounding aerial feats and novelty acts. Their tightwire work, dancing, aerial specialty while suspended by their teeth, and their funny but clever rolling globe acts, give a thrilling and pleasing performance away above the average.

57th Band Concert.

An unusually beautiful and novel display of fireworks by the Hand Company of Hamilton. Some of the extra features will be the Fireworks Pyroplane or flying machine and the Musical Fire Wheel. There will be a continuous display of dazzling brilliancy and warlike specialties comprising forty distinct numbers.

PROGRAMME FOR SATURDAY.

8 a.m.—Grounds and Buildings open to the public for general inspection of all Live Stock, Poultry, Special Exhibits and Inside Exhibits.

1 p.m.—The judging of Harness Horses in Classes 1, 2, 3 and 4; also Classes 8 and 9. Special Class for Farmers.

2.30 p.m.—The first heat of the 2:14 Class, Trot or Pace, (Purse $200.00).

Between the heats of the races the Judging of Harness Horse Classes will continue throughout the afternoon The classes to be judged will be 8, 9 and 10 in Class 5, 6 to 10 in Class 6, 1 to 6 in Class 7, and the Specials. These classes include the Silver Cups donated by R. Denne, The Crossman Co., S. F. Redmond, Richard Hall & Son, and W. G. Morrow.

Queen's Field Ambulance.

The Open-Air Performers will give their final acts at intervals all afternoon.

3 p.m. — An Association Football Match for the R. R. Hall Championship Challenge Cup, which represents the championship of the County of Peterborough.

Full 57th Regimental Band will give a continuous programme all afternoon.

Considering the weather conditions that characterized the early part of the afternoon, the attendance at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, which opened this afternoon exceeded the expectations of the directors. Judging by the large number that passed through the gates, it is believed that the total receipts will stand favourable comparison with other years. Shortly before the Fair was due to open the sky became overcast and at one o'clock when the people had begun to move down to the grounds, a smart shower cast a damper on things generally. Towards three o'clock the weather brightened together with the hopes of the directors

247th BATTALION RECRUITING AT THE PETERBORO' INDUSTRIAL

New Battalion Has Headquarters at Exhibition For To-day and To-morrow--Wounded Peterboro' Soldiers Reach Kingston--Grant Potter Loses His Leg---235th's Trek Is Successful---To-day's General Military News.

The 247th Battalion has practically shifted its headquarters from the armouries to the Exhibition grounds for to-day and to-morrow and the new battalion will endeavour to harvest a crop of recruits from the hundreds of young men who will visit the fair. The 247th has a recruiting tent near the Whitehead torpedo and all the officers of the battalion will be on hand to carry on the recruiting work. Large posters prominently displayed in all parts of the grounds call attention to the fact that the 247th overseas battalion wants recruits.

Two invalided Peterborough soldiers were received at convalescent home at Kingston in the person of Pte. Geo. Shoudice who was at the front with the 36th Battalion, and Pte. Thos. Hunter who went overseas with the 39th Battalion.

COBOURG, Sept. 14.—Public buildings, places of business and private residences are gaily decorated to-day because of the arrival of the 235th Northumberland and Durham Battalion in the town on its trek through the counties. The town bells were rung in honour of their arrival and the Cobourg Heavy Battery, Major McKinnon, O.C., marched out and escorted them in. The battalion, of which Lieut.-Col. Scobel is officer commanding, has a brass and bugle band and two field kitchens to furnish meals to the soldiers. The battalion has added 45 recruits to its strength since leaving headquarters at Bowmanville about a week ago. Twenty-one enlisted yesterday.

The colours of the 139th Northumberland Battalion will not be taken to England when the battalion proceeds at an early date overseas. Officers and a colour party deposited the colours in St. Peter's Anglican church here with appropriate ceremony. The colours were presented to the battalion by Major Duncan on behalf of citizens of Cobourg and Northumberland in June last.

The Toronto Telegram says:

One of the first in Toronto to volunteer for active service with the C. A. M. C., Captain Howard B. Jeffs, has just been reported wounded in action. Born in Havelock, Peterborough county, 24 years ago, and educated at Peterborough High School, afterwards attending St. Clement's College, North Toronto, he graduated at the Medical College two years ago. He volunteered for service in No. 2 Field Ambulance, with which he had been connected for some considerable time in the militia.

He is the son of Dr. W. H. M. Jeffs, Medical Officer of Health for the old town of North Toronto, and has been long prominent in Rugby circles, playing on the Varsity H. team and was spare on the first team. He was the organizer and founder of the old North Toronto Rugby Football Club, and has also played with the Capitals.

"He was a born soldier, and as a boy a leader of boys," said his father. "From the time he was a baby he was always playing at soldiers. He formerly took an active part, as a boy, in the Public School Cadets at Havelock, where he attended school for a time."

A cheery letter was received only on Monday, saying he was in the best of health and was then resting. The official telegram that has been received from Ottawa simply states that he has been wounded, but no details are given, nor do his parents know where he is located, and they are now anxiously awaiting further details.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 15, 1916

BRITISH COLUMBIA ELECTIONS.

The expected has happened. The people of British Columbia have thrown off the yoke of party slavery—have strongly declared against Kaiserism, corruption and crookedness in the government of the country. The fact that the election results in the return of 37 Liberals and 13 Conservatives to a House where previously there were no Liberals at all, does not give the full significance of the election results. These are not to be regarded as a party victory as much as a sweeping popular protest against crookedness and wasteful extravagance in government and reckless dissipation of the material resources of the country. Amongst the strongest opponents of the Bowser government, was Sir Hibbert Tupper, a Conservative of the Conservatives, a son of Sir Charles Tupper, one of the most prominent and unswerving Conservatives of the Dominion, one of the fathers of Confederation. Sir Hibbert Tupper took the field against the Bowser government as a determined enemy to the government and all its works, which have not been good. Hon. J. W. Bowser inherited or, as some assert, stole, the reins of government from Sir Richard McBride. Be that as it may, he inherited the responsibility for the sins of the extravagant and wasteful McBride government. Hon. Mr. Bowser was swamped by the sweeping condemnation of the by-elections in Vancouver and Victoria, and attempted to placate public favour by a programme of what he thought good legislation at the last session of the House. But apparently his deathbed repentance availed him little. His past as a leading member of the McBride government clung to him and he was judged by it and condemned.

The returns are incomplete, but at the present moment the figures look like 13 Conservative seats to 37 in a House of 47 members, a Liberal majority of 34. Premier Bowser and four or five of his colleagues suffered personal defeat. Of course the soldiers' vote is to be counted on Oct. 17—but even if that went unanimously in favour of the government, it would not vitally affect the result. It is not certain that the majority of the soldiers' vote would be in favour of the government. Men who are fighting in a foreign country against crookedness and autocracy, are not likely to vote to maintain these evils at home. The Liberal majorities are generally large. The result of the elections is an indication of the present political feeling of the people—no quarter to corruption graft and crookedness. This will be a warning to other governments to take the straight course if they would avoid condemnation. Another indication of the progressive longings of the people is that so far as the count has gone, woman suffrage and prohibition have been strongly adopted in yesterday's elections.

WARRANTS FOR THANKSGIVING.

At this time of universal stress and struggle, with war raging to an extent and with an intensity, never before known, with the fabric of civilization, shaken to its base, trembling in the balance, and with millions of homes darkened with sorrow, it might seem that there was little cause for thanksgiving and rejoicing.

But in even material things we have in Canada reason for gratitude, especially in contrast with other countries. We have suffered little in comparison with the Mother Country, where the war has touched the whole people with an intensity and keenness unknown in Canada. Here our position is a comparatively happy one in contrast with the pitiful plight of outraged and ravaged Belgium, devastated and blighted Serbia, and desolated Poland, overrun by armies, their peoples murdered and maltreated, and left naked and destitute; their crops trodden underfoot or stolen, and all the peaceful processes of ordinary life turned to ruin and suffering. We, in Canada, are free from all this: the course of our life runs with its accustomed smoothness; we buy and sell and make money; we seek pleasure and, sad to say, some of us find it. We have, with all the elements and agencies of commercial and industrial prosperity in full operation and effect, sufficient, if not abundant, food. We have had the divine promise implemented—our time and harvest—though the harvest has not been as abundant as usual, we should be still thankful, for if it becomes a question of divine bookkeeping, we get infinitely better than we deserve. In the abstract, we have reason to be thankful that we do not get what we deserve, or we would come far short.

But not only in the smaller things have we cause for gratitude, but on far greater and higher grounds. In his splendid sermon, at St. John's Harvest Festival service, last night, Rev. Canon Cornish brought out many of these causes plainly and forcibly. We have to be thankful for the magnificent exhibition and fact of the manhood of the British Empire. We saw in the midst of the duties of peace, when the call of duty came from all parts of the Empire, a total of about seven millions of men, voluntarily spring to arms, with all that action implies, in the interests of a cause that was not their own, except insofar as the obligations of Christianity, civilization, and the brotherhood of man made appeal. We have cause to thank God for the magnificent work the women of the Empire has done, for the splendid way womanhood, putting by the frivolous claims of society and social pleasures, have made glorious sacrifice and done much to helping on to another cause of gratitude, the victory that is now in the final stages of the winning.

We have, too, great cause for thankfulness that we can claim citizenship with an Empire whose centre, Great Britain, is one of the wonders of history. The British Isles are a mere pin point on the map of the world, and their people a mere handful, but they are a centre which rules the world in commerce and civilization, as it holds a dominating influence in all the activities of the world; in a true sense, governs the world, not by might, but by the moral force of high character and noble principles. These conditions argue the existence of a divine protectorate, and this fact, and our association with it, is cause for the deepest gratitude.

In these views we have infinite cause for thanksgiving and even, rejoicing. And not the least reckonable of causes of gratitude is the refined gold of good that has come out of the seven-times-treated crucible of this war, in the influence upon the moral sense of the people. We are fighting not only the battle of humanity and human right, but also the battle of international honesty and honour; the battle of truth, justice, and all the cardinal principles of God's Christianity. This war has developed a sense and sight of the hateful hideousness of the lying, deceit, disregard of right and justice and all forms of crookedness that are provoking and sustaining causes of the war. The people of Canada have become seized of an impatience with political wrong-doing and political "crookedness" that sweeps from power these governments that have ruled, or misruled, the people according to the spirit of German culture, which, thank God, is being trodden underfoot and out of sight forever in the ensanguined mire of the trenches, and buried under the shell-ploughed furrows of the battlefield.

AMERICAN FLAG ON BRITISH FRONT DOWN

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The American flag, which had been flying for six months just a few miles back of the British fighting line "somewhere in France," has been hauled down. It had marked the particular big general field hospital of the British expeditionary force presided over by an American staff of physicians and nurses. The Chicago Medical Unit. This unit was organized by Dr. J. B. Murphy, the noted Chicago surgeon, who died a few weeks ago.

There was some thought of continuing the unit despite Dr Murphy's death, and some of the nurses already had agreed to sign for six months more of service. Finally, however, it was decided by the unit to disband. A few days ago the hospital was turned over to an English staff and now many of the nurses are on their way home, while others are taking a holiday before returning to America.

The unit had the distinction of winning the Royal Red Cross medal and twice was mentioned in despatches for effective work.

Now only the Union Jack and the Red Cross flags fly where "Old Glory" for many months had completed a trinity of ensigns.

It is sometimes difficult to bring a girl of the period to a stop.

NECESSITY OF SUBORDINATING EVERYTHING TO SUCCESS OF WAR

We have done a lot of boasting in this country about what we were doing in connection with the war. We take to ourselves great credit for the fact that Canada has raised three or four hundred thousand men. As a matter of fact, however, although what we have done is important, it is not in proportion to the extent of the war. Canada is by no means wholly engaged in the prosecution of the war. Although the war has been in progress for more than two years, we do not seem to have realized that it is a life and death struggle for the Empire of which we are part. The people of Canada seem content to do what they consider "our share."

It is not so in the Old Country. The cables tell of two incidents in London this week which showed what war really is—war of the kind in which we are engaged. They showed that in this great struggle, in the parts of the world where it is being taken seriously, everything must be subservient to the needs of the war. Long established rights and privileges fall before the one great business of the nation.

At Marylebone Station, one of the great terminals of London, the state authorities, without apology, rounded up every man of military age leaving the trains, herded them into corrals, roped them off into batches of thirty and marched them through the streets to the police station, subject to the jeers of the crowds. The men so arrested were not ordinary idlers or persons of no standing in the community. Most of them, according to cable despatches, were "top-hatted city men" going to their businesses. Upon their arrival at the police station, many of these men were immediately able to satisfy the authorities as to their right to be at large, and they were allowed to go. Others were obliged to procure papers showing that they were entitled to still wear civilian clothes. Eventually, nearly all were released.

At another time there would be a rebellion in England if the rights of individuals were thus interfered with by officialdom. But now, there is a war on—a war that must be fought to victory if the nation is to continue to exist—and individual rights do not count. These business men of London were detained in order that it might be learned whether or not any were improperly out of the army. Very little protest has been raised against this action by a country that delights in protesting against what its government does. In fact, so thoroughly contented about the war are the people of England that wives are in many cases preventing their husbands from escaping military service. The London Star, discussing the matter, says:

We live in an inverted world, and new ethics and a new legality are having their full innings. At another time we should have been astonished at the new duty of wives, as explained by a recruiting sergeant, at the Marylebone police court Saturday. In many cases, he said, the escape of men liable to military service has been promptly defeated by their own wives or sweethearts, who had shown their patriotism by writing to the recruiting office.

The other incident is the commandeering by military service had been promptly of the government of the great club houses of the National Liberal Club and the Constitutional Club, a Conservative institution. It mattered not that these clubs were of old establishment, frequented daily by the most important men in England, the resorts of the highest statesmen in the land. The buildings were needed for war purposes, and the great statesmen and politicians of England were ordered out. The only consideration given by the government to the rights of the individuals was embodied in the fact that it treated the two great political parties equally, taking one Conservative and one Liberal club-house. The home of the National Liberal Club is a fine old building of lofty halls and rooms situated on the Embankment. The club was founded in 1882 by Joseph Chamberlain and others.

There has been nothing in Canada to bring the war home to us such as these incidents in England. The people of Canada are going about their everyday affairs as they did before the war. The war seems almost to be a side operation to us. We give what time and energy we have to spare from our regular occupations to it. If those actually engaged in war work bother us through their operations, if the military motor trucks passing along the streets make too much noise, we raise a fuss.

Yet we are no less interested in the outcome of this war than the people of England.—Ottawa Free Press.

FELL EIGHTY FEET AND ONLY GASHED HIS ARM

CHELSEA GREEN LAD SLIPPED OFF EDGE OF WATER TANK

London, September 15. A young Chelsea Green lad, named Frank Swindall, aged 13, had a narrow escape from death on Monday when he climbed to the top of the huge water tank which formerly stored water for the suburb, lost his balance on the roof, and then slipped over the edge. The drop to the ground was fully 80 feet, but it was his good fortune to alight on a small balcony at the base of the tank, about 20 feet from the roof. Under the circumstances his most serious injury was a painful gash on the arm which necessitated some six stitches. Miss Chambers, a St. John Ambulance nurse, who was staying at the Swindall home at the time, rendered first aid and then took the boy to Dr. Clegg, the official doctor of the association.

Mrs. Swindall at the time of the accident was at the fair grounds, in charge of the No. 4 Nursing Division Emergency Hospital, and received quite a shock when she was summoned home, and informed that her son had fallen from the water tower. The miracle was that he had escaped with his life.

For Sale or Exhange

J. T. O'Connell & Co. are authorized to sell or exchange one hundred and twenty acres (120) of choice land in the Township of Otonabee, containing a large red brick house and frame bank barn. Can be purchased with stock and implements, or the owner may exchange and take City property as part pay. Price and terms reasonable.

100 acres of choice farm land with comfortable frame buildings, the land is in a fair state of cultivation. Can be purchased at right price on very reasonable terms of payment as the sale of this farm winds up an estate.

A corner store grocery business on one of the business streets of Peterborough with a full stock of goods. The corner will sell or exchange for suitable City property.

J. T. O'Connell & Co. has a suitable home in the City which is offered for sale and will take farm stock in exchange. This property is situated in one of the choicest locations in the City and is a good chance for some retired farmer to get a home, and not have to call an auction sale to sacrifice the sale price of any of his stock.

Coal $50 A Ton In Rome City To-day

ROME, Sept. 15.—The price of coal has already reached $50 a ton, which is $10 more than last year, notwithstanding the Anglo-Italian agreement made with a view toward lowering its price. Many people here see a good opportunity for America to increase her coal exportation to Italy, which last year was about 250,000 tons against 750,000 tons received here from England. The [illegible] difficulty is the lack of transportation. England did all possible to help the situation, providing more than half of the steamers necessary, also giving Italy about one-third of the German steamers requisitioned by Portugal and turned over to England for repairs.

The Japanese declare that under normal conditions they expect to sell coal in European markets at $4 a ton. The high price of coal, and consequently of gas, is proving under certain aspects, a blessing in disguise, as Italians everywhere are hurriedly developing their abundant hydraulic power, producing electricity which substitutes for [illegible] power and heat.

Grant Potter Badly Hurt

Former Peterborough Boy Has Lost a Leg as Result of Wounds at the Front

MONTREAL, Sept. 14.—The Rev. J. G. Potter, of MacVicar Memorial Church, was called from a Presbyterian meeting this forenoon to be informed that a telegram had been received and announcing the fact that his son, Lance-Corporal Grant Potter at the front had been wounded. The message stated that Corporal Potter had been hit in the knee and arm, and his leg had to be amputated. The wounded soldier is in No. 10 Casualty Clearing Station.

Lance-Corporal Potter was in the 4th Division, and connected with the Stores and Supplies Department. The last letter received from him recently stated that he was carrying supplies to the front trenches, and it is altogether likely that the wounds he has received were got while carrying out his duties in that respect. He is 21 years old.

WAR LOAN

DOMINION OF CANADA

Issue of $100,000,000 5% Bonds Maturing 1st October, 1931.

PAYABLE AT PAR AT

INTEREST PAYABLE HALF-YEARLY, 1st APRIL, 1st OCTOBER.

PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST PAYABLE IN GOLD.

ISSUE PRICE 97½

A FULL HALF-YEAR'S INTEREST WILL BE PAID ON 1st APRIL, 1917.

THE PROCEEDS OF THE LOAN WILL BE USED FOR WAR PURPOSES ONLY.

THE MINISTER OF FINANCE offers herewith, on behalf of the Government, the above named Bonds for subscription at 97½, payable as follows:—

10 per cent on application;
30 " " 16th October, 1916;
30 " " 15th November, 1916;
27½ " " 15th December, 1916.

The total allotment of bonds of this issue will be limited to one hundred million dollars exclusive of the amount (if any) paid for by the surrender of bonds as the equivalent of cash under the terms of the War Loan prospectus of 22nd November, 1915.

The instalments may be paid in full on the 16th day of October, 1916, or on any instalment due date thereafter, under discount at the rate of four per cent per annum. All payments are to be made to a chartered bank for the credit of the Minister of Finance. Failure to pay any instalment when due will render previous payments liable to forfeiture and the allotment to cancellation.

Subscriptions, accompanied by a deposit of ten per cent of the amount subscribed, must be forwarded through the medium of a chartered bank. Any branch in Canada of any chartered bank will receive subscriptions and issue provisional receipts.

This loan is authorized under Act of the Parliament of Canada, and both principal and interest will be a charge upon the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

Forms of application may be obtained from any branch in Canada of any chartered bank and at the office of any Assistant Receiver General in Canada.

Subscriptions must be for even hundreds of dollars.

In case of partial allotments the surplus deposit will be applied towards payment of the amount due on the October instalment.

Scrip certificates, non-negotiable or payable to bearer in accordance with the choice of the applicant for registered or bearer bonds, will be issued, after allotment, in exchange for the provisional receipts.

When the scrip certificates have been paid in full and payment endorsed thereon by the bank receiving the money, they may be exchanged for bonds, when prepared, with coupons attached, payable to bearer or registered as to principal, or for fully registered bonds, when prepared, without coupons, in accordance with the application.

Delivery of scrip certificates and of bonds will be made through the chartered banks.

The issue will be exempt from taxes—including any income tax—imposed in pursuance of legislation enacted by the Parliament of Canada.

The bonds with coupons will be issued in denominations of $100, $500, $1,000. Fully registered bonds without coupons will be issued in denominations of $1,000, $5,000 or any authorized multiple of $5,000.

The bonds will be paid at maturity at par at the office of the Minister of Finance and Receiver General at Ottawa, or at the office of the Assistant Receiver General at Halifax, St. John, Charlottetown, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary, or Victoria.

The interest on the fully registered bonds will be paid by cheque, which will be remitted by post. Interest on bonds with coupons will be paid on surrender of coupons. Both cheques and coupons will be payable free of exchange at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank.

Subject to the payment of twenty-five cents for each new bond issued, holders of fully registered bonds without coupons will have the right to convert into bonds of the denomination of $1,000 with coupons, and holders of bonds with coupons will have the right to convert into fully registered bonds of authorized denominations without coupons at any time on application to the Minister of Finance.

The books of the loan will be kept at the Department of Finance, Ottawa.

Application will be made in due course for the listing of the issue on the Montreal and Toronto Stock Exchanges.

Recognized bond and stock brokers will be allowed a commission of one-quarter of one per cent on allotments made in respect of applications bearing their stamp, provided, however, that no commission will be allowed in respect of the amount of any allotment paid for by the surrender of bonds issued under the War Loan prospectus of 22nd November, 1915. No commission will be allowed in respect of applications on forms which have not been printed by the King's Printer.

Subscription Lists will close on or before 23rd September, 1916.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH HARVEST FESTIVAL

Stirring Address by the Rev. Canon Cornish—The Manhood of the Nation as Shown by the Present War

"Is not the battle that is being fought to-day a battle between materialism and God?" This question was asked by the Rev. Canon Cornish during the course of a stirring address given last evening in St. John's Church. The occasion was the annual Harvest Festival which, despite the inclement weather, brought out a large congregation. Answering the question, Canon Cornish said: "It is might against right. You do not have to go to Germany to see evil forces at work. You can see them at work in the battleground of your own heart. Prior to this world-wide conflict we were fast drifting towards an age of luxury and selfishness."

The speaker took for his text the sixth chapter of Hosea, eleventh verse—"Also, O Judah, he hath set an harvest for thee, when I returned the captivity of my people."

"A thousand times the call goes forth in praise of the good things the Lord has provided us," said Canon Cornish. "Let us make it a real thanksgiving; a real act of gratitude. We are his children to be fashioned and moulded for a greater life, and does it not behoove us to offer ourselves, body, soul and spirit, as a thanksgiving. That is all that is asked of us. Let us not come to the house of God for the purpose of seeing the decorations. Let us not be guilty of curiosity. Let us make this a starting point in our life firm in the resolve to do that which is right in His sight."

The Nation's Manhood.

Referring to the war, Canon Cornish said:—"We have a great and glorious manhood. Three hundred and fifty thousand Canadians responded to the call of the Empire, an equal number from Australia and New Zealand, and five or six million men from that sea girt island across the seas which we are proud to know as the Motherland. The world has never witnessed such a spectacle before. I say let us thank God to-night for the manhood of the nation, — but, and there is always a 'but,' I want those whose duty it is to approach those who have failed to respond to the call, to find out the reason they have not heeded that call. Ask them if they really think a character is worth fighting for, if the traditions of the Empire are worth fighting for? Tell them now is the time. It may take the last man, I only hope it won't. The struggle is on as fiercely as ever."

In conclusion Canon Cornish paid a glowing tribute to the aid rendered by the women of the nation. "Whatsoever a woman soweth so shall she reap." "How deep is that truth," said the speaker.

Splendid music of a special nature was rendered by the choir under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey.

Rev. Canon Cornish was assisted by the Rev. James Price, rector of St. George's Church.

Trial of Mrs. Davis Has Been Adjourned Until Sept. 18th

Preliminary Hearing Was Adjourned So As to Enable the Crown Attorney to Secure Additional Information Relative to the Shooting

LINDSAY, Sept. 15.—The preliminary hearing in the case of Mrs. Davis, who shot Fred Spenceley, of Kinmount, in the knee, the latter having passed away as a result of shock and loss of blood, was scheduled for yesterday at the Court House but was adjourned until Monday next, September 18th.

A number of citizens were on hand at 10 a.m. to hear the preliminary trial, but it was not until 10.45 that the lawyers interested gave out the information that the trial had been adjourned. This decision was arrived at after a consultation between County Police Magistrate Moore, Crown Attorney Stinson and Barrister I. E. Weldon, the latter representing Mrs. Davis. Crown Attorney Stinson stated that he was desirous of securing additional information in regard to the shooting and other matters, hence the adjournment.

Mrs. Davis is but 22 years of age, and was married some five years ago. Previous to that she was for some time a domestic in the home of Mr. Jas. Peel. She apparently has no relatives living in this country.

The deceased Spenceley is survived by his wife and family of six or seven children.

The Bad Weather Affected The Exhibition Attendance To.day and the crowd rapidly assumed substantial proportions. A large attendance is looked for this evening, when an unusually good programme will be provided.

With bright favourable weather the Exhibition should score a big success this afternoon.

The programme is one of the best offered—the exhibits in all lines are splendid and in some departments record-breakers and although there is probably more to be seen at the grounds than at any previous exhibition. With grandstand acts of such magnitude as the Arab acrobats, Handy the high wire king, and the La Tow Sisters, with the exhibition by Queen's Field Ambulance, the jumping by the prize winning high jumping horses from Cobourg and many other attractions, there were plenty of features to entertain the crowd.

On all lines the exhibits were good. There were some magnificent entries in all classes of horses, and the cattle, swine and sheep were good. The horticultural display is one of the finest ever seen here and all the poultry classes are well filled. The exhibition of ladies work in the top of the main building is probably the largest and most comprehensive ever shown at the exhibition.

PROCESSION TO GROUNDS

At 1.30 the procession to the grounds commenced at Central Park. It was headed by the band of the 57th Regiment followed by the Queen's Field Ambulance squad in charge of Sergt.-Major Beesley. The fire department and a number of delivery outfits completed the procession. The soldier boys with their stretchers marched splendidly and made a most favourable impression.

BABY SHOW.

The judges for the Baby Show tomorrow will be Mayor Duffus, Mr. H. C. Winch and Chief Howard.

TO-NIGHT'S PERFORMANCE

With favourable weather to-night there should be a good crowd on hand for the night performance which will be away above the ordinary.

EXHIBITION NOTICES

It was generally admitted by those in charge of the many special exhibits on the Fair Grounds yesterday that the publicity given to their goods was well worth the trouble and expense of exhibiting. The results, both in sales and in good prospects secured, proved the Peterborough Industrial to be far-reaching means of advertising.

Particularly conspicuous this year was the number of special exhibits made by our enterprising manufacturers and merchants. It was one of the gratifying features of our Industrial. Every available space in the Main Building was taken up, and throughout the grounds varied exhibits were to be found with attractive and instructive displays.

JORDAN BROS'. FLORAL PRIZES.

The monster Flower Tent is one of the first places of interest to the visitor and it is well worth a half-hour's entertainment. The flower show at the Fair is alone well worth the price of admission," is the expression of many spectators. It is equally true that the floral contributions of Jordan Bros., the old established city florists, are entitled to sharing in the encomums of praise and their well-earned honours from the judges. Inside a mammoth new tent, lovers of plants and flowers were crowded, feasting their eyes on the banks and bowers of blooming beauty, filled with the richest floral specimens of the season.

Jordan Bros.' greenhouses were strongly represented, and the wealth of plant and bloom of their own home-grown specimens won for them a conspicuous string of red and blue prize tickets. Great praise is due their professional gardener, Mr. Chas. Lee, not only for the artistic effects produced in the displays, but for the splendid condition of the plants shown. This firm took first prize for the best group of Greenhouse plants; second prize for best floral design; first prize for best floral basket; first prize for best collection of flowering begonias; first prize for Rex Begonias, in which collection fourteen different specimens were shown; second prize for best collection of geraniums; first prize for foliage plans, in which good colour and even growth were conspicuous; second prize for best collection of ferns, some of these being very fine specimens of the Tervis fern, Maidenhair ferns, Holly ferns, and Whitman ferns. The excellent setting of the supper table by Mrs. Jordan was much admired, the centre-piece being a beautiful bouquet of delicate roses, with smilax decoration from their own nurseries.

AWARDS TO THE PETERBOROUGH FLORAL CO.

Among the many blooms and blossoms shown in the floral tent, many of the best specimens were from the greenhouses of the Peterborough Floral Co., 436-438 Water Street. The quality and productiveness, and the floral loveliness of their exhibits, as well as the arrangement and grouping of these were excellent. The profusion of colour, blending with the foliage and fern displays, was a rare treat for the admiring visitors. It was evident that the skill of the professional gardener had been busy for many months in bringing these floral gems to the condition which so well repaid the trouble. The judge commended the firm highly for their work.

The Peterborough Floral Co. carried off quite a string of prizes, as will be seen by the prize list.

Special credit is due the firm's gardener for the display of plants and flowers so unstintingly shown, and to Miss A. Dean for her artistic handiwork in the arrangement of two handsome floral wreaths and other fine floral effects in their exhibits.

J. H. CALLANDER'S FERN CONTRIBUTION.

In the fern section there were three surprisingly fine exhibits, eliciting very favourable comment from many who had seen the Toronto show, and thought the quality would be hard to excel. Mr. Callander's first prize exhibit contains a large number of rare varieties, some of them, such as the great Australian tree fern, towering well above the more humble sorts, and attaining a spread of at least six feet. This exhibit is grown in a private conservatory, and is a revelation of what can be done by an enthusiastic hobbyist, who is willing to give his plants the care they require to produce such magnificent specimens.

The second prize collection of ferns grown by Jordan Bros., are mostly of commercial varieties, and are in such perfect condition as to prove a splendid advertisement of the grade of stock grown by this popular firm of florists. Every specimen is in the best of condition, if anything better than the first prize group, but the latter wins on number of varieties. Mr. Wise, who shows the third prize group, has a well grown lot of younger plants which were so highly approved by the judge that he recommended a third prize for them on account of their really excellent quality. In all the ferns shown there was a very little margin of quality to designate the winners, the awards going to the largest groups in their respective order.

PETERBOROUGH FLORAL COMPANY.

Owing to being exceptionally busy The Peterborough Floral Company were unable to make their usual exhibit in the Horticultural tent this year. A magnificent standing Floral Wreath on a pedestal was exhibited, however, and secured first prize for their Designer Miss Dean. They also placed on view two very pretty Wreaths, one of prepared Magnolia leaves and the other of Red Immortelles; these are used very extensively for the decorating of graves on anniversaries, etc., and stay fresh and pretty for a remarkably long time.

HEINTZMAN & CO. PIANOS.

One of the new exhibitors in the main building this year is the firm of Heintzman & Co., Limited, Piano manufacturers, with factory and warerooms in Toronto. This firm have been encouraged to open a branch in Peterborough, next the Examiner Office, under the management of Mr. B. H. Britton, the district representative of the firm, where different types of their beautiful pianofortes will be on display from time to time, as well as samples of other allied goods.

The pianos made by Ye Olde Firme of Heintzman & Co., are well known in Peterborough, and include among the best of their patrons some of the most influential families of our city. Many of the most celebrated musical artists from abroad have sought and have only been satisfied with a Heintzman & Co. piano in their various public functions. Heintzman & Co. claim that they have produced an evolution in piano building—that their piano has an "individuality of its own," and "stands apart from all other pianos." Many testimonies of the intrinsic worth of the Heintzman & Co. pianos have appeared, and others are given in the handsome booklets given out at the Fair by representatives of the firm.

Two of their handsome mahogany pianos were shown, the fine tonality and harmony of their music delighting and attracting large crowds to this exhibit.

FORD MOTORING MAKES FOR LONGEVITY.

It need not be any surprise to hear the owners of a Ford car say that the possession of a motor car increases the number of years a man lives, as well as the pleasure of those years, especially if, in addition to owning a Ford, the owner drives it himself. For, in that way, he gets the fullest possible benefits in the way of health. Of course, for a week or two the novice must undergo some strain in learning how to drive his car and to handle it in any situation. But the Ford is so simple to learn, and so easy to handle that the strain soon wears off and the pleasures of driving begin to pile up. Some one was heard to say: "I know that, from practice, I am able to drive my Ford car at a good clip, without concentrating upon the act of driving. On the contrary, I can enjoy the surroundings as I travel along, and, at the same time, get all the physical benefits attendant upon driving."

To the business man the Ford car has accomplished invaluable results, in doing away with what is known as "that tired feeling". The more a business man uses his Ford the more he gets out into the country and enjoys the benefits of a change of scenery, fresh air and respite from business care. The new 1917 Ford car was shown on the Fair Grounds, and busy representatives of the Duffus Garage, Simcoe Street, were present to explain all the new features of the newest type of the "Universal" car. Mayor Duffus, the genial proprietor of the garage, and popular local re-

Dry Weather Hard On Plough Points

LINDSAY, Sept. 15. — "It would take a rain equal to that which gave Noah and his ark so much notoriety to soften the ground," said an irate farmer from Reaboro. "This is the tenth plow point I bought inside of two weeks," he said, "since I started to plow and men and horses are almost strained as the ground is so desperately hard.
